

Gen. Pate Hits Defense Plans

Washington, May 1 (AP)—The Marine Corps commander said today that if Congress enacts President Eisenhower's defense reorganization plan as written, some future secretary of defense may give the Marine Corps "the bum's rush."

At the same time, the House Armed Services Committee received written assurance from Secretary of Defense McElroy that his department has no intention of making a sweeping realignment of the services or their administration. He said any merger of services would be extremely forbidden by the proposed law.

"The Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps retain their respective individualities," McElroy wrote.

Gen. Randolph M. Pate, the Marine Corps commandant, appeared before the committee to deliver the most outspoken opposition yet voiced by any service witness to features of the administration proposal.

Pate emphasized he does not believe "those now in high office" have any intention of reducing the Marine Corps to impotence if the bill is enacted.

"But," he said, "present good intentions are no insurance against future damage to our usefulness; only in the law can we find such insurance."

And Pate continued, he finds it difficult to see how sections of the present law which spell out the roles and missions of each service "can be regarded as unduly restrictive, other than by some future secretary of defense who intended, sooner or later to alter the Marines' status and functions."

Pate also tied his major criticism of the administration proposal to the section which aroused perhaps the most hostility among members of the committee—Eisenhower's recommendation that these sections swelling out the bill be repealed.

Effective Step—If Needed
He said that once a decision is made that further anti-recession remedies are needed, he favors a tax slash as the most effective step.

The Labor Secretary put it this way:

"If there is a bolstering of the economy necessary—and that determination has to be made reasonably soon—then, as opposed to any other form of government action, such as a large scale public works program, I would favor a tax cut."

"I think a decision should be made reasonably soon as to what needs to be done. I think within the next 30 to 60 days."

Mitchell was asked whether the administration would seek to persuade the steel industry not to make any price increases when a labor wage increase goes into effect in the industry July 1.

The Secretary recalled that President Eisenhower has urged both labor and management to use voluntary restraint against increasing wages and prices. Mitchell added that anything beyond that would amount to government dictation in an area he said should not be entered.

Asked whether a steel price increase would retard recovery from the recession, Mitchell replied that of course a continuing price spiral is undesirable.

Against 4-Day Week
The Labor Secretary said he is opposed to legislating a 4-day work week. Sen. Aiken (R-Vt.) suggested that Congress should study this.

Mitchell said he thought that any reduction in the work week should be left to natural development, meaning labor-management collective bargaining. He said that any house reduction, whether legislated or bargained, is unwise if it interferes with the nation's ability to produce.

Mitchell reported that the unemployment insurance program channeled about $1,100,000,000 to idled workers during the January-March first quarter of this year. He said a weekly average of 700,000 workers received these benefits.

As to the job outlook in May, the Labor Secretary said he anticipates continued employment improvement. But he said he did not feel there would be a change in May from the 5,120,000 counted as unemployed in April.

Police Resume
Hunt for Body
Of Industrialist

East Haven, May 1 (AP)—Police resumed their search today for the body of a Weisberg industrialist whose plane plunged to the bottom of Long Island Sound after an erratic flight.

They resumed that Edward J. Carney, 48, had ridden his 4-passenger Cessna 182 plane to his death. The crumpled wreckage of the single-engine craft was recovered a mile from shore hours after it crashed yesterday.

Police said the body of the plane's pilot could have drifted for miles with the tides.

Carney was pictured as an excellent pilot and a strong swimmer. He had been hospitalized for routine tests over the weekend and had been released Tuesday with a clean bill of health.

He was president of a West Hartford realty company and the United States District Court of West Hartford and vice president of the HF and M Tool Co. in New Haven. He was married and the father of a 9-year-old daughter.

Carl Anderson, chief inspector of the State Construction Department, said Carney's plane was seen "performing acrobatics" in the New Haven area just before the high speed nose-dive crash.

Baby Girl Dies
After Beating
By Her Father

Hartford, May 1 (AP)—A 20-year-old unemployed father confessed today that he gave his 18-month-old daughter a beating a few hours before she was pronounced dead at McCook Memorial Hospital Wednesday night.

Charles Carney, 308 Barbour St., admitted beating his daughter, Donna Lucia Carney, about 4 p.m. back, stomach, chest, face and head about three hours before she died.

Carney and his wife were picked up for questioning by police shortly after 9:15 p.m. after they were called to the hospital by officials there. Dr. Walter Weissenborn, assistant medical examiner, was also notified.

Dr. Weissenborn withheld an official cause of death pending an autopsy this morning but indicated the child died of a cerebral hemorrhage, presumably from the head injury.

According to police, the unemployed father became annoyed at his daughter's crying about 4 p.m. and beat her when her crying interrupted his watching television. He placed her in her crib and made supper in the kitchen.

A short time later, Mrs. Carney walked into the house and picked up the baby. The baby seemed listless when taken into the living room. A few minutes after that the father rubbed her forehead with an antiseptic, police said.

The child grew steadily worse until about 9 p.m. when the father

Nudist Colony Organizer, 79, Tells Life Story

Deep River, May 1 (AP)—Night was falling and the man who knocked at the door had a strange look about him.

So the householder called the law. State Policeman Theodore Haxton went to the scene last night.

He found his man at a roaring camp fire preparing himself a huge meal. The man wore a beard, a long mane of hair, shorts, a skin-tight shirt and a healthy tan.

He had knocked at the door to try to obtain fresh water. He had been traveling down the Connecticut river in a small boat.

To Haxton and a reporter who went along on the investigation, the man related of a colorful story: Name—Leo Voss.

Age—79.

Principal aim in life at the moment—Establish a nudist colony in Brooklyn near Coney Island.

Voss docked his 14-foot boat here and bought 20 pounds of wheat and five pounds of corn. He is a vegetarian.

Essex, he said, he will haul the boat to the Easton Post Road and pull it by hand to Brooklyn.

There, he said, he will build several rafts where nudists can sun themselves. A large raft will contain a kitchen. He said he had

Tax Slash Decision Expected in 60 Days

Washington, May 1 (AP)—Secretary of Labor Mitchell said today he feels the administration will have to decide within 30 days whether to recommend a tax cut.

Mitchell told a news conference that while the recession seems to be flattening out, as President Eisenhower said yesterday, he sees no solid improvement ahead.

Effective Step—If Needed
He said that once a decision is made that further anti-recession remedies are needed, he favors a tax slash as the most effective step.

The Labor Secretary put it this way:

Plus Guaranteed Wage Aiken Sees 4-Day Week As Cure for Recessions

Washington, May 1 (AP)—Sen. Aiken (R-Vt.) said today Congress should study the feasibility of a 4-day work week, at least in some industries, as a possible cure and preventive of recessions.

He said it should be considered along with the idea of a guaranteed annual wage and profit sharing for workers in industries which have periodic layoffs. He mentioned the automobile industry as one.

Aiken emphasized in an interview that he is not suggesting a quick switch to any of these ideas, but added:

"Eventually we've got to consider it, and I think we should consider it now."

Both the current business slump and prospects that many industries will need fewer workers in the future indicate, he said, that there is a need for something more than hurry-up steps to get people back on payrolls after recessions have thrown them out of jobs.

Aiken said automation in some sections of industry has led or is leading to a situation in which a peacetime economy just can't keep the available work force employed in a 40-hour week the year around, and added:

"We'd have had to face up to this before if it hadn't been for World War II and the Korean War."

Aiken said he is far from sure that an upturn this summer and fall would last through the winter. "I don't believe the automobile and heavy machine industries, for instance, ever again will need as many workers as they have in the past 15 years," he said.

Aiken took this long range view as some other continued to call for more immediate action and plans showed various ups and downs in the economy.

Farm Prices Up
The Agriculture Department reported yesterday that farm prices increased 1.4 per cent from mid-March to mid-April to a level 9.8 per cent above that of a year ago. The new level was the highest since January 1953, when the Eisenhower administration took office.

Primarily responsible for the April increase were record high prices for fruits and vegetables. Partially offsetting were lower prices for dairy products, eggs and poultry.

$48 Million Tax Stamps Mishandled

Washington, May 1 (AP)—The Internal Revenue Service reported today what it called the mishandling of $48 to $50 million in canceled federal tax stamps at the New York Stock Exchange.

After four years of investigation, the case was referred to the Justice Department which decided there was no grounds for criminal prosecutions.

Involved were documentary stamps representing payment of federal stock transfer taxes. This tax is levied against all stock exchange transactions.

Sold to Collectors
A revenue service spokesman said a service employee in New York was "careless" about canceling the stamps after use. He said this permitted three or four employees of the New York Stock Clearing Corp., an arm of the Stock Exchange, to peddle the stamps to dealers who in turn sold them to collectors.

There was no loss of money to the federal government. The stamps represented taxes already paid.

The under-the-table operation began in 1951 and was broken up in 1954, the spokesman said. He reported the Revenue Service employee involved was retired and that the Stock Exchange workers were fired.

Most of the mishandled stamps were recovered by Revenue Service investigators. A few which were taken during 1951 are still unaccounted for.

The Revenue Service said $12 million to $15 million in canceled stamps were taken in each of the four years.

New President Pledges Justice For Argentina

Buenos Aires, May 1 (AP)—Frontid will swear in as president of Argentina's first democratic government in more than a decade.

The tall-bearded lawyer took the oath before a joint session of the new congress ending 2 1/2 years of provisional military government since the overthrow of Juan D. Peron's dictatorship.

Frontid swore "By God and the people to fulfill my task with loyalty and patriotism." Alejandro Gomez, Frontid's running mate in the left-of-center Radical party, then took the oath as vice president.

Vice President Nixon, who came 5,000 miles to see Frontid inaugurated, was held up in traffic and missed the swearing in ceremony. He arrived as Frontid was making his inaugural address and a crowd outside hooted as he entered the building.

Frontid looked pale from a bout of influenza but his voice was clear and strong as he pitched into his inaugural address.

"Today," he said, "a government in the name of the people draws down the curtain on everything that has happened up to this moment. We close the stage in order to take a great stride forward."

Will Offer Amnesty Bill
Frontid said the first bill his government will submit "will be simple and generous amnesty" and all parties will become free to carry on political activity.

To this obvious reference to the outlawed Peronista party he added that he was voted into office by the great majority of Argentine citizens, including Peron followers.

Stepping down are two heroes of the 1955 revolution, provisional President (Maj. Gen.) Pedro A. Lasar Rojas, who is fulfilling a promise to turn over power to constitutionally elected officials.

On hand for the ceremonies were delegations from 16 nations. They included three chiefs of state—Peru's Manuel Prado, Uruguay's Carlos Castillo and Rumania's Ion Gheorghe Maurer.

The 49-year-old President faces a host of problems, including a runaway cost of living, a dollar deficit, nationalist demands that foreign firms keep away from Argentina.

Space Director Fears Civilian Agency Rule

Wants Military Keep Control of Projects

Washington, May 1 (AP)—The head of the Pentagon's special space bureau said it could be disastrous to allow a civilian agency to limit military uses of outer space.

Roy W. Johnson, director of the Defense Department's Advanced Research Projects Agency (ARPA), called on Congress to write into President Eisenhower's bill for a civilian space agency a clearcut provision giving freedom for military space projects.

"For example," Johnson told the House Space Committee, "if the Defense Department decides it to be militarily desirable to program for putting man into space, it should not have to justify this activity to this civilian agency."

Johnson's prepared statement etched sharply the question of whether military or civilian authorities should have the upper hand in future disputes over handling of space projects.

Like for Civilian Control
Eisenhower's bill envisages the civilian agency as controlling all government space research except for that "primarily associated" with military use administration witnesses have said disputes would be resolved by the President if necessary, but that most would be settled by lower-level action.

Pending creation of a civilian agency, Eisenhower has authorized ARPA to go ahead for one year with experiments like shots at the moon. Eisenhower also ordered review of such projects to see whether they should be taken over by the proposed civilian unit. Johnson did not specify whether he thought ARPA should hold on to the moon rocket program, but said:

"I believe a civilian astronautics agency should be created with its own funds for use in pursuing its program. However, military programs already demand the use of Outer Space for many uses for the protection of our country.

"The legislation setting up a civilian group should not be so worded that it may be construed to mean that the military uses of space are to be limited by a civilian agency. This could be disastrous."

"This can and will be a fast moving business, but the objective will be not only to advance our technological status but as an end product to maintain our national security."

Quarles Discovers Sky-Eye
In advance of the day's hearing, Deputy Secretary Donald A. Quarles said the Defense Department does not regard as a weapon a seeing-eye satellite that could spot objects on the Earth's surface. Quarles explained in an interview why he told the committee yesterday that reconnaissance satellites orbiting the Earth before Russia does. Quarles did not comment on that.

The committee has heard that a man looking through a small telescope from a satellite 500 miles up could spot Earth objects less than two feet in size.

Some fears have been voiced by the military, too, that in the absence of an international agreement Quarles expects the United States to get reconnaissance satellites orbiting the Earth before Russia does. Quarles did not comment on that.

Kremlin Hides Arms For May Day Parade

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Kremlin practically eathed its sword today at the big May Day parade it traditionally uses to show off its military might.

Only a modest display of military hardware rumbled across Red Square in front of Premier Nikita Khrushchev, his honored guest, President Nasser of the united Arab Republic, and the chief leaders of the Soviet government massed at the Lenin-Stalin mausoleum.

The small sampling consisted of personnel carriers, paratroopers, self-propelled full-track anti-aircraft guns, conventional rocket launchers on trucks and tracked carriers, and field pieces.

There were none of the bigger guns or rockets of atomic capability unveiled in Red Square last November at the Bolshevik revolution anniversary display. Instead the emphasis was on the sports display and militia marching, in which an estimated million Moscow residents took part.

15 Minute March
The military part of the parade lasted less than 15 minutes, the shortest and least bellicose May Day display in years. The Air Force's by-past if it had been scheduled, was canceled by a steady drizzle which fell from leaden skies.

The minister of defense, Marshal Rodion Malinovsky, struck a "peace through strength" theme in the speech of the day. He told his forces that the Communist nations' "solidarity is not directed against any country but is in the interest of all peoples."

Coupled with this was the current Russian line that:

1. The United States is threatening world peace with its nuclear bomber patrols across the Arctic.
2. The United States and Britain are continuing the armaments race, conducting atomic and hydrogen bomb tests, building rocket bases in western Europe and strengthening the armed

Dag Cautions Big Powers on 'Missing Bus'

United Nations, N. Y., May 1 (AP)—Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold said today the U.N. debate on President Eisenhower's Arctic inspection plan has convinced him there is good reason to continue efforts to break the disarmament deadlock.

He warned, however, that the big powers already had missed the bus several times and that the road may not remain open always for future buses.

Hammarskjold spoke at a news conference at which he stoutly defended his support of the Eisenhower plan to guard against surprise attacks in the north.

He said he had no adverse reaction so far from the Soviet Union on his unusual step, generally regarded as a departure from his traditional position of neutrality.

The Secretary General said he regarded his intervention in the Security Council Tuesday as a general appeal to all countries, particularly big powers, to get out of any initiative, no matter from what source.

He declined to predict the outcome of the council debate which

Ellington Board Requests Teachers Ideas In School Plans

Dr. Francis Bird, chairman of the School Building Committee, said teachers have studied sketches of the proposed new high school and offered suggestions for revisions this past week.

Their suggestions will be considered by Golden-Storrs Associates and resubmitted by the committee tomorrow at 2:15 p.m. at the Center School.

High School sketches were accepted by a March 4 town meeting and a bill was passed by the special General Assembly authorizing the town to issue temporary notes not exceeding $500,000 for not more than 24 months.

Miss Silverberg received the award in recognition of her outstanding achievement in art, painting and choreography. She has done work with the rally day review and concert dance and the award states, "has contributed to the caliber of dance of the Triennial year and to its reputation in off campus performance."

Students And The Library To the Editor: Let's have a new intensity in education! Let's increase our science and mathematics studies as well as those in cultural areas. Let's keep up with the Russians! Let's retain the use of our best town library to students!

This seems to me utterly ridiculous and quite irrational. Who has a better right to the use of a library than the student? What are librarians and for that matter, books for? I had always entertained the notion that the purpose of such an institution was educational. A corollary to this idea was the one that the students above anyone should be permitted, encouraged, and stimulated toward the unrestricted use of this library as long as this privilege is not abused. To the best of my knowledge the teachers of Manchester have not abused the Mary Cheney Library.

With the current emphasis on education the demands made upon the student have become increasingly heavy. Manchester High has always been known to have high scholastic requirements, especially in the college preparatory course of the A&P, and all those in the school for three years at MHS I have completed at least 10 long-term research papers in addition to shorter reports and preliminary laboratory papers. Add approximately 25 (minimum per year) pleasure books and books for book reports, and multiply this by approximately 30 students per class in approximately 20 college courses and the answer is a goodly amount of worthwhile library use. Then, too, there are accelerated and college level classes.

It is absolutely true that the Mary Cheney Library is at times overcrowded. But is restricting the only solution? It seems to me a little like saying that all the residents of the South End shall shop at the First National, all those in the mid-section will use the A&P, and all those in the North End the Grand Union. Librarians and all those especially crowded on Friday nights and Saturday afternoons. I think that a major cause of the jam Monday night was the announcement of a term paper. We are an American Literature and the rush in student books before they were all taken.

There must be other ways. For example a "yes" vote in another referendum for an annexation to the building. Most of the students let us continue our wonderful library privilege.

Linda C. Recknagel, Class of 1959. To the Editor: Ever since the Russians sent a satellite before us, the people of the United States have tried frantically to find a place to buy the Baire. Do we have to be so alarmed about another country coming in?

If the Baire has to be put somewhere, it's fair to pick on the American education system entirely. When the apathy of our citizens should be blamed also. We are a very selfish country, not truly interested in the welfare of the rest of the world or even in our own community. How many of our citizens are registered voters and how many of those who are vote?

We parents should take some blank for not stimulating interest in world wide affairs. The home is as important an influence as the school.

In the current TV program on which Eltra von Nordoff has won a fabulous sum of money it proves the influence of the home. When she was asked "How do you account for your tremendous amount of knowledge?" she answered:
