State Heads Express Views On Government in Public

Chicago, July 11 (AP)—A survey of the nation's 48 governors on the question of how much the public knows about the state's business shows the breakdown in a survey conducted by the National Governors' Association.

Twenty-four favor open government with full news coverage. Thirteen others generally endorse open government. Six defended closed executive sessions. Five expressed no opinion. The survey was conducted by the with the press and public barred. Among those strongly favoring open government was Gov. George Dooling of Kansas.

"After all," Dooling remarked in his reply to a committee questionnaire, "the government is the business of the people. They have the right to know everything about what is going on at all times."

Gov. Albert B. Chandler of Kentucky went on record as favoring the closure of some phases of government business. He said the "absence of reporters encourages the outside officers to speak more frankly about their problems."

Other governors who said there were times when the closed executive session is necessary were Gov. Earl K. Long of Louisiana, Edmund A. Mulaik of Maine, Lane

Dwinnell of New Hampshire, George D. Clyde of Utah and Joseph B. Johnson of Vermont.

The thirteen who the committee said "generally" endorse open government replied to questionnaires favoring open government but did not point their policies on open meetings versus closed meetings.

The committee report said the five governors who made no public expression were: Gov. William C. Ricketts of Illinois, George Ball Timmerman Jr. of South Carolina, Vernon W. Thomas of Wisconsin, Harold C. Lovelace of Iowa and Edward L. Mechem of New Mexico.

Harry A. Newton and his wife, Rebecca, both 46, had a tearful reunion with 37-year-old Victor A. Newton at the hospital yesterday. Two nurses at the hospital, learning of the Newtons' search and believing one of their patients to be the missing son, had contacted the

Red Tags Ike's Clean H-Bomb Talk as Stupid

After completing his formal address, Khrushchev made no further reference to Eisenhower. Khrushchev defended the right of individual Communist nations to develop their "socialist" (Communist) culture, parties and governments on the basis of their own peculiarities. It was a strong endorsement of some of the Communist gospel. President Tito has long been preaching.

Speaking directly to Yugoslav journalists at the meeting, Khrushchev said "Don't write what I am saying now because when I meet comrades Tito, Kadar and Rankovic I will tell them myself!" His statement was the first confirmation that Khrushchev and Tito may be planning a resumption of last year's conference in the Cuban, Yugoslav Vice President Edward Kardelj and Yugoslav Communist leader Alexander Rankovic are now "reconciling" in the Soviet Union.

Khrushchev reportedly continued his private discussions with Czech leaders between the scheduled events.
Although it was evident the Soviet Communist Party chief was talking in Czech about last month's palace revolt in the Kremlin and its effect on Communist parties abroad, there has as yet been no public evidence that Khrushchev is planning a resumption of last year's conference in the Cuban, Yugoslav Vice President Edward Kardelj and Yugoslav Communist leader Alexander Rankovic are now "reconciling" in the Soviet Union.

Statement Due Friday
A joint communique will be issued, probably before the scheduled meeting Tuesday.
The Prague meeting was a steady stream of the morning as the Czechs drove their visitors to the Stalin-grad heavy industry factory in Prague, one of the city's largest plants.
The Czech government has imposed light security measures during the visit. Although the meeting is given transit visas in Prague, it is not possible to see the city, although the visit the passengers have been required to stay at a detention hotel at the airport.

Among the passengers grumbling about the inconvenience were tourists flying from Moscow to western Europe on a Soviet jetliner.

If it's his job to make Marriage Companionable
When a husband and wife are companionable it is usually because the wife is willing to make the effort to be companionable.
Perhaps a husband should make an effort to share the wife's interests as she does to share his, but he usually doesn't. Both men and women want companionship in marriage. But a man's idea of companionship is having a wife who will be interested in the same things he is. It doesn't occur to most men that companionship could be a mutual sharing of interests—that if a wife shares her husband's interests he should share hers. Every bride should realize from

Shiny Object Sighted in Sky Identified as Weather Balloon

This is what the shiny object sighted by many Manchester residents as it floated over the town last night looked like.
The Air Force research center at New Bedford, Mass., said it was an Air Force weather balloon, and its effect on Communist parties abroad, there has as yet been no public evidence that Khrushchev is planning a resumption of last year's conference in the Cuban, Yugoslav Vice President Edward Kardelj and Yugoslav Communist leader Alexander Rankovic are now "reconciling" in the Soviet Union.

Major Deloria said that a recent night of planes which had ridden this jet stream had topped off near Hartford.
When she was asked whether there had been a "scramble" or flight of fighter-interceptor planes sent up to investigate, Mrs. Fivonsky said, "We saw quite a few planes coming toward it. They were way up. But they seemed to be below it."
The Manchester Skywatchers at first could not notice any movement of the balloon. When a search star was used as a checkpoint, movement could be detected. "It was an exciting experiment," said Mrs. Fivonsky. And that seemed to close the matter.

terests broadens the world for women. They never lose it. So, though married companionship is usually achieved through the wife's efforts, both husband and wife benefit by the one-sided arrangement.
Any wife who says to herself, "If he won't try to share my interests why should I bother to share his," is making a big mistake. (All rights reserved. NEA Service, Inc.)

He said that at this time of the year the jet stream which carries the balloon blows over the southern part of the country, then curves toward the northeast gradually.

Major Deloria said that a recent night of planes which had ridden this jet stream had topped off near Hartford.
When she was asked whether there had been a "scramble" or flight of fighter-interceptor planes sent up to investigate, Mrs. Fivonsky said, "We saw quite a few planes coming toward it. They were way up. But they seemed to be below it."
The Manchester Skywatchers at first could not notice any movement of the balloon. When a search star was used as a checkpoint, movement could be detected. "It was an exciting experiment," said Mrs. Fivonsky. And that seemed to close the matter.

Death Claims Aga Khan, 79

Geneva, from Paris on June 18, to his Cannes palace with its marble floors and radiant heating. He began withdrawing from public life at that time and sold his famous horse 'Tully' to the Irish National Stud for £700,000.

Born in Karachi, Nov. 2, 1877, the Aga Khan claimed descent from Fatima, the daughter of the prophet Mohammed. His religious dynasty dated back to the Sixth Century (A.D.), the time of Mohammed. His name, conferred on his grandfather by the Shah of Iran (Persia), meant "honorable sir chief."

The family headquarters was maintained in Persia from the 12th Century until 1840 when the grandfather married with the Shah and transferred the seat of his religious authority to Bombay.

He himself deprecated reports of his great wealth in his autobiography, published in 1954. "They must be hundreds of millions in the United States with a larger capital wealth than mine," he said.

Controlled huge income from his followers, the control carried with it an "unwritten law" that should be used for the uplift of a great number of Oriental, social and religious institutions so that they may be left.

His followers presented him with annual titles and on great jubilee occasions conducted elaborate religious ceremonies, matching the weight of 240 pounds in gold to mark the 50th year of his religious leadership, in diamonds on the 60th year and in pearls on the 70th.

About $2 1/2 million in sparkling gems and industrial diamonds were placed on the scales in a colorful Bombay ceremony in 1948. A platinum wedding ceremony was held in Karachi, Pakistan, his birthplace, in 1954. A similar ceremony was planned in Cairo in February 1955 for his 80th birthday.

He was married to a French beauty, in 1944. The Aga Khan was a man of a pronounced mind and a sense of humor. In August 1954, four townsmen held up him and his wife, the Begum, on a money-laundering charge. He was released after a few days, but the money-laundering charge was dropped.

Soviet Leaders in Prague. Mayworth, is at the Aga's villa. The Aga Khan was married to a child, came to Europe to visit her father and the Aga Khan wanted her in Geneva for a formal marriage of state and ended in divorce after a few years. His second wife, an Italian dancer named Theresa Mayhew, whom he married in 1908, bore him his son, Aly, who died in 1928.

The third wife was Anne Carson, a candy salesgirl who bore him a second son, Prince Shah Karim, who died in 1956. The Aga Khan married his present wife, Yvette Fakhra, in 1954. She bore him a daughter, Princess Yashmin, 7-year-old daughter of Aly Khan and Rita.

Shield Protects Trouser. A new plastic product designed to protect them from rain has been marketed by a New York concern. It is designed just like men's trousers, even to the cuffs and waistband. The manufacturer says the material is waterproof and will hold the shield in place.

Carpets International. American-made carpets are really international. It is possible for one carpet to contain fibers from Argentina, New Zealand, India, Scotland and North Africa. That is because wool production in those countries stands far better than American wool.

Police Recover Two Stolen Cars. Local police have recovered a car stolen from Stratford, Conn., and have received word from the Rockville, Md. Police that a Manchester car has been recovered from a parking lot in Stratford.

Mr. and Mrs. George Rockham, who were treated for shock, were following Smith in their own car. Their vehicle was not involved in the collision.
