TALL TALES

It seems like a hundred years ago that I played my first bridge hand. I took four finesses and they all lost! This taught me that my partner knew some words he hadn't learned at the college. We were both attending—and also that a losing finesse is no bargain.

In this hand, however, South didn't have the advantage of going to my college. He took a foolish finesse and lost his trick.

West opened the king of diamonds, and East played the queen to ask for a continuation. West continued obediently with a low diamond, and East with the jack. East then led a third diamond and South ruffed.

South led a heart to dummy's king and returned a trump in pass. You hold: Spades—3 4 2, Hearts—K 10 9, Diamonds—10 7 6, Clubs—Q 10 5. What do you say?

Answer: Bid one heart. With 6 points you can afford to respond. A response of one in a higher ranking suit promises no more than 6 points.

(Copyright 1958, General Features Corp.)

There was another clue leading in the same direction. If West didn't have the king of spades, how could he afford the bidding?

When you know a finesse is going to lose, don't take it. In this case, South should lead out the ace of trumps and then a small trump.

West would have to win the second trick with the king. South could win the king of spades, but this would allow South to make his extra contract.

Keller Sues 3 Birchwood Home Owners

Tumblebrook Acres, Inc., whose president is West Hartford developer Jerome Keller, has brought suit against three residents of the Tumblebrook Acres subdivision.

The corporation is seeking $50,000 damages from each of the residents, charging they violated a deed agreement by putting up "signs on their property."

The corporation charges that "As a result of said action" it has suffered damage in that prospective buyers have been repelled by the unsightly signs.

Residents are Joseph R. Reynolds, 88 Miles Dr.; Philip A. Spinella, 19 Francis Dr.; and Charles Convey & Francis Dr. They are represented by the Hartford law firm of Howitz and Erickson.

Gerton, Butler, and Gerton of Hartford are representing Tumblebrook Acres.

(Second of a 2-part series on the campaign techniques in the Second District congressional race.)
By FRED FOWLER
Knox, Oct. 31 (AP)—A worker in a poultry processing plant wiped his hands on his apron and said "Hello, Mr. Bowles."
"Hello, Mr. Bowles," he said, "I'm Chester Bowles and I'm running for Congress."
Bowles, the 57-year-old Democratic candidate from the Second Congressional District, who is campaigning energetically with the poultry slaughterer.
Bowles had just toured the American Thread Co. plant in Willimantic, visiting all departments, talking with people, shaking hands, and had addressed a group at the Willimantic State Teachers College and had eaten a quick lunch with a labor leader in Willimantic.
Light Day
Before he turned in at his home and ran a bath, he had had a busy day. He had spoken at two coffee hours, shaken many hands, covered a lot of miles, and told people after person why he wants that job in Washington.
Yet he called it a light campaign day. In between times, he even got around to signing a few "letters" for the people of East-ern Connecticut, would bring foreign policy close to all of us.
The questions cover a lot of them about economic and eastern foreign policy, some of them about America's dealings with other countries. Bowles answers all of them at length, saying his explanation with statistics and humor.
A textile industrialist asked about foreign imports. Bowles started his answer this way: "I've never been in a village in India that I didn't see a huge sewing machine with 'Made in Bridgeport, Connecticut, stamped on this question.

On foreign policy again: "Neither party has been too smart about Asia... On salvation: 'We've all got something to offer. I don't think that is what's going to save mankind.'"
Although tired at the end of a campaign day, Bowles seems happy.
Bowles, a member of the Republican Party, promised himself when he started, he told a reporter at the Bowles-Brown home town.
"I've never seen more Republicans at coffee gatherings than he would see at party rallies. Attendance was good. People got together to talk to Democrats and 25 Republicans or independents."
Bowles has been to more than 100 coffee hours in his campaign and more are scheduled before election day next Tuesday.
There are 64 towns in the Second Congressional District, who are spread out over the eastern half of Connecticut. Bowles is trying to spend one week in each of the district's eight state senatorial districts. This means three or four coffee hours a day.
At coffee hour starts with chatter, coffee and a little sandwich. Bowles starts the discussion with a few words on the occasion, on education, and on foreign policy.
On foreign policy, he says: "I was told when I started campaigning that I'd see a lot of people who were against me. I was told that I'd see a lot of people who were against me. I was told that I'd see a lot of people who were against me."
Scattered shows the first of the week will average one fourth inch or less.
Temperatures in Connecticut during the next five days, Saturday through Wednesday, will average near normal. At this time normal means temperature at Bridgeport and New Haven is 48, and at Hartford it is 47, with a usual daily range between 47 and 36.
Cooler over the weekend, warmer on Tuesday, and cooler about Wednesday.
Scattered showers the first of the week will average one fourth inch or less.

Lodge Disputes India's Report On A-Ban Plan

what happened in the General Assembly.
Lodge insisted that the U.N. should act now on a western resolution calling for a suspension of the tests while efforts were being made at Geneva to work out a control system to guard against illegal testing.
Lodge called for a vote of the U.N. Security Council Monday to permit more private compromise efforts.
Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valentin Zorin confirmed he had made reservations along the line reported by Lodge. He also agreed that he understood the Indian effort to be a discussion to the cause of peace, he said, to give the United States and Britain for the breakdown of the talks.
Zorin said the Soviet Union felt it was necessary to continue private negotiations on a compromise. It would be a discussion to the cause of peace, he said, to give the United States and Britain for the breakdown of the talks.

Columbia Woman Injured in Crash

Mrs. Grace R. Elliott, 28, Hampton Ave., Columbia, was admitted to Manchester Memorial Hospital last night suffering from lacerations of the face, fractures of the right leg, and possible injuries as the result of an accident on Bamford Rd. in Vernon.
State Police said Mrs. Elliott was driving south on Bamford Rd. and turned right onto the intersection of Bamford Rd. and Rt. 15, when she lost control of her car on a curve. The car went off the right side of the road, sideswiped a tree, continued on for 125 feet and ran head-on into a gas station. The car spun counter-clockwise and rolled over on its side.
Mrs. Elliott was taken to the hospital where lacerations were required on the facial lacerations and 14 were applied to the leg and skull.
The accident is being investigated by State Police and the local police.

TWA Will Idle 19,000 if IAM Strikes Tonight

The union's insistence that all TWA workers covered by the contract remain under its provisions for the duration of the agreement.
"The way it is now, the company has been taking workers out of the classification under the old contract and putting them in classification under the new contract," said Cliff Miller, general chairman of District 142. "We want to insure that this is stopped."
TWA made a new wage offer Monday. The offer would be submitted to the membership. It was rejected.
Increases offered, retroactively to the date of the new contract, would have amounted to 15 per cent in all classifications under the old contract. The new contract would run another year.
The union's offer, however, has given an average $285 in back pay to each employee. The company said it would pay $41 million.
But Miller said the wage offer substantially less than necessary to meet the needs of our members in line with the skill and responsibility required by their jobs.
Wages, he said, range from $1.45 an hour for kitchen helpers to $12.75 for skilled mechanics.
Trans-World Airlines traditionally has served coast-to-coast routes from the center of the country and its routes total about 10,000 miles. It serves non-stop flights on the San Francisco-New York route with only one other carrier, United Airlines.
No major city is served exclusively by one airline. With both TWA and Capital grounded, the air routes they jointly serve would be cut off from New York, Washington, Baltimore-Philadelphia and Detroit-Chicago.

Q. "Please discuss trench mouth. Can it be cured?"—An Ohio reader.
A. Trench mouth (Vincent's angina) is an infection of the mouth and throat due to a spiral germ which is often associated with a spirochete organism. There is usually pain on swallowing, gland enlargement, and a yellowish-grey membrane in the mouth and throat. Saliva is foamy and the breath has a foul odor. The condition can be cured by good dental care. When water is not balanced and drug used or prescribed by the physician or dentist.
Q. "What is meant by dehydration? How can it be cured?"—A California reader.
A. Dehydration means drying out. Water is present in all body tissues, accounting for most of our body weight. Body water is lost through the skin, lungs, bowels and kidneys. Much water can be lost through vomiting, diarrhea, or sweating. When water is not balanced and drug used or prescribed by the physician or dentist.

Back in Politics
 One of the more interesting developments of the 1958 political campaign in the nation is the return of some of the old-timers to the political arena. For a long time, dating back to the depression of 1929, "big business" as such has felt itself strategically isolated in the direct participation in the game of politics. It could help finance the party or it could lend talent to the party of its choice, exercise backstage influence on the selection of nominees, and lobby on its behalf. It was interested in that it should show its hand too openly would be for it to insure the party, candidate or cause it was seeking to advance. It was supposed to be a kind of black sheep on the American political scene, and it itself admitted this a little sheepishly, and somewhat resentfully, too.

Meanwhile, however, organized labor, its own cause and prestige advanced by the same social and economic upheaval which put big business into the national doghouse, began to move more and more toward open participation in the political arena.

This participation of organized labor in politics has been good, and it has been most successful, when it has limited itself to educational and expositional discussion of the issues. It has had the most limited dividends when it has tried to sludge hard for particular candidates and particular parties. But, in one of the more recent instances, it has been successful in the election of Judge John A. Walleit, Jr. to the state supreme court for the year 1959, 20 45 clerk, and 10 as judge.

The question should be answered so definitely and affirmatively that it establish, for the future, bipartisan endorsement of the present incumbent. This office should be removed from the area of political campaigning. And Manchester voters may remember that earlier in the season, when political nominations for this election were being completed, the Democratic party of Manchester was intending to nominate a candidate against Judge John Walleit, Jr. a decision which was granted in an editorial on this page. This decision was reversed in a last minute turn of events in which the Democratic candidate of four years ago claimed the right to try again, but one praise for what was the intention of many Democratic still stands.

Now, however, the question of bipartisan endorsement for a respected incumbent is delayed for another four years, except in so far as the nature of the voting this year illustrates public sentiment on the issue. The primary question to be decided next Thursday is that of who shall be judge for the next four year term.

John Walleit was the chief administrative official of the court in the capacity of clerk, for 20 years. During this period, the late Judge William K. Hyde combined the duties of judgeship with those of other offices, public and political, as well as with the maintenance of his private law practice.

Upon the death of Judge Hyde, this community had two choices. One was to select another attorney to head the court, while John Walleit remained as clerk. The other was to promote John Walleit, in recognition of his past service and knowledge and performance, and in order to give the court a full time judge. This promotion of a deserving man who was already, for all practical purposes, performing the main functions of the court, proved a popular and a far-sighted decision. John Walleit has given full devotion and interest to the Court, and his record was given, at the polls four years ago, a vote of approval which voters of both parties participated, even though the Democratic party did have a candidate of its own.

That is how John Walleit came to office, and how he has been returned to it.

In his 20 years of service, 20 as clerk, and the last 10 as judge, he has touched the problems of so many Manchester families that there can be hardly one which has not had contact with him and been able to form its own appraisal of his character, and of the manner in which he conducts his office. In fact, this campaign itself has produced many spontaneous and voluntary tributes of such a kind.

That John Walleit is honest, that he has been moderate in the peace of mind and the pocketbook of all who have had business in his court is so much a part of Manchester life, knowledge and experience that any imputation to the contrary, even when accused by the heat of a political campaign, has a short life and gains no ground.

The issue in this campaign is whether his record, his service, his devotion to his task are going to be savagely thrown away and blotted out, or whether they are to receive the reward natural for them. And the issue is whether Manchester is going to do this to itself as well as to him.

It is not an issue of Republican willingly, have devoted to the cause of twelve human lives, or would devote to the cause of a little girl lost or a little boy down a well when the lives of millions, the shape and health of babies still unborn, may be at stake.

There is no rush of human interest and human contribution and sacrifice and human will to the point at which the great humanitarian rescue of mankind from the threat of radiation contamination might be attempted.

If it were the United States and Russia would both stop peering the back on the issue, and stop leaving the bomb, not conditional, but for any set limit of time, but unconditionally and forever.

A Thought for Today
 Sponsored by the Manchester Council of Churches

Do you find it difficult to believe—really live as if you were living it—the Bible passage which tells us that "all things work together for good to those who love God"? You are not alone then, because this puzzles every thinking person when he tries to square the verse with experience. Perhaps this translation will help: "We know that to those who love God every-thing—even suffering, disappointment, failure, and loss. Not all things are good, but the all-wise Heavenly Father makes them all work together for good in His children. The experiences of Joseph, the English-speaking countries of the world, the experiences of Joseph Smith, explaining that they have never, and will not discuss issues on a personal basis. These three sections and generally they have struck with it. However, when Lovin presented an attack on the chief's statement and to this situation, General Electric, for one, has finally felt obliged to move out of the doghouse and into the open in politics. As it has been experimenting with this kind of thing, up in Massachusetts, it has encouraged bipartisan discussion of issues among its employees, for one thing, and also given to its employees, its own direct opinions that the present state administration in Massachusetts, which happens to be Democratic, has not fostered economic conditions and tax conditions conducive to the health of its industry. So the company seems pretty close to campaigning openly for votes against that administration.

It is impossible to deny to management whatever political privileges organized labor also exercises.

But the same law will be found applying to both, a law of return diminishing in proportion to the astuteness of their emphasis of their own special interests over those of the community as a whole, and diminishing, also, in proportion to the blindness with which they devote their support habitually to any particular political party's candidate.

If Humanity Mobilized
 Today, Oct. 31, may or may not see the great powers of the world joining into a suspension of military activity. The two main powers involved, Russia and the United States, each denounce in their own right the other's military behavior. The strength of their own power politics impulse to keep on playing with the terrible toys they have at their disposal. Each has been covering this, basic impulse with lip service and maneuver which makes some concession to the idea that nuclear testing may be a mortal damage to the future of the human race.

It will be for humanitarian reasons that they stop testing, if they do stop testing as of today, or as of some time day. But their decision is uncertain, the lure of the terrible toys is still strong. And the people of the world, whose very health and lives may be in jeopardy, seem to have mustered no overwhelming, compelling demand for the great powers to do the right thing. There is not even a very strong light of publicity and public awareness focused on the big power process of decision.

During this same period in which the world has been witnessing this big power decision about nuclear testing, there has been an event in the news which did fire its way sharply into the limelight and into the awareness of every-thing.

When twelve miners thought to be dead were found to be still alive, it was as if the whole world wilted its energy toward the process of rescuing them and bringing them out safely into the sunlight. If, in this operation to save twelve human lives, there had been any help necessary from the ends of the earth, or from any great government on earth, it would have been forthcoming, without question. If the world could have gone to the rescue itself it would have done so. No effort would have been made to save the rescuing would have been likewise great.

"It all the resources, energy, work and prayer civilization would

Democrat. It is not an issue of issue of anything else, not an issue of some possible eventual change in the state's whole probate court system, not even, in the last analysis, an issue of party-line judge or full-time judge.

It is John Walleit, no, or yes.

One of the more interesting developments of the 1958 political campaign in the nation is the return of some of the old-timers to the political arena. For a long time, dating back to the depression of 1929, "big business" as such has felt itself strategically isolated in the direct participation in the game of politics. It could help finance the party or it could lend talent to the party of its choice, exercise backstage influence on the selection of nominees, and lobby on its behalf. It was interested in that it should show its hand too openly would be for it to insure the party, candidate or cause it was seeking to advance. It was supposed to be a kind of black sheep on the American political scene, and it itself admitted this a little sheepishly, and somewhat resentfully, too.

Meanwhile, however, organized labor, its own cause and prestige advanced by the same social and economic upheaval which put big business into the national doghouse, began to move more and more toward open participation in the political arena.

This participation of organized labor in politics has been good, and it has been most successful, when it has limited itself to educational and expositional discussion of the issues. It has had the most limited dividends when it has tried to sludge hard for particular candidates

 COUNTY EDITOR

Republican and Democratic campaigns for Tuesday's elections are pulling into the home stretch. On the whole, in Toland County towns in this area, the races by nominees for the State House have aroused little interest. The only exceptions, in this area, have been the campaigns in Coventry and Vernon.

Other than in Vernon and Coventry, Democrats have lined up the campaign in their attempt to repeat the four House seats, two from each of the towns.

Guild Dispute Perils Papers In New York

Last night the Publishers Association advised that it is a party to the dispute and that it would suspend publication of all its newspapers in New York City if the dispute is not settled by noon today.

The Guild representatives are unable to publish because of the refusal of the publishers to accept the Guild's demands for a 10 percent wage increase and other improvements at the start of the new year.

The Guild asked a 10 percent wage increase, a shorter work week and other improvements at the start of the new year.

According to the Publishers Association, the publishers are offering a 5 percent wage increase and other improvements at the start of the new year.

Coroner Says Poison Caused Banker Death

Coroner's tests indicated without doubt that the cause of the banker's death was due to the ingestion of a quantity of lead arsenic of a substantial period of time.

The amount of the arsenic in the body of the deceased was hundreds of times that of which was normal.

It is found on the basis of the laboratory tests that the arsenic had been absorbed by the deceased over a period of some months and that shortly before the death occurred the absorption of arsenic had stopped.

A thorough police investigation has failed to produce any sources by which this arsenic could have come into the body of the deceased by accidental means in the quantities found.

On the basis of all the evidence, it is concluded that the deceased came to his untimely death as the result of ingestion of arsenic over a substantial period of time and that his death resulted from the criminal act of acts of person or persons unknown.

Mad Flier, H-Bomb Report Hit by U.S.

The buildings, they said, it was used for drying parachutes.

Cunningham, of Woodrick, Pa., was under special surveillance in a private room of the base hospital today.

John Cousin made it clear he personally favors lowering the drinking age in Connecticut to 18.

In a policy statement, the GOP Town Committee said it would not resort to unethical means to win victory in Tuesday's election.

It is conducting our campaign by observing a simple code of ethics and by not using any unethical means to win election on our own political ambitions.

The Republican party therefore, did not propose itself with any means of "receiving" and editing the statements of our opponents in this campaign.

Our issues have been stated and our record stands. We shall continue our past policy of winning elections by proven service to our constituents.

We desire and will work to carry out in the coming election, but we do not want victory so badly that we will resort to unethical means to attain it.

I would be unethically opposed to any legislation that would make it easier for a minor to secure alcoholic beverages. I believe that the solution to this problem is in strict enforcement of the laws already on the books.

Originally, Gloucester was constituted of a group of tamed bells which were struck with a steel hammer, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

That same night, Cousin met with the Patrol and offered his resignation. However, the members gave him a vote of confidence and he agreed to remain as chief.

The vote was reportedly split, but the way members voted was not revealed.

Even though Democratic leaders demanded that Cousin give up the office, Republican leaders said they would not force him out because of what they termed an unethical statement.

GOP leaders in Coventry also agreed that Cousin is doing a good job as Patrol chief since he and his committee members are "unusually opposed" to lowering the drinking age in the state.

He said he does not agree with Cousin on this point, but defends his right to voice his own personal opinion.

Cousin also said he should be re-elected because they can violate them without knowing it," Cousin said.

He said he was referring to cases where minors are served by waiters or waitresses who make errors in judgment or do not ask for identification cards when serving customers who are of questionable drinking age.

Junior High on Agenda For Directors Monday

General Manager Richard Martin today put the North End Junior High school on the agenda for Monday night's meeting of the Board of Directors. This action follows last night's vote of approval of the school site by the Board of Directors.

The board will consider action on a special meeting and a public hearing on an appropriation for the proposed $1.5 million school.

If the new Board of Directors decides to go ahead with plans for the public hearing, Martin's office would have until Nov. 4 to prepare an advertisement and deliver it to the newspaper. The ad would run Nov. 5, 6 and 7 for the special meeting Nov. 12.

The deadline on advertising the referendum would be Nov. 13 and the referendum could be held Nov. 18 as is now planned.

However, Martin said that it might be possible to hold it as early as Nov. 15.

Recruits Motion

Members of the Building Committee last night presented the motion they had made Monday night. The earlier motion had contained a recommendation for the purchase of additional land adjacent to the proposed site. The General Manager refused to accept the motion with the recommendation, since he said he needed "an unequivocal approval from the Building Committee before he could advertise a public hearing on the school."

Members Clifford Varney and Dr. Gordon Campbell said they were being asked to "rubber stamp" a motion of which they did not approve.

Dr. Campbell said the Building Committee had included the recommendation because it wanted the state to vote on the acquisition of more land publicly.

"I feel we are in a position of being told we cannot state that publicly," said Campbell.

Building Committee chairman Raymond Gouge agreed with him, but said the motion of unequivocal approval should be passed in the interest of getting a school built when it is needed.

The vote of approval of the school site was given by Gouge, Edmund Cox, Gilmore Cole, Mrs. Helen Robinson, Mrs. Nancy Klock, and Mrs. Gloria Benson.

Painting Contest Winners Named

The Recreation Department announces the winners of the annual Halloween window painting contest yesterday, sponsored by the Retail Merchants Division of the Chamber of Commerce.

First place in the high school division was won by Judith Ann Cook and Mary Ellen Zeigler, whose painting was displayed at the Capitol Equipment Co. on Main St. Judges for the high school were Alton Cowles and Edward McGuire from the Park and Recreation Advisory Board.

In the junior high group, which was judged by John Mrosek, vice president in charge of community affairs for the members of the Junior High group, the winner was Ed Hachader, whose painting was displayed at Laureato in the window of the Junior High School. Judges in this division were Donna Davis, Patty Chase and Connie Kirkham, who displayed their picture on Haversham window.

Guest Caller

Al Brundage will be the guest caller at the Halloween dance of the Manchester Square Dance Club tomorrow night in the Wendell School.

He started calling at the age of 15 and taught a course in calling and dancing at the University of Connecticut summer school when he was 16 years old. During his high school and college days he paid many of his expenses through calling and teaching dance classes.

In 1948 he said his wife built the Country Barn at Haverham, where he conducted workshops, summer schools and weekly dances. When his summer vacation school opened the facilities there, he was by Ed Hachader, who painted the window of the Junior High School. Judges in this division were Donna Davis, Patty Chase and Connie Kirkham, who displayed their picture on Haversham window.

There was no way of selling what Pasternak said to the publishers of the book, said all royalties up to now have been collected by Gian Giacomo Petrini, the Italian publisher who first printed the book.

The nationally circulated Milan magazine Europeo said, however, that Petrini had "tens of millions of lire"—tens of thousands of dollars—in royalties in Italy being held in Pasternak's name.

In West Berlin, the tabloid Bild said rumors that Pasternak had been arrested were circulating in Communist East Berlin. It added that the report had caused great unrest among Polish and German artists in East Berlin.

Pasternak still was at his home in the writers colony outside Moscow at last report. Western correspondents saw him there yesterday.

Rockville-Vernon Ribicoff Stops in City, Lauds Activity in Area

Governor Ribicoff spent about 20 minutes in Rockville yesterday, shaking hands with residents in the center of the town.

In a brief talk over a public address system the governor said that the last voter making his mark in the area, residents for having "confidence" in Rockville, evidenced by the fact that they had voted in the election Monday.

Speaking from in front of the Democratic headquarters in the Chase Building, Ribicoff said he was "thrilled to see the activity taking place in this whole area."

The top state official said his administration has never before bringing industry into the state to replace the textile industry, which moved away during the last decade.

The governor said he was interested in having a sound local policy for the state, allowing it to live within its income, but claimed the Legislature had voted more and more "expenditures" running the state in a deficit. He claimed the Republican Legislature voted $44 million more than he permitted to it.

The Governor said he was unalterably opposed to any new taxes, or to any increase in taxes.

In order to be assured that the state will not spend more than it takes in, Ribicoff said he would men in office "who will vote economy."

He told voters that they had a great opportunity to have the leadership of Chester Howe, Democratic candidate for U.S. Representative from this district.

Books Threat Relief

The Governor arrived in Rockville a few minutes before 3 p.m. yesterday and walked directly to a drug store to try to buy lozenges for his throat. However, the store did not have that he was in.

While in the store, a high school girl approached the Governor to ask if it were true that the State is going to build a drug strip. He replied in the negative, saying this was not a function of the Legislature.

Flanked by Probate Judge Thomas F. Rudy and Judge Francis T. O'Connell, the Governor walked to the new shopping center being erected on W. Main St., where he met with a group of growing pedestrians and shaking hands along the way. About 50 persons clustered in front of Democratic headquarters to hear and see him, and then jammed into the office for coffee and doughnuts.

New Population Estimate

Rockville's Building Inspector Roland F. Usher estimated the city population as 18,061 and the rural Vermont population at 7,782 for a total of nearly 25,000.

His figures, gained from a metropolitan survey in Rockville and a spot check in the rural area, are far in excess of previous counts in the city, including estimates of the 1950-Allen and Hittler survey and of the State Department of Health.

Usher's figures dispute previous contentions that the population in the rural area is close to equating that of the city.

There are 1,137 families in Rockville, with an average of 4.75 persons to a family, according to Usher. Living units total 2,277 in houses and apartments, with only 60 vacant apartments. Of these, Usher rated five as comparatively new, 40 in fair condition and 45 as substandard.

In rural Vermont, Usher said there are 1,413 living units with an average of 3.6 persons per family. Some 200 trailers in rural Vermont

Ribicoff Tour Of Town Brief

Governor Ribicoff swept through Manchester in a brief campaign visit yesterday that left turned heads and flustered females in his wake.

The Democratic candidate for reelection spent only some three hours here. But he crammed his visits into that time by keeping his tour at a brisk pace.

He arrived in town at about 1:30, stopped at The Herald office, then left for the Manchester Country Club where he addressed a luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis Club.

He left the club at 1:30 with Democratic Town Chairman Steve Cavanaugh and several local Democratic candidates in town for a tour of Main St. His first stop was at the Chamber of Commerce, where he was greeted by Charles R. Crawford, president, and his son Bruce, for the Early American anniversary chair they had given to the State for the governor's reelection last week ago.

Then he strode up Main St. greeting passersby a number of whom did a double take when they viewed the nattily attired man in gray fedora and topcoat was the governor.

Ribicoff stopped in at the Savings Bank, where he was greeted by the executive director of the Manchester Trust Co. and several other officials.

He visited Democratic headquarters where he gave encouragement to Charles R. Crawford, president, and his son Bruce, for the Early American anniversary chair they had given to the State for the governor's reelection last week ago.

Then, traveling in his dark blue station wagon with a State trooper in front, he headed for the Green Manor Construction Co. in the rear of the Parkside. He asked the switchboard operator if he could look around. "Certainly," she said. Then she exclaimed, "My goodness, it's Governor Ribicoff!"

The governor wrapped up his visit here at about 2:40 when he headed east toward Rockville and another stop on the campaign trail that ends Monday.

With him on his tour of Manchester were Atty. John R. Pillsbury, Judge of Probate candidate and Atty. Irving Aronson, candidate for State representative.

DAC Chooses Mrs. Crawford

Mrs. William G. Crawford, 23 Academy St., was elected State representative of the Connecticut State Daughters of the American Colonies (DAC) at its annual meeting held in the Pickwick Arms Hotel, Greenwich, Thursday.

This organization consists of people whose ancestors resided in this or any other colony prior to 1776.

Mrs. Crawford has several such ancestors, among whom was Stephen Post, who marched from Hartford to Boston with Thomas Hooker, Nathaniel Dunnington who settled in Wethersfield and moved to Deerfield, Mass.; Edward Moore of Woodstock, and many others.

Mrs. Crawford served as president of the Hartford Chapter for a period of three years. A former resident of Oxford Parish, Louisiana, she served as registrar for the American Revolution of this town, she served as registrar for 10 years. She has held other important posts in the DAC, is a past president of the Women's Republican Club, and served as a representative from Manchester to the State Legislature.

Fortin Awarded Course Diploma

Walter J. Fortin, program director of the Recreation Department, last night was presented a certificate for successful completion of a 1-year correspondence course in municipal recreation administration.

The presentation was made by General Manager Richard Martin at a meeting of the Connecticut Recreation Society at the Community Y.

The certificate was mailed to Martin earlier this week, with an accompanying letter from Orin F. Nolting, executive director of the International City Managers Assn. Noting, in the letter, said Fortin's work was well above average in the course and recommended he be given special recognition.

Spaker at the meeting was Charles R. Crawford, president of the American Recreation Society and commissioner of recreation for Philadelphia.

Yankees' Interest in Fight Featuring Bassey

New York, Oct. 31 (AP)—In these days of boxing drift, New York is happy to see a fight featuring a champion in a ring when his title isn't at stake. That is why there is unusual interest in the appearance of Hogan (Kid) Bassey, the featherweight champion.

About Town

Manchester Lodge of Masons will hold a special meeting tonight. Lodge will open at 7 o'clock and Masons will then proceed to the W. P. Quish Funeral Home where, at 7:30, a Masonic memorial service will be conducted for Gerald K. Wardle, a member of the Oak Park, Ill. Lodge of Masons.

The Rev. J. Clement Walker of Branford will talk on "Faith" at the meeting of the Sigma Chi of the Second Congregational Church Sunday night. The youth group of the Wapping Community Church has been invited to attend the meeting. A worship service will precede the speaker, and refreshments will be served at the close of the meeting.

The Army and Navy Club, at its meeting Wednesday at 8 p.m., will elect officers for the coming year. A potluck at 9:30 will precede the business session.

Reservations for the chicken-on-biscuit supper which St. Mary's Guild will serve in connection with the "Ye Olde Country Fair" Thursday from 5 to 7 p.m. will close on Monday. They should be made through Mrs. Walter Aitken, 859 Main St.

Dr. Robert Wickware, professor of education at Willimantic State Teachers College, an authority on science in the elementary schools, will talk on the type of science program suitable for elementary grades at the meeting of the Manchester Child Group Tuesday at 1 p.m. in the Buckley School Library. Any parents or teachers interested are invited.

The Zipsar Club will hold its weekly subback party for members and friends tomorrow night starting at 8 o'clock.

Sunset Rebekah Lodge will meet in Odd Fellows Hall Monday at 8 p.m. A kitchen social will follow and members are asked to bring prizes. Refreshments will be served.

Mary B. Cheney Auxiliary, USWV, will be hostesses to the Nutmeg Club members Sunday at 1:30 p.m. at the VFW Home. Mrs. Gertrude Buchanan or Mrs. Gladys Ridolfi may be contacted if transportation is desired.

Troop 49, Girl Scouts, assisted at the Senior Citizens Halloween party Wednesday afternoon at the Community Y. Additional sponsors of the group are B'nai B'rith, Community Baptist Church, Council of Catholic Women, Covenant Congregational Church, South Methodist Church, YWCA and St. Mary's Episcopal Church.

The second in a series of lectures by the Voice of Youth will be held tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. in the West Middle School auditorium, 927 Asylum Ave., Hartford. Among the speakers will be George A. Barrow and Peter Federicko, both of Manchester.

Sandra R. Moeller, daughter of Raymond E. Moeller, 503 Adams St., has enrolled as a freshman medical secretarial student at Becker Junior College in Worcester, Mass. She graduated from Manchester High School in June.

Nixon Cites Peace Aim In Vote Bid

Seattle, Nov. 1 (AP)—Vice President Nixon wound up his continental United States campaign tour last night with a plea for election of a Republican Congress to support the administration's "peace without surrender" foreign policy.

The vice president, his wife and their two daughters headed for Alaska today.

They plan stops in Juneau, Anchorage and Fairbanks in behalf of GOP candidates running for two seats in the U.S. Senate and one in the House in a special election Nov. 25.

In his last statewide speech before the Nov. 4 election, Nixon told a Republican rally at night, 30 miles north of Fairbanks, that the only way to beat Communist tactics without war is to be strong militarily, firm diplomatically while at the same time waging peace unceasingly.

Firm Policy Means Peace

All 2,217 seats in the auditorium were filled and more persons gathered outside to hear the vice president.

"In dealing with dictators—first with Hitler and then with the Communists—we have learned that a weak policy for war policy, a firm policy is a peace policy," Nixon said.

He said "those who think they can buy peace from the Communists by turning over territory, or simply do not know the fanatical, ruthless group of men who direct the master plan of the international Communist movement to conquer the world by force if necessary, by other means if possible."

"Making concessions to them in territory will not satisfy them; it will only whet their appetites and suggest to them that they might do it again and get away with it."

Earlier at a news conference in Wichita, Kan., Nixon said he believed the United States would accept a Catholic as president.

He said the bids of Democrat Edmund G. Brown for California and Rep. Patrick J. Hillings for attorney general made it apparent there was an absence of voter prejudice on religious issues.

During Geneva Talks UN for West Plan To Defer N-Testing

United Nations, N.Y., Nov. 1 (AP)—The United Nations today approved over determined Soviet opposition a U.S.-backed proposal calling for suspension of nuclear tests while the Geneva Big Three talks are on.

The 12-nation Political Committee voted for the plan 49-9 with 23 abstentions after a bitter procedural wrangle that lasted past midnight.

The ballot was hailed as a victory for the West. Diplomats held little hope, however, it would do much to win agreement at Geneva where the United States, Britain and Russia are negotiating over an international system to police a ban on tests.

The Soviet Union voiced dogged opposition to the resolution sponsored by the United States and 16 other nations. But it was believed the Russians would quietly suspend their tests during the Geneva talks—rather than risk charges of bad faith.

Today's vote came after collapse of Indian-Yugoslav efforts to get East-West agreement on a compromise proposal which called for halting tests but set no date for resumption.

The West insisted on voting priority for its plan after Russia and authors of other rival proposals refused its call to withdraw in favor of another last-minute compromise. This mildly-worded proposal, which Japan and Sweden merely expressed hope for success of the Geneva conference. It later passed, 52-9, with 19 abstentions.

Green Light— On Cruiser?

Grand Haven, Mich., Nov. 1 (AP)—Pat Dubrovnik of Muskegon, Mich., stopped behind a Grand Haven police cruiser at an intersection. He stayed right there until police completed their investigation of a minor traffic accident.

When two policemen asked what he wanted, Dubrovnik said nothing, he was just waiting for the light to change.

Only light any where near was the red flasher atop the cruiser.

Dubrovnik, 49, was hauling off to jail on a drunk driving charge. Yesterday, he was fined $115 and sentenced to 30 days in jail.

Russia Warns Iran on Arms Pact with U.S.

By HAROLD K. MILKS
Moscow, Nov. 1 (AP)—The Soviet Union told neighboring Iran today that the Kremlin "cannot remain indifferent to a possible new Iranian military pact with the United States."

Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko said the Kremlin regarded the Soviet move as another example of the Kremlin's "current hard policy that Premier Nikita Khrushchev and his government are in a fighting mood."

The Kremlin policy, in evidence for several months, has been to cut off diplomatic contact with countries which are expected to reach a pact with the United States when the 21st Communist Party Congress meets Nov. 21.

A survey of recent diplomatic moves in Moscow reflects little or no optimism that political relations between the East and West will improve in the foreseeable future.

The Soviet note asserted Iran was preparing to sign a new military pact with the United States "which directly endangers" Russian southern borders.

Under a treaty signed several years after World War I, the Soviet Union reserved the right to close its southern border if her southern border endangered.

"The State Department in Washington denied it had signed or was negotiating a military pact with Iran," Washington officials said.

They believed the Soviet warning reflected Moscow's interest in a pact which would give the United States a virtual partner by declaring the United States would defend its members. Iran has opposed the committee approved 49-8 a resolution calling on the Big Three to halt experimental tests during the Geneva talks.

The United States and Britain have already halted their tests. Support for the American position came from the U.N. Political Committee in New York City today. With only the Soviet bloc opposed, the committee approved a resolution calling on the Big Three to halt experimental tests during the Geneva talks.

Western officials said the Russian note, while denouncing the 1-year time limit, are likely to fall in line for the time being.

Although the Geneva talks would continue even if all three resume shots on the proving grounds, the absence of Russian nuclear tests, might give a measure of Russia's sincerity in the negotiations, one Western authority said.

The three delegations are expected to hold several meetings over the weekend. The next formal conference session is set for 3 p.m. (9 a.m. EST) Monday.

7 More Rescued From Springhill Mine

Men Found After Nine Days in Pit

Springhill, N. S., Nov. 1 (AP)—Seven more miners—increasingly withstanding nine days of confinement—were rescued today from the depths of a wrecked coal mine.

Amazed rescue workers said that although some were injured all appeared in good condition considering the time they had been trapped without food or water. Some even appeared in better shape than 12 brought out Thursday after 30 days of hunger and thirst.

Rescue crews said they were even met with a cat when they finally dug through the debris to reach the men in the 13,000-foot from the mine entrance.

"Give me a drink of water and I'll sing a song," said Maurice Riddick, 46-year-old father of 12 children. He could joke despite a broken leg and hunger, and thirst.

Alone in 6 Ft. Pocket

First, to be brought to the surface by the cheers of ten men gathered at the pithead of Cumberland No. 2 was Byron Martin. His ordeal was worst of all.

The rescue squads had found Martin alone in a pocket only six feet square. Separated from the others, he had been without food, water or light since the massive Earth shift the night of Oct. 23 trapped 174 miners.

"God must have saved this little hole for me," Martin said.

"I've seen grief-stricken," declared Victor Hunter, captain of the rescue crews.

For among the seven was his brother Frank. Another brother, Fred, was among the miners. They were brought out the night disaster struck.

Garrett Clark, another of the lucky seven, had spent his 29th birthday underground. He was born Oct. 27. The other survivors were Currie Smith, Douglas Stokes and Herb Peppers.

"Some managed to wave in greeting as they were taken in ambulances. They were placed in St. Francis Hospital in an asbestos shield. No-bed building a mile from the mine.

There food, water, clean beds and the kisses of their families awaited the haggard miners. They had been given a little water, soup and coffee by their rescuers down in the mine.

Big-3 Talks Secretly On Policing N-Curbs

Geneva, Nov. 1 (AP)—Delegates of the United States, Britain and Russia met privately today to clarify their positions on policing a ban on nuclear tests.

The three delegations met in the American delegation headquarters at Russian request for an hour.

American and Russian spokesmen said the discussion was "purely procedural" and declined all other comment.

Earlier, western delegates said they felt that the Soviet position, though calling for permanent suspension of test abstinence, was flexible enough for negotiations behind closed doors.

They got this impression from a carefully worded statement by Soviet Delegate Semyon Tzarapkin at the opening of the 3-nation conference in the Palace of Nations yesterday.

In closed session that followed, the Russians submitted a draft agreement on suspension of tests. Neither Russian nor Western delegates would detail its provisions. It was thus undisclosed whether the Soviet proposal included any control features at all.

The Soviet opening statement and initial remarks of the Western delegates—U.S. Ambassador James J. Wadsworth and British Minister of State David Ornshby—emphasized their fundamental lines:

1. The Russians want all three powers to suspend tests forever at once, and then take up the nego-

Quemoy Quiet On Red China's 'Shooting Day'

Taipei, Nov. 1 (AP)—The Quemoy Island was lapsing into extremely quiet and sporadic artillery fire today even though it was supposed to be a shooting day.

This was an odd-numbered day of the month and therefore was open to unrestricted Communist artillery fire under Peking's policy of every-other-day.

Today also was an odd-numbered day, however, and this would have meant subjecting the island to unrestricted fire for two successive days.

Nationalist Defense headquarters said only an occasional shell landed on the offshore islands from midnight to midday.

President Chiang Kai-shek yesterday reaffirmed his recent renunciation of any use of force as a means of recovering the Red-ruled mainland.

The Nationalist leader on his 72nd birthday said in a message to the Nationalist Youth Corps:

"To carry out our mission of anti-Communist and national survival we depend upon a political means rather than military means. As I have said before, 30 per cent military plus 70 per cent political."

As if to back up this declaration, the Nationalist garrison on Quemoy unloosed thousands of propaganda (Continued on Page Eight)

Red Writers' Seek Pasternak's Exile

By HAROLD K. MILKS
Moscow, Nov. 1 (AP)—Pressure built up today for the exile of Nobel Prize winner Boris Pasternak to remain in the Soviet Union.

The Literary Gazette, official voice of the Soviet Writers' Union, called for his expulsion from "this country whose interests he has betrayed."

The newspaper printed a full page of attacks on the 48-year-old author of "Doctor Zhivago," leading off with a resolution of the Moscow branch of the Writers' Union.

"With wrath and indignation, the Soviet people condemn Pasternak's actions," said the headline.

"Await Official Action

"The theme of the attacks was Pasternak's refusal to accept the Soviet Writers' Union's demand that he renounce his exile from the Soviet Union.

Classification of the exact means of Pasternak's exile was not disclosed.

Strike Averted On Papers in New York City

New York, Nov. 1 (AP)—A strike of New York's seven major dailies was averted today on the basis of a fourth tentative agreement hammered out during the early morning hours.

By the strike deadline of midnight last night, the New York Newspaper Guild had reached tentative agreement with the Mirror, Journal-American and World-Telegram and Sun.

Negotiations with the Times continue today, while contract sessions with the Herald Tribune and Post were recessed until Monday.

At the Daily News, guild and management representatives agreed to "stop the clock" and ignore the midnight deadline to continue talks. They came to terms shortly before 3:30 a.m.

The papers have said they would all stop publishing if a guild strike against one or more resulted in refusal by any union employee to cross picket lines. Thus a strike call against either the Times, Herald Tribune or Post could shut down all seven papers.

The 6,200 members of the guild, editorial and commercial employees of the dailies.

All four tentative settlements provide for package increases of $4 a week in the first year of the contracts and $3 weekly in the second year.

All agreements are subject to guild member ratification. The Times, Herald-Tribune and (Continued on Page Eight)

Role by Vatican Reported— Dutch Company Printed 'Dr. Zhivago' in Russian

The Hague, Netherlands, Nov. 1 (AP)—A Dutch publishing firm admitted today it printed copies of Boris Pasternak's "Doctor Zhivago" in Russian. An Italian publisher claims 3,200 copies reached Russia after distribution by the Vatican Information Service at the Brussels World Fair.

The Dutch firm, Mouton & Co., said it printed the editions for an unnamed Dutchman. The firm claimed it did not know the copies were to be distributed by the Vatican Information Service.

Italian publisher Gian Giacomino Feltrinelli called the printing a infringement of his claimed world publishing rights to the book, banned in Russia.

Feltrinelli said the version printed here was distributed during the final months of the Brussels Fair. He said the text is identical to the manuscript in his possession. Feltrinelli obtained the manuscript after it was smuggled out of Russia. He put the book on the market in the western world. Now he wants a financial settlement for the edition printed here.

"I have been informed who is responsible for this," the publisher said. "I will not give names. I hope to contact that person while I am here."

The Mouton firm said it tried to reach Feltrinelli before doing the printing, but he was on vacation. A company official, F. Eckhout, said the company went ahead with the printing, believing this was the best way to preserve Feltrinelli's rights. After the printing two copies were sent to the Italian publisher, and he was asked how much he wanted for the rights, the official said. In May of this year, Mouton and Feltrinelli negotiated for the printing of 5,000 Russian copies but the contract never was signed, Eckhout said.

"I don't know that the manuscript I printed would be used for distribution by the Vatican Information Service. I would never have printed it," Eckhout asserted.

Feltrinelli scheduled a meeting today with representatives of Mouton.

"I am here to reach a settlement with the people responsible," he said. "If we fail, I will go to court and sue them."

Sheriff Denies Shortage for Prisoner Fund

County Commissioner Cecil W. England said today a detailed audit has been ordered to find out if a shortage in a Hartford County Jail fund is the result of "sloppy bookkeeping, poor administration, or dishonesty."

Yesterday the County commissioners wrote they had found an $866 shortage in the prisoners' cash fund at the jail. The fund contains money turned in by prisoners for safekeeping while they are in jail.

Sheriff Donald H. Potter, who is running for reelection, said a shortage of a cash shortage was politically motivated.

He said the error turned up in a partial audit is one of bookkeeping.

Says Potter Told First

England said today the detailed audit, to be taken by the Hartford firm of Knust, Everett & Cambria, should be finished in a week or ten days.

England today said Potter can "yell politics all he wants." He said "proximity of the fund issue with State elections Nov. 4 came because the annual audit is taken (Continued on Page Eight)

The Calls Jobless Dip Sample of GOP Work

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH
Baltimore, Nov. 1 (AP)—President Eisenhower says unemployment declined another 300,000 in October. And he offers that as an example of Republican progress every week in a GOP Congress next Tuesday.

The President pointed that note and called the Democrats gloom-doggers about the Nation's economy—in a nationwide television address from here last night. The speech-flailing the opposition and touting the Administration record, was Eisenhower's last of the 1958 campaign. He returned to Washington immediately afterward.

Eisenhower charged that what he calls the radical wing of the Democratic Party is made up of extremists, political fire-breathers, and men of little faith in America's future. He said their party is so split it is on both sides of every question, including the explosive Civil Rights issue.

The Republican Party, Eisenhower said on the other hand, "is the only political instrument that can bring a sensible, united and progressive leadership in America."

Many Empty Seats

The President spoke at a rally in Baltimore's 3rd Regiment armory. Police Capt. Wade Poole estimated the crowd at about 3,500 in a hall which seats 7,000. The Maryland GOP office had predicted earlier in the week that an overflow audience of about 10,000 would be at the armory to hear the speech.

Machinists to Vote On TWA Pay Offer

Kansas City, Nov. 1 (AP)—Machinists yesterday postponed a strike against Trans World Airlines after they cast on a new wage offer by the company.

The strike had been scheduled to start last night. TWA said it was prepared to cease operations around the globe and through its 19,000 employees.

Frank Heiser, an international official of the International Association of Machinists, said the union would vote on the offer.

"If the members vote to accept the proposal by the company, there is a settlement. If they vote to reject it, a new time for the strike will be set."

The union also has scheduled a strike to begin Monday against against airlines with negotiations still proceeding.

A strike against Capital Airlines is in its 17th day. (Continued on Page Two)

All Candidates In State Enter Stretch Drive

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
With but a long weekend between now and election day, Connecticut campaigners didn't dare relax today.

The Democratic candidates, federal, state and local, planned to meet in Hartford tonight to dance and swap optimism—but only after a hard day of campaigning.

The Republicans, led by gubernatorial candidate Fred R. Zeller, planned a trip into the northwest part of the state. Zeller, after swinging through Fairfield county yesterday, scheduled a person-to-person tour through Windset and the 31st Senatorial District today.

The basic issues remained about the same. While Zeller toured Stamford and Bridgeport, Gov. Abraham Ribicoff repeated a promise that Democrats don't plan to bring Connecticut new or higher taxes.

Ribicoff, the Democratic candidate for reelection, told a Middle-town audience last night that, if he is reelected, he will deliver to the 1959 General Assembly a balanced budget.

"I am confident," he said, "that (Continued on Page Two)
