Hunt for '58 Candidates Top Task for State GOP

By CARL J. LALONIA

With the background Socialist James H. Duff, Jr. seeking his 12th successive reelection in the year ahead, the hunt for candidates to run for the state GOP in 1958 is well under way. It was a year of evaluating small and big names, of trying to figure out what they were capable of in terms of votes in the big 1958 election.

It was a year of searching for candidates and issues to throw into the campaign. It was a year of searching for candidates and issues to throw into the campaign. It was a year of searching for candidates and issues to throw into the campaign.

At least four issues are being debated in the campaign. The first is the issue of the state's economic future. The second is the issue of the state's political future. The third is the issue of the state's social future. The fourth is the issue of the state's cultural future.
