It would not happen in a better country, such as the United States, where the departments of government, under control of a political party in power and seeking reelection, would release statistics just three weeks before election day which would tend to weaken the claims of their own political party.

This, however, is foolish, democratic America—sometimes, for all our self-flagellation, and self-loathing America.

So the Eisenhower administration's Commerce Department, which is out on schedule, with its report on home building for the month of September, and the report showing that there was more building in the country than in any other month of the year.

There has always been something in the Senator's reports, making the fourth month in a row in which employment in the factories of the country had not come up to normal expectations.

In such reports, presumably the fact upon these particular statistics is that the economy is not doing as well as it should be.

There is something of an edge taken of the Republican use of the issue of national production, and something of an advantage, if it can be called that, handed to those prophets of doom and gloom who are, of course, always strong when in whatever party is on the outside trying to get on the inside so it can run the country.

There are other non-government statistics, such as the low rate of operation for the steel mills, which are currently subject to the same political interpretations.

There is one thing we can rely upon both candidates to provide. That is the promise, that no matter how they interpret present statistics, each of them will know just how to make things hum when he gets into office.

Perhaps one kind of promise or the other will improve somebody. Our political system is something different, and very appealing to anybody. We think that, in a given market, there is just so much room for so much production, so much new housing, so much steel from the mills. We think that, by artificial economic policies, the production and consumption of such things can be temporarily stepped up beyond the sound normal capacity of the market for them.

When this happens, one says a slump has been corrected or cured. But there is just so much room for so much production, so much new housing, so much steel from the mills. We think that, by artificial economic policies, the production and consumption of such things can be temporarily stepped up beyond the sound normal capacity of the market for them.

Connecticut Yankee

By A. H. O.

A month ago we surveyed the political atmosphere and found it dense with reluctance to make a choice. It was not the traditional apathetic political observers are always discovering, we said, but some anticipation of pain in the process of voting for either of the two presidential candidates.

The crucial joke of that phase of the campaign was that it was fortunate nobody could be forced to vote for either of them. The mood, then, was one which suggested that many people might wind up staying away from the polls.

This mood began to crack almost the moment people had begun to identify it and describe it. The national television debates between the two candidates began. If they did not, at the outset, make them seem real or vote-compelling, it at least made them prominent, and began to establish them as television figures.

Cautiously enough, television, supposedly an expert and complete representation of reality, to stimulate rather than satisfy the public's quest for that reality. Having seen the candidates on television, the public developed a new and sharper instinct to see them in person, as they really were, not close to their television counterparts.

Campaign crowds began to grow, until one began to suspect that, in another of the queer twists of our age, television, the supposed substitute for the campaign rally and the personal dash and blood appearance of the candidate, was opening the door to a rescue rally from oblivion and into the highest prominence of the personal appearance.

The Nixon crowds in Connecticut were not overworking, but a very good person who had seemed reluctant to get close to their television counterparts, and unexpectedly by pushing forward to qualify for that public which had seemed reluctant to get close to their television counterparts.

We do not assume that this rush to the voter lists meant that the participants had suddenly decided that they could vote for some particular candidate, and do so joyously. We do assume that they had decided to vote.

But from the beginning there has not been any real public quarrel with the Kennedy assertions. He had discovered the obvious fact in September, making the fourth month in a row in which employment in the factories of the country had not come up to normal expectations.

In such reports, presumably the fact upon these particular statistics is that the economy is not doing as well as it should be. There is something of an edge taken of the Republican use of the issue of national production, and something of an advantage, if it can be called that, handed to those prophets of doom and gloom who are, of course, always strong when in whatever party is on the outside trying to get on the inside so it can run the country.

From Your Neighbor's Kitchen

By MARGO FLYNN

Mrs. Frank Zarbo, 185 Brent Rd., has a favorite recipe which she serves especially to those who don't like "gooey desserts." It is for sponge cake made without shortening, a good dessert for those who are counting calories on special diets.

Sponge Cake

3/4 cup cold water
2 eggs separated
1 1/4 cup sugar
1 1/2 cup flour
4 1/2 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon flavoring (lemon, vanilla or almond)

Beat egg yolks and water in large mixing bowl at high speed until foam reaches the rim of the bowl, for about three minutes.

Add sugar gradually, a tablespoon at a time, and beat mixture at high speed for seven minutes. Sift flour, baking powder, salt, and blend into the mixture. Never stir into the batter, because a cake must retain air to be light. Beat egg whites stiff and fold in. Fold in flavoring.

Pour into a nine-inch round or nine-inch tube pan, ungreased. Put this into a cold oven. Turn oven to 350 degrees and bake for 30 minutes. Turn pan upside down and cool cake. Loosen sides and bottom of cake, and turn out of the pan. Do not press down on the cake.

Mrs. Zarbo, a native of New York City, has lived in Manchester for three years. A substitute teacher in elementary school, she is attending University of Hartford.

She is a graduate of Hunter College and Fordham School of Social Service. Mrs. Zarbo has worked for 10 years for the New York Family Ladies.

She is a member of Gibbons Assembly, Ladies of Columbus, and the YWCA of Columbus.

Mr. Zarbo is an order supervisor for the export division United States Marine Corps. The Zarbos have three children, Richard, 8 1/2, Stephanie, 5 1/2, and Mark, 3 1/2.

ordered its men to "act with restraint" to keep order.

The renewed violence came after President Romulo Betancourt declared his confidence Tuesday night that the armed forces had crushed revolutionists he said were trying to impose "Cuban methods" on Venezuela.

Mrs. Humberto Quintero, head of the Roman Catholic Church in Venezuela, made a post-midnight radio and TV appeal for calm.

Upholding Betancourt, he said the president had been chosen in the cleanest elections ever known in the history of the republic.

The newspaper said the country's chief of police, General Juan Jose Guzman, also said his troops were pledged to support the government.

Miami, Fla., Oct. 27 (AP)—City manager M. L. Reese has placed Miami policemen on a today week because of what he called an emergency created by Cuban revolutionary activity here.

Twenty thousand Cubans, many of them refugees from the Castro regime, live in Miami and there have been frequent clashes between their factions.

Reese said he has information indicating "semi-military" activities by Cuban refugees are being planned in the city.

TWA's Far Eastern route was extended to Manila, Hughes aircraft President Hughes received contracts, and Hughes Tool Co. received some business from the Civil Aeronautics Board which it had been unable to get previously.

The newspaper said Pearson had given Nixon credit for the appointment of Waters brother Laughlin Waters, as U.S. attorney in Los Angeles. The Examiner said that Nixon had given Nixon credit for the appointment of Waters brother Laughlin Waters said in part in a written statement.

"The facts as I know them concerning my appointment do not support Mr. Pearson's story," Laughlin Waters said.

Sen. William F. Knowland in early part of 1953 and I took over the job of Nixon's secretary in July 31, 1953.

"To the best of my knowledge the Vice President did not interfere in my appointment in any manner. If he did approve my appointment, I am most appreciative of his support."

2 in Cabinet Hit Kennedy

Galveston, Tex., Oct. 27 (AP)—The election of Sen. John F. Kennedy as president would destroy business confidence and would lead the nation into higher taxes or inflation, Secretary of Commerce Frederick M. Mueller said last night.

Mueller told newsmen in an interview that the "platform on which Jack Kennedy is running has as its philosophy increased spending by the government." He said the spending could be achieved by raising taxes or going further into debt.

Following the interview Mueller made what was termed a non-political speech to about 300 Galveston civic club members.

In the speech to the businessmen, the Secretary said that the election of Kennedy would be a reversal of judgment in the United States, connected by left wing executives, farmer and every income tax payer.

Galveston Democratic leaders said after the radio talk they would demand equal time on the station to answer the Secretary.

Wichita Falls, Tex., Oct. 27 (AP)—Secretary of the Air Force Dudley C. Sharp told a Republican rally last night the United States cannot afford to stumble into World War III by making its future as the Democrats.

He said an increase in federal spending would be paid for by a crushing new tax on every industry, farmer and every income tax payer.

How to Entertain and Reap A Harvest of Compliments

If you want to be sure your guests really mean it when they say "It's been a wonderful evening," here are a few pointers to remember:

Don't limit your guests to the same small group who see each other constantly. Have a few new faces.

Don't serve the same kind of food the Brown served last week and the Smiths served the week before. Hunt around for a more interesting menu.

Never interrupt guests who are obviously having a good time. Don't be doing it if the conversation is going strong. Don't break it up to do something else. If you seem to be dragging, be quick to suggest a new activity.

Be an attentive hostess but not a fidgety nervous one. Be on the alert for the guest who is left alone in a corner. For the one who is being teased by a long-winded talker.

Try to give each guest a little special attention so that each feels warmly welcome.

Let your guests go when they say they must instead of accusing the early-leaving guests of breaking up the party.

'Ferret' Locates Poor Insulation

South Norwalk, Conn. — Potential failures in underground cable insulation are averted by an electronic ferret developed by a South Norwalk firm. This underground sleuth finds a piece of poor insulation in a cable electronically "read through" the fault, having cut out the potential failure to prevent "heating" by self-conducting arcs.

Then it keeps finding high-voltage power of current into the fault so its precise location can be traced for quick repair.

Wind Piles Water On Great Lakes

Cleveland—Great Lakes beaches, which occur when high winds in Lake Erie "pile up" at one end of the lake and to lower at the opposite end, are a hazard to property and the wind-whipped, tricky currents develop as the water levels gradually return to normal.

On Lake Erie, differences in timing of the current into the lake are great as 15 1/2 feet have been recorded.

Part-Time Work May Solve Homeowner's Problem

Have you and hubby debated long and loud the question of whether you should go to work? If the answer is "no," and you about you perhaps the solution lies in compromise—part-time work. Working hours when you are least needed at home.

If he is old-fashioned, meaning that he insists upon being the sole support, tell him it is fashionable for you to go to work. Seven out of 10 married women living with husbands work their part-time jobs for non-economic reasons.

Gone are the days when a woman will shake her head and say, "I'm not going to work." In 1958, nearly one-third of the 28 million working women were part-time workers and their ranks are expected to swell by 30 per cent in the coming decade. The number of women working part-time has increased by 70 per cent from 1950 to 1958 while the number of women with full-time jobs shows but a 15 per cent increase in this period.

Thomas said the complete picture of the part-time working woman? The U. S. Department of Labor's women's division, which has issued the study that provides my facts, indicates that workable ranges in age from 35 to 44 and women with full-time jobs rather than in agriculture, manufacturing or public administration.

Part-time work has made its increase since 1950. In the 25-to-34 age group, the increase has been 24 per cent as full-time workers have turned to part-time in order to have more time to spend with their young children. Among women 35 to 44 whose children are older, the gain in part-time workers has increased by almost 36 per cent since 1950.

About 21 per cent of the widowed, divorced and separated women who work part-time do so because they must pay the bills.

Only about half of the women craftsmen and 31 per cent of female plant operators who work part-time do so by choice. For the rest they simply are unable to find full-time employment.

Part-time workers are identified as those who work fewer than 35 hours during the week. Some of these women work but a few hours every day, others work only two or three days in the week.

Chances are that you can find the part-time job you'd like via the usual employment channels, newspaper advertisements and employment agencies or by that time-tested routine of ringing door-bells.

Chances are too, that once you land that job and learn to juggle your household chores (oh, the scolders of a fancy dessert that serves to camouflage the piled-up dust and unwashed socks) and make a success of it, hubby will be real proud. Take it from me, I know!

ROAST BEEF... at its Sunday best!

Times have changed since we were kids, but Rib Oven Roast of beef, rich brown or delicious pink, fork-tender, swimming in delicious juice is Dad's favorite for Sunday dinner. It's the tenderest juiciest most flavorful oven roast available—the kind of roast Pinehurst has been providing Manchester people with for over forty years. And that's one custom that's not going to change.

Here at Pinehurst we grade the rib into 3 cuts, so that you get just what you want, at the price each cut should bring to give you full value.

A rib-roast as it is cut by the packer has same ribs. Some stores sell them all at the same price—others seldom display "Ribs" but make them into fancy club and "his and her" steaks at $1.79 to $2.39 lb.

We repeat Pinehurst grade them out so that you get full value and just the cut you prefer.

The answer is that we are members of the A.G. group, owning our own warehouse right nearby in Wethersfield, which buys in car load-lots for us so that we can easily keep in line with any competition.

Each week we are selecting several really interesting special grocery values for you so that you will shop our special shelves with care and discover the pleasure of making Pinehurst your one shop food shopping center.

Rep. E. O. Smith, 89, Dies; Assembly Dean Tried for 15th Term

Willimantic, Oct. 26 (AP)—Rep. E. O. Smith, 89, died today of a heart attack in his home. He had served 15 terms in the Connecticut General Assembly. He was a member of the House of Representatives from 1914 to 1954. He died in Willimantic Memorial Hospital at 10:20 a.m. after having been stricken with a heart attack in Mansfield home yesterday.

The veteran Republican helped set up the present formula for state aid to education and was a member of the State Board of Education. In January 1957, he was elected to the 1957-58 annual scholarship fund for Connecticut students.

Smith devoted to years to efforts aimed at reviving the Connecticut Constitution, so that it would incorporate all 41 amendments to a readable document.

Although he did not do the actual redrafting, Smith spent years convincing legislators, starting in 1945, that the Constitution needed rewriting.

For his efforts, Smith sometimes was called the "Father of the Connecticut Constitution."

State News Roundup

Jasper McLevy, 82, Critically Ill

Bridgeport, Oct. 26 (AP)—Jasper McLevy, the 82-year-old Socialist who was mayor of Bridgeport for almost a quarter of a century, was reported critically ill today.

McLevy was admitted to Bridgeport Hospital yesterday, and a physician said he regarded him as in critical condition today.

The former mayor was taken ill at his home Tuesday. His physician said he has a "gastric disorder and sustained a slight stroke."

Earlier reports had described McLevy's condition as "fairly good."

The illness put a crimp in McLevy's latest political venture, and he was forced to drop out of the race for election as U.S. Representative from Connecticut's Fourth District.

For 17 consecutive years until he was ousted in 1957 by Democrat Samuel Y. Tesesco-McLevy was Bridgeport's mayor. His name has appeared on the ballot for one office or another over the decades more than 20 times.

Many thought he would retire from politics after his defeat three years ago, but McLevy expressed his party's nomination for the year. His illness caused him to miss a Socialist rally here last night.

Nixon Declares Americans Not Betting on Recession

With Nixon in Illinois, Oct. 26 (AP)—U.S. President Richard M. Nixon said today, "The American people have more sense than that Sen. Kennedy and I are not betting there will be an economic recession."

The Republican presidential nominee fired new volleys at his Democratic rival, Sen. John F. Kennedy, as he pushed his campaign across Illinois after a hectic day in Michigan yesterday.

In Michigan, Nixon was the target for eggs and tomatoes tossed by individuals in otherwise friendly crowds. He also faced backhandedly a group of hecklers.

On his way to Illinois, his train passed safely over a bridge near Fort Wayne, Ind., where Pennsylvania Railroad employees yesterday found a piece of metal tied to the tracks. "They said it could have derailed his special," he said.

In Danville, Ill., Nixon fired away at Kennedy's contention that the nation is slipping into a recession because of Eisenhower administration policies.

Citing record automobile production for this time of year, the vice president said "the American people are not betting on a recession."

"I have more sense than Sen. Kennedy," he said. "They have faith in America and I wish Sen. Kennedy had more."

Nixon told the Danville crowd he had no intention of heading for Michigan, Mich., last night that "I've been through some hard heckling. If you don't believe it, just try it and see."

Flagged by a cold and laryngitis, Nixon said the cold is nagging to slow down his campaigning. His voice was hoarse and cracking.

Mrs. Johnson said she was especially in good luck and her special train was switched from one railroad to another, Nixon told a group of reporters in Danville.

Henry Cabot Lodge, who "beat" Nixon in 1956, was also present.

Ladybird Johnson, wife of the Democratic vice presidential candidate, today demonstrated the sort of political acumen accredited to her husband as majority leader of the Senate.

Asked for her prediction on the election outcome, she replied in a way that would not have surprised her husband. "I think we will win," she said.

Bloody Riots in Paris

Paris, Oct. 26 (AP)—Demonstrations demanding an end to the Algerian war erupted in Paris today, with rioting in the city and a half dozen demonstrators arrested.

The meeting was invaded by a band of right-wing youths, dedicated to keeping Algeria French at all costs, who tossed smoke and tear gas bombs and raised the French flag.

Contract talks between the union and CR&I will be resumed Monday. The strike would affect the city of Bridgeport.

India Leading Push for New Arms Cut Talks

United Nations, N.Y., Oct. 26 (AP)—In an effort to head off a Soviet bloc boycott of U.N. disarmament debate, India and six other nations sought support today for a compromise proposal aimed at bringing the arms negotiating table.

Indian Defense Minister V. K. Krishna Menon hinted at the plan last night in a 2-hour speech before the U.N. General Assembly.

Menon said India would soon offer the outlines of a resolution on the disarmament question.

Informal sources said India has drawn up a 10-point proposal for the U.N. disarmament talks.

Diplomatic informants said the United States is wary of warding off the proposal, but the Russians complained it left out any mention of nuclear weapons.
