Castro Threatens to Purge Leaders of Revolt in Cuba

State News Roundup

Dempsey Claims New York Slacks Liquor Compact

HARTFORD (AP)—Gov. John N. Dempsey remained at odds with New York today over its law that permits liquor sales to 18-year-olds. The latest word from the Governor was that he will refuse to appear personally before any New York post-legislative study committee to present his protests of the law.

Dempsey described as a "obvious stall" yesterday what he contended was a "stalling tactic" to delay the law's implementation until the next legislative session.

"We don't want any more study of this problem," he said, "which is a very real one to us."

Dempsey had written March 13 that he would appear before the New York State Post-Legislative Committee, which was set to begin hearings before the end of the week.

"We don't want any more study of this problem," he said, "which is a very real one to us."

Castro Threatens to Purge Leaders of Revolt in Cuba

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP)—Israel and Syrian forces clashed on the eastern shore of the Sea of Galilee in a night battle that raged until early today. Both sides claimed victory in the gravest frontier fighting in two years.

At least two Israel planes joined the battle, one of them being reported to be a Soviet-made Mig-17 jet. The Israeli jet was shot down and eight other planes were damaged. The Israeli spokesman said that Israeli pilots were involved in the heaviest fighting in the area.

The Israeli army spokesman said that the Syrians were attacking in force from the Golan Heights and that Israeli troops were engaged in a bitter battle to repel them.

Says Public Humiliated, Mistreated

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—Prime Minister Fide Castro charged today that Cuba's revolutionary leaders were abusing their authority, mistreating the public and creating general chaos.

Swearing changes must be made, he said.

"The revolution needs to revise all the revolutionary nuclei and all the political apparatus of the revolution to do away with the errors and abuses and to gain good performance," he demanded in a televised address broadcast here.

"We have to stop tolerating poor performance and errors," he said. "Those who are unable will not continue in their positions."

Upside Down Tag

Clyde W. Manuel of Savannah, Georgia, displayed his new 1962 Georgia auto license plate which has the numbers stamped upside down. He hasn't decided how to mount it but either way, part of it will be readable. (AP Photofax).

Samos Also Secret

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. officials reported today that the Soviet satellite state of Samos was in the development of a system of any satellites designed to detect Russian missile launches almost instantly and radio back warning.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev is expected, perhaps intentionally, to mention the U.S. Midas satellite system Friday in announcing details of a new Russian "global rocket" that he said was able to avoid U.S. radar warning stations.

At least two experimental Midas satellites have been sent aloft. One of them was credited with spotting the launch of the ICBM from the Soviet launch complex at Cape Canaveral, Fla., last Oct. 25.

Other models may have been shot into polar orbits since then, but the Air Force has drawn tight security around the program.

107 Vanish in Pacific

Planes Sight Objects On Airliner's Route

MANILA (AP)—Search planes for a U.S. Air Force B-57 bomber reported missing Friday in the Philippine Sea were unable to locate the aircraft today, according to a report from the U.S. military.

The B-57, which was en route to a mission in the Philippines, disappeared while flying over the Philippine Sea on Thursday.

The search area is about 200 miles northwest of Manila, and the B-57 was last seen while flying over the area.

100 FIRE HOTEL FIRE
NEWARK (AP)—A five-block out of control fire broke out today, forcing the evacuation of 75 guests and 25 employees. The blaze started in the 100 Fire Hotel, a five-story brick building and wrecked a club room on the fourth floor.

The hotel was built in 1920 and was a popular resort for workers in the nearby steel industry.

Nikita Ignored Midas

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. officials reported today that the Soviet satellite state of Samos was in the development of a system of any satellites designed to detect Russian missile launches almost instantly and radio back warning.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev is expected, perhaps intentionally, to mention the U.S. Midas satellite system Friday in announcing details of a new Russian "global rocket" that he said was able to avoid U.S. radar warning stations.

With a Million Watching

120,000 Wearing Green To Step Up 5th Avenue

HARTFORD (AP)—A Super Court grand jury refused to indict the Boston Police Officer who shot and killed a black man on a murder charge yesterday.

The grand jury's decision is expected to be announced within a few days.

Bandits Fooled

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Two young bandits robbed a branch bank Friday of about $200,000, according to police.

The bandits fled in a light-colored sedan and were followed by a police car.

Abandoned Stations

HARTFORD (AP)—Gov. John N. Dempsey wants the New Haven Railroad's abandoned stations to be returned to the state.

The stations, which were built during the railroad's heyday, are now in various states of disrepair.

Big Store May Close

NEW HAVEN (AP)—The city council is expected to vote today on a proposed ordinance to close the big store on State Street.

The store, which is owned by a large chain of department stores, has been a major draw for shoppers in the area.

3 on Lost Airliner

From New England

WASHINGTON (AP)—Three New England men are among those aboard a transport plane reported missing over the Pacific.

The plane, which was en route from New England to Hawaii, disappeared on Thursday.

Labor Trouble Annoys Dublin

Publisher to Fight Police Ban on Book

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP)—Labor trouble in Ireland is expected to worsen this week as the big store on State Street closes.

The store, which is owned by a large chain of department stores, has been a major draw for shoppers in the area.

Louis Quinn

Man of Many Talents

When visitors to Hollywood drop into Dino's Restaurant hard by the address made famous by Efrem Zimbalist Jr., Roger Smith and Edward Byrnes as "77 Sunset Strip," the only character out of the popular ABC-TV network show they are almost certain to see is Louis Quinn, who is best known to TV audiences as "Roscoe," the race horse handicapper with the checkered vest and a long cigar stuck into his face.

A resident of the Sunset Plaza area overlooking the famous thoroughfare, Louis says, "I sit on my patio and I can look right down at Dino's and see if business is good."

If business seems off or Louis feels restless, he saunters down the hill and perches himself by the fireplace in Dino's. A teetotaler, he will order a lemonade or a glass of gingerale, and, as he puts it, "give the place some atmosphere."

Tourists recognize him readily and are usually amazed by Louis' off-stage wit and lightning-like repartee.

Few persons ever pause to reflect upon the fact that Louis is a man of many talents. He is a skilled master of ceremonies, a disc jockey, a respected TV interviewer, a highly regarded dramatic actor, and an outstanding gag and scenario writer who has won many scripting awards.

As a matter of fact, Louis wrote his way into the "77 Sunset Strip" series when he was asked to doctor a script and was summarily recruited to deliver his own gags.

A Chicago-born former Los Angeles newshawker, Louis attended the University of Mexico as a young man. He majored in journalism and worked briefly as a reporter. Gay and uninhibited, he was always known as a formidable foe in any jocular verbal tiff. "It's the sort of thing kids learn naturally on the street corners,"

Quinn explains. "I peddled papers at some of the busiest corners in town. Some fine impromptu jokes pass busy street corners and the newsboy has gotta be on his toes or he'll get laughed right out of business."

His natural and acquired ability to turn a funny phrase attracted the attention of director Byron Foy, who brought Quinn to Warner Bros. in August 1940 as a writer.

"In those days," he recalls, "there was one fellow who wrote the story line and another who did the dialogue. I was the dialogue man."

Quinn wrote dialogue for seven major theatrical motion pictures before World War II came along and he was inducted into the Army Signal Corps, where his talents were immediately utilized for the production of training films.

Having been stationed in New Jersey, Quinn took his Army discharge in the East and immediately went to work as script writer for Orson Wells' Mercury Theatre. It was during the year that he scripted this show that he won his first award. New York radio critics named him "best radio writer in America."

He also won the Paul Whiteman Award for a script written for the Philco Hall of Fame.

The biggest snow storm of 1950 in New York projected Louis into radio disc jockey work when the regular deejay in the Copacabana nightclub got into difficulties with the management and Quinn was asked to "take the mike" until a replacement could be sent over from the radio studio.

The weather was so bad the replacement was unable to travel and Quinn was so good he was given a two-year contract.

The pudgy little comedian broke into television conducting an interview show called "Quinn's Corner" on Los Angeles' KHJ-TV, a program he conducted for nearly two years before he returned to Warner Bros. in 1956 to take up where he had left off before the war as a script writer.

"You're better off if you concentrate all of your efforts in one direction," Quinn declares in answer to the question of why he devotes full-time to the characterization of Roscoe, the Sunset Strip handicapper and contact man.

"I was never happier, I'm relaxed, and I'm doing what I enjoy doing. I'm not as young as I used to be, and every man has got to begin to simmer down at one point or another," Quinn says.

As Warner Bros. goodwill am-

basador without portfolio, Quinn has logged over 100,000 miles of air travel to the major cities of the United States and Canada for public appearance engagements. He often accompanies other stars for whom he occasionally writes material, and is much sought after as master of ceremonies or after-dinner speaker.

His patter is always unrehearsed and usually topical. A master of the ad-lib, the late Fred Allen, spoke of Quinn as "the quickest wit I've ever met."

Sample joke: "We make a fastidious couple," Quinn says of his wife and himself. "She's fast and I'm hideous."

As a gag writer for such celebrated comics as Milton Berle, Edgar Bergen, Bert Wheeler and Jimmy Durante, Quinn once earned up to $65,000 a year — "far more than I make as an actor," he jests. "But, then, I never had time to wander down to Dino's and oggle the tourists."

Louis also never had time for his favorite present-day hobby of oil painting at which he has shown such skill that many of his works (principally clowns) now hang in the offices of numerous Warner Bros. officials.

He has also found time in recent months to complete a cook book titled "At Home On the Range."

A conversation with him beside the fireplace at Dino's may get you his recipe for what he calls Laughing Jello; "You use wine instead of water in it. It's guaranteed to produce the happiest guests you ever had to dinner."

Ed Sullivan's April 22 TV show originates from the Settle World's Fair... Louis Nye will be seen on some of the Danny Thomas segments which will be taped in Europe for telecast in the fall... Red Skelton's CBS-TV show will be expanded to an hour next season... Edie Adams, widow of comedian Ernie Kovacs, has signed to film cigar commercials for the next two years... Warner Bros. has renewed its yearly option on Edward (Kookie) Byrnes... "Andy Hardy" of MGM movie fame, may find himself as a TV series if all goes okay... Jack Benny will switch from Sunday nights to Tuesday nights, same time 9:30 p.m., next season.

Hollywood on TV

By ERSKINE JOHNSON
Hollywood Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
HOLLYWOOD — (NRA) — Wanted: One good TV show idea which you can't hardly get no more. Phone, write or wire George Gobel, first tee, Lakeside Country Club, North Hollywood, Calif.

Like George was saying, it's a problem. Not that people don't have ideas. "Everybody has an idea," George assured us, "but there are problems to the ideas."

"The other day a stranger came up to me and said, 'George, why don't you have a TV show in which you play an elevator starter in a 32-story office building?'"

"I figured it was good question so I said 'Why?'"

"Why?" this fellow said. "Why you would meet all kinds of people, see. A millionaire could be living in the penthouse and he could always be in a hurry. But every time he's in a hurry to reach the 32nd floor, you would hold the elevator for a janitor who wants to go to the third floor. Get it, George? Great, great!"

"So what happens after that?" I asked this fellow.

"His answer was, 'Now, George, your writers can figure it out.'"

"That's the way it's going," George said, a bit sadly.

Even his 18-year-old son Greg had an idea. He's crazy about surfing and one day he said to George, "Dad, why don't you do a TV series about surfers? You could get laughs on a surf board."

George answered, "Greg, sometimes I can't keep my balance standing in the living room."

Gobel first came to TV like a wild bronco coming out of a rodeo chute. Then his career leveled off and last season he financed and starred in a situation comedy pilot titled, "Elroy." A sponsor purchased the show but the network of its choice was unable to provide suitable time.

George admits now this was a mistake.

"You can't buck city hall," he shrugged, indicating there's as much politics behind the TV scenes as there is on Capitol Hill. When "Elroy" was shelved, George went to Broadway to star in a musical, "Let It Ride," based on "Three Men on a Horse."

The show ran only 10 weeks. George and his business partner, Dave O'Malley—the fellow he refers to as "Mr. O"—lost a bundle. Since then he's earned a bundle playing night clubs but the problem of how to get Gobel back in the TV money remains unsolved.

In Chicago, a cab driver had an idea.

"You don't need writers, George. Just do a series based on all those stories you tell about Alice." George says he was polite: "I didn't tell him there were only three really good stories."

In the lobby of the Palmer House in Chicago, another stranger rushed up to him and his first words to Gobel were:

"Quick, do you think you are looking at yourself?"

"I must have been thinking he was some kind of a nut," George tells it, "because then he explained: 'I'm the George Gobel of Freeport, Ill.'"

"He didn't look much like me, but I said 'That's nice.'"

"He had an idea, too. He was a

TV Personalities

Jack Linkletter

At 23, Jack is a personality in his own right and, like his father, is the guiding light in a burgeoning business empire.

Jack's present job as co-host on NBC-TV's day time "Here's Hollywood" (Mondays through Fridays, 4:30-5:55 p.m. EST) continues the experience he began with his earlier show, "On the Go."

He is quick to acknowledge his debt to the elder Linkletter, saying: "Being Art Linkletter's son had some advantages. I'd never pretend otherwise. It helped me get started."

Once started, however, Jack made significant progress on his own. He says much of his success in business and the entertainment world is the result of preparation. "Dad encouraged me at both."

Jack says, "He had me on his radio show when I was just a tot. When I grew older, he let me sit in on business meetings at home."

Lessons supplied by Art were supplemented by an education at the University of Southern California where Jack majored in English and rounded out his studies with courses in television, drama and business.

"By the time I finished college, I wanted more than a show business career," Jack says. "Maybe it was triggered by a subconscious need to compete with my father or maybe my early marriage made me struggle harder for security. At any rate, I found myself with a strong desire to make money."

With his show business earnings, then, Jack began a series of business ventures. By now, he owns a chain of children's dancing schools, an apartment building, a special events production company, an insurance agency and interests in a manufacturing company and an advertising agency. These are his own solid accomplishments, things he pulled off without help from dad.

While both Linkletters are business-minded, Jack feels he's plowing his own furrow in show business.

"Dad is essentially an emcee," he explains, "while I'm specializing as an interviewer on remote locations."

Jack finds stimulation in his work by trying to get "the most honest interview I can." Getting celebrities to talk freely on significant subjects keeps him on his toes.

TV Notebook

By DICK KLEINER

Newspaper Enterprise Assn. NEW YORK (NBA) — Young Burton Brinckerhoff went to his father, minister of a Dutch Reformed Church on Fifth Avenue, and said that he didn't want to go to college; he wanted to become an actor.

His father hid his disappointment. All he said was, "All right, but be a good one, won't you?" But Brinckerhoff has become a very good one. He has given wonderful performances on many top TV shows—The Defenders and Alcoa Premiere—come to mind quickly—and is so skilled in his trade that despite his youthful appearance, he now teaches acting.

Brinckerhoff is typical of the younger generation of actors—he's serious, he does TV because he likes the money it pays, he has no great wish to do a series, he considers himself primarily a stage actor. And like many of his contemporaries, his acting career started with an accident.

Burton Brinckerhoff

Brinckerhoff, 25, born in Pittsburgh, he was five when his father took over his New York pulpit. During his high school days, the dramatic coach asked him to act in one of the school plays. Burt said no.

"I told him I wanted to play football," Burt says. "The coach said I was chicken and, besides, he said I was too light to play football. Well, I played football; I was a T-formation quarterback. Then I got hurt and had to give it up."

"Well, I remembered that drama coach who had called me chicken. So I decided to call his bluff. I got a part as the Scotch boy in 'The Hasty Heart' and it was easy for me—I had a Scotch grandmother so I could do the accent easily."

A friend of the Brinckerhoff family attended (Burt says that he's sure the attendance was "reluctant") because he had some theatrical connections. This man rent Burt to see a friend who was going "Ah, Wilderness!" in Boston and needed a young boy for the cast.

"I got the part, but I think it was because he couldn't pay much and I didn't ask much."

It was at this point that he knew he had found his career and asked for his father's approval. When it was forthcoming, he tentatively suggested that he might like to shorten his name. He felt that Brinckerhoff was hard to spell and pronounce and, besides, might rot fit onto a marquee.

"My father said that God had given me that name, so I dropped the whole thing. I compromised by shortening my first name from 'Burton' to 'Burt,' and let it go at that."

His problem now is to try and get out of the juvenile parts in which he is usually cast. He's tall but youthful looking, and can play anything from a teen-ager to a mature man. Since TV finds it hard to cast convincing teen-agers, that's what he is offered most of the time.

Another problem is his resemblance to Tony Perkins. Burt says he is frequently stopped by people who say they know they've seen him on TV but can't remember his name.

"When I say my name is Burt Brinckerhoff," he says, "they generally say, 'No, I mean your real name—oh, now I remember, it's Tony Perkins.'"

Burt has turned down all offers to star in TV series. "I'm just not interested," he says. "I tell them the only way they could get me to do a series would be to get the best writer, the best director, the best producer and a group of about eight top actors. Then we could have a TV repertory company. It's never been done and I think it would be wonderful."

"I suggested it to someone who had offered me a series and he said it just wouldn't work—the sponsors wouldn't go for it."

Coming Shows

A stranger (I. Stanford Jolley) collapses in Doc Beckett's (Don Boddoo) office and is unwittingly instrumental in helping Pat Garrett (Barry Sullivan) prevent his wounded prisoner, Bob Kelso (Gary Clarke) from escaping in "Quarantine," an episode of NBC-TV's "The Tall Man" Saturday, March 17 (8:30-9 p.m. EST).

Hazel (Shirley Booth) warns Mr. Baxter (Don DeFore) that it would be snooty to get an unlimited telephone number, but he gets one anyway. He later finds he may lose an important client because he can't remember his new number and the phone company refuses to give it to him in the "Hazel" episode, "Number, Please" Thursday, March 22 (NBC-TV, 9:30 p.m. EST).

Jugs Keleher (Diana Millay) tells Slim Sherman (John Smith) to appear as a defense witness at her father's murder trial, but on returning to the courtroom they discover her father, Ev (Hugh Sandifer) has been hanged, in "Justice in a Hurry" on "Laramie," NBC-TV color series Tuesday, March 20 (7:30-8:30 p.m. EST).

Robert Loggia and Ray Danton star with special guest Ed Begley in "The Hook" on NBC-TV's "Dick Powell Show," Tuesday, March 20 (9 to 10 p.m. EST). The suspense drama concerns a California attorney general's investigator who tries to avert the murder of a prohibition-era gangster when he emerges from prison with expectations of taking over the mob again.
