Scots Store Burns, Loss at $1 Million

EAST WINDSOR (AP)—Nothing but charred wreckage remained today of what has been a 100,000 square foot department store chock full of holiday season merchandise.

The Scots store burned to the ground yesterday, almost two years to the day after it first opened, at a loss estimated by store officials at $1 million.

One witness, Mrs. Frank Stonovsky of Warehouse Point said the fire appeared to have spread out from the garden shop of the store. The blaze is under investigation by the State Fire Marshal's office.

The president of the Enterprises, Milton Hubschman, said he had been at the store all night supervising operations. Hubschman said he left at about 8:30 a.m. The blaze was spotted by Mr. and Mrs. Stonovsky, who were driving to church at about 7:30 p.m.

Fire Chief Paul English of Warehouse Point said the white building was in flames when he and his men arrived. Although firefighters came from nearby Broad Brook and Windsor Locks, firefighters were unable to save the store from destruction.

The fireman had to watch out for exploding rifle and shotgun cartridges stored in the Warehouse Point area, which they believed may have been the work of an arsonist.

Holiday Tragedies Two traffic deaths and a fatal shooting yesterday got Connecticut off to an ominous start on the long holiday weekend.

The traffic accident victims were Samuel J. Eaton, 27, of the Quaker Hill section of Waterford, whose motorcycle was into some guard rails on Rte. 82 in that town; and Primo Alessandro, 55, of West Haven, whose car went out of control at New Haven and struck the Conn. Turnpike.

In South Windsor, a rifle being stored by its owner in a warehouse was charged and instantly killed Steven Donald Forester, 24, of Windsor.

State Police said Donald and his family were visiting at the home of Benjamin Stolpa in South Windsor.

While Stolpa was showing his 80th rifle to Donald's father, Donald Jonorey Sr., State Police said, the weapon fired and he, the rifle, the child in the head as he stood in a doorway nearby.

The gun was being held by Stolpa at the time, State Police said.

Fights Drinking Age HARTFORD (AP)—Governor D'Amico vowed today to continue his fight to get New York to raise its legal drinking age from 18 to 21, despite indications that a New York study committee will reject the idea.

The governor, approaching the close of his two-week post-election vacation that ends next Monday, said from his executive residence that the New York study won't change his thinking or objective.

After all this he has a study committee to report on.

Interior Undersecretary Martin Grodzinski said two sectors are interested in that election should not be held—the guerrillas (anti-Fernandez) and Peron. They are both parasites of national hate among Argentines.

In 1958, he was living in Madrid, Spain. His supporters have been struggling to regain power.

The coup that installed Guido was precipitated by a Peronist resurgence in the March elections in which Peronists won 2 of 22 governorships and 47 of 192 seats in the House of Deputies.

Interior Minister Rodolfo Martinez said Thursday Peronists would be allowed to participate in the June elections if they campaign within the framework of the law.

LONDON (AP)—Italy has banned the sale of Preludin and other drugs suspected of causing deformities in unborn babies in the wake of a British investigation into birth-deforming pills.

Two men were arrested in Canada for a press on Preludin.

Bishops Mull Worldwide News Agency

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The Roman Catholic Eucharistic Council today began discussing a proposal that the Vatican set up a permanent agency to inform and form public opinion.

A spokesman said the proposal was included in a draft thesis on the Social Means of Communication.

The document covers the press, radio, television, cinema and entertainment.

The spokesman said a number of speakers in today's closed session suggested an international news agency be established.

The spokesman said a preparatory secretariat headed by Archbishop Martin J. O'Connor, former secretary of the Pontifical Council for Mass Media in Rome, will be set up.

The spokesman said the draft, in proposing a permanent public opinion agency, suggested the body could be either an international news agency or a commission.

Speakers at today's session, the spokesman said, "indicated" the body would be a permanent one.

The spokesman said the body will have the task of creating an efficient organization—first of all, international, then national, and finally diocesan—of communication media for the purpose of forming and forming public opinion.

No other eucharistic council has ever discussed mass communication media. Indian Front Quiet, Allies Discuss Help

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Indian forces are keeping up their patrols along the Red Chinese cease-fire line in northeastern India, a defense Ministry spokesman said today. He reported the Himalayan border front quiet, however, as U.S. and British missions opened talks with Indian officials on sending in more military aid.

The spokesman said he had no report whether Red Chinese, as well, were carrying out patrols. They are believed to be consolidating and reinforcing their positions gained in the rugged mountain border areas in 3 days of undeclared war.

The Indian snatched from troops to the Himalayas. Feelings here were growing stronger against the Red Chinese terms for peace. The defense spokesman said Indian forces were patrolling in the northeastern border from around Ladakh but on a scale smaller than that being carried out in the northeast.

The spokesman declined to comment on a division of the Indian army that was cut off behind Urdu Red China since the week-end. He reported, however, that in the Chumbul area in Ladakh, the Red Chinese had attacked last Sunday and Monday with about two battalions—estimated to number about 1,000 men. News here had the strength of the Red Chinese force was either killed or wounded, the spokesman said. Later, he said, the Red Chinese launched other attacks and captured four Indian posts before the cease-fire.

Following the cease-fire, Indian troops were reported under orders to hold their fire unless fired upon. But Prime Minister Nehru refrained from taking a stand on Peking's proposal for ending the conflict. Red China said the would begin pulling her troops back on Dec. 1. But what would happen then was far from clear. Peking's proposal was widely regarded as an ultimatum which would force India to yield the high Ladakh border in return for regaining the "lost border areas in the northeast."

Adopting wait-and-see attitude, the Indian government went ahead in the full with emergency measures to put its forces into a better military position after suffering smashing blows.

AEC Plan Seen Cutting Cost of Electric Power

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission today announced a plan for Americans before 1960—thanks to more and better nuclear power. By 1960, Americans could be saving over $2 billion a year on electricity, and by year 2000 the savings could total $20 billion, the commission said in a report to President Kennedy.

The report said the current AEC 10-year plan was on the verge of being replaced by a new plan aimed at developing nuclear power. It would produce a surplus of about $500 million.

South Windsor Town's School Needs Stated

Future school building has been discussed at length by the board of education which decided that the problem at this time was not the cost but the next seven years, and their plans.

The plan of the school board voted to submit to the commission was to build a 600-pupil junior high school, expand the present high school by 400 pupils, and build a 600-pupil senior high school, expandable to 800 pupils.

Chairman John Flood named Mrs. Jane Rowley and Frank A. Moore as a committee to discuss the economic feasibility of expanding the junior high schools to 600 pupils.

The board also said education is a possibility of a new elementary school being built as early as 1967-68 or 1968-69, but that wishes to watch the trends in population before committing itself to a definite decision.

Dispute over Bet Ends in Deaths NEW YORK (AP)—A night club argument over a $10 bet Thursday resulted in the slaying of one man and the death of his assailant by what police described as a game of Russian roulette.

Police said James Kirkman, 26, of the Bronx, while sitting at the bar of the Eden Roc Club, was shot by Edward Gosnell, 28, Kirkman died a short time later.

Gosnell's body, with a single bullet wound in the head, was found in a hotel room after the night club shooting.

Police said a woman who accompanied Gosnell to the room, told them Gosnell shot himself while showing her how to play Russian roulette. Police identified the woman as Olga Hernandez, 20.

The two men, who had become acquainted hours earlier at another night club, got into an argument over the bet, which man had the more money on his person at the time.

Police said Gosnell had in his possession a .38-caliber and other firearms, which had been reported stolen a year ago from a Treasury agent.

Walker Ruled Able to Stand Riot Case Trial

OXFORD, Miss. (AP)—A federal judge has ruled that Edwin Walker is mentally competent to stand trial on federal charges of seditious conspiracy and inciting an insurrection.

U.S. Dist. Judge Claude F. Clayton handed down the ruling Wednesday after a two-day hearing. He based his findings on the testimony of a psychiatrist, Dr. J. Edgar Hoover, who testified that Walker is sane and sane enough to stand trial.

Clayton ruled first that the court order for a mental test was justified and should remain in the case record.

No trial date has been set for Walker. He was arrested and charged with a mental test during a riot at the University of Mississippi the night of Sept. 30, after Negro James H. Meredith arrived on the campus.

In another development Wednesday, Chief U.S. Marshal James McInnes announced on state charges he had provided the riot by ordering marshals to fire tear gas.

McInnes was freed by Clayton after the Justice Department claimed he was arrested while performing duties as a federal official.

Clayton will hold a hearing late January to decide whether the state has power to prosecute McInnes.

McInnes was one of two persons indicted last Friday by a Lafayette County grand jury after a study of the riot. The other person has not been arrested, but is being sought by Mississippi law enforcement agencies.

Meredith is spending the Thanksgiving weekend in Memphis, Tenn.

The council, holding its annual convention here, said "certain modern writers, graded by race, religion, and sex, have been excluded or censored in the curriculum, are suddenly charged with sedition, and are treated as traitors."

Classics extend even to books about writers. Recently a philosophy of great collection of biographies of great philosophers was condemned for including the life of Plato, who, in his own writings, it was charged, talked about free love and communal living and such.

Some groups and individuals, the council said, have criticized the works of such authors as Chaucer, Shakespeare, Steinbeck, Hemingway, Faulkner, Orwell and Whitman.

The policy statement, a pamphlet published earlier this year and charged with sedition, was sent to the council's 7,000 members at elementary, secondary and higher education levels.

It notes that teachers should be guided by "good taste, common sense and professional responsibility to students and the humanistic tradition."

Sheinwold on Bridge

NO LESSON NEEDED TO BE A FAILURE By ALFRED SHEINWOLD Aren't you tired of reading the advertisements that tell you how to be a success in life? Why don't they write about how to be a failure? It's much easier.

South won the first trick with the ace of hearts and led out the ace, king, and queen of diamonds. He had to win the fourth diamond in the dummy with the ten and south's find a way to get back to his hand for the fifth diamond.

Declarer managed to get only three diamonds tricks and the four top cards in the other suits.

Close Look. If you've been looking at the hand closely you've noticed that south can make his game contract. It's almost as easy as getting down.

Let's suppose south wins the first hand. He leads the ace of diamonds and plays dummy's seven; continues with the king of diamonds and plays dummy's ten; and then leads the queen of diamonds and plays dummy's ten.

The idea is to save dummy's deuce of diamonds.

Now when south leads the four of hearts and the ace of clubs, he can play dummy's deuce and keep the lead in his own hand.

The hand is even simpler if you're Bethewol's 30-page booklet, "A Pook's Guide to Bridge," and 80 cents to Bridge Book, Manchester, N.H. (9-14-63). Box 3128, Grand Central Sta., N.Y. 17, N.Y. Copyright, 1963. General Features Corp.

After the Cuban Wringer!

Khrushchev May Move For Amity or Reprisal WASHINGTON (AP)—Westerners to prevent cheating, Russia has leaders think Premier Khrushchev wants a cooling-off period after going through the Cuban wringer. There is even talk that he may make a sharp turn and seek closer relations with the West.

Two to not be the same. To continue them is to let the heart get the better of the head with wishful thinking. Before Christmas he can show whether he wants cooperation with the West or just wants time for the heat to die down.

Three testing grounds for him: The disarmament talks which began again Monday; new threats to take on a nuclear test ban and the four-year old problem of Berlin; and the new treaty with the West.

It's comforting, but may be unrealistic, to believe the Russian leader suffered a change of heart after his meek and humiliating backdown on the Cuban missile crisis.

The alternative to that is the possibility he will be low for a while, preparing for some new thrust where his chances are better than they were in the Cuban affair.

It would be very human if now Khrushchev is in a state of internal embarrassment suffered by communists in Cuba—after they had lost the Cuban missile deal and the Russian prestige by forcing the West into a retreat.

Foreign policy experts until recently were skeptical about any Soviet-Chinese split, although there were plenty of signs of it. Now they're convinced there's a split and a serious one, but they hesitate to guess how deep.

It became visible and deep when the Chinese denounced the Russians for not having a showdown with the United States on Cuba. It was perhaps deepened even more by the Chinese attack on India.

If this attack continued, and the Western powers got involved on India's side, Russia would have been forced to support the Chinese or renounce their alliance with them. The former could have meant world war.

The split is getting worse. Thursday in Budapest members of Russia's European Communist bloc led by the Hungarians—hit back at the Red Chinese, condemning them for endangering all communists.

The United States has always insisted — and will insist—there can be no daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Khrushchev without on-site inspection inside Russia.

While this remains the case, it is a jurisdictional sense, the voice of Rome has become vast. It encompasses the accents and insights of many places and peoples, the urgency of Asia and Africa, the ideas of the Orient, the ways of Americans, the experience of European churchmen.

Although the fundamentals of doctrine unite these men, they have come laden with their own plans and their own views of their church.

Italy Bars Preludin After Births Study

He said the college had been studying congenital deformities since 1958—long before thalidomide was found to cause deformities in babies.

The spokesman said the college in the last few weeks "collected complete information regarding 1,826 pregnancies, including details of drugs given and any illness suffered. Of these, 43 produced deformed babies—an incidence of 2.4 per cent."

Canadian Health Minister Waldo Monaghan said reports about possible dangers from use of pro-drugs were being investigated. He promised to make a report to House of Commons member James E. Walker, who suggested a temporary freeze on the drug.

Monaghan declined to go along with the suggestion immediately.

Two French embryologists urged greater care in prescriptions for women in early pregnancy.

Dr. Antoine Giroud and Prof. Duchamp Duplessis repeatedly voiced fears that drugs other than thalidomide may have been responsible for birth deformities.

The use of thalidomide was estimated to have resulted in the birth of 2,000 deformed babies in Germany, 300 in Britain and at least 10 in the United States.

Dentist May Solve Puzzle

she disappeared from the camp in the northeastern corner of Connecticut will still be a mystery, even if it is proved that she and "Little Miss X" were the same person.

The body found in Arizona six years after Ontario's disappearance was determined by experts to be that of a girl between 13 and 17 years of age who had been dead at least a year. If it was Connie, this raises the question of where she had been during the intervening years.

Authorities also wonder how she could have remained undisturbed amid the deluge of circulars and appeals for help that followed her disappearance.

"Little Miss X" appeared to have lost her life as a result of a fall, says Sheriff Cecil Richards of Flagstaff, Ariz. Why she fell is not clear.

Although it was four years ago that "Little Miss X" was found, it was not until recently that it occurred to someone to connect her with Connie.

Connecticut authorities received a letter from Colorado directing their search for Connie to Arizona, where an unidentified body had been found. Although it soon became apparent that this could not have been Connie, Arizona authorities were prompted to think of "Little Miss X" and the two mysteries merged.

Connie's parents were divorced before her disappearance.

Her mother died last year, but her father, Peter Smith, still lives in Sunderland.

South Africa Arrests 300 In Race Riot

Freeze Johannesburg 2400 . . . .

PAARL, South Africa (AP)—Police raided Paarl's African section at dawn today and rounded up 300 Africans suspected of taking part in Thursday's race riot in which two young whites were killed.

Police called the raid an attempt to smash a dangerous African underground movement in this usually sleepy Cape Province wine town.

Tension ran high but police said they have the situation under control.

A young white schoolgirl and a 17-year-old boy were killed in the riot and at least five Africans were killed by police gunfire in the suburb.

Africans wounded in the fighting were held under guard in local jails.

Police, sweeping into the African section in riot trucks, said they seized scores of machine guns, clubs, iron bars and other weapons.

The racial violence came at an embarrassing time for South Africa's all-white government, which is under heavy attack in the United Nations for its segregation policies.

Angry whites converged on the town Thursday night from outlying districts and massed in front of the police station, but were dispersed.

There were no Africans in the streets.

The town's only gunsmith, Gordon Dick, said he had sold out nearly all his stock of automatic pistols and revolvers. Only whites are permitted to buy guns in South Africa.

In an attempt to calm tempers, Paarl's mayor canceled a protest meeting of white citizens called for tonight to discuss the riots.

Many of the rioters were believed to have fled to the nearby mountains. Police undertook a manhunt for them.

Representatives Submit Bills To Help High School Dropouts

Five bills awaiting the signatures of Manchester's two representatives to the state legislature, and two more bills will be ready for filing next week.

Three of the bills are aimed at salvaging the futures of youngsters who want to drop out of high school. One of the bills would eliminate the state tax from all medicine, patent as well as prescription, and the fifth bill would give a deduction in property tax to elderly persons.

Rep. Steve Cavagnaro and Paul Groobert will sign the bills jointly, as soon as they receive copies of them from the legislative office at the Capitol.

All three of the bills to salvage the futures of youngsters who want to drop out of high school would provide programs which the youngsters would take part in voluntarily.

One program would be under the administration of the agriculture and natural resources commission. A summer camp for boys and girls 14 to 17 years of age would be run by the state to train them in some kind of trade. The state would feed and house the students and would pay them some nominal fee, said Representative Cavagnaro.

The camp would have a triple need, in (1) training the student in some kind of trade, (2) removing him from what might be a bad home environment, and (3) providing him with meaningful work rather than permitting him to hang around on street corners in summer vacation, said Cavagnaro.

The other would be an all-year school directed at 14-year-old to 17-year-old potential dropouts. The student would live at the school, take basic courses such as English and arithmetic, and learn a trade.

"The student would be fitted for a better job than just obtaining a diploma, which is what a dropout winds up doing nowadays," said Cavagnaro.

Representative Groobert said he favors removal of the state tax from patent medicines as well as from prescription ones. Prescription medicines are now exempt from the tax.

The bill to ease some of the property tax burden from elderly property owners will be introduced in three forms, said Groobert.

One would transfer the burden to the state, one would transfer it to the town, and the third would leave open the question of who would take over the cost.

In any event, a person over 65 years of age who owns his own home and has an annual income of $4,000 or less, would receive either a $3,000 reduction in the assessed valuation of his property or a $15,000 deduction in the tax bill itself, whichever was best.

Cavagnaro said he would not sign the bill proposing that various towns take the burden for this reduction, which he estimates will cost $13 million a year. The state should cover it, he said, treating it as another aid to education allowance, since the principal reason for the increase in town property taxes is the rising cost of education.

Groobert said he would sign the bill, just to get it considered by the legislature, but he would argue against the bill in legislative hearings.

Cavagnaro said he plans to introduce a bill next week to raise the minimum driving age from 16 to 18, or at least to require the driver to finish high school, if he is under 18. Groobert also will sponsor the bill.

The plane went down Tuesday night on a flight from Avoca to Prospectville, Pa. It was found Thursday.

The two-engine plane cut a swath through the trees as it fell. One of its engines was imbedded in a tree trunk. Both wings were sheared off.

The victims were William D. Shay, 41, an architect from Moylan, Pa.; Alfred N. Richards Jr., 63, of Rose Valley, Pa., an architect and an associate of Shay; Raymond A. Hood Jr., an engineer of Swarthmore, Pa.; Donald G. Bona, an engineer of Philadelphia; and the pilot, Arthur V. Turner, 15, of Prospectville.

NO PUSHERS FOR BROOMS

PARIS (AP)—Paris municipal officials have a problem with dust-removing machines with dust-removal a little different from the usual one.

This time the machines are not putting men out of jobs. Rather, the city is going to start using motorized street sweepers because it can't find enough men to hire for the job.

Officials plan to substitute the new-type machines for the man with the broom in the very near future.

Check on Others For Mannerisms

(NEA)

The simplest way to find out exactly what your own irritating mannerisms are is to watch other people. When you meet one who pokes a finger at you to emphasize a point, don't just think of how annoying she is.

Ask yourself if you do it, too. When you're in the room with a girl who talks incessantly, consider how often you may have been just such an offender.

I attended a party recently at which one guest interrupted when she spoke. It was amusing, and I was embarrassed for her. Yet she made me realize that on occasion I had done the same thing, particularly when I couldn't contain an enthusiastic comment.

I was grateful to her for making me aware of my own fault. Your mannerisms are as much a part of your appearance as your features. Most of us don't know how others see us, so we must be ruthless in judging ourselves.

You won't be beautiful unless you are neat, trim and clean. No matter your continued social success at school by paying attention to the little things that can make even a plain girl good to look at.

THREE-GALLON COW WASH

ARTISTIA, Calif. (AP)—An automatic "cowwash," similar to the five-minute carwash, has been developed by The Washers here for the twice-daily check of washing cows before each milking. As the cow walks between two fence-like pipe units, it triggers the water that sets off a spray from 24 nozzles, much like a needle shower. The system is said to be capable of washing 800 animals an hour and using only three gallons of water on each.

1,500 4-H's Heading For Chicago Congress

By William Shaffer
CHICAGO (AP)— Every year 1,500 smart, dedicated, clean-cut 4-Hers come to Chicago for the 4-H Congress.

Each is the best in his state in his particular specialty.

The young boys and girls, members of 4-H clubs throughout the nation and Puerto Rico, start a whirlwind of activities Sunday and continue the fast pace until next Friday.

They attend four breakfasts, a general and 23 special dinner or supper sessions, one tea, one party, one church service, one concert, a dress review, a dance, a box supper, a horse show, a boat race, 22 press conferences, three news hour five addresses.

The 300 leaders who accompany them have five major speeches on leadership and club procedures.

"They don't stand around and gawk at tall buildings and brush by from their hair," a national advisory committee spokesman said. "More and more rural young Americans are as cosmopolitan as their city and suburban cousins. In fact, more than 20 per cent of the delegates are city and suburban kids."

To keep the 1,500 delegates busy the week following Thanksgiving every year takes much preparation. That's the national committee's job.

Most of the visiting club members are guests of industry. Trips to the congress for state winners are sponsored in most categories — an equipment manufacturer sponsors dairy winners; a dress pattern firm dresses making; a container company, canning; a tire company, auto care and safety; and so on.

The national committee has to supervise the judging of all the competition. It does so via close liaison with state committees.

The 41-year-old 4-H committee is backed by the cooperative extension service and the land grant colleges and universities and by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Some 15 million American youngsters aged 10 to 21 belong to 45,000 clubs. They are guided by 400,000 adult leaders.

The National 4-H Service Committee coordinates the year-round club activities. It is a non-profit corporation which administers private funds in behalf of the 4-H program.

The full-time staff works for committee director Norman Mintram. Funds for the $1.5 million from donations, sales of 4-H supplies and revenues from the 4-H magazine.

The big push in the downtown Chicago area is the 4-H committee is the post-Thanksgiving congress, running in conjunction with the international livestock exhibition.

State winners submit elaborate reports on themselves and their projects. A panel of extension agents judges the national winners, the scholarship recipients.

To four 4-H stand for head, heart, hands and health, fifth H stands for hard work, a cliché to win a trip to the congress or a scholarship as a national winner takes spirit, know-how and the 4-H lock. But mostly it takes effort.

Board Wants Data in Month On Community College Plans

The board of education voted Wednesday night to have its community college committee start immediately with the job of preparing a report to the board on the proposed Manchester community college plans for approval next month.

The school board will approve the college plans before the state department of education decides in January whether to approve them. The board will also have to approve the plans to maintain a two-year community college.

Mrs. Jane Stasi, chairman of the community college committee, proposed four other actions to get the college plans underway. They are:

1. The board will set up a permanent citizens' advisory council for the college.
2. The members of the present council, originally established to publicize the college issue before a referendum, will be asked to serve as council members for terms decided by the council and approved by the board.
3. The board's community college committee will be authorized to appoint additional council members.
4. The committee will organize the council and establish subcommittees as soon as possible.

Christie F. McCormick, school board member and a member of the committee, said he thinks the council will need subcommittees on admissions, academic standards, budget, curriculum, facilities, faculty, publicity, scholarships, student personnel and library.

A proposed budget for the college totals $80,000, with $30,000 from taxpayers and $50,000 from returns in tuition.

January approval by the state department is the deadline for a September opening of a community college in Connecticut.

Social Security Data Available At Area Office

Greater Hartford area residents should be wary of advertisements promoting the sale of books that promise to help you get "social security" or even "How you can get social security for doing absolutely nothing."

"Actually, these books cannot tell the reader anything basic about the social security law that he would not find in the free booklets and leaflets available at the Hartford Social Security District Office," he said.

"In fact, if advice contained in some of the books were followed, it might result in extensive investigation by this office, and thus delay your social security payments rather than expedite their issuance."

"Further, following some of the advice might place the individual in a worse position than a better financial position."

School Board Studies Plan On Civil Defense Procedure

Manchester's public school children would be responsible for calling their school.

If a "Take Cover" signal is sounded, principals would give the school signal to proceed immediately to shelter areas of the building.

The school system would rely on computer frequencies 640 and 6240 for notifying each school.

If time permits, window shades would be drawn and available materials would be placed against the windows to deflect certain types of radiation and flying glass. Children would be cautioned to cover their faces and to avoid looking at the explosion.

Zoo Cages Broken, Only Fox Escapes

PARANUS, N.J. (AP)—Vandalism smashed locks on cages in the children's zoo in Van Nuys Park Thursday, but the only inmate to escape was Remie the fox.

Attendant William Service discovered the vandals when he arrived for work.

He found several signs, a shattered pony, a llama and a Mexican burro milling around in an open area, uncertain of their new freedom.

Service herded the animals back into confinement and then took a minor count that showed only Remie was missing.

Tax Plan May Solve Downtown Parking

Manchester's Main St. merchants and the town's Parking Authority reached a tentative agreement on the formation of a downtown tax district this week.

The tax revenue from the district would be used to establish and maintain parking in the central business district.

While the tax would not be collected from anyone but the property owners and store operators in the central business district, other residents may be interested in the reasons for this novel municipal move.

During the latter part of the 1950s, the now familiar shopping center pattern began to develop, with a new emphasis on the parking of the automobile.

In the past, streets and parking areas require the same amount of space, often less space than did the stores in a shopping area.

Since 1950, the number of automobiles in use, and the way they are used, has changed considerably. The Bureau of Public Roads statistic for the number of motor vehicles registered in the United States in 1960 is about 50 million.

Ten years later this number was about 74 million, an increase of about 50 per cent in a single decade.

With the greater number of automobiles came a greater dependence on automobile transportation. Like most physical changes, the increased number of automobiles brought about changes in the way people were able to go farther. People were able to go farther to do things that they would have done around their homes and neighborhoods in the past.

Consequently they had more freedom to select among the specialties of a town or a region. This new shopping pattern, and the new means to freedom, the automobile, became important social forces.

Shopping centers were built to take advantage of the new style of life. They were designed to cater to a public seeking inexpensive goods and services. The automobile increased the number of shoppers who could reach the low cost stores, making their smaller profit margins feasible.

But the shopping areas had to be arranged to accommodate all the cars that would bring the shoppers to the center.

Larger Area Needed

The present shopping center pattern—parking space being about a much larger area of the center than the stores themselves. This left the established shopping centers in a predicament. They had many prosperous stores, frequently with a greater variety of goods than the shopping centers. But they were short on parking space.

Their means is a new one for the state. The merchants, along with the parking authority, are going to try to raise sufficient funds to supply shoppers with ample free parking.

They would do this by becoming a tax district. All the tax receipts would be used to establish and maintain parking areas to service Main St. stores.

Legislation Needed

To establish such a district requires the consent of the state legislature. Once this is obtained, the Parking Authority will take the following steps:

First, it would identify potential parking areas, probably on the east side of Main St., behind the central business district.

When the price for the land has been determined, the Parking Authority will issue bonds in the amount necessary to buy the properties. The Authority will have the power of condemnation. The tax rate for store and property owners in the central business district will depend on the amount of the property costs, and the length of time the bonds remain outstanding.

Should the bond rat for ten years, each year the Parking Authority will have to collect enough to cover one-tenth of the total bond issue plus interest, and maintenance of the parking area.

Businessmen will be taxed as are town residents, at a certain mill rate per value of property.

Eventually, the parking meters will probably be taken off Main St., so that all town parking will be free.

Advantage Aided

The overall effect of this plan would be to give the central business district some of the advantages of a shopping center, while retaining its own particular character.

When the Planning Services Group, the consultants hired to organize the town's comprehensive plan, did their background study on the Central Business District, they reached the conclusion that this sort of parking plan would be desirable for Manchester.

Although they suggested a different area to raise money for new parking areas—they would have the town buy and install parking in new parking areas, and the merchants pay the meter costs for customers—their overall plan was about the same.

According to their background study, called "A Plan for Downtown Manchester," there was in 1961 a deficit of about 800 parking spaces in the downtown area. The study estimated a need for about 2,400 spaces, and found about 1,600 existing, some public, some for customers of specific stores, some commercially operated.

Cite Shortage Area

They thought most of the deficit was between Brainard Place and Maple St., which they called the "dog with the largest generators of traffic in the business district."

To improve traffic flow on Main St., they suggested changing the angle of the street to parallel parking. This would eliminate another 100 parking spaces, but would make it more convenient to reach new parking areas.

To a large extent, the future of the whole town depends on the property of the central business district. Neither industrial nor residential growth is likely to occur in a town that is not growing commercially as well.

The Main St. merchants have declared themselves partners in a plan to further the central business district, instead of passively waiting for somebody else to make the necessary moves.

The economic future of the central business district, and the town, could hinge on the successful establishment of the proposed parking plan.

AEC Plan Seen Cutting Cost of Electric Power

At the same time the AEC foresees a temporary fall in the need for uranium in the late 1960s and in the first half of 1970 before there are really big needs for power generation.

The AEC said the fall would be due to lower needs for weapons, but it didn't explain this or speculate on how much uranium would be spared. One explanation could be the more efficient use of uranium in weapons and the recovery and use of uranium from obsolete weapons.

To "keep a viable uranium industry" and still keep surplus down, the AEC said it was beginning a plan to defer some uranium purchases until after 1967. The AEC would promise to buy the original order but also a matching amount later on.

In proposing its new reactor program, the AEC said it would be prepared to begin with fiscal 1964 next July 1.

There was no clear estimate of the cost of the program, but approximate figures mentioned ran from $80 million to $60 million more per year than the AEC now spends on such reactor projects.

Hope lies in converter and breeder reactors—and new technological advances to make them more practical.

Fissionable materials, like uranium, are those which produce energy by splitting their atoms. Some materials are considered fissionable, but can be converted to fissionable forms. Thorium is such a material.

Converter reactors could make use of more diversified materials than present reactors by converting them into fissionable materials. However, the converter reactor would not produce more fissionable fuel than it would consume.

Breeder reactors, on the other hand, would hopefully produce more fissionable material than they use by being more efficient in the conversion and even in the breeding process while producing energy.

Little John Arrived Late but Finished Early over Rain-Swept Streets Before 8,000 Familiar Story as Kelley Wins Sixth Road Race

Diminutive Johnny Kelley, America's greatest long distance runner, arrived late for the 26th Five Mile Road Race yesterday morning over Manchester's paved streets but he finished early—ahead of 116 other runners. The Mystic resident, twice a member of the United States Olympic team, successfully retained his crown over the rain-swept Manchester streets before a crowd estimated at 8,000, the first time in six years that this 40,000 yard traditional Thanksgiving Day Road Race.

It was raining hard from the start of the race, but Kelley was not deterred. He was running at a steady pace, and his competitors were unable to keep up with him. Kelley's time was 24:38, which is eight seconds slower than his time of 24:30 in 1931. Kelley's victory was a surprise to many of the spectators, as he had not been expected to win.

Tommy Crane of Springfield finished second, and Larry Damon of Manchester finished third. The race was held on the streets of Manchester, and the weather was very rainy. Kelley's performance was praised by the spectators, and he was hailed as a champion.

John Kelley, a graduate of Boston University and an English teacher at Robert Fitch High School in Groton, gained the lead at approximately the two mile point and led the race until the finish. Kelley's time was 24:38, which is eight seconds slower than his time of 24:30 in 1931. Kelley's victory was a surprise to many of the spectators, as he had not been expected to win.

It was interesting to note that Kelley's time of 24:38 was but 49th in the race. Kelley was the first time he ever won a Five Mile Race since 1931-12 years ago. Kelley's victory was a surprise to many of the spectators, as he had not been expected to win.
