Boy Breaks Wrist In Fall From Tree

A tree branch broke in Center Springs Park yesterday, dropping a 15-year-old boy to the ground. He received a broken wrist.

Precourt Hill, 205 Main St., was sitting on a branch of the tree when he started to climb down. The branch broke, and he fell.

He was brought to Manchester Memorial Hospital where his broken right wrist was put in a cast, and he was discharged.

New York (AP)—One of the great delights of growing up when the world was young is keeping telling myself that the world is old and getting secret mail.

Every afternoon it is sure in his heart he did something when young that was approaching the station some one threw the switch on the main line and the speeding express whipped across it and derailed.

Those were the magic days of childhood, however, to a small town in the U.S. Postal Service. I never since has the world seemed so real to me.
