Strong Second Half Nets Indians' 71-45 Win

Top Wethersfield To Protect Lead

By ROWEN HOLCOMB

There was another hot comeback in the Manchester High basketball game, but it wasn't the Indians, it was the opposition. Contrary to their two immediately previous performances, the Tribe used a 35-point first quarter as an approach to a 71-45 win over Wethersfield, thus preserving their tie with Maloney for the OCHS title at the close of the first round.

Wethersfield scored last night's 45 points in the second half, but they were unable to score more than two points in the first 30 minutes. The Indians' big outburst was made to look even more devastating after the tightly-fought first quarter.

Wethersfield's comeback was aided by a 21-19 deficit to a 27-21 edge. Taking up right where they left off, the Indians scored 14 points in the second half, including a 10-0 run in the final 10 minutes. The comeback was aided by a 21-19 deficit to a 27-21 edge.

Frank Phippen, chairman in charge of arrangements for the supper, will be assisted by Michael Clementino, Robert Columbe, Gene Zetella, John Connor and Frank Larisa.

Only 3 Change Voting Status

Manchester voters are either satisfied with the party affiliation of their choice, or apathetic to change, since only three of them appeared at yesterday's 5 to 8 p.m. enrollment session. All three became Democrats. One switched from the Republican rolls, the other two had been unaffiliated.

The only available party enrollment figures are those which were used to the time of the Nov. 12 referendum. Manchester then had 21,593 voters; 9,505 Republicans, 7,986 Democrats, and 4,102 unaffiliated.

ENTERS SHOW

Newton Co. Inc. at 55 Elm St., manufacturers of "Power Pulse Control" systems for overhead cranes, will join more than 400 firms participating in a $15,000,000 exposition designed to reduce costs in the nation's factories at the Plant Engineering & Maintenance Show, to be held at the Public Auditorium, Cleveland, Ohio, from Jan. 27 through Jan. 30.

A booth, containing a working model of the Newton Company's remote control system for overhead cranes, will mark the first time in the 15-year exposition that the local firm has been represented.

Some 128 specialists, drawn from 53 industries and government and coming from 29 states and Canada, will address a conference of attending representatives of the firm's displaying their wares.

JOINS FIRM

Mark I. Solomon, CLU, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel J. Solomon of 19 Robert Rd., this week became associated with the S. George Levi and Co., insurance firm at Philadelphia, Pa.

Solomon, a member of the 1964 graduating class at Manchester High School, received his B. S. degree in economics from the Wharton School of Finance of the University of Pennsylvania.

He is a former assistant to

Mark I. Solomon

the advanced underwriting consultant at the home office of the Provident Mutual Life Insurance Co., Philadelphia.

Solomon was the author of a 17-page technical article in the 1962 winter issue of The Journal of the American Society of Chartered Life Underwriters. The article, entitled "Ordinary Life Insurance in Qualified Profit Sharing Plans," won wide recognition. Solomon, at that time, was reported to be the youngest author ever to have had an article in the 12,500 circulation journal.

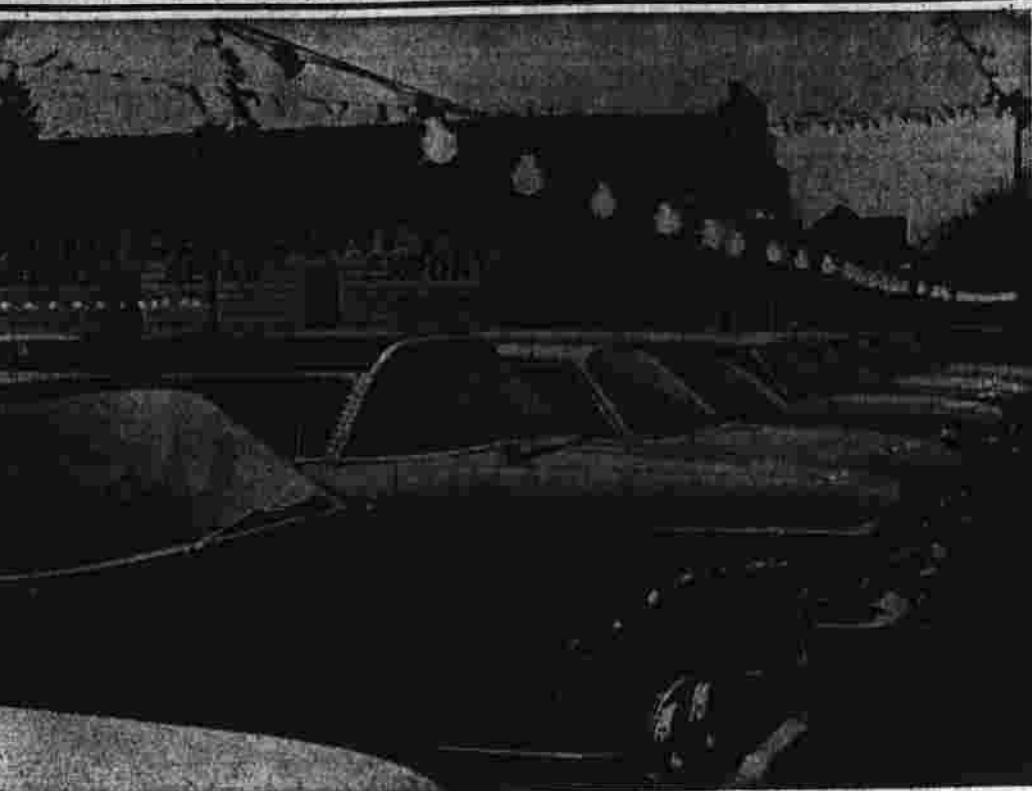

Besides being an author in numerous trade journals on business life insurance, Solomon has also appeared as a speaker before many professional groups nationwide.

the UH2 Seasprite helicopters which it is now producing for the United States Navy.

The new equipment and techniques which were developed by the Kaman Engineering and Flight Test staff under an earlier Navy contract have been described by Navy and Coast Guard officials who saw them demonstrated, as "the most significant innovation in open sea rescue since the personnel hoist."

The Kaman-developed systems cover four items of new equipment, a rescue boom which swings out and puts the rescue operation in the pilot's field of vision, a ladle net which permits the helicopter to hover and scoop an unconscious man out of the water, a loud hailer by which the pilot can talk to and direct a victim in the water, and a rescue ramp which can be used to pull an unconscious man into the helicopter cabin when it is possible to land on the water.

The boom and loud hailer, which require minor modification to the UH2 for installation, are covered in the new contract. The company expects to receive contractual coverage for production of the rescue net and ramp separately.

The Seasprite is the Navy's new high-speed rescue utility helicopter on duty with the Fleet at ship and shore stations around the world. With the speed and all-weather navigational capability of the UH2 the Navy is accomplishing rescues heretofore impossible. It can go out 200 miles, pick up 12 survivors and return to station in any kind of weather and do it unaided by an external navigation source.

The capability, by means of this new equipment, to rescue unconscious men, will further enhance the rescue capability of the Seasprite.

BRIEFS

James F. Adams of 296 E. Middle Tpke. recently marked his 35th anniversary with the Southern New England Telephone Co. A foreman of installers and repairmen in Manchester since 1956, Adams prior to that was assigned to the firm's Hartford, New Haven and Danvers offices.

The U.S. Treasury Department has cited Rogers Corporation of Rogers and Manchester for passing the 50 per cent mark in employe participation in buying savings bonds. The award certificate was recently accepted for the Manchester division, on Mill St., by Clarence G. Maron, plant superintendent, and Chester A. Bienkowski, president of Maple Lodge No. 504.

Elias F. Sahadi, exclusive Lincoln Continental salesman with Moriarty Bros., Inc., 301-315 Center St., has been awarded Lincoln-Mercury Division's certificate of merit upon completion of a two-day special training session in Dearborn, Mich.

a flashing light and has a recording unit on chart paper. The familiar red clay flower pot has been given a stylish up-lift by the Keller Pottery Co. of Kensington with its "Villa" line, described as the first decorator-designed red clay pot.

Rogers Corporation of Rogers and Manchester has named Raymond Langevin of Danielson its first recipient of the "Technician of the Year Award." Langevin, an Assumption College graduate, received 15 shares of the firm's stock.

Edward T. O'Donnell of the U.S. Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics, says in the January issue of New Englander (published by the New England Council at Boston) that, in the next few years, technological change in New England will be rapid and "workers will have unprecedented need for occupational flexibility." He notes that "in both manufacturing and non-manufacturing, the Department of Labor anticipates rising demands for workers with increased education and skill, and lessening of employment opportunity for the unskilled. A general high level of education and training will be essential for an adaptable and responsive New England labor force," he says.

Harrison Cited At New Temple

The officers and members of Temple Beth Shalom last night honored Phillip Harrison for his many years of service to the congregation.

Harrison, who had been president of the Temple the past three years spearheaded the drive for a new building, and furnished the leadership necessary to bring the plan to its fulfillment.

At last night's services, he was presented with a testimonial by Atty. Phillip Bayer, present president.

The guest speaker was Myron Zimmerman of Springfield, Mass., president of the New England Region of the United Synagogue.

TV Notebook

By DICK KLEINER Newspaper Enterprise Assn. NEW YORK (NEA) — Stardom appears to be beckoning for Joey Heatherton. And Joey (that's a girl, of course) is eagerly beckoning back. At 19, that's understandable. Even more so when she tells you that she wanted to be in show business "since the age of reason—when I was 7."

Joey Heatherton

"I was always 'on' when I was a kid," she says. "I would sing and dance and recite whenever I had the chance. I never doubted what I would be."

She started her professional career at the top—in a Richard Rodgers show, "The Sound of Music." She had auditioned for "Flower Drum Song" and he remembered her. In "The Sound of Music," she had a small part and understudied Laurie Peters.

Television grabbed her — she did a Route 66, The Nurses, Music for a Summer Night and then became a semi-regular with Perry Como. And from that she went to Hollywood for the plum role in "Twilight of Honor" with Richard Chamberlain.

In most of these, she has played a bad girl. Now she desperately wants a good girl role for fear she'll be typed as a wanton.

Show business isn't everything to Joey. Her folks—and she agrees—want her to finish college. She got her high school diploma via a correspondence course, because she was so busy. And she's doing the same thing with college, majoring in English literature at Hofstra College and taking her courses by mail.

When she isn't working or studying, she indulges in a rather unusual hobby for a starlet—she hunts foxes.

"I've never shot a fox," she says, "but the riding is fun."

Olympic Decathlon champion Rafer Johnson will play an assistant athletic coach in "The Cadaver" on "The Alfred Hitchcock Hour" this Friday on CBS from 10-11 p.m.

Walter Matthau, now in the movie "Ensign Pulver," on the detergent box (that's the modern replacement for the soap-box):

"If I said what I think about most of the television and movies I've done, I'd never work again. But I have to do it, I have to take the job. Oh, for a while I'll try to be selective, but then I find I need money so I have to take the first thing that comes along."

"I support 11 people including myself, and if I want them to live the way they think they should live I have to make $100,000 a year."

"I suppose I should do a series. I did a series once and it ruined me. I was so bored that I gambled heavily. I got in such trouble that I only got out 15 minutes ago."

"You hear that if you do a series you'll be financially independent. That's a lot of baloney. In the first place, only one pilot film in 1,000 is sold. And, of those, only one in 100 gets past the first year. And only a very few get past the second year. It's only after three years that the big money rolls in."

"It's a shame that acting has become such a business. Nowadays, an actor can't say he's an actor. He's in the acting business. It's like doctors today—they aren't doctors, they are in the medical business."

Walter Matthau

"Besides, doing a series doesn't let an actor do what a real actor must do every once in a while. He must take some time off to step back and examine himself. He must go to Las Vegas and get drunk and gamble. Or go to the public library and read books. Or whatever. But if you're in a series, you must act every day. An actor needs a change, a chance to get away and examine his perspectives. "Me, I'm studying 'King Lear.' In about 15 years, if I'm still alive—which I doubt—I may be ready to play it."

The first part of "Teen-age Idols" on NBC-TV's "Hollywood and the Stars" will be telecast this Monday from 9:30-10 p.m. Movie and news-reel clips of Frank Sinatra, James Dean, Debbie Reynolds, Marion Brando, Elvis Presley, Paul Anka and others will be presented. In the second part the following Monday, "Teen-age Idols" will focus on the career of Fabian.

The new birth control pills and their social and religious implications will be explored on "Birth Control: How?" on NBC-TV tomorrow from 10-11 p.m. David Brinkley will be the reporter.

Danny Kaye Happy on TV

By BOB THOMAS AF Movie-Television Writer HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Question: Has television success spoiled Danny Kaye? Answer: Yes, he's almost lovable.

Hollywood reporters of long standing could relish an interview with Danny Kaye for its give and take. He was master of the eloquent stare, the brisk reply, the knack of making an inquiry seem like the mouthing of a kindergarten.

At any time, a Kaye interview was a challenge. But look at him now. He's brimming with goodwill. He is happy.

"I haven't been this happy in years," he says. "I haven't been this stimulated in years. All kinds of dire things were predicted for me if I did a weekly television show. It hasn't affected me physically. It hasn't affected me emotionally. I've never been in better shape."

"This is the best thing that could have happened to me. I remember sitting and talking with Moss Hart some time before he died. He mentioned that it was good for a person to take his life and shake it up once in a while. That's what I needed."

"I don't mean by shaking up my life I would have quit show business. But I was at a point where I needed some added stimulus, some new challenges. My career had fallen into a pattern of sameness; I would make an occasional picture, I would play some theaters and some night clubs, I would tour for UNICEF. I was reaching the same audience, and a smaller audience."

The interviewer hesitantly suggests that the television show might not have had an adverse financial effect.

"Morley was the last thing I went into television for," he contradicted, showing a glimmer of his old form. "As a matter of fact, I am making less money"

'Today' Celebrates Its 12th Birthday

Twelve years on network television and more than 15,000 guests, 7,500 hours of programming and 3,000 individual programs.

These are just some of impressive statistics garnered by NBC-TV's early-morning "Today" show celebrating its twelfth year on television this Tuesday.

But the program's stature is not from statistics alone. The weekday 7-9 a.m. series—with Hugh Downs and Jack Lescault, Frank Blair and Pat Fontaine—continues to receive high critical praise.

Appearances of public figures on "Today" can lead to news headlines. For example, New York's Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller formally announced his candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination on the Nov. 7 program. New York Times TV critic Jack Gould the following morning noted that the show "has long been a favorite of politicians."

"For many men in public life . . . it may be the only television they have time to watch regularly," continued Gould. "Moreover, 'Today' is something of an inter-office memorandum pad in the political community."

During the past year alone, the program was host to nine cabinet members, three Supreme Court justices, 27 foreign dignitaries (including King Hassan II of Morocco, West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt and Lord Home, now Sir Alec Douglas-Home, Prime Minister), 29 government heads, five state governors, 42 senators and 33 representatives.

Civil rights was an important topic during 1963 and "Today" covered it in interviews with Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy, Assistant Attorney General Burke Marshall, Congressmen concerned with civil rights legislation, Governor George C. Wallace of Alabama, Mayor C. E. Sampson of Greenwood, Miss., and Roy Wilkins, executive director of the NAACP. The program also presented live coverage from the nation's capital, the morning of the March on Washington, and presented an entire program on the Negro writer in America in which authors James Baldwin, Louis Lomax and John Oliver Killens participated.

On the entertainment side, "Today" devoted entire programs to the music and careers of Jerome Kern, Victor Herbert, Noel Coward and Arthur Schwartz. Coward and Schwartz were guests on the programs. Other two-hour shows were devoted to comedian Buster Keaton and film producer Hal Roach Sr., both of whom were guests. There was also a program on Western movies with cowboy star Ken Maynard as special guest.

Other showbusiness guests included Otto Preminger, Groucho Marx, Ella Kazan, Sterling Hayden, Alfred Hitchcock, Mar-

Massey Calls Self Lucky 'I'm a lucky man,' says Raymond Massey. 'I'm a man without a complaint. I laugh at those people who think I might resent the fanfare Dick (Richard Chamberlain) has received in the title role of our series, 'Dr. Kildare'.

Contrary to what Massey says, there is much a writer could say of him. Gentleness and dignified, Massey also has a rich sense of humor. The viewer of 'Dr. Kildare' seem to recognize these traits. His letters are numerous. 'They are wonderful,' says Massey. 'They are warm and friendly. They comment upon performances and scripts. Invariably they close with a personal wish for good health and continued success.'

'Science All Stars' Will Tap Talented Youngsters

By EUTH E. THOMPSON Why the Olympics are to athletes is what ABC-TV aims to make its new 'Science All Stars' to science on Sundays from 4:30-5 p.m. The 'stars' are fledgling scientists (top winners in the school science fairs over a million children a year now enter) and some of whom have already added to the knowledge in their fields.

It would appear Morrow is right when he says, 'This is the day in the most exciting thing I've come across... and as far away from the idiot league as you can get.'

Highlights of Bob Hope's Christmas tour of American bases in Greece, Turkey, Libya and Italy will be presented on NBC-TV as a 90-minute special this Friday from 8:30-10 p.m. Jerry Wald, Anita Bryant, Judy Colonna and Michele Mercurio (Miss USA) are among the guests.

Closeups Is the Trouble With Television Football

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "The football season is over and I'm glad," said the neighbor, helping himself to my scotch.

"How come?" I asked. "I thought you liked football."

"I do," he said. "Love the game. But the way television mangles football makes my ulcer kick up so much that I can hardly drink."

"I don't see that it has stopped you much," I said.

"Only because I haven't seen a football game on television for a few days," he said. "You should have seen me after watching football all day on New Year's. I was ready to beat the wife, burn the kids and bite the dog."

There was no way out, so I asked what bugged him. Pausing only for an occasional gulp of his drink, he said:

"Why on why do the television minds think that football is a game for closeups? The directors or whoever picks the shots for the screen must believe that every television viewer still has a 12-inch screen."

"The classic shot in every televised football game is to zero in on the quarterback as he calls the play. There he is, barking his fool head off. Sometimes he fills the whole screen. The most you see are some of the linemen on the offensive side and maybe the heads of the opposing line."

"Wham—the play begins and the camera stays zeroed in on the quarterback. Say he drops back to pass. The camera follows him, then you see the arc of the ball until—surprise!—it lands in somebody's arms."

"This is not the way to watch football. You can't study the intricacies and refinements of the game merely by following the ball. . . . is the defensive line arranged to meet the offense? What's the blocking arrangement on a punt? What's the pass defense?"

"How does a great receiver like Frank Gifford get downfield? You never know because the camera is on Y.A. Tittle."

"I tell you it's madness."

I suggested he might go out to the Coliseum or Rose Bowl and see football in the flesh.

"And face that traffic?" he said indignantly. "The thought of it makes me quiver. I think I'd better have another drink."

Channel 24 Sets Folk Song Series

Some of the nation's finest folk singers will appear in a new 15-program series on WEDH, Channel 24, starting this Wednesday at 8:30 p.m.

Called "Lyrics and Legends," the show will explore the history and flavor of folklore and folk music in the United States.

To film the series National Television's camera teams went into backwoods Pennsylvania, an area steeped in local folk idioms; to Matamoros, Mexico, where the song form known as "corrido" was born; to Mystic, here in Connecticut to explore the nation's sea shanties, and to the hills of Kentucky, to visit a square dance play party.

Appearing on the half-hour program, along with well-known folklore authorities, will be Oscar Brand, Bonnie Dobson, Harry Jackson, Ed McCurdy, Jean and Edna Ritchie, Pete Seeger, Victoria Spivey and Ellen Stéiert.

The show will be repeated each Thursday at 8:30 p.m.

WWLP to Show War Push Film

"The Climb to Glory," a special film showing the heroic efforts of the Tenth Mountain Division in cracking Hitler's "Gothic Line" in Italy, is scheduled by WWLP, Channel 22, this Tuesday from 7:30-8:30 p.m.

Much of the action was filmed last summer on Proyin Mountain, near Channel 22 studios because of the resemblance to the Italian terrain.

William L. Putnam, president and general manager of Channel 22, will narrate a portion of the program. Putnam served as a lieutenant with the Tenth Mountain Division. Lt. Gen. George B. Hayes, the Tenth's wartime commander, and Gen. Mark Clark, commander of the Allied forces in Italy, will appear.

now than I could if I worked in other fields."

Kaye explains that his only reluctance in entering television was that it would tie him to one locale for most of a year. That problem is alleviated somewhat by his schedule: five weeks on, one week off. The week off has found him fishing in Canada, attending the World Series, flying to London, etc.

The Kaye hour has been proclaimed one of the hits of the season. The future? "The way I feel now, I'm ready to sign for another year."

Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson will be interviewed on NBC-TV's "Sunday" program tomorrow from 3-4 p.m. Films of her week's activities will be shown.
