Somebody To Give A Hand?

Some reaction to the recommendation of the Institute of Public Administration for the formation of a New York-Connecticut public agency to take over the operation of commuter service into New York for both the New Haven and the New York Central railroad systems has doubted the necessity of the recommendation.

Governor Rockefeller's expert on the railroad problem, for instance, doubts that the New Haven is losing as much money on commuters as the New Haven itself, or its trustees, claim it is.

Since, in his view, the financial situation isn't as bad as the trustees pretend it is, there is no real threat of an abandonment of the commuter service, therefore it is not necessary to plan to take the railroad out of the hands of its trustees.

Besides, if as the Institute of Public Administration visualized when it made its recommendation, if a public agency could operate the commuter service and come close to breaking even, why can't private or bankruptcy management do as well?

Meanwhile, over in Rhode Island, in another connection, there is another challenge to the validity of the bookkeeping of the New Haven's trustees keeping the New Haven's trustees keep accounts also maintain that the figures the railroad is using are not realistic.

Such confusing arguments are not for the public to resolve. The public stands off and sees the New Haven trying to abandon still more of its traditional service to the people of its area.

Then the public sees an organization supposedly employing some expert talent come up with a recommendation that all the confusion and misery and shakiness be ended by creating a new agency to run the commuter service, and the public, who are afraid, can't think of a thing it has to do, while most obviously any change of any kind would have to be something of a gain.

There was never as much private enterprise in the New Haven as its trustees allege. It has throughout its history veered from public subsidy to private plunder back to public subsidy again.

Castro, for his part, had been failing to produce enough sugar to supply Russia with the sugar he had previously agreed to supply, in return for light manufactured goods from Russia.

Connecticut Yankee

There could be an interesting series of conferences holding the back part of the stage during the special Republican State Convention in Hartford, Jan. 15.

One of the things that took place up at the podium, was a sort of a tacit note with a candid demerit, potential and proven.

But the three hour exception will be welcome to the nation, and it will, we think, contribute measurably to the State's own self respect over the years to come.

Teens crowd Lecture Series. A story of the type that kindles fresh confidence in our youth appeared in the press the other day. So many high school students have signed up for a series of lectures on great novels that capacity audiences are assured at the 750-seat Yale Law School and the larger Hill-house High School auditorium for all six weeks.

STORY BY DORIS BELDING PHOTOS BY SYLVIAN OFIARA

The daring use of color, and unusual color combinations in many rooms, led eye appeal to the home of Dr. and Mrs. Richard Alton on Bolton Center Rd., Bolton.

Whitely named "Backschoon" by its owners, both practicing chiropractors, the center chimney colonial has 10 rooms and a modern office wing, added across the back of the house.

Built in 1725 by Daniel Dart, the house has main beams which are wedged to the central chimney. This construction is unusual enough to attract the attention of students of architecture.

The house is filled with re-stored antiques, many which have been refinished by Dr. Alton in his basement workshop. In commenting on the colonial home, Mrs. Alton said that she had done research on old houses and found that colonial homes were often painted in bright colors but the drab dull shades usually attributed to the period.

In redecorating, choosing colors for the many rooms could have been difficult. "The task was made easy," Mrs. Alton said, "by following my husband's suggestion. He had a knack of picking shades that brought out the best features in each room, and I was delighted with the finished results."

The Altons' sons, Ricky, 8, and Tom, 6, have their own apartment in what was formerly the attic. They also have a room in the office wing set aside for the exclusive use of their Cub Scout Den.

The rest of the household includes Helen, a dachshund, Cairo, a three-month-old Great Dane, bigger than most full grown dogs, and Charlie, a cat.

The Altons have hobbies that enhance the charm of their home. Dr. Alton collects antique bottles and displays them in the office wing. Mrs. Alton has a fondness for old chairs. Her favorites are a wing chair that was in the house when it was purchased, and a curly maple rocker in the guest room. The wing chair was built in the early 1800's. It stands next to the living room fireplace across from its duplicate which Mrs. Alton was delighted to find in Massachusetts.

Having their office and living quarters combined under one roof gives the Altons additional time to enjoy their family home and hobbies, and is, according to Mrs. Alton, a satisfactory arrangement.

Office waiting room has been designed and furnished to match the colonial home.

Echo 2 to Trade U.S.-Soviet Signals

Following separation from the Thor booster, the Agena B second stage will stay in orbit to an altitude of 600 miles, according to sources at the American and Soviet space agencies.

Both stages were designed to correct this. It was made of two layers of foil printed on plastic film and scientists figured the foil would be in a spherical shape even after the gas leaked out.

Echo 2 was scheduled to be launched on Saturday, Jan. 25, at 10:00 a.m. The launch was expected to take about 30 minutes and the satellite would be in orbit about 10:30 a.m.

At present, there is every reason to believe that the 1964 business year will be prosperous for the U.S. and other nations.

Plans to clear property on E. Center St. to make way for a new telephone building were made known today by E. Lloyd Hobron, local manager for the Southern New England Telephone Co.

The present two-story telephone building, which adjoins the site to be cleared, was completed in 1929, when Manchester became the third telephone exchange in Connecticut to get dial service. There were then about 6,000 telephones here. The building has since been twice enlarged: in 1946, when the number of phones had increased to 10,000, and in 1953, when the total reached 15,000.

In 1958, an outlying office was built on Buckland Rd. in Wapping to serve that growing region. That office now serves about 3,400 of the 28,000 phones in the Manchester exchange.

Anticipating future downtown needs, the telephone company in 1961 acquired the site now to be cleared, and also two parcels on Ford St. which extend to the back line of its E. Center St. property. Two buildings on the land were cleared and it is now being used as a parking area.

SNET Will Raze Center Building

Plans to clear property on E. Center St. to make way for a new telephone building were made known today by E. Lloyd Hobron, local manager for the Southern New England Telephone Co.

Hobron said that present tenants of the one-story building at 20-22 E. Center St., which the telephone company purchased in 1961, will vacate the premises by Feb. 1. The building will then be razed, clearing the 80x200-foot site.

Hobron said plans for the new building are not yet firm, though the company hopes to start construction later this year. It will probably be a bit larger than the present central office building at 22 E. Center St., and may be attached to that building. Its specific location on the property is also undetermined as yet.

By DICK KLEINER Newspaper Enterprise Assn. NEW YORK (NEA)—There's a major difference between the English version of That Was the Week That Was and its brand new American counterpart, TW3, for short.

"The English one," explains producer Marshall Jamison, "was designed to be journalism—it was an extension of the BBC's news coverage. Ours is designed to be amusement—it is an extension of television's entertainment function."

Because of that distinction, and the presumed tender sensibilities of the American audience, Jamison doubts if TW3 here can ever be "as tough" as the British show was.

But he doesn't feel that satire must necessarily be hard and cruel to make its point. "You can satirize someone gently," he says, "without slaying them alive. I hope we can pole out at everybody and be nonpartisan. But I imagine some viewers will think we're slanted. As a matter of fact, I imagine the measure of our success will be the mail we get. I'll be very unhappy if we don't get a lot of nasty letters."

Charles Boyer is going back to television for the first time since the old Four Star Playhouse—and that was seven years ago. Boyer, David Niven and Gig Young will rotate in a series, "The Rogues."

Charles Boyer

"We'll play French, English and American rogues," star of the Broadway play, "Man and Boy," said. "It will be a tongue-in-cheek series, light but with drama and pathos, too. Some of them will be shot in Europe, I think."

Boyer isn't fooling himself that appearing in only one out of three shows will make his work easier.

Profile of a Dying Parisian Mart

"Les Halles: A Farewell," an affectionate profile of the Western world's largest, oldest, most colorful but now anachronistic big-city food market, will be broadcast on CBS-TV's "Chronicle" Wednesday, from 7:30-9 p.m. CBS News Correspondent Charles Collingwood is host-narrator.

Les Halles, often called the "stomach of Paris," was started in 1117. It has been in continuous operation for 847 years as the central produce market feeding the French capital. Furthermore, it has provided a unique and particular charm for visitors ever since the first produce merchant set up the first stand. But all this will soon be a memory. Over the course of the next two years, the French government intends to build a new, complete modern market terminal at Rungis, and Les Halles will become part of history.

During the television broadcast, the cameras will focus on the workers of the market, people such as the "Forts des Halles," literally "strong men of the market," the porters who carry tremendous loads about this hustling, bustling place. To qualify for the title, which is considered an honor, a man must be able to carry 100 kilos (220 pounds) on his shoulders for 100 meters. There are 415 of these men left; at Rungis there will be none.

The cameras poke into the cafes of Les Halles, some more famous than others, where the workers of Les Halles congregate and where it has become a tradition for visitors to end up a night on the town with a bowl of onion soup.

The broadcast will also show scenes at the Church of St. Eustache, which the people of Les Halles consider their own, where a Mass of St. Hubert (the patron saint of hunters) is celebrated. Music for the Mass is played by a male choir on old French hunting horns, fore-runners of the modern French horn.

Life Changed As 'Martian'

By BOB THOMAS AP Movie-Television Writer HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A funny thing happened to Ray Walston at a movie premiere recently. He found himself cheered as loudly as Gregory Peck.

"Fantastic!" exclaimed the actor. "Nothing like this has ever happened to me before. But then, he had never played a martian on television before. And that is the circumstance that has changed Walston's life. Television viewers will agree that 'My Favorite Martian' is one of the few new shows to make a dent on the ratings. The Sunday night CBS comedy appears set to return for the 1965-66 season.

This delights and amazes Walston, who scored as Luther Billis in "South Pacific" and the devil in "Damn Yankees" in both the stage and screen versions. "It's a whole new world for me," said Walston. "I'm the kind of a guy who is used to walking out a stage door and watching the people flock around Gwen Verdon or some other star. Now it's happening to me."

"You know something? I like it. Don't believe those actors who claim they don't like the clamor of the public. As Ralph Bellamy once said, the only time actors don't like it is when it stops."

Walston has found another aspect that he enjoys: The lack of competition.

"Take the last show I did on Broadway, 'Who Was That Lady I Saw You With,'" he commented. "I played in it with Peter Lind Hayes and Mary Healy, wonderful people who were schooled in the night clubs. Even with them you had to be on your toes at every minute or you could be crowded right off the stage. The same is true with Gwen Verdon or any top performer."

"But in television I feel at ease for the first time. I may be stuck with these antennae on my head for some time to come. Things could be worse."

PARIS-BOUND Charles Collingwood, moderator of the bi-weekly "Chronicle" series of CBS-TV and the host of highly acclaimed "A Tour of the White House With Mrs. John F. Kennedy," has been assigned to Paris as European correspondent for CBS News. He takes up his new post this spring.

Tour of Russia's Kremlin Is Repeated Tomorrow

"The Kremlin," the NBC News color program tracing the story of the Kremlin as it reflects the turbulent history of the Russian people and their rulers will be repeated tomorrow from 10-11 p.m.

The program was first shown on May 21 last year and repeated June 4.

An unprecedented response from the public and from television critics following the original presentation of "The Kremlin" was the major factor in scheduling the first repeat only two weeks after the first showing, an event described by the time as unique in television history. Critics had described the program as "stunning," "remarkable," "eminently educational" and "fascinating."

"The Kremlin" re-creates events that took place in the Kremlin, the seat of Russian authority, during five centuries—from the early Moscow princes to Czar Peter the Great. The Soviet era of the Kremlin is illustrated in scenes of Lenin's apartment, the Palace of Congresses, the meeting hall of the Supreme Soviet, and the burial palaces of leaders of the Bolshevik Revolution just outside the Kremlin walls.

The telecast is introduced by NBC news correspondent Frank Bourgholtzer, who is seen walking across Red Square and entering the Kremlin through historic Spasski gate. He is shown climbing the staircase of the Grand Kremlin Palace and being greeted by Lieutenant General Andrei Vedenin, Commandant of the Kremlin and an authority on its history.

Daily Drama Hard Work

By RUTH E. THOMPSON "General Hospital" whose doors open less than a year ago (and are currently open to TV viewers five days a week at 3 p.m. in the afternoon ABC) looks like it might run forever, "because with a series like ours, as with life itself, the story is never finished." So says the show's handsome producer-director James Young.

Furthermore, medical matters all over the network are happy because there's no rivalry between the ABC evening and daytime glamour healers Doctors Ben Casey and Steve Hardy. They—or rather their portrayals—Vincent Edwards and John Berardino—are the best of friends, says Young.

Things are also friendly between Berardino, former major league baseball player and the actual M.D., Dr. Franz Bauer, who is the show's technical consultant. "Dr. Bauer, you know, has—for real—the job John has on-screen."

Berardino (and Young, and Neil Hamilton, K. T. Stevens, Emily McLaughlin, et al) for all they cherish their own series might have one cause to envy Casey though. Hard as he works, they work harder.

"For us," says Young, "there are no re-runs, no vacations. It's every day and new every day. I'm at my desk by 7 a.m. Three weeks off is a luxury I'd love... but there are really no vacations either."

Montana-born Young got into radio during his student days at the University of Indiana, went on to become very successful with a record-interview in New York. "Some of the movie people I met on the show talked me into trying acting. Since I hadn't done it before, it seemed fun. In films my role was always the same. This was World War II and I was the good boy in uniform."

Zoo Curator in Utah Killed By African Puff Adder Bite

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP)—The city zoo's curator, Jerry De Bary, 37, died today after hours of agony from the bite of the deadly African puff adder snake.

De Bary was bitten Saturday night when he suffered a dizzy spell after opening the snake's cage to clean it. He threw up his arm to catch himself and the snake struck. De Bary died at 6:30 this morning.

The venom attacks the nervous system, causing muscle spasm and paralysis. De Bary's heart stopped temporarily several times. Breathing was nearly impossible at times. A respirator had to be used, and a tracheotomy had to be performed in order to assure an easy opening for air.

Puff adder snake serum was flown by Navy jet from the San Diego, Calif., zoo. More was ordered from Southern Rhodesia. The puff adder is a native of South Africa and that's where the serum is made.

Sister Mary Gerald, superior at Holy Cross Hospital where De Bary was treated, telephoned her sister, Peggy Forester, in Salisbury, Southern Rhodesia, for more serum.

But De Bary, a native of Switzerland, died before it arrived.

As far as could be determined De Bary was the only person ever to be bitten by an African puff adder in the United States. Marlin Perkins, director of the St. Louis zoo, was bitten by a first cousin, the gaboon viper, 25 years ago and survived.

Perkins said, "I know what tremendous pain is involved. It is one of my most vivid memories. The pain is extensive and intense. It felt like a big weight on my chest and I wasn't able to breathe. And it felt like acid was eating inside me."

An associate described De Bary on Sunday as being conscious and "talking it calmly," although in severe pain.

Charles Shaw, curator of reptiles at the San Diego zoo, said the adder is one of the world's deadliest snakes and the most lethal snake in South Africa.

De Bary was working in the snake house alone. For some unknown reason he became dizzy after he opened the glass door of the puff adder's cage. He fell forward, but caught his arm to catch himself. The adder sank both its fangs into his left forearm.

Car Hits Column, Driver Killed

EAST HARTFORD (AP)—Valeric Deschenes, 48, of 9 Hammer St. East Hartford, was killed today when his car went out of control on Rt. 15 and struck an overpass support.

Deschenes was thrown out of the car by the impact. He was dead at the scene, state police said.

The accident occurred at the Simmons Rd. overpass.

U.S. Sues Unions

HARTFORD (AP)—The government has started legal proceedings against the Hartford Building and Construction Trades Council of Hartford and vicinity and 11 union locals to stop them from carrying on alleged illegal activities at the Springfield Sugar Co. refrigeration warehouse under construction in Suffield.

A complaint against them has been filed in U.S. District Court by Bernard L. Alpert, regional director, First Region of the National Labor Relations Board. It was learned today.

It stemmed from charges of unfair labor practices that were lodged with the NLRB by Morris & Associates, Inc., Raleigh, N.C., the construction contractors who have been erecting the warehouse.

The unions are not currently certified as representatives of Morris employees and have not filed any charges that Morris has unlawfully recognized or assisted any labor organization, it was alleged.

The charge claimed the unions have threatened and coerced "persons engaged in commerce" and subcontractors to prevent them from doing business with Morris & Associates.

Also, it was claimed, the unions have picketed to prevent neutral employers and employees from dealing with Morris and have asked employees of subcontractors not to work for their employers at the Suffield job.

Further, it was claimed, various "coercive telephone statements" have caused the "cessation" of contracts with four subcontractors—Freedman Roofing Co., Springfield, Mass.; B. J. Harland Electrical Co., Longmeadow, Mass.; Northern Heating & Supply Co., Newington, Conn.; and Kalmus Floor Co., Wellesey, Mass.

Sought by the government is a court order against the picketing and other activities.

Fuel Problem Stalls Saturn Super Rocket

CAPE KENNEDY (AP)—A fueling problem in the first stage today forced a 48-hour postponement, until Wednesday of an attempt to launch the Saturn I super-rocket which is intended to orbit the world's heaviest satellite.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration called off the shot after the launching crew tried nearly three hours to correct a block in a fuel line which feeds liquid oxygen to the booster stage.

The trouble cropped up at 3:45 a.m. Earlier, a leak in a second-stage hydrogen fuel line had delayed the firing 35 minutes and pushed the launch time past the intended 10 a.m. liftoff.

The space agency statement said the obstruction in the first-stage fuel line apparently was a flange which had been used in a recent test and which had not been removed as intended. No other information was immediately available on the trouble.

A successful launching possibly could give the U.S. a lead over the Soviet Union in the race for space rocket power.

National radio and television networks planned live coverage of the launching.

Earlier this month, Dr. Hugh L. Dryden, deputy chief of the space agency, said "we are drawing very close" to the Russians in rocket power and "as soon as the Saturn satellite has been placed in orbit we will have relieved this deficiency in weight-carrying ability we've labored under so long."

The rocket, 164 feet tall and weighing 562 tons, is the first in the Saturn I series with a live lift-off.

U.S. Brands French Move 'Unfortunate'

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Nationalist China denounced France's recognition of Communist China tonight but refrained from severing diplomatic relations with the French government.

A formal protest was dispatched to the government of President Charles de Gaulle in Paris.

The action by the Nationalist Chinese came after an extraordinary session of the Cabinet.

There had been hints that the government might break off relations with Paris.

Government officials in talks to newsmen denounced the French move as unwise, unfriendly and illogical. They said it would weaken the world front against communism and damage the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

The announcement that France was extending recognition came as no surprise to Taipei. But Red China's agreement to extend recognition to France dashed Nationalist hopes for a possible means of saving face.

Nationalist officials had held to the aim hope that Peking would delay recognition of France because of its long announced opposition to a two-China policy. This is the diplomatic recognition of both the Communist and Nationalist governments.

PARIS (AP)—France officially recognized the Communist Chinese regime in Peking today. Peking radio made a similar announcement.

The French announcement said the two governments had agreed to establish diplomatic relations and to exchange ambassadors.

Peking radio said France and Red China have agreed to appoint ambassadors to each other within three months.

In Washington, the U.S. State Department called France's recognition of Peking "an un-

Mutinuous Troops Disarmed By British in East Africa

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP)—British troops kept peace in a restive East Africa after disarming mutinuous native soldiers in the young Commonwealth nations of Kenya, Tanganyika and Uganda.

British and African officers questioned the rebellious troops in the three neighboring countries, trying to find out if there was a master plan behind the upheavals. All erupted last week in the wake of the Communist Soviet coup that toppled the Sultan of Zanzibar.

A spokesman at the British East Africa Command post in Nairobi said no evidence has been found to indicate the mutinies were part of an overall rebellion, but investigations were continuing.

The mutineers in Kenya, Tanganyika and Uganda were all former members of the Queen's African Rifles who had served under the British flag until the three territories gained independence. After independence, some British officers remained at the three governments' request to train and command the troops. The mutinies stemmed from demands for removal of those officers and for higher pay.

A spokesman in London for Britain's Commonwealth Ministers denied Soviet charges that Britain plans to invade Zanzibar to overthrow the revolutionary regime. The spokesman said Britain never had any intention of intervening in Zanzibar.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev warned that any forcible acts toward the leftist regime on the spice island would bring "damaging consequences." The Soviet statement omitted the usual rocket rattling and made no mention of Tanganyika, Uganda or Kenya, whose African leaders have been urging British troops to help keep order.

More than 3,500 British troops maintained order in the three East African nations after lightening weekend moves that caused the deaths of four African soldiers. Three were killed when commandos quelled a new mutiny Saturday at a barracks outside Dar es Salaam, the Tanganyikan capital. The other was killed when British troops put down an uprising Friday night at a camp in Kenya.

Seventeen persons were killed in Tanganyika last Monday in the mutiny.

Turnpike Debt Fading

HARTFORD (AP)—The Connecticut Turnpike has produced a surplus of income over debt service charges for the fourth straight year.

State Finance and Control Commissioner George Coniting predicted as he released the figures for 1963 Saturday that this year the overall financing deficit will finally be eliminated.

Traffic for the New York World's Fair should boost revenue substantially this year, he said.

The deficit stood at $7,009,773 on Jan. 1, 1960, after the turnpike had been in operation two years. Surpluses for 1960, 1961, and 1962 were $1,000,000, $1,500,000, and $2,000,000, respectively.

Santa Maria Creates Stir In Borough

By LARRY FRIEDMAN
NEW YORK (AP)—In 1492 when Columbus sailed the ocean blue, times were hard but problems were simple—rough weather, uncharted courses and mutiny.

Well, at least they were relatively simple as compared to navigating the streets of New York in Sunday traffic.

Early Sunday, a replica of the Santa Maria, Columbus' flagship, set out from Flushing bay on a five-mile journey through the borough of Queens.

Aided and abetted by 99 assorted experts—11 more than Columbus' reluctant heroes—it made port at a parking lot on the World's Fairgrounds, in late afternoon.

But there, alas, it became beleaguered in soft asphalt and there the 90-foot, 100-ton ship must stay for a week. Next Sunday it

LBj Offers Plan To Help Suburbs

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson extended a helping hand today to fast-growing suburban communities swamped by demands for "new classrooms, uncounted miles of new streets and utility lines, and an unprecedented volume of water and sewerage facilities."

He asked Congress to provide federal grants and loans to local governments and private developers so that future expansion won't be carried out, as it often has in the past, "in a sprawling, space-consuming unplanned and uneconomic way."

This was the major new proposal in the President's message to Congress on housing and community development, but he also had a few new wrinkles in the older, established programs such as public housing and urban renewal.

These variations included plans to buy and rent existing housing for public housing purposes and new aid for those ousted by urban renewal projects.

Johnson outlined to Congress a comprehensive program to achieve the goal he set shortly after taking office last fall: "A decent home for all Americans."

He called for expanded public housing and urban renewal, and new programs to help provide homes for farmers and migratory farm workers.

In the first major housing legislative proposal since 1961, Johnson renewed some old demands of the late President John F. Kennedy.

He called for creation of a Cabinet-level department of housing and community development and urged Congress to act swiftly on a mass transit bill, already passed by the Senate and awaiting House action.

Johnson promises Negroes that his administration "will continue and strengthen its efforts to translate the pledge" made by Kennedy in his 1962 order against discrimination in federally assisted housing "into meaningful practice."

However, he didn't mention any plans to extend the order to conventionally financed housing, as some civil rights advocates have urged.

On the two biggest programs in the housing field, Johnson:

—Asked authorization of 50,000 additional public housing units for each of the next four years. The 1961 act authorized 100,000 units spread over three years.

The President also asked authority to lease 10,000 existing housing units a year for four

Woman Missionary Killed By Rebel Arrow in Congo

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—An American woman missionary has been killed and another wounded by rebels waging war on Christian missions in the central Congo government province of Kwilu.

The central government said it had documentary proof the rebels, led by former Education Minister Pierre Mulele, are supported by Red China.

The government declared a state of emergency in Kwilu Province and rushed 400 soldiers into the region. It said important measures would be taken, "the nature of which will be revealed at an opportune moment."

Irene Ferrel, 45, of Eagle Butte, S.D., was reported killed by a rebel's arrow during a raid on a Baptist mission at the village of Mangungu, 300 miles southeast of Leopoldville.

The Congo Inland Missionary in Leopoldville reported that Ruth Hage, 58, of Wellington, Ohio, also attached to the Mangungu station, was wounded. Latest reports indicated she was still in the area.

The guerrillas killed three Roman Catholic priests last week.

Seven American missionaries and two children were removed by U.N. helicopters Friday from Kandaile, in southern Kwilu, after guerrillas burned their station.

The Rev. Peter Buller of Mountain Lake, Minn., who fled with his wife and two children from their mission 20 miles northwest of Mangungu, said he spotted Miss Ferrel signaling for help last Wednesday when she flew over her mission. She could only be reached from the air by helicopter because there is no landing strip.

"She and her friends were out on the lawn," he said. "Then we got a letter telling us she was dead—killed by an arrow."

Another missionary, Bertha Miller of Glendale, Calif., arrived in Leopoldville Sunday and said planes spotted Miss Hage waving for help.

Miss Miller said she was forced to flee from her mission in Kamayala after rebels set fire to grass in the area and the flames threatened the station. Mulele's forces were reported to be in the area.

'Old Soldier' Hailed at 84

NEW YORK (AP)—Douglas MacArthur was hailed by President Johnson on the general's 84th birthday as "one of the authentic American heroes of this century."

MacArthur, who turned 84 Sunday, received a delegation of five cadets from the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y., in his Waldorf Towers suite. He told them the praise being heaped upon him was "a little extravagant, as far as I'm concerned."

The general of the Army—a five-star title—added: "High honors have come my way, but I shall believe the greatest honor was being a West Point cadet. The Military Academy taught me many things, some of them not within the covers of books written by any man."

As he displayed a congratulatory telegram from the President, MacArthur recalled that Johnson had been one of his officers in the Southwest Pacific during World War II.

"I remember the day I decorated him with the Silver Star," the general said, "for his coolness and courage during an air mission in New Guinea."

"Had I known at the time that he was to become president, I would have looked after his welfare better than I did. But he seemed well able to take care of himself."

Johnson's telegram read: "Your country sends you, with affection and warmest prayers for God's blessing on your 84th birthday. You are one of the authentic American heroes of this century. On behalf of the American people, please accept the

EARN $1.5 BILLION
NEW YORK (AP)—General Motors Corp. in 1963 earned $1,592,000,000, a sum never before equaled in a calendar year by any U.S. corporation. Sales, likewise a record, totaled $1.65 billion, GM reported today. In summarizing what in many ways was an unprecedented year in the automobile industry, GM also reported new high marks in car and truck production, payroll, dividends paid, and profit per share of common stock. The only earnings achievement approaching the GM 1963 figure was the $1,474,000,000 in net income reported by American Telephone and Telegraph Co. for the 12 months ended Nov. 30. AT&T has not yet given its figures for calendar 1963. In 1962, GM, the world's largest manufacturing concern, set its previous high of $1,459,000,000 in profits and $1.4 billion in sales.

REFUTES BARRY
WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara told Congress today that he has no hesitancy whatever about the dependability of U.S. missiles. They are even more dependable for reaching targets than manned bombers, he said. His testimony to the House Armed Services Committee was in effect a reply to questions raised about missile dependability by Sen.
