Search Painstaking For Yale President

By ANGELO NATALE
NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—The search for a Yale president has been a painstaking process, with three men paid a nominal salary at the home of Kingman Brewster Jr. on the Yale University campus.

The visitors were members of the Yale Corporation, the governing body of the university, and they broke the news to Brewster that he had been unanimously elected president of Yale.

Brewster, 44, provost of the university and, in effect, acting president since the death of A. Whitney Griswold, almost six months earlier, promptly accepted.

He had been picked formally only 45 minutes before from among 100 names submitted by the Yale Corporation, which had spent months of screening, checking and investigation by the Yale Corporation, which had used a list of 100 suggested names.

The public announcement was made the following day, Oct. 12, while Brewster watched the Yale-Columbia football game and Yale, the nation's third oldest institution of higher learning, had its 17th president.

Files on the 100 names put forth as successors to Griswold stand almost three feet high. How did the Yale Corporation finally settle on Brewster as its ultimate choice? There appears to be no hard and fast rules for the selection of a Yale president.

William Lewis, a literary scholar and a member of the Yale Corporation, once described the qualities sought in a Yale president. He said the right man "must be a leader, not a follower; he must be a man of iron health and stamina, a young man—but also mature and full of wisdom."

"He must be a man of the world, but yet he must also have great spiritual qualities. He must be a Yale man and a great scholar."

"As I have been talking," Lewis said at the time, "I don't know how many have realized that there is only one who has most of these qualifications. But—Is God a Yale man?"

The Yale Corporation, however, was not as choosy as among mortals. Some possible choices to the selection of a Yale president, he said, in a resolution adopted 30 years ago by the university's Council, a group of appointed alumni who study and make recommendations about various aspects of Yale.

The resolution said a Yale president "should be devoted to his cause and possess an understanding and appreciation of the whole field of education and a vision of the part which the great independent universities must take in the future life of the nation."

"That he should have a broad and profound sense of the importance of religious values in education;

"and finally that he should recognize Yale as a fortress of Western civilization, understand and feel its greatness as a seat of learning and possess the integrity, intelligence and force of character essential to qualify him as Yale's representative and Yale's leader to the world of affairs."

After Griswold died last April 30, Brewster, his close friend, was considered the likely successor. But in the corporation, charged with the "government, care and management" of Yale, took elaborate pains to reach the proper decision.

The corporation members began making contacts—personal, by mail and by telephone—with hundreds of people. They met with present and former Yale officers, the deans of Yale's colleges, faculty members and alumni. They got in touch with a number of department heads, the Yale chaplain, the director of athletics. And they contacted prominent educators throughout the country who have no Yale connections.

Three basic questions were asked of those persons contacted: What type of man would you prefer to be president of

Bankruptcy Sale For Famed Hotel

By PHILIP J. KUEPER
NEW YORK (AP)—The St. George Hotel, a Brooklyn home to presidents, authors, ballplayers, actors and generations of sailors, is listed for bankruptcy sale.

One of New York's biggest buildings, built in 1884, the 17-year-old landmark was bought by the St. George Hotel Co. in 1954. It has 12,000 rooms, 100 restaurants and 100 bars.

"It's a shame," Free said. "I think there are 12,000 new hotel rooms in New York. We are overbuilding."

The St. George, started by a sea captain in 1884, looks down on New York Harbor from Brooklyn Heights. Nearby is the huge Brooklyn Navy Yard.

During World War II, Merchant captains gathered at the St. George bar to swap stories of battles with submarines and pack. Refugees from the Hungarian revolt in 1956 were processed at the hotel.

"Roosevelt, Truman and Kennedy stayed here," recalled Free in an interview. "So did Dewey and Nixon. Thomas Wolfe, the author, lived here while teaching at Pratt Institute. We've had honeymooners who came here and stayed 80 years. One man I know has eaten a meal at the St. George every day for 83 years."

The largest of the hotel's buildings is 30 stories. The St. George has its own power plant, laundry, upholstery, cabinet and machine shops. It also has a swimming pool filled with salt water.

Bidding in the bankruptcy auction next month will start at $1.6 million. The hotel is being operated by bankruptcy trustees.

South Windsor Council Votes Down Water Service Bid

The town council, at its meeting Wednesday evening, voted to assume the obligation and expense of supplying public water to Troy Road and Brookfield St. at this time.

It was felt by the council in view of a report submitted to them by Town Engineer Walter Marquette and Councilman Frederick Mohr, that this was mainly the problem of only two families. The council also felt that these families did not exhaust all of the resources available to them for acquiring water. Namely, they did not drill an artesian well, only a dug well, for example, might contain water. An artesian well, coming from another source, might have good water.

There was also the problem of the cost of the water supplied for these homes. As Mohr noted, about 85% of the residents are supplied with water by a type of well. If any citizen found himself without adequate water, he could petition the town to bring him city water, citing this case as precedent.

Councilman James Throve suggested that a study be given, by qualified persons, to consider an overall plan of supplying metropolitan water to the different areas.

This should be a generalized study for a specific question such as the Troy Rd-Brookfield St. problem.

The appointment of a town study was again tabbed. Miss Shirley Detrick, temporary clerk of the council, was nominated by Councilman Edward Pastula for clerk of the council.

This appointment was again tabbed, the motion was carried. Councilman Umberto DeMastro, Throve, Pastula, and Mohr, Throve voting for Miss Detrick; Councilman Walter Hill, Carlo Prestileo, and Councilman Peterman voting against; and Mayor John Egan and Councilman Mohr abstaining.

On another question of procedure, the council voted against supplying water service to Glenfield Rd. As the town was paying for the construction and servicing of Glenfield Rd, it was felt that the town should not also pay for installing the lines for this area. The town should either do one or the other, it was thought. In the original dealing with the industry on Glenfield Rd, no reference was made to the town's installing lines.

Town Manager Terry Sprentel reported that he had received communication from the Connecticut Water Co. stating that they would "renew" the town's agreement for "putting" the lines in, in acceptable condition. After the company had installed pipes and repaired the road, the town still did not feel that the road was in as good condition as formerly. As the company suggested that the town do the re-paving job and be reimbursed before the weather is already beginning, Sprentel suggested that the town do a complete re-paving job in the spring. The company offered to give the town a grant of $1,000 for the job, estimated at $17,500. This situation was accepted by the council.

The town's decision regarding the question of a grant was not to be made until the next meeting. When the final map of this development was made, there was incomplete data regarding the size of the grant. When the owner of this tract tried to sell his property, it was found that the "renewed" "existing" boundary line. By granting this grant claim, the town will not be able to claim a portion of the property for roads and the records will be cleared.

The question of a shopping center will be placed on the agenda of the meeting between the various town agencies and the council.

This matter was placed on the agenda of the meeting by John Madden, who stated that there was a "recognized need" for such facilities in town.

Questions raised during a discussion touched such matters as: Who should assume the financial responsibility of the town or private enterprise? Would there be two buildings, one for the town and one for the private enterprise, as it was felt the town is already spending a money? Throve also suggested that the Planning and Zoning Commission should be the primary agency in establishing the site (under the town's authority) the town should determine such matters as street layout, parking, roads as it

LONDON (AP)—Police kept one sex story, the 17th century novel "Fanny Hill," off British school stands today. The printers are stopping another, the life story of prostitute Mandy Rice-Diary.

A paperback edition of "Fanny Hill" was scheduled to go on sale today, but Scotland Yard obtained a warrant against the obscene publication and industrial development commission. The purpose of this meeting was to establish an agenda for subsequent meetings.

James B. Golden, Foster St. was granted $500 an indemnity for any loss of value his property which may have occurred when the town put a drainage pipe through the property.

The situation arose when the town put drainage pipes along the property line between Foster St. and the property along Holzschuh Rd. to correct a flooding problem. However, in one or two instances, the pipes crossed the property line, preventing the owner from improving his property by anything which might have foundations in that area.

Leonard W. Foster St. application to the council requesting he be paid $500 also. Mayor Egan explained that the council could only indemnify people over whose property the pipes crossed. The pipe went along W's rear property line.

Town Attorney Edwin Lawson, man stated that "lots with rear 5-10 feet subject to easements do not get any different price than those with the easement." Cost of the project to keep out underworld influence.

San Mateo County Sheriff's office, Roger Good, said the explosion "literally shook the coast." He said reports indicated the object was sent before it hit the water, emitting a blue, then orange light. Moss Beach is about 15 miles south of San Francisco.

Events In Nation

WASHINGTON (AP)—In the news from Washington: DEPT: For the third time this year, the House Thursday strongly approved a temporary increase in the national debt limit, but only after throwing a scare into administration leadership.

ON THE MEND: Sen. Clair Engle, D-Calif., was released Wednesday from the Naval Hospital at Bethesda, Md., where he was treated for a brain tumor.

It will be some time before Engle is back at his desk, the senator's physician, Dr. Roy Seldon, said Thursday. "But he plans to maintain daily contact with his staff and operations in his office will go forward on a 'business as usual' basis."

Engle's general health is good. He will recuperate at his Washington home and will receive physiotherapy to strengthen his right arm and leg.

The 187-178 vote that sent the legislation for a $10-billion ceiling to a more sympathetic Senate showed 147 Republicans and 22 Democrats opposing the increase and 187 Democrats supporting it.

Six months ago, the House voted a debt increase to $200 billion by a nine-vote margin. In August it continued the $200 billion top until the end of this month.

Without the pending extension, the ceiling would drop to $225 billion on Nov. 30.

The bill would hike the ceiling to $312 billion until next June 30 and then drop it to $200 billion until next July 1.

Before sending the measure to the Senate, the House turned down a Republican attempt to shuttle it back to the Ways and Means Committee for downward revision to around $111 billion.

NITZE: The Senate Armed Services Committee put Paul H. Nitze through the writer on Thursday and then delayed for a week a vote on his nomination by President Kennedy to be secretary of the Navy.

The three-hour hearing took some stormy turns: Although witnesses usually are not sworn, Nitze was sworn at the session, Nitze was at the request of Sen. Strom Thurmond, D-S.C., who demanded he "tell the truth and nothing but the truth."

Nitze told the senators that he never advocated the United States turn the strategic Air Command over to U.N. control. He said he tossed the idea into a national strategy session sponsored by the Stanford Research Institute in 1960 to "stimulate thought and discussion."

Nitze, now assistant secretary of defense for international security affairs, also declared himself opposed to any policy of appeasement toward the Soviet Union, the recognition of Peking, termination of the military draft law and unilateral disarmament.

Chairman Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., said he had been asked to put off the vote on Nitze's nomination until next week. Russell said Nitze would be recalled only if other senators want to question him further.

San Franciscans Observe Fireball

MOSS BEACH, Calif. (AP)—A large fireball, apparently a meteor, streaked across the San Francisco Bay area sky Thursday night, exploding violently and landing in the Pacific Ocean several miles offshore.

Thousands of residents saw the object.

One Miles, chief of the Point Menzies Fire Department in the Moss Beach area, said he saw and heard the fireball explode and drop into the ocean.

The Federal Aviation Agency at San Francisco International Airport said a Navy patrol plane also saw the object over the bay and identified it as a meteor.

San Mateo County Sheriff's office, Roger Good, said the explosion "literally shook the coast." He said reports indicated the object was sent before it hit the water, emitting a blue, then orange light. Moss Beach is about 15 miles south of San Francisco.

It's Not Fair

CAMBRIDGE, England (AP)—British bus conductors are authorized to charge half fare for animals brought aboard by human passengers.

When squeals erupted from a market bag carried by Cathleen Norman, who had paid for a six-month-old dog, the conductor said "I don't know what kind of creature you've got in there but I'll have to charge you three times."

Ms. Norman forked over the money, rode to her destination, and as she left, she has opened the bag and revealed two toy bears with built-in squeaking noises.

NEVER-ENDING STUDY

To serve the public's health needs properly, the pharmacist must never stop learning. For example, he must learn all about the hundreds of new drugs that come out every year. He must learn what they're used for, how they're used, how to dispense them so they'll do what they're supposed to do—safely and effectively. Years of college training, a plus never-ending "post-graduate" education... go into every prescription we fill. That's why we say...

Korea Youth Discouraged By Job Lack

By WILLIAM L. RYAN AP Special Correspondent

SEOUL, South Korea (AP)—They shivered in their "playable," a young South Korean said with a mirthless laugh. Young men seem restless in this tense little republic of 27 million which lived through a bloody war against communism and remains alert to the possibility of another one.

Their complaints underscore dangers in South Korea's present economic condition. An inflationary spiral is a clear threat to political stability. Jobs are hard to come by. One big newspaper, advertising for a new apprentice newsman, received applications from 400 college graduates. A similar story comes from corporations and banks.

Well-educated young men are forced to take jobs far beneath their abilities, or even to remain jobless.

All this leads to feelings of frustration and nervousness, important elements of the population. Students who study hard, remain away from home rather than returning to the States, and which they have no place to go.

Students in the universities, colleges and secondary schools are organized, but governments have attempted to control them. Under the iron-handed rule of Syngman Rhee—brought down by students in 1960—these students were allowed only one organization called the Students Defense Corps. This broke up after the 1960 revolt. While short-lived, it freely elected government of Premier John M. Chung, various smaller groups organized, some with leftist sounding slogans, some with nationalist outlook.

After the present military junta took over in a coup in May, 1961, independent organizations were forbidden, again. Students are watching to see what happens after the government turns civilian. Dr. Yoo, the inauguration of Gen. Chung Hae Park as president.

The military government sponsored an umbrella organization called "The National Students Movement." It is an attempt to get all elements of the young people's movement organized and to some extent to succeed.

Many students proclaim themselves against the old political system. The Park regime adopts the same slogan. But the way the same slogan, "The National Students Movement," is used is different. This could include many young men who are not young men reflect bitterness at the condition of the South Korean press. The government "spreading falsehood" can bring severe punishment. The government is judge of what is true and false. There are other burning laws.

The government controls the banks and most major corporations. It requires the favor of the government, and many bankers are in the red.

Frequently, young Koreans hear from foreigners that Korea is not ready for democracy. Perhaps they will agree it is not ready for European democracy, but that they may agree that while it is underdeveloped, the country needs a strong central
