EDITOR'S NOTE — Re-publishing has centered on Johnson's handling of foreign policy toward the Reds, particularly in Viet Nam and Cuba. Both issues are likely to be major election day.

In South Viet Nam, where more than 50,000 American servicemen are committed to help stamp out Red guerrillas, all agree the situation is serious and unlikely to clear up soon.

Johnson's new assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern Affairs, William F. Bundy has "deteriorated" since last September, Secretary of State Dean Rusk says there has been a slight improvement.

Republicans have served notice that foreign policy will be an issue. Democrats are arming for re-election.

The potential range of debating points is as wide as the world. So far the political spectrum has been limited to the Viet Nam story.

Cuba is close to the American mind. Fidel Castro is a major issue.

Other world issues have re-emerged. The Cuban situation is being replaced by the White House.

Friday, March 6. It is important—much more than any of the sequence of surface events will make it seem—that the Cyprus issue finally did go to the United Nations.

No Veto, No Gimmick. There were possible cold war reasons, which never were admitted openly.

The President As Mourner. What the President of the United States does is never just his own business, so this seems the opportune moment to suggest that he has now been provided with a logical, graceful and all-most urgent set of reasons for abandoning his wondrously nice gesture of serving as chief mourner at the funeral of the West on the island of Cyprus.

But the only open reason ever given for trying to steer the problem of Cyprus away from the United Nations was the one that, if the problem did not go to the Security Council, Russia would use its presence there, its threat of a veto, and its membership in the United Nations itself to prevent the United States from its way into any United Nations activity in Cyprus.

Against such fears the argument was made, in these columns, that it was about time everybody, including Russia itself, be called upon to acknowledge responsibility to the United Nations and decisions with just such routine and philosophy and, it could be, occasionally stormy controversy as the individual states of the American federal union accept their role in the United Nations.

For the fact that the problem of Cyprus did finally come to the United Nations on its own merit, we suppose, the other obstinacy of President Mikoyan, who kept on refusing approval of other solutions.

But the problem did get to the Security Council. In the Security Council, the final adoption of the resolution by which the United Nations takes responsibility for the future maintenance of order in Cyprus and the mediation toward some more permanent solution, came by a vote of 11 to 0.

Russia did not veto. Russia did not win any role for itself in the mission to Cyprus. There was no Communist gimmick written in the UN plan.

Both Russia and the United States, in the result, will stay out of Cyprus. That is a good thing, for neither of them has the slightest right to be there, as a nation.

What will go to Cyprus is a multinational, international force, under the direction of an international civil servant, Secretary General. That, it will serve, no world faction or ideology. Its job will be peace, a peace for now, but the heads for a peace more lasting and abundant. There may seem to be a limit to the number of such jobs, but the United Nations can take on, with an excellent chance of success, but that limit has not yet been reached. The limit is the number of such situations which can be resolved by purely national or purely nationalistic ideas, which reached long, long ago.

Dundead Avoided. We give early credit for the most refreshing political headline of the year to the August New York Times. The headline in question read as follows: "Nixon Iterates 'Is Available'".

The "freshening" thing about this headline, the thing that makes it something new and informational, something that all of us had learned before, is its quite proper and yet quite unexpected use of the word "iteration". It is the simplest form, without the abundance that would have been involved if the Times had yielded to the normal temptation to produce its "iteration" with the usual "re".

Living It Cool

The Soviet Academy of Sciences has just published a conjecture by Stalin Prize winner Prof. Boris E. Poyanov, that the "abominable man" occasionally reported in the Buran mountains are actually surviving remnants of the historically recorded Neanderthal man, who seemed to have boasted civilization about 75,000 years ago to about 25,000 years ago.

At about that time, presumably, the Neanderthal man began to glimpse what civilization is like in the hot valleys of the earth, and delegated one particular Neanderthal family to begin acclimating itself to the business of living in conditions of extreme cold. And sure enough, just as a twentieth century Russian biologist named Lyenko, was to demonstrate with plants, you can pass on acquired characteristics, and, in the course of 10,000 or 20,000 years there was a Neanderthal creature who could live on Mt. Everest, without wearing clothes, and who, if brought down to more temperate climates, as the Russians did with one they captured during World War II, would immediately perspire heavily. And so, except for an occasional footprint not blown away quickly enough by mountain gusts and snow, the abominable man now lives in lonely grandeur, self-sufficiency, and perfect peace.

We are afraid that, in the rarefied atmosphere of this discussion, we have mixed a few ideas and surmises of our own with those advanced by Professor Poyanov. We brought in Lyenko because as the author of Professor Poyanov's conjecture, he is the right creature to exist on the kind of climate-restating vegetables Lyenko has been developing. We assume, rather than guarantee, that the man, wherever they are, are peaceful in character, and successful in their efforts to avoid all the complicated evils that attend building up in more temperate climates.

But in one respect, we wish to yield clear title to the Russians. We of the West have long been busy, and busy considering their culture something grim and humorous; we credit them with all ways taking themselves seriously, we would be afraid to try jokes with them. But the only real difference between us is that sometimes they can tell a taller tale with a straighter face than we can.

Inside Report

by Rowland Evans Jr. and Robert D. Novak

WASHINGTON—With campaign time drawing near, some of the people's representatives and their aides are ready to think that their noses are again at the end of their own tails. The law is the Court Practice Act, passed by Congress in 1925, in an effort to police campaign spending. Operating on the theory that full disclosure has a therapeutic effect, Congress required a public record of campaign contributions who gives them and who gets them.

It doesn't quite work. Instead of revealing big campaign contributors, it often merely shows the agency who handled the money for the big boys. Usually this agent is a lobbyist. Sometimes he is an aide of Congress or the Administration. This was particularly true in the case of the Senate Democratic Campaign Committee during the closing days of the 1962 campaign. Some $4,000 in contributions it received came from men on the government payroll, most of whom were at the level of $1,100 a year, and no outside income. In other words, the money came from other sources. The government's $1,100 a year served as a courtesy.

It's well known that political fund raising favors cold cash. No checks, no bank amounts reported as contributions. And the amount is only a fraction of the cash actually changing hands. The public record reveals only the top of the iceberg.

Alvin (Matty) Matthews, treasurer of the campaign committee, $500 on Oct. 26 and another $500 on Oct. 28 and another $500 on Oct. 31, 1962. Lawrence P. O'Brien, White House aide in charge of the presidential campaign, $1,000 on Oct. 26. Michael Maniot, O'Brien's assistant for Senate legislation, $1,000 on Oct. 26. One of these couriers has a modest explanation: "A lot of people want to give money, but don't want their names on the public record for tickets and arrests then and they threaten the truck driver's living. All truck drivers know that for a $100 minimum you can get a license, and won't give you the ticket if you are too much to handle. They are excited over their union president trying to buy a jury when they don't see the same thing with the police."

O'Rourke wasn't seeing anybody yesterday. "I just don't want to get involved at all so I don't say anything," he told my friend.

Do later, a call was put through to Jimmy Hoffa, the big former Teamster Organizer who knows O'Rourke a little better. Once, during water-front troubles, Jimmy and O'Rourke were walking out of a banquet at the Manhattan Club and the minute they hit the sidewalk the shooting started. Jimmy caught one in the head and was out of it. Baker was hit in the shoulder and was out of it.

"Put down that got hit in the include because Jimmy got Santa Anna's forces after 13 days of bitter fighting. No other veterans were permitted among the wounded and the victims in the hospital. The hospital was run by Davy Crockett and James A. Bowie."

On this date in 1835, the Alamo at San Antonio, Tex., finally was captured by Mexican Gen. Santa Anna's forces after 13 days of bitter fighting. No other veterans were permitted among the wounded and the victims in the hospital. The hospital was run by Davy Crockett and James A. Bowie.

"In a way, they're right when they say nothing is going to be done about the leadership. Hoffa ran tomorrow, in the closest supervised election you could have, he would win $20 million. If Hoffa were elected, you could have a union man as president. Do you know why? Because Hoffa is a truck driver's outlaw."

"What's a truck driver's national enemy?" The police, of course. The cops give them

the power mower that mows, cleans and mulches - in one operation

In both push-type and self-propelled ORBIT-AIR models, an exclusive feature circulates grass clippings in an orbit chamber until they're cut to hay particles. These fine particles are then blown close to the ground to give nourishment to growing grass.

When you use an ORBIT-AIR, your lawn is beautifully mowed... and clean as a carpet. The ORBIT-AIR is an excellent leaf-mulcher, too.

Self-Propelled Model - ORBIT-AIR's orbit chamber is completely enclosed - eliminates danger from objects hooked by blades.

Choose the 3-1/2 Deluxe (push-type) ORBIT-AIR, or the 3-1/2 hp Self-Propelled ORBIT-AIR. We have them... See us today.

LaBelle Argues Case Before High Court

State's Attorney John D. LaBelle argued before the Supreme Court of the United States yesterday in a case involving a Hartford gambler who seeks the protection of the Fifth Amendment of the Constitution in a state proceeding.

The case was brought to the high court by William Malloy, who was convicted of contempt by Judge Charles E. House in Superior Court in January 1962.

The conviction grew out of Malloy's refusal to answer questions in a one-man grand jury investigation. It attempted to invoke the privilege against self-incrimination.

The Supreme Court of Errors of Connecticut upheld the conviction by Judge House and the appeal was taken to the top court of the nation.

Arguments before that court yesterday hinged on two points: whether the standards required by the Fifth amendment in federal proceedings should be extended to state proceedings, and whether Malloy was treated according to those standards in any case.

MacArthur Doctor Reports No Cancer

Other chief surgeon was Col. Thomas J. Whelan.

Gen. Heaton told a reporter before the operation that the objective of surgery was to make the procedure as brief as possible.

The assisting surgeons were Capt. Robert Brown and Capt. Gary Wratton, and the anesthesiologist, Col. John A. Jencks, all of the Associated Press Thursday there is a possibility that MacArthur's "obscure" which has caused the yellowing of the general's skin — due only to lodging of gallstones in the so-called common bile duct.

The latter is a tube that receives bile—a body fluid needed for the digestion of food in the intestine—from smaller tubes derived from both the gallbladder and the liver.

Gallstones, formed by the crystallization of bile in the gallbladder, is a fairly common human ailment—occurring in about 20 per cent of women and 10 per cent of men prior to age 60.

Sometimes one or more of the stones—which range in size from that of a pea to that of a hen's egg—can stray from the gallbladder and become lodged in the gallbladder to the common bile duct, or in this latter duct itself.

If a stone gets lodged in the common bile duct, the entire flow of bile from both the gallbladder and the liver can be blocked. The backing up of bile into the blood means one of the possible causes of jaundice.

Heaton insisted that the removal of a stone from the pear-shaped gallbladder is a relatively simple procedure.

However, while Heaton did not say so, an obstruction in the bile-carrying system also could be caused by a cancer invasion of either the gallbladder, one of the ducts, the head of the pancreas which lies close to the

Obituary

Mrs. Mary A. Nunn, 82, of Brookline, Conn., mother of Mrs. Service S. Hillard of 28 Park St., died today in Brooklyn, N.Y.

She was formerly identified with the fortunes of her country in the long, hard march from Italian-German occupation to the Marshall Plan, economic stabilization and increasing prosperity.

She was a big, rugged and kindly woman who had endeavored to make herself acquainted to his people.

Paul traveled the length and breadth of the land. He took long and frequent hikes, and he was always ready to assist the needy. His activities today extended over every field of social welfare in the country.

He was a soldier, sailor, miner, legislator, sportsman and scholar. From the outset of his reign he displayed his military knowledge, as commander in chief of Greece's armed forces, and as an active role in putting down the Red rebellion. He led troops in the field at different times during the three-year uprising, often going out to the most advanced positions along the line of fighting.

Later, when the Cypriot struggle was in progress, he was the major Greek national spokesman for an end to British rule in Cyprus.

Mr. Nunn died at his home at 1810 Independence St., 1800, at 8:15 a.m. after a long illness. He was 84 years of age and was a member of the St. Bernard's Church.

He was survived by three sons, Armand LeBlond of Norwich, and Paul LeBlond and Leonard LeBlond, both of Tolland; four daughters, Mrs. Germaine Palmato of Rockville, Mrs. Albert Breton of Crystal Lake, and Mrs. Fred Wingard and Mrs. Frank Triska, both of Stratford.

His personal preference to influence events.

Mrs. Hill was born in Stratford, Conn., and was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mahoux of Crystal Lake.

She had lived here for the past 45 years. She was a member of St. Bernard's Church.

King of Greece Dies at 62, Constantine Takes Throne

Constantine was scheduled to marry next January.

Queen Frederika is destined to move out of the public foreground in the affairs of the Greek royal family. But does she know her exact role to remain a major influence behind the throne.

Constantine and Frederika, the king's wife, were married in 1934. They have a daughter, Helen, who is married to Prince Juan Carlos of Spain. They have a baby daughter, Helen, who is married to Prince Juan Carlos of Spain. They have a baby daughter, Helen, who is married to Prince Juan Carlos of Spain.

Two controversial positions were held by the king: director of police and five chiefs of the labor under his proposed consolidation efforts.

It is generally believed that the king's stand to show that because five district officials were not elected with the provisions for the two offices.

Members of the three district courts, the king's wife, reportedly have wide political influence. Both chambers were approved by city residents but failed in the rural area of Vermont.

Darwin Case Counsel Argue Over Evidence

girl disappeared was not answered. Mrs. John G. Rothwell, mother of the slain girl, testified Thursday she called Darwin's house at that time but received no answer. Darwin, she said, responded to a call made shortly after 2 a.m.

Defense Attorney Ross argued, his voice raised, that a spot of blood on Darwin's shirt did not mean a crime had been committed. He pointed out that the FBI report did not identify the blood.

Darwin's wife, she said, had nothing to do with the murder. What discrepancy is there, she asked, between the blood on Darwin's shirt and the blood on the floor? Darwin's wife and four children were home and could have answered the first telephone call made to Darwin's house. He suggested that Mrs. Rothwell called a wrong number the first time.

But State Counsel Grotti said the state had shown there was enough information prior to the December seizure of the car. Darwin drove that night to support the possibility of a crime.

Judge Louella overruled the objection, but during the afternoon session Defense Attorney Ross argued for admission of the lantern in the trial.

The judge finally ruled that the lantern be marked for identification in the evidence room and placed in his chambers. The defense in that case argued for its admission at a later point in the trial.

The judge later in the afternoon when the state tried to introduce an exhibit, Attorney Robert Baum, a commissioner of the court, said that the state had not introduced the lantern in the trial.

The defense in that case argued for its admission at a later point in the trial.

Mrs. Rothwell said that she had seen the car on the night of the murder.

Legion of Honor

Large sparkling eyes that are sometimes gray, sometimes green, dark curly hair and a happy smile are the characteristics of this week's female legionnaire, Miss Nancy Beeg. During her high school years, Nancy has contributed her time to many activities with the opinion that it is better to have a class of 40 taught by a mathematically trained person than to have a class of 20 taught by someone who has only had a high school education in mathematics as a preparation.

Body of General MacArthur Reposes in New York Chapel

To Lie in State In U.S. Capitol

NEW YORK (AP)—Flags flew at half staff today as the body of General of the Army MacArthur reposed in a funeral chapel attired in a simple khaki tropical uniform without any of the medals and ribbons earned in his military lifetime.

At the general's coffin was an honor guard of all the military services. Twenty policemen stood outside while many men and women, on their way to work, paused briefly in front of the funeral home where they knew the body of the Old Soldier reposed.

It was part of the nation's homage to the 84-year-old warrior who died Sunday at 2:39 p.m. at Walter Reed Army Hospital in Washington, D.C., after a gallant struggle to survive three operations.

At the chapel today, only the family and close associates could view the body. The casket, the upper portion open half-way, rested on a black-draped catafalque.

Tuesday, at the 7th Regiment Armory on Park Avenue, the casket will remain open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. so the public can pay their last respects to the man who helped make history at St. Mihiel, Bataan, Corregidor, New Guinea, Manila, Tokyo and Inchon.

At noon today, the traditional 19-gun salute for a five-star general booms out over New York harbor from Ft. Jay on Governor's Island, facing the southern tip of Manhattan.

On Wednesday, the body will be returned by train to Washington. From 8:30 that afternoon until noon Thursday it will lie in state in the Capitol rotunda, where so recently the body of the martyred President John F. Kennedy also reposed.

Then, by military plane it will be flown to the naval city of Norfolk, Va., for funeral services in St. Paul's Episcopal church and burial in the MacArthur Memorial nearby. All along the funeral journey there will be the military pageantry reserved for the nation's great.

The general had expressed a wish to be buried in Norfolk, to be buried with his mother, former Mary Pinckney Hardy, was born, reared and married. The city has fashioned, out of a 14-year-old courthouse, a memorial to MacArthur, a museum for his memorabilia, and a mausoleum for his remains.

There are the famous crumpled campaign hat, with its scrambled eggs insignia, and one of the corn-cob pipes that were his trademark.

There, too, above the tomb that will receive him, is this inscription: "In twenty campaigns, on a hundred battlefields, around a thousand campfires, in long years of peace as well as war, a soldier who tried to do his duty as God gave him the light to see that duty."

Messages of sorrow at MacArthur's death.

Alignment Plan Trims 16 Towns Off 1st District

HARTFORD (AP)—Connecticut's first congressional district, comprising 29 towns in Hartford County, would be reduced to 13 cities and towns under a plan being discussed by Democratic and Republican leaders.

Democratic Chairman John M. Bailey and Republican Chairman A. Searle Pinney will resume negotiations this week, probably Wednesday in an effort to reach accord on a congressional redistricting proposal.

The aim is to abolish the present post of congressman at large and divide the state into six districts of nearly equal population.

Since the ideal formula is a population of 425,000 for each district, the present first district with a population of 689,000 would have to be reshaped to transfer more than 200,000 people to another district.

The plan under consideration by political and legislative leaders would:

—Reduce the first district to a population of 422,000 by narrowing the district to 13 communities including Hartford, West Hartford, East Hartford, Manchester, Glastonbury, Wethersfield, Rocky Hill, Newington, Bloomfield, Windsor, South Windsor, East Windsor, and Marlborough.

—Remove from the first district and transfer to a proposed new sixth district Enfield, Suffield, Granby, Hartland, Windsor Locks, Simsbury, Canton, Avon, Farmington, Burlington, Bristol, Plainville, New Britain, Berlin and Southington.

These 16 Hartford County towns along with Waterbury and virtually all Litchfield County would make up the new sixth district, along with New Fairfield, Brookfield and Sherman. The latter three towns are now part of the fourth (Fairfield County) district.

The second district east of the Connecticut River would be unchanged.

The third district in the New Haven region would lose Cheshire, Milford, and Bethany to a revised fifth district. Also added to the fifth would be several towns from the fourth district which now has a population of 653,000. These towns include Stratford, Trumbull, Easton, Redding, Ridgefield, Danbury, Bethel, Newtown, Monroe, and Shelton.

The present fourth district in Fairfield County now comprising more than 20 towns would be reduced to 10 including Bridgeport.

The more than 10 towns that would be lost by the fourth district would be transferred to the revamped fifth district.

LODGE LEADS POLL

NEW YORK (AP)—Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge has moved into first place in the preference of the nation's Republican voters, the Gallup Poll reports. In a nationwide survey completed before his victory in the New Hampshire primary, Lodge was first choice of only 16 per cent of the rank and file of his party. Today he polls 42 per cent of the vote of this group, nationally, George Gallup says.

CYPRUS STRIFE

PAFYAMMOS, Cyprus (AP)—This small all-Greek Cypriot village hastily evacuated all its inhabitants today as Turkish Cypriots began pounding it with mortar and machine gun fire from commanding positions on an adjacent mountain ridge. A small group of the Greek Cypriot National Guard supported by a homemade armored car and an armored bulldozer fought to keep Turkish Cypriots from coming down the mountain and overrunning the village. This development came on the fourth day of continuous fighting between Greek and Turkish Cypriots in northwest Cyprus. U.N. British para-troopers who had been trying to negotiate a lasting cess-

Grieving Japanese Lead World Salute

TOKYO (AP)—A saddened Japan led the world tribute today to General of the Army Douglas MacArthur, its war-time conqueror who led it to peace, prosperity and democracy.

A sense of sorrow also swept the Philippines and South Korea, two other Asian nations in whose destinies MacArthur was deeply involved, at the news of his death.

The Japanese government sent the nation's most beloved elder statesman, former Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida, to represent Japan at MacArthur's funeral.

"I cannot forget the great achievement of the general in rebuilding our nation out of the ashes of defeat," said Yoshida. "Out of the stringent food shortages, out of the confusion of our political, economic and social systems, and out of the insecurity of men's hearts, MacArthur laid the foundations for a new Japan which became the

Doctors Held, Baby's Death Laid to Strike

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)—Belgian authorities arrested two physicians today after the death of a baby as Belgium's doctors' strike went into its sixth day.

Workers paraded in Liege protesting that the doctors were falling in their duty to humanity.

The 10,000 striking physicians held fast to their position and claimed they were being victimized financially by changes in Belgium's health insurance system.

Premier Theo Lefevre's coalition Cabinet scheduled a meeting today in a new effort to resolve the deadlock. Their chances of success seemed slim.

In Olen, in northern Belgium, the mayor, who is a physician, and a second doctor were arrested.

Controls on Pentagon Weak, Fulbright Says

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)—Sen. J. W. Fulbright, who only 12 days ago touched off an explosive debate on foreign policy, now says "the American people are not now exercising effective control over the military, and neither is the Congress."

The charge by the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in a speech Sunday night at the University of North Carolina seemed almost certain to stir another controversy—this time with the Pentagon.

The Arkansas Democrat's March 23 foreign policy speech ricocheted through both halls of Congress, the State Department and the White House. It still is drawing fire in some quarters.

His comments on the military came in a keynote speech to 1964 Carolina Symposium, a five-day series of lectures at the university on the topic "Arms

Nikita Blasts Red Chinese View of War

KAZINCBARCSKA, Hungary (AP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev declared today only a child or an idiot does not fear war and that people who think like the Red Chinese leaders about war are "overabundance of brains."

He said he thought U.S. President Johnson had similar views to those of the late President John F. Kennedy, which he called reasonable.

"The Chinese leaders say it would not be a bad thing to have a war — one-half of the people in the world would be destroyed and the other would survive," Khrushchev said in a speech to several thousand workers of a chemical plant in this northeastern Hungarian industrial center.

"They say that after some time women again would bear children and mankind would be as before. People who think like that do not show an overabundance of brains, but rather a lack of them."

Khrushchev said he had been accused by the Chinese of being afraid of war.

"I say it is only a child or an idiot who does not fear war," he declared. "If Hitler had known how World War II would end and that he would shoot himself, he probably would not have started the war."

Khrushchev made his remarks after discarding a prepared text.

"The United States is an imperialist country, but its government judges the world situation soberly," he said, and added that President Kennedy's speech at Washington University last summer in which Kennedy demanded a peaceful solution to East-West problems was a reasonable one.

"Some people have criticized me for praising this speech,"

Widow Calls Army Nurse, Gives Thanks

WASHINGTON (AP)—She wore a sweater over her white nurse's uniform against the coolness of the late afternoon. Her eyes were red with fatigue and sadness.

Since March 6, 2nd Lt. Bonnie Ritter had cared for the ailing Gen. Douglas MacArthur as recovery room nurse—and for the past two weeks, there had been little rest.

Now, she and her husband, Capt. Richard Ritter, an Army doctor, were going home. They had just been to Mass in the chapel at Walter Reed General Hospital.

So it was by accident that they became part of the crowd outside the hospital's east wing as the general's widow came out Sunday to begin the trip that would take her husband's body home to New York.

There were only a few minutes to wait before the olive green Army ambulance brought the flag-draped coffin. In those few minutes, Mrs. MacArthur saw the pretty, young nurse in the crowd.

Despite her own sadness, Mrs. MacArthur asked to speak to Bonnie Ritter.

She came forward hesitating.

GOP in Arkansas Hits Rockefeller State House Bid

Party leaders in other Southern states unanimously agreed that Rockefeller's decision, announced Saturday, is an indication of the growing Republican strength in the South.

But the Arkansas Republican chairman, William Spicer of Fort Smith, said barely four

Annual Rite For Town Taxpayers

This evening, at Wadwell School, the annual rite of a public hearing on the proposed budget for the next fiscal year will be conducted.

There are certain ceremonies which are traditionally part of the ritual.

It will be par for the course, to have the town's illustrious shadow cabinet on hand in full force, to operate at a length over the issue of the annual appraisal of the tax of the citizenry and by the kindness of the chairman's guest.

It will be par for the course for some citizen taxpayer to get up and ask whether Manchester, how high the ultimate rate, and hence some further plan for some consideration for people who want to be able to afford to continue to live in Manchester.

And perhaps there will be a few good people who will wish that they too could get up and say the same thing.

That about exhausts the annual ritual.

The hearing adjourns.

The shadow cabinet meets to assess how much confusion it has been able to spread.

The lonely taxpayer who dared speak in favor of some limit some day on the annual increase in taxes sinks home alone, unthanked and friendless.

The directors set themselves a schedule by which, after a few tasteful public remarks about trying to keep the increase down, and after a few secret meetings in which they try to figure out whether it is better, in an election year, to tax for spending or to borrow in disguise of spending, they wind up doing both.

Any significant deviation from this annual ritualistic routine will be received with some disbelief, and some gratitude, on the part of the great majority of Manchester people who have begun to think, perhaps correctly, that economy is a forlorn cause, even in an election year.

Poet Of War And Peace

General Douglas MacArthur's personal talents would have been likely to bring him distinction in almost any field; they were a special embellishment to the military profession.

As to his civilian career, in the absence of battle, that will be appreciated by military experts and in war colleges, for years to come. But what the layman always looks about is MacArthur as that there would be the inspirational bearing of the soldier, the property dramatic word for the proper historical moment, the stirring gesture to be caught by the camera as it could catch the eye of the history, the incomparable timing of the great actor and the great leader.

He was a man to sweep you off your feet, into unreserved admiration.

Sooner or later, indeed, he would sweep you off your feet and under his own spell no matter who or what you were.

You could take, from his famous address to Congress after his removal from command in Korea, his phrase about the old soldier, if you preferred melodrama. Or, if you were interested in the observation of a man who studied history to some point, you could take his much less frequently quoted remark, on the same occasion, about the geopolitical inevitability of a reappearance of the United States in the Far East.

You could take General MacArthur saying this of the United Nations: "It represents perhaps the noblest effort man has yet made to evolve a universal code based upon the highest of moral precepts. It became the keystone to an arch of universal hope."

You could take such words and sentiments about the United Nations and conclude that General MacArthur would be the ideal choice to become the first United Nations field commander in history, as he did in Korea. And then, of course, you would be puzzled by his failure to conduct himself as an international commander, or to visualize and conduct a United Nations type of aggression-halting action.

You could take General MacArthur's words handing post-war Japan its new constitution by which it forbade itself ever to maintain an army, and hear MacArthur saying that this represented for Japan the kind of security we would all have to seek, and then you could hear him talk, later on, of inevitable conflict in which there could be no substitute for victory.

Here was, in summary, a man who had the great word for almost every historic issue or occasion.

He could get your heart thumping to the roll and chapter of his own words of military glory, or he could make your spirit think that no man of peace ever described better the future of war than he did when, in the concluding moment of the greatest war ever fought, he stood on the deck of the battleship Missouri and received the surrender of the Japanese Empire.

"Military alliances, balances of power, leagues of nations," General MacArthur said then, in his own moment of greatest triumph, "all in turn failed, leaving the only path to be by way of the crucible of war."

"If we do not now devise some great and more equitable system Armageddon will be at our door."

"The problem basically is theological and involves a spiritual recrudescence and improvement of human character that will synchronize with our almost madly advanced scientific art, literature and all material and cultural developments of the past two thousand years."

"It must be of the spirit if we are to save the flesh."

A few months later, General MacArthur was still in the same vein of thought:

"No thoughtful man," he said, "will fail to recognize that with the development of modern science another war may blast mankind to perdition, but we hesitate, still we cannot, despite the yawning abyss at our feet, unshackled ourselves from the past. The responsibility of the childlike faith in the future—a faith that, as in the past, the world can somehow manage to survive yet another universal conflict, in the irresponsible faith lies civilization's gravest peril."

He was, of course, the poet of war and the poet of peace, as well, and himself revived that faith in the practicality of war which he himself could call childlike. But he never really doubted, in either field, the dominating importance of the intangible, whether it was something as theatrical as fair, or something as ultimate as an ideal for civilization.

With Powers To Seek

WASHINGTON — Any last doubts about Henry Cabot Lodge's desire to run for President were wiped away by his half-hearted effort to remove his name from the Oregon primary ballot.

Generally overlooked in the speculation about Lodge's win in New Hampshire is the fact that he actually sent a cablegram to Oregon authorities demanding that Oregon be a non-candidate. But the circumstances surrounding his cable made it plain that Lodge didn't really want out of the Oregon contest.

On Feb. 27, Oregon Secretary of State Howell Applegate sent a cablegram to Lodge in Saigon, where he is stationed as Ambassador to Viet Nam. Applegate informed Lodge that he could remove his name from the ballot by avowing that "I am not and do not intend becoming a candidate at the November election." Applegate also air-mailed Lodge making this disclaimer the deadline for Lodge's disavowal was March 8.

No reply came until March 11, Lodge's cable read: "Have just now seen your letter. In reply wish to state, I am not a candidate and I am precluded by Foreign Service regulations from engaging in any political activity."

Applegate couldn't believe that his cable to Lodge had been mislabeled in the Embassy at Saigon. He also noted that Lodge did not use the prescribed language for getting out of the ballot.

His conclusion: "That widely-held conclusion is reinforced by the activity of John Lodge, former Governor of Connecticut. He has been privately promoting his brother for President in political judicious around the country."

Republican Senators wish that Republican State Chairman Wirt Yergler of Mississippi would stop lobbying against the civil rights bill.

"To designate without delay special Ambassadors with sufficient power to seek the prompt elimination of the causes of conflict between the two countries, without limitations or preconditions of any kind."

In other words, Panama can't insist that anything be taken up; we can't refuse to take anything up; but we both can do either, notwithstanding; in any case, the "special ambassadors" have "sufficient powers to seek" but what does "seek" mean?

The important thing is that we have stopped the war of words and moved on to that fascinating part of seeking just how it might be that two independent nations could find a way of sharing sovereignty over the same piece of territory permanently and peacefully.

That the central problem, looks more impossible of solution today than ever before in world history. It used to be that the smaller nation, being no match for the big one in the matter of force, would accept its unequal fate in some spirit of resignation. Nowadays, however, there is a stronger moral and perhaps praiseworthy trend in the affairs of nations and this emboldens the small ones and restrains the big ones. There is not likely to be, so long as this rather touching and perhaps praiseworthy trend in the affairs of nations continues, any arrangement of any kind which makes Panama stop wanting us out, or avoids the likelihood that we will some day get out.

"To designate without delay special Ambassadors with sufficient power to seek the prompt elimination of the causes of conflict between the two countries, without limitations or preconditions of any kind."

In other words, Panama can't insist that anything be taken up; we can't refuse to take anything up; but we both can do either, notwithstanding; in any case, the "special ambassadors" have "sufficient powers to seek" but what does "seek" mean?

The important thing is that we have stopped the war of words and moved on to that fascinating part of seeking just how it might be that two independent nations could find a way of sharing sovereignty over the same piece of territory permanently and peacefully.

That the central problem, looks more impossible of solution today than ever before in world history. It used to be that the smaller nation, being no match for the big one in the matter of force, would accept its unequal fate in some spirit of resignation. Nowadays, however, there is a stronger moral and perhaps praiseworthy trend in the affairs of nations and this emboldens the small ones and restrains the big ones. There is not likely to be, so long as this rather touching and perhaps praiseworthy trend in the affairs of nations continues, any arrangement of any kind which makes Panama stop wanting us out, or avoids the likelihood that we will some day get out.

The motion to reconsider to the Editor:

I commended the members of the Charter Revision Commission for their insistence on the use of Robert's Rules of Order.

However, I wish they had followed the rules as enthusiastically as they debated them.

Then, debate would have been strictly impersonal.

Members who were opposed to the motion would have voted on it.

The fact that the motion to reconsider may be made at any time in a committee would have been stated, but without the addition of incorrect and irrelevant rulings.

The motion to reconsider would have been seen as being within the letter but not the spirit of the rules since the reasons given for making the motion raise serious doubt as to the good faith of the mover. It is not perplexing when a member seeks to change his vote because he now wants to vote according to the way he has "always felt."

This is not the first time, nor the last, I am sure, when a committee meeting is disrupted by a squabble over parliamentary rules when the squabble itself is caused by a complete departure from the rules over which the members are now squabbling.

What is our basic motive for obeying the commandment of God? It should not be fear of the consequences for disobedience but rather from a positive love of God that we obey. "Thou shalt not kill" is a commandment. There is a little punishment for disobeying this commandment. Perhaps that is why we break it so often. What we base our words on a strong love of God and His Holy ways — this is stronger motive for obedience.

Hearing at Waddell Tonight on Budget

The board of directors' hearing on General Manager Richard Martin's proposed 1964-65 budget will convene tonight at 8 at the auditorium of the Waddell School, 163 Broad St.

Up for discussion is the proposed $10,000,000 town budget—$6,220,225 for education and $2,737,337 for general government. The resultant tax rate of 43.5 mills, a 1.5 mill increase from the current tax levy.

Customarily about 200 persons attend the budget hearing, representing three interest groups.

The target bond, property owners and business leaders, urges a moratorium on tax increases and with the defeat of a proposed $450,000 bond referendum last fall behind them, the Democratic majority on the board will probably be disposed to listen to arguments.

But there is also likely to be a large bloc of PTA members urging that the proposed school budget increase be retained, or that cuts be restored. General Manager Martin has trimmed $143,000 from the board of education budget, and community representatives of town employees groups or individual town departments seeking an opportunity to support their budget requests.

The proposed budget was published in the Herald of March 31. Copies are available at the town clerk's office in the Municipal Building.

Trucker Blamed In Own Death

The death of Albert J. Donnarumma, 42 of Hevra, Mass., was the result of a collision with the rear of a tractor-trailer operated by Donnarumma.

Donnarumma died in an early morning accident Jan. 19 on Rt. 84.

According to Connor Ackerman, the accident occurred when a tractor-trailer operated by Donnarumma and owned by the A. Towle Co. of Charlestown, Mass., became disabled.

Donnarumma drove the rig into the Vernon Service Station on St. 84, called his firm, and Frederick Frank, began driving the defective vehicle away.

The tractor was hooked to the trailer and the mechanic driving a new tractor arrived.

Donnarumma, driving the tractor with the trailer in tow, gave Frank a push out of the service station area onto Rt. 84.

While the vehicles were moving slowly, the tractor-trailer operator, Fred Reginald D. Logan, 55, of Worcester, Mass., and owned by the M & M Transportation Co. of Somerville, Mass., pointed a nominating committee to the rear of the tractor.

Donnarumma died almost instantly, the other two men were injured.

The clearing Logan of any responsibility in the accident, the coroner said witnesses reported the rear lights of the tractor pushing the defective trailer were out and that Logan could not be expected to know of the situation.

Logan had a right to assume that a reasonable extent of visibility on the highway would observe the rules as to lights in the rear, by law prescribed. Ackerman said, "The proximity cause of the collision was the lack of lights in use on the rear of the tractor operated by Donnarumma."

She went on to suggest that the use of symbols of the church, such as candles and flowers, as a starting point, and told of incorporating appropriate symbols on feast days.

Prior to Mrs. Miller's talk, the Rev. Philip J. Hussey, pastor, and Mrs. William Manning, president of the Guild of Our Lady of St. Bartholomew, appointed a nominating committee for the approaching July elections. Those serving on the committee include Mrs. William Manning, Mrs. Ronald Gates, Mrs. Thomas Brown, Mrs. John Fillorano and Mrs. Richard Jennings.

Person to Person

A customer tale of an idea advanced by the author. Yanco Packard, which could be important to all of us and especially to young people who are serious about getting somewhere, to use the idea about Yanco Packard pointed out that now Stu Johnston says a person cannot make the simple choice between watching TV and reading a book because if just one member of the family decides to watch TV the resulting noise may discourage the rest of the family from any sustained reading. As a result, much really good book reading is being lost.

The kind that develops the individual, that contributes to a better society, is enjoyed by too few people. . . and he believes that what this means is loss to the individual and to our world as a whole cannot be imagined. Therefore his idea is that all homes should have the TV room soundproofed, or if that is not possible, to have the TV especially wired for induction into earplugs. He says it is certainly worth thinking about and his reactions we've heard are so favorable we thought we'd give you the idea about Yanco Packard. We are sure most everyone agrees with it, that it is a way to do business only with firms who have proven by the record that a price is always to be worthy of public respect and confidence. Widow Calls Army Nurse Gives Thanks

After the beheading was over by Army Surgeon General Leonard D. Heath. When she got to the limousine, behind the shelter of the open door, she saw the outstretched arms of Mrs. MacArthur. For one moment she embraced and kissed, and Mrs. Heath, and it was over. Then, as the limousine began to pull away, Bonnie backed away, suddenly aware of the cameramen, and where she was. Her husband took her by the arm and led her away.

Arthur chief of staff in 1951, and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, who was restored to his five-star rank after he left the presidency, and General of the Army Omar Bradley are the only five-star generals in the Army.

The nation's only five-star officer is First Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, who received his fifth star on Dec. 19, 1944.

At 9:30 Saturday morning, the funeral will be held at St. Paul's Episcopal church, which has stood for 225 years.

The memorial building was crowded with about 400 persons Sunday when, at 2:30 p.m., a telephone message informed that MacArthur was dead.

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—With scarcely two months ago, the city of Norfolk, port of the sailor home from the sea, opened its memorial to a supreme hero of the Army—Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Andover Annual Fair Slated May 2

The Andover annual fair, an annual event now called the Fair-1, will be held at the elementary school May 2.

The fair has grown to a one-stop means of acquiring entertainment, food, party stockpiling, plants for home and garden, books, and other items of service.

Mr. Martin Baker, chairman of the white stephan sale division, said that housewives engaged in spring cleaning for items they could contribute.

Already in progress is a ball sale. Interested persons may call Mrs. Raymond Stoner, Old State Rd.

The Town Development Commission (TDC) will meet at 8 o'clock in the hearing room of the Municipal Building to discuss plans for active participation in selling North End.

At its last meeting on March 12, the TDC had received the report and endorsement of the project, but several members criticized the poor selling job being done to acquire it.

Edward Ryzycki, executive director of the Manchester Redevelopment Commission, and Alexander Penney, chairman of the Citizens' Advisory Committee, will attend tonight's meeting.

Hal of Famer Ty Cobb played in only three World Series for the Detroit Tigers and had a batting average of .362.

Grieving Japanese Lead World Salute

Chung Hae Park said Koreans will remember MacArthur forever for "his contributions toward their independence and democracy."

"Not only the United States but the whole world has lost a great commander of soldiers and statesmen," Park said.

An Indian government spokesman said MacArthur was "one of those few great generals who proved themselves even greater administrators."

In Canberra, Australian Prime Minister Sir Robert G. Menzies said MacArthur was "undoubtedly a great soldier, a man of remarkable talents and personality and he has a assured place in Australian history."

MacArthur set up his command post in Australia after fleeing the Philippines shortly before the Japanese conquest.

British Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home described MacArthur as "one of the great soldiers of our time."

In Britain, in the darkest days of the war, we admired the courage and tenacity of purpose which brought him up from defeat at Corregidor to lead the Allied forces in the Pacific.

Another British Field Marshal, Lord Viscount Montgomery said, "MacArthur 'fought a wonderful campaign in the Pacific and was the best soldier the United States produced during World War II.'"
