New Styling Concept Feature of '58 Edsel

A bold new styling concept featuring a vertical grille, accented side scallops and horizontal gull-wing tail lights blended into the grille design. The front end has outstanding exterior styling features of the new Edsel car line.

Combined with an inner oval chrome ring and crisp horizontal grille sections on either side gives an easily identifiable look of quiet class and elegance.

A newly designed contour seat back provides exceptional support to prevent tiring on long trips.

Front seats in 2-door models have been split in a unique one-third, two-thirds arrangement in which the driver occupies the one-third section, permitting rear seat passengers easier entrance and exit.

A raised, padded cooling surround the instrument cluster, eliminating any possible panel light reflection in the windshield.

Located high in the cluster for easy visibility is the new floating drum type speedometer which rotates smoothly and evenly as the Edsel accelerates or slows.

Flight Pitch Dynaflo Big Change in Buick

Buick's flight pitch Dynaflo for 1958 is the closest approach to the ideal automatic transmission in automotive history.

"We have taken a major step towards reaching the engineer's ultimate in torque converter design," says Oliver K. Kelley, Buick's chief engineer and a pioneer in automatic transmission design and development.

The new flight pitch transmission takes its name from its similarity to the blades of a propeller, in which the blades angle can be changed to take larger or smaller bits of air to meet the varying demands of take-off and cruising.

With Buick's flight pitch Dynaflo, the 20 blades inside the rim of the multiple pitch stator take precisely the right position for every conceivable performance demand.

For normal city driving up to about half-throttle position, the stator blades operate as "low" angle for the best fuel economy and minimum engine revolutions.

When the driver reduces pressure on the accelerator and the throttle starts to close, the blades also begin to move to "low" angle.

In other words, the stator is calibrated so that the best combination of overall performance and economy will be obtained at any throttle opening.

Russians Claim Antarctic Role

Moscow, Feb. 21 (AP)—The Soviet Union makes no territorial claims in Antarctica but the continent's future cannot be decided without Russian participation, the head of the Soviet Antarctic Expedition says.

Michael Romov commented that he doubts the Russians will complete their scientific work in Antarctica by the end of 1958, when the 18-month international geophysical year terminates.

Romov made his comments in a recent interview in the Soviet press before the Commerce Committee of the U.S. House of Representatives.

Full Rail Service Resumes Sunday

New Haven, Feb. 21 (AP)—Through train service between Boston and Washington will be resumed Sunday morning, officials of the railroad say.

The New Haven and Pennsylvania railroads, which jointly conduct service from Boston to Washington, say train schedules, canceled last Tuesday by a snowstorm, will be resumed with the departure of the Colonial from Boston at 6:30 a.m. Sunday.

A New Haven official, who made the announcement, said service was interrupted Tuesday when the Pennsylvania line could not provide service between New York and Washington. The snowstorm also cut in half New Haven service from Boston to New York.

New Haven trains expected to be back on schedule include the Colonial, the Patriot, P. & N. Quaker and Washington.

At least two years of college and 12 months of technical training at a school approved by the American Medical Assn. are the requirements of a medical technologist.

Dr. Doctor Dismissed... Sukarno Raps Ultimatum by Padang Rebels

Sukarno after a 40-day foreign tour from which he returned Sunday, has again taken the floor to attack the Padang rebels. He said that small groups had imposed their own egotistical desires on the nation.

For the first 20 or 25 minutes of the 45 minute period, General Manager Martin engaged in one of his customary "explanations" of some of the items which appeared in the report. The remainder of the period was devoted to the kind of "question and answer" session during which most of the directors were heard from just about as frequently as they would have been, had they taken the night off.

At 9:20 this question was laid aside, and within the period of the next few minutes, the Board members, wrapped in their heavy winter coats, were seen to be talking television receivers, and the much more important $494,000 question.
