Sheinwold on Bridge

UNNECESSARY FINESSE
CROSS GAME AND HUBBES
By Alfred Sheinwold

When a bridge player goes to heaven, he can be sure that his finesses will all win. While he stands on earth, however, he must consider the possibility that a finesse may lose. This may have a bearing on his plan for the hand.

West opened the first trick with the king of hearts and returned the ace of spades. South had to put up the ten of spades. East put up the king and South won with the jack.

At this point South could expect to win a spade trick with the ace and four clubs. He needed the diamonds for his contract. When he led a diamond, West won with the ace of diamonds and led his hand. This gave West two spade tricks, defeating the game contract.

GOP Seeks Details Of Ike, Nixon Pact

Apparently after consultation with the President's doctors they determined that it was not necessary for the Vice President to take over the duties of the President.

Meanwhile, resentment flared among rebellious Midwestern Republicans in Congress today over Eisenhower's sharply worded defense of Secretary of Agriculture Benson.

At two GOP House members prepared to carry corn belt protests against Benson's farm policies to the White House later today. Rep. O'Keefe (R-Wis) told newsman:

"So far, I've been under the impression we only needed a new answer. But two things, which I think we also need a new President."

Eisenhower made abundantly clear to his news conference yesterday he was not intending to interfere with the Secretary's farm policies. One or the other has been urged openly by many farm leaders.

Praying Benson as a man of courage and honesty, Eisenhower said Benson's farm policies are badly mistaken.

Taking the House floor shortly after the President made his statement, Rep. Anderson (R-Minn.) said:

"It now appears that the President has forewarned any opportunity of a side-lapse by James Hove at the Ball and Chain Club supper at Phelps Hall at 7 p.m. Saturday."

Columbia School Safety Board Topic

In the interests of safety, the Board of Education this week spent considerable time discussing the problem of children who must walk to school from their homes, and crossing main thoroughfares.

Board members expressed concern for this situation, which affects some of the children who live within walking distance of the school. The chairman was authorized to study the matter further before policy recommendations are made.

Miller, who contends Benson will cost the Republican party 20 to 25 Midwestern House seats in the November election, said Eisenhower made a "good statement" in defense of Benson.

Miller told newsman he intended to tell the President that people in his district want Benson fired.

O'Keefe, who comes from Wisconsin's dairy area, attacked Benson's announced plan to lower the price of milk to a minimum allowed by law. Manufacturing milk is now supported at 43 percent.

"If Benson goes through with this order April 1, there will be 10 million unemployed instead of five million," O'Keefe said.

Mrs. Tedford announced that entries for the sewing contest should be made with Mr. Arthur Finney Sr., chairman of the Home Economics Committee. She pointed out that the number of entries accrues to the benefit of the local laborer as well as State Grants.

Residents will make a dress of any type of fabric. They will be required, however, to use the product of certain manufacturers who are co-sponsoring the contest with the National Congress. Judging will be done in May and regulations of the contest may be obtained from Mrs. Finney.
