Heard Along Main Street

And on Some of Manchester's Side Streets, Too

Another Suburban Hazard A Manchester gentleman who recently acquired his own home has adopted the suburban way of life with enthusiasm...

Child of the farm, he reacted as so many farm boys do, and for years would have nothing to do with the soil. Now he has taken to putting and clipping with the rest...

He took the big fat book of directions for the mower and carefully read the first half. Thus instructed, he went out with the mower and the book, and started the machine...

Then he made a serious miscalculation. He came on his fourth courageous sweep within a foot of the booklet he had dropped on the lawn...

"Whishash." The rotary swallowed the directions and masticated them. Like an angry beast turned on a wicked master, it began to roar...

"It looked like it was snowing around there for a few minutes," the homeowner commented blandly...

When we last saw him he was patiently trying to explain to the hardware dealer why he needed another instruction booklet...

Time for a Change Back in the days when the town and the Purnell Parking lot people finally got together and put a road from the Purnell lot north through town land, somebody put up a sign...

The sign was generally accepted then that the sign was in error. The road leads to Birch St., but the sign said "Bissell!"

"It's beginning to look as though that was not an error but another step in the merchant's drive to improve parking and access to parking."

The sign is still up and if people get the "Bissell St." idea firmly enough implanted, maybe they will insist the road be put through to Bissell, which is just one street north of Birch.

Situation Well in Hand You've got to leave Boston, Red

Sox ball games pretty early to beat some local attorneys to a case. A party of local men was on its way home from a game recently when it came upon the scene of an accident, somewhere north of the Connecticut line...

A lawyer in the party said, "Maybe we better stop." Whether he wanted to render aid or get a case we don't know, and never will, for the party didn't stop.

Another passenger in the car pointed to a car with Connecticut plates that had already pulled off the road. The Connecticut automobile was recognized as belonging to another Manchester lawyer.

We thought the local Salvation Army was a big booster for Evangelist Graham. Apparently we're wrong, however, because they won't even spell his name right. The SA version is "Billie."

You Can't Take It With You Fate, as has probably been remarked once or twice, before, is a funny thing. The influence it can have on a person's affairs is enough to make him give up trying to plan ahead.

Take the case of Bill McGrath, manager of the State Theater. He finds himself today in the middle of a coincidence that would have most people shaking their heads.

For more than 2 1/2 years, he has been connected with the State Theater, as both assistant manager and manager. In those 2 1/2 years there have been three summers, hot ones, which he has sweated out in an unairconditioned theater.

Now today, he is leaving Manchester for Danbury, transferred to a theater there by the movie chain that employs him. That theater, he tells us, isn't air-conditioned either.

Misplacing Bee Continues So what? you ask. So this: The State Theater's brand-new air conditioning unit goes into air-cooling action for the first time early next week.

Up until the last war, Tuesday night was concert night in Center Park. The Salvation Army Band played to thousands each week. The Manchester Pipe Band has had three concerts this year, but the crowds have been slim.

We entered a local business establishment the other day. The air-conditioner was whirring merrily and the front door was wide open, admitting air so hot and heavy you could slice it.

When queried on his reasoning, the proprietor replied that he couldn't stand to keep the door shut in such nice weather.

Scarcity of Candles Town employees who celebrated Building Inspector Griswold Chappell's birthday at the Municipal Building yesterday decorated the cake with one candle. "That's for the year I go backwards," Chappell said. "I was 39 last year and I'm 38 this year."

Campaign Succeeding Hats off to the two Bobs for coming to Heard Along's rescue. Bob Vater and Bob Johns, music instructors in the Manchester School system, have started a Community Band. Heard Along has been campaigning for such a community project for two years. The plea has reached appreciative ears.

And from the reports on the first rehearsal, held last Tuesday, the idea is catching on. Vater tells us 55 musicians showed up! It may take time to fan the flames, but Vater and Johns hope they can interest some of the town's more mature musicians. Right now there is a fine group of high school-age musicians in the band who are eager to continue to play during the summer. Most of them in the past have stashed their instruments away for a couple of months. Then there are many who, upon graduation, never take the horn out of the attic.

But this is a start. Given a few older, experienced musicians for balance, the two Bobs hope they can give this town a Community Band of which it can be proud. The concerts are planned this summer, and maybe by next year it will be possible to expand that schedule. Vacations will play a part in the plans and not all musicians will be together all the time.

"Wait 'till next year," cry the two leaders. "We hope to have 100 in the band."

So does Heard Along. We would welcome with open arms the old time concert in the park.

The Truth in Part There is at least one thing right about the sign on the Wilbur Cross Highway at the Manchester-East Hartford line. The sign says you are entering Manchester, which is true.

But the figure it gives as the town's population would send a shudder down your spine, as has been observed at least once before. That sign puts only 33,200 residents in this town.

There may be some old-timers who wish that were so, but its certainly not.

Even conservative State Department of Health tallies put the figure over 37,000 now. Local authorities are convinced 41,000 is nearer the truth.

At any rate someone ought to do something about the sign. Perhaps the Development Commission should take up the problem, and get the thing changed. The impression that the town has only some 33,000 inhabitants may not be a good advertisement to some industries who might be tempted to consider Manchester as a factory site.

It Hurts Good The failure of a gregarious nature of man fully to reconcile itself to mechanical progress sometimes manifests itself in a rather ridiculous way.

We entered a local business establishment the other day. The air-conditioner was whirring merrily and the front door was wide open, admitting air so hot and heavy you could slice it.

When queried on his reasoning, the proprietor replied that he couldn't stand to keep the door shut in such nice weather.

North Church Set to Start New Building

North Methodist Church will start the first part of its building program tomorrow.

The Rev. H. Osgood Bennett, pastor of the church, will turn over the first shovelful of earth. Representatives of the various church organizations who will take part are Robert McBride, exhorter of the church, and Quent Mangin, co-lay leader; Wayne Newman, president of the Methodist Youth Fellowship; Mrs. Norma Thoun, president of the Women's Society; Charles Phillips, president of the Methodist Men's Club.

The five commissions of the church will be represented by the chairman of the various organizations: Ralph Warren, membership and evangelism; Mrs. Mary Miller, education; Mrs. Blanche Newman, chairman of the education; Robert Ostrander, chairman of finance; and Louis Olmstead, chairman of Christian social relations.

Mrs. Annie McLagan, a member of the church since December 28, 1904, will represent the older members. Alton Coville, chairman, will represent the building committee.

James McKay, minister of music, will preside at the organ and will play for the congregation singing. "The Church's One Foundation"

The educational building will provide 14 church school classrooms, a temporary sanctuary to seat 350, a church parlor; two offices, parlor, coatroom, kitchen and toilet facilities, a fellowship hall and the boiler room.

It will be a steel structure, with cement floors, concrete slab roof, masonry block with brick veneer exterior finish. The building will be 9,360 square feet, 2-story in structure, with three ground floor entrances to the classrooms, and a split level entrance to the nave.

Plans and specifications were prepared by Irving W. Rutherford, architect and engineer of Hartford. The contract for the construction of the building was awarded to the Annull Construction Co. of Manchester.

Rebekahs to Host Young Pilgrims Sunset Rebekah Lodge No. 39, I.O.O.F., will have as their guests for dinner Monday 36 young people and three sponsors making up part of the 8th Annual Odd Fellows' United Nations Pilgrimage for Youth.

These young people come from Virginia, North Carolina, Kentucky, Maryland, Louisiana and Washington, D. C. The group that will stop in Manchester is one of many that made the pilgrimage. Odd Fellow Lodges, Rebekah Lodges, Encampments and Cantons all over the country sponsor these annual trips.

The delegates are high school students chosen on the basis of character and personality. Mayor Harold A. Turkington will extend greetings of the town to the young people, who by the time they reach Manchester will have visited the United Nations, New York City and various points of interest in New England. After the dinner several delegates will speak on their trip to the United Nations.

Sunset has entertained these pilgrimage groups for three years.
