The program, however, faces a threat of a long and heated filibuster in the Senate. And a Negro labor leader said Friday a march of "100,000 or more Negroes" will be staged on Capitol Hill in August as a protest against the filibuster.

Cleveland Robinson, secretary-treasurer of District 65 of the AFL-CIO Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union said in New York he had been named one of the coordinators for the demonstration.

"Our march is to be conducted as other non-violent demonstrations have been held in the South," he said.

To choke off a filibuster the administration will need the approval of two-thirds of the senators present and voting. If senators are Democratic, they have met difficulties making many Republican senators hesitant to sign the package. Only nine GOP senators were listed among the sponsors.

the opportunity to talk directly to the people of Europe as spokesman for American policy.

The opportunity is the most well-known because Kennedy seems to be in a period of political as well as economic transition, with government and politics in a state of flux.

For these reasons, the White House has taken a keen interest in arrangements for television coverage.

In Germany alone, 300 television sets will man 10 television centers and 11 mobile units during Kennedy's three-day stay.

Sunday, the President's entire public schedule will be beamed to audiences in Germany, Britain, Italy, Austria, Switzerland, Belgium and the Netherlands.

On Tuesday, networks in France and Denmark will join the "Europe-wide" hookup for a close-up of the president in public. Other countries that will see portions of the German tour include Norway, Sweden and Ireland.

Later in the week, when Kennedy makes a sentimental journey to the Irish homeland of his ancestors, all public appearances will be televised. These broadcasts will be exported to other parts of Europe.

At this point, no television coverage is planned during Kennedy's brief sojourn in England for talks with Prime Minister Harold Wilson. The television hookup will pick up arrangements there have not been completed.

U.S. Pushes Home Sales To Negroes

Levit to change his mind about letting the Negro's bid stand as a precedent for the FHA-insured housing had been obtained before the President's order, no sanctions could be applied.

The second complaint came earlier this month from a Negro doctor with the Food and Drug Administration. The Levit firm said: "Our policy... is exactly the same as that of every other builder in the area. We certainly don't expect to be the last, but neither can we be the first to set a new black seal. This comes to only eight bricks, two short of what you need."

The best chance to bring in Levit's diamonds. You can get this if you find the honor split, and if West has no more than three diamonds.

Start Early

You start early by heading your singleton diamond at the second trip. West must stop up with the five trump in your own hand, but you can be the first to set a new black seal. This comes to only eight bricks, two short of what you need.

The best chance to bring in Levit's diamonds. You can get this if you find the honor split, and if West has no more than three diamonds.

Lavished with love.

Much as the owners of Whitehall Manor homes in EAST HARTFORD will love every living minute in them, they'll probably never equal the affection we expend on every detail of these choice dwellings and their spacious grounds.

While there's lots of love in each fine home, there are no longer lots of lots. Over half of the select sites are already spoken for. So it behooves the earnest home-seeker to hasten today to Whitehall Manor and see why. Whitehall Manor prices are surprisingly modest. The very best financing is available, along with everything else to assure "buyer serenity."

Seeing is believing - and loving. Whitehall Manor in EAST HARTFORD.

Connecticut Yankee

By A.H.O.

The bill the optimist wanted to see enacted is the one that would allow the state to take over the operation of the Connecticut Yankee atomic power plant. The bill is sponsored by Representative James E. McGee, of Danbury. It would allow the state to take over the plant if the private operator, General Atomics, fails to meet its obligations to the state. The bill is expected to pass the legislature in the near future.

Almost Everybody Happy?

President Moore Thibodeau of Stamford Province has apparently turned to exit at last, the precise thing which seems to have inspired his flight to France by the Central Congolese government's recent good fortune in setting three outposts full of Thibodeau documents, including a letter from Thibodeau, which has always been kept in this country as anti-Communist, to the Communist regime in East Germany.

Hot Cubs Get Unexpected Help

Key Single By Rodgers Beats Bucs

NEW YORK (AP)—It takes a touch of the unexpected to keep a longshot team close to the front in a pennant race—like a key hit from an ex-pro player with a .211 batting average.

That's what Chicago Cubs got Friday when Andre Rodgers, a 10th-inning hero, scored the 10th run off the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Rodgers, a rangy shortstop from the Red Sox against the Cubs, led off the ninth with a single. He was out on a sacrifice bunt, but came up with the bases full and hit over the pole.

It was the fourth straight victory for the Cubs, a second in the National League for the past 16 years and picked up another low-scoring win this season. Despite the dicey place, just 2½ games in fifth, and only a point advantage over the Reds, the Cubs are now 10½ games behind the Pirates.

Wynn Loses 3-0 Bid

NEW YORK (AP)—Early only six hits moving the Chicago Cubs to a 3-0 victory over the American League champion New York Yankees, 7-4 ended at Boston.

Elsewhere, Detroit ended its streak of 14 consecutive wins with a 4-1 win over the Chicago White Sox in the eighth inning of the fourth game of a doubleheader.

The Ed Sullivan Show 15 Years Old Sunday

By RUTH E. THOMPSON

If you're 15 years of age or anything younger, the "Ed Sullivan Show" — as of tomorrow — will have been running like forever. But if you were 15 or anything plus back in 1948, you may find it hard to believe that 775 shows with a total of 20,000 performers, who've cost more than $20,000,000 in talent fees, have flashed across the home screen until the record now stands as "oldest variety show on television"; and still presented "live," still at the same network, on the same night, in the same time slot.

"The big show" will be even bigger for the anniversary blow-out. CBS has stretched its usual hour to 90 minutes to permit flash-backs of some of video's greatest moments. Even AGVA has given its blessing (not easy to come by since they have a rule that portions of old shows can't be used in new shows). Of all those asked (and I wonder if they'll include the incredible moment of Dr. Albert Schweitzer playing the organ?) only Princess Grace of Monaco has declined. At press time, though, Sullivan and producer Bob Precht were still hoping she'd change her mind.

"Ed will be on live admit the filmed album shots . . . and so will the studio audience," explained Precht because "Ed works much better with an audience." He also added a warning, "Don't think this is just a look at the archives. With the Ed Sullivan Show, entertainment always comes first. We're working now on a surprise opening." He also mentioned a sort of medley of comics, each of them captured just at the moment hysteria breaks loose. Should be side-splitting.

People both inside and outside of show business never seem to tire of asking what keeps the show on top and how come Ed Sullivan remains number one favorite host. How did a newspaperman overnight turn into an emcee? Well, he may have turned into one overnight, but it wasn't in 1948. It was in 1930.

Newspaperman though he's always been, he started to come into prominence as a toastmaster for benefits in said year 1930. Then he got to lining up the talent himself, toured around the country with benefit shows and later took his own stage show into such major showcases as New York's Loew's State and Chicago's Palace. Then there's the matter of radio. It was Ed Sullivan who, in 1932, introduced Jack Benny to the airwaves . . . also Florenz Ziegfeld, George M. Cohan, Jimmy Durante, fellows like that.

So, when CBS idea men sought out Ed Sullivan in 1948 they were not looking for a toastmaster to preside over a show they were dreaming up, rather they asked him to build for video the kind of show he was already doing so well elsewhere.

From the very first it was full grown and big time. Guests that opening night included Rodgers and Hammerstein and Martin and Lewis (their TV debut). And the caliber has been like that ever since.

"The show is literally Ed's life," says Precht who's made a pretty notable contribution to its prestige himself. Precht who's been with the network seven years, first as associate producer for "Verdict Is Yours" (then as associate and finally full producer of the "Ed Sullivan Show") shared with the boss in the industry's top award, the Peabody, which mentioned them both for the program's work in "contribution to international understanding." At State Department request, the Sullivan Show traveled to Russia. Precht — who speaks fluent Russian — was on hand seven weeks beforehand. (In addition to their devotion to the program, the two — who work together beautifully — share a devotion for a girl named Betty, who is the daughter of Ed and the wife of Bob.)

What's it like for performers to work on the Sullivan Show? Well it's to their prestige what the old Palace was a generation ago (of course how many hundred; if years the Palace would have to stay in business to get the a dime Sullivan reaches in one year is something for the statisticians to ponder). Bill "Jose Jimenez" Dana told me a few weeks ago, "Comedians love to work for Ed, because he's not trying to be a comedian, too."

Precht says, "Performers who are choosy about television will come with us because they know they'll be presented properly and lighted properly. Then, too, with all the hazards of a live show Ed will always edit himself down if time is running short rather than cut into an act."

After it was fully established that the 15th anniversary show would be the lively opposite of a mournful backward glance, Sullivan did permit himself a touch of nostalgia. It was for the famed Maxine Elliott Theater where the early telecasts originated. "Cole Porter, fresh from Peru, Ind., composed music at the outset of his career for a show there that flopped immediately. He was so heartbroken he actually went off and joined the French Foreign Legion. So it was a special pleasure for him to be there again, triumphantly, when he honored him. "It was from that old theater, too, that Helen Hayes went off to marry Charles MacArthur."

None of them, though, has added more lustre to the old theatre's name than Sullivan himself who there and thereafter has made it a weekly habit to present in addition to circus acts and dog acts such great stars as Victor Borge, Renata Tebaldi, Maria Callas, Maurice Chevalier, Lena Horne, Dame Margot Fonteyn, Elvis Presley, Noel Coward; scenes from scores of plays, the works. Sullivan who plays golf (when in fifteen years. And after operations first for an ulcer, then a gall bladder, he's reported never to have felt better.

And how to account for that enduring popularity of his? Said Leonard Hayward: "He has good taste." Says Bob Precht, "He's an honest man, it may be as easy as that. When he says he saw a new act and liked it and thinks the folks watching will also, they believe him. His smile? Well, they ever I go . . . how often? Oh, three times a week in season!" seems to have aged not one minute can trust that, too. He doesn't smile unless he means it."

"From Hell to Texas"—a Western-adventure drama about a cowboy who is a pacifist—will be NBC-TV's two-hour "Monday Night at the Movies" color feature June 24 (7:30 p.m. EDT; repeat of March 25). The film stars Don Murray and Diane Varsi with Chill Wills, Jay C. Flippen and R. G. Armstrong.

HOLLYWOOD—(NEA)—The first time Ed Begley won an award people laughed.

They howled, in fact, as he twirled a cane, tipped a derby hat and walked duck-like across an outdoor dance floor.

He was the funniest of all the Charlie Chaplin impersonators at the G. Fox & Co. department store's annual employees' picnic.

His award was a pearl necktie stickpin.

"The year was 1915, the place Hartford, Conn.

Eb, age 14, worked in the store's delivery department. He didn't own a tie, but he was grateful for the pearl stickpin. He might have been even more grateful had he known that he wouldn't win another award for nearly 50 years.

But at 62, Begley hit the jackpot—an Academy Award.

It was the reason why he was telling me, "I'm still stupefied" about winning that Oscar for the best supporting performance of the year.

It was the reason why all of show business applauded and had a nice warm glow when his name was announced as the winner for his Boss Finley "meanest man" politician role in "Sweet Bird of Youth."

Eb had been recognized in public at least as an "actor's actor."

The old work horse finally had won another taste of spotlighted sweet success. It had taken him 48 years and it was ironic. At 14, the sound of laughter made Eb happier than the pearl stickpin he won.

At 62, he'd still like to hear audience laughter, but playing heavier is his lot. He's the man you love to hate—and Eb hates it.

"Maybe," he chuckled, "I'll get a crack now at comedy and surprise a few people."

Begley has been surprising people all his acting life. And acting has been his life.

He's the actor with a hundred voices and a thousand faces, a veteran of vaudeville, radio, television and motion pictures.

No matter what the medium, he played only roles he could "feel."

"I like," he explains "for an audience to accept me while saying, 'yes, he's a real person and not a cardboard cutout!'"

As a voice on radio he starred in 1,000 shows, playing as many as 10 different roles in a single day.

He was radio's original "Charlie Chan." But while playing Chan, he also was "Dan Britt, official detective" and "Stephen Graham, family doctor."

He was the voice of Franklin D. Roosevelt on radio's "State of the Union" series. Between 1947 and 1951, he appeared in 21 movies. On Broadway he played William Jennings Bryan in "Duchert the Wind" with Paul Muni.

On early New York television, he starred in "Patterns" and in "Twelve Angry Men." Then he played both roles in film versions.

His acting rewarded him handsomely. But as a "work horse," public recognition escaped him.

But behind the scenes in show business everyone knew how good he was as an actor. Fellow actors were the first to praise him.

"Ed," said Muni, "when you play a role I always believe every minute of it."

It is the reason Ed Begley's Oscar means so much to him and to all of show business. The applause and the cheers were for those 48 years between a pearl stickpin and an Academy Award.

TV Notebook

NEW YORK (NEA)—Now that Betty White is Mrs. Allen Ludden she is still Betty White. If that sounds paradoxical, let Betty explain.

"I feel," she says, "as though I'm always be Betty White. I'm proud of my new name, but I'm not really Mrs. Ludden. There once was a wonderful woman with that name."

Ludden was a widow when he met Miss White, when they both appeared in "Critic's Choice" in summer stock last year. The romance blossomed, with Ludden's children lending the cheering section. Martha, 18, and Sara, 10, immediately became Betty's good friends and still are. David, 15, helped the cause along, too.

The three call her Betty, and that's the way she wants it. All five are happy about the way things are working out.

Betty and Allen only have one bone of contention, and that's more of a gag than anything else. They feud, kiddingly, about the relative merits of the two coasts. Allen is a confirmed easterner, with Betty just as dedicated to California.

They will, of course, live in the East, because that's where Allen does Password. Betty will probably find plenty of panel shows and other work to occupy herself here.

"My agent," she says, "is happier about this marriage than anybody. He's been wanting me to move here for years."
