Planting Urged In Renewal Plan

A suit of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce has urged that planting and landscaping be included as part of the proposed North End urban renewal project.

Dr. Charles E. Jacobson Jr., chairman of the Chamber's Beautification Committee, urged in a letter to the Manchester Redevelopment Agency (MRA) that site planning be developed as part of the renewal project that will add to the aesthetic value of the area.

"In the mind of the beautification committee," Dr. Jacobson says, "this is a golden opportunity to first, enhance the beauty of a brand new area, and second, to serve as an example to other areas in the community for them to follow."

Methodists March, Urge Stronger Anti-Bias Stand

PITTSBURGH (AP)—About 1,800 Methodist churchgoers from throughout the country staged a demonstration in downtown Pittsburgh today, saying their church's stand on integration is not positive enough.

The participants in the protest poured into the city Friday, where the General Conference of the Methodist Church is holding its quadrennial meeting.

They left and joined hands on sidewalks outside the arena and quietly sang hymns. No police were about.

The plan called for a transfer of the next four years of the church's central jurisdiction, which represents some 37,000 churches in the United States.

They are protesting the mood of the conference which was unwilling to move forthrightly for integration of the Methodist Church.

Immediately after Friday's vote, integrationists said they would push for a stronger program to be adopted at the conference next Friday.

The Rev. William H. James, a Negro delegate to the conference and pastor of New York's Methodist Episcopal Church, said he would like to see the church's stand on integration strengthened.

Plans for the special session of the legislature were announced before the court ruled on the case.

The court later postponed a hearing on the case until May 19 to allow the General Assembly time to pass a redistricting bill.

The assembly created six districts ranging in population from 404,201 to 482,135.

By calling up a new jury trial amendment as the pending business, Under Senate rules, it cannot be displaced without a two-thirds vote.

Morton's proposal is a reduced version of the jury trial amendment of Sen. Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., for which the Southern have been battling.

As it came from the House, the pending bill contained no jury trial provision for criminal contempt cases brought out of the state.

The Talmadge amendment would guarantee jury trials in all criminal contempt cases, whether arising under the bill or any other law, except for those committed in the presence of the judge.

Police Arrests

Robert Kiemas, 22, of 485 Adams St., at about 4:30 a.m. today was charged with breach of the peace, following a complaint to police of an incident at the Kiemas home after he had consumed some liquor. The case has been set down for appearance in Circuit Court 12 here on May 18. Police reported that Kiemas, who was due to appear in court on Monday on another breach of the peace charge, was taken to the State Hospital at Norwich for observation and treatment.

Thomas Peter Heisen, 16, of 52 Wells St., last night shortly before midnight, was charged with intoxication after police found him staggering along Center St. at Main St. and shouting at passing motorists. The youth, who Thursday posted a $100 bond on a larceny count (the alleged theft of a bottle of whiskey from Quinn's Pharmacy on Main St.), early today posted a $25 bond on the drinking count and the case was set down for appearance in court May 18.

Donald Edward Jorgensen, 18, of 23 W. Gardner St., last night was charged with intoxication. Police reported they found the youth leaning over a wall in a parking lot off Center St. Unable to post bond, Jorgensen was taken to the State Jail at Hartford to await presentation in Circuit Court 12 Monday.

Richard E. Martin, 26, of 1 McCabe St., at 2:30 a.m. today was charged with making an unnecessary noise with a motor vehicle (peeling off and screeching tires at Union St. and N. Main St.). He was ordered to appear in court May 18.

Voters Session Set Wednesday

A regularly scheduled monthly voter-making session will be held Wednesday from 5 to 8 p.m. in the town clerk's office in the Municipal Building. Applicants must be at least 21 years of age, must have been residents of the state for at least one year and of Manchester for at least six months. Naturalized citizens must present proof of citizenship. New voters made at this session will be able to vote in the townwide May 19 referendum.

Business Bodies

PROMOTED
Floyd J. Tucker of 235 Burnham St. has been named assistant secretary in the casualty-fire claim department at the Travelers Insurance Companies at Hartford, according to J. Doyle DeWitt, president of the insurance firm.

Tucker, a graduate of Detroit College of Law in 1960 after attending the University of Michigan, joined the Travelers in 1961 as an adjuster in Detroit, Mich. He is a Michigan native.

He was promoted to line adjuster in 1962 and four years later was transferred to the Hartford Home Office where he was named an examiner in the casualty-fire claim department.

SUGGESTION AWARDS
Three employees of the Manchester Post Office have received recognition for their suggestions to improve the operation of the postal work here.

Michael Ginofti of Vernon, clerk, was the recipient of a check and certificate for his idea of erecting a permanent holder for color card indicating receipt of third class letter size mail.

Arne P. Sterud of 105 Baldwin Rd. received a check and certificate for his idea of dealing with recording third class volume mail.

Florian H. Bolduc of 55 Wells St., sub-carrier, received a certificate for suggesting to keep out-of-town box keys in the Parcel Post Station to avoid a delay in making Saturday, Sunday and holiday collections.

OPENS FOR SEASON
The Farmer's Market, retail fruit and produce stand located on E. Middle Tpke. opposite the Shady Glenn Ice Cream Bar, has opened its 12th season.

Felix Gremmo and his son, Francis, this year are working the enterprise for the third consecutive year and among features at the stand are special display cases, one in the cold cula department, which provides customers with ideal ingredients for party snacks and picnic treats; and the other is an innovation featuring doll-like dressed stuffed alligators from Florida and coconut head dolls.

The fresh-air stand is open daily.

CHANGE OF PLAN
Matthew M. Moriarty, president of Moriarty Brothers at 315 Center St., this week announced that the firm will not expand to the west side of Broad St. but instead will expand only to the present building complex.

The same expenditure will be involved in the expansion which is primarily for repairs, service and used car department quarters.

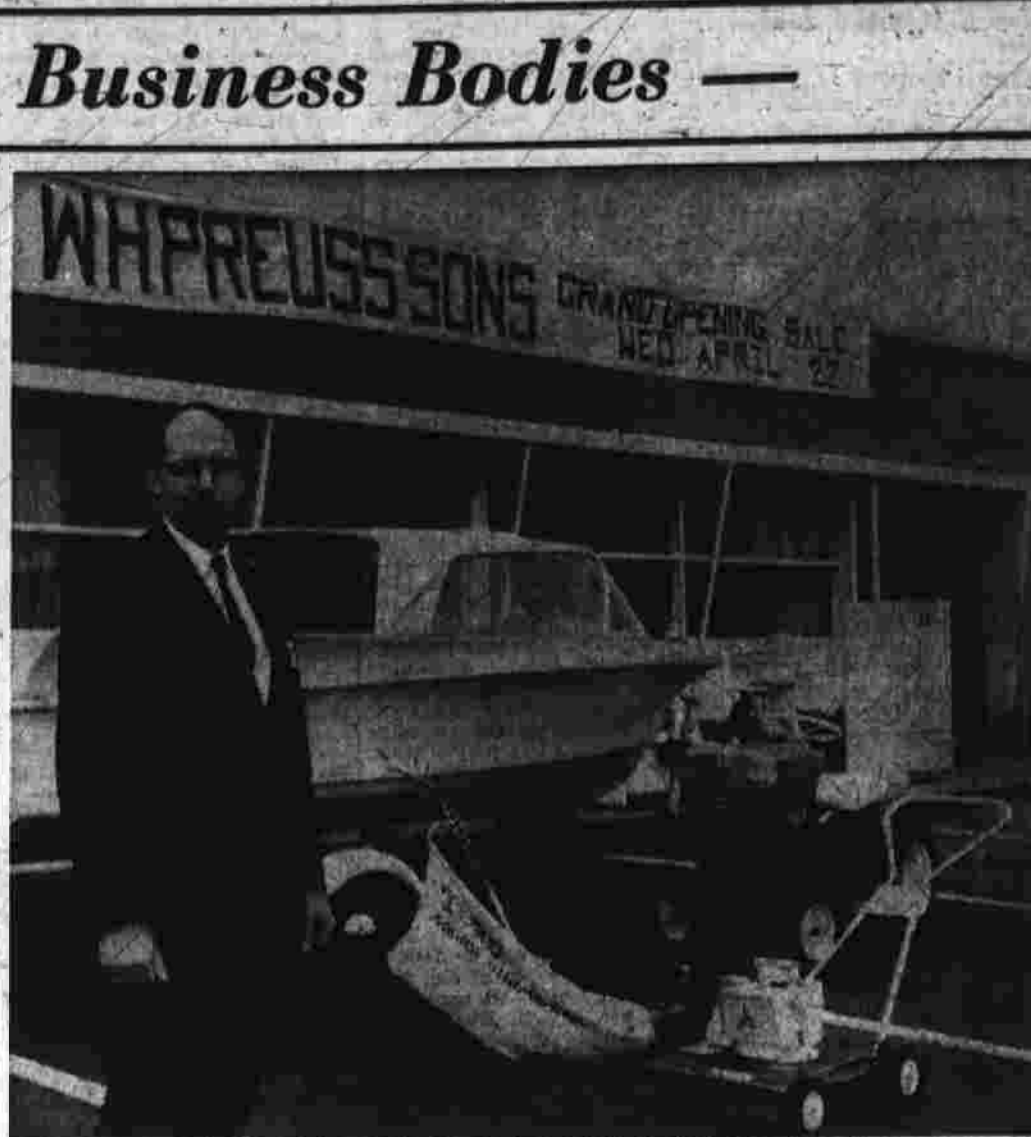

BRIEFS
Merritt E. Blanchard of 88 Starkweather St., who last week was featured in this column marking his retirement from the Manchester Post Office on April 30, has been given honorary recognition for postal service by Donald P. Steele of Boston, regional director of the Postal Service, who cited Blanchard "for devotion to duty in the course of an honorable career in the U. S. Postal Service." A special embossed certificate has been given to Blanchard.

Mrs. Yvette Theriault of 61 Linmore Dr. has won a $15 gift certificate as a coupon winner in the first week of the Shopping Spree program sponsored by the Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co. of Hartford-Springfield, Inc., in local stores.

The First Hartford Realty Corp. of Manchester this week declared its regularly quarterly cash distribution of 10 cents per share, payable May 15 to shareholders of record on May 1.

Manchester and area residents who last month joined the Quarter Century Club at Pratt & Whitney Aircraft at East Hartford include: Louis F. Galasso of Green Manor Rd., general supervisor in testing MCL (April 24); Harold S. Bedurtha of 132 Wetherell St., process planner A in production engineering (April 25); and Edward J. Pastula of Wapping, senior design analyst in engineering (April 25).

Manchester and Rockville residents who retired this week from Pratt & Whitney Aircraft include Edward Hein of 235 High St., Hazel Munroe of 38

John Harris of Bolton, manager of recently opened W. H. Preuss Sons on Rt. 6 and 44A, Bolton, the former Imperial Steak House site, stands in front of variety of products featured at newest Bolton business firm, owned by Norman Preuss, Bolton. The firm, established in Rockville in 1911, has a large cypress paneled show room, large parking area, and provides sales and service on lawn and gardening equipment, outboard motors, combination storms, television and appliances. tificate has been given to Blanchard.

Adelaide Rd.; Harold A. Osgood of 29 Cumberland St.; Robert H. Parks of 107 E. Middle Tpke.; Robert Scandridge of 45 Willard Rd.; and Rockville resident Alice Carpenter of 125 Union St.

Hartford's Barrows and Wallace Co., with branch offices at the Manchester Shopping Park, has announced first quarter volume of residential real estate sales agreements at $4,890,861. The figure represents a 46.5 per cent increase in sales over the first quarter of 1963 with a comparative dollar gain of $1,952,116.

Nineteen representatives of the Prudential Insurance Company's Manchester district agency will attend the firm's Regional Business Conference at Palm Beach, Fla., from May 6 to May 9.

Robert Ahlness of 184 E. Center St., general agent for the Lutheran Brotherhood Life Insurance Co., and Bernard Johnson of 183 Birch St., district representative, have been awarded plaques recognizing their part in the record production of new business during 1963 for the Minneapolis-based fraternal society.

Mrs. Ann Tindale of East Hartford, a Hartford checker for Mott's Supermarkets, this week placed second in the International Checkers Contest at Chicago, sponsored by the Supermarket Institute. Mrs. Tindale, who made the trip to Chicago with Joseph P. Mott and Mrs. Mott, owners of Mott's Supermarket chain, with a branch on E. Middle Tpke., won a 10-day trip to Hollywood, Fla., and other prizes.

Channing W. Willis of Vernon, sales manager for the Pompeian Olive Oil Co. of Baltimore, Md., last week also attended the Supermarket Institute convention in Chicago.

Maureen O'Sullivan -- New 'Today' Girl

By DICK KLEINER
NEW YORK — (NEA) — Tony Randall, one of the handful of top movie stars created by television, has just rectified a major error.

"When my movie career first started, six years ago," Tony says, "I was lucky. I got the girl I got Debbie Reynolds in 'The Mating Game' and Jayne Mansfield in 'Wild Success Spoils Rock Hunter'." Then I made a terrible error. I did 'Pillow Talk' with Rock Hudson and Doris Day.

"It made more money than anything Universal had ever filmed. So I made 'Lover Come Back' with the same team. And I was swamped with offers to play the same kind of role — the hero's friend.

"I didn't want to spend my life being Rock's friend, so I have finally said 'no more'. And I got my way."

So Tony is back as a hero in such films as 'The Brass Bottle' and 'The Seven Faces of Dr. Lao.' There is also another new film on tap called 'Send Me No Flowers,' which stars Rock Hudson and Doris Day.

"Well, about that one," Tony says, "yes, I just made that, and I'm playing Rock's friend again. You see, Universal said that we should reunite the team every year or so. I'm inclined to go along with that. It's hard to find a team that clicks. Every two years won't hurt me."

Being a light comedian, as he is, is a fine spot for a young actor, Tony feels.

"If a producer is looking for a strong leading man," he says, "there are at least 20 to choose from. But if he wants a light comedian, there are very few — Jack Lemmon, Gig Young, Larry Blyden, myself. We can play the other roles, but the other fellows can't play ours."

Most people remember Hiken most for his work on "Car 54, Where Are You?" In the first episode, he played an orthopedic shoe salesman. Later, he played other odds and ends, including one memorable role as a butcher.

"I don't like live television," he says. "Most actors do, but I'm a nonconformist. I think like television is too much work. And it's too hectic. All that effort and it really isn't worth it — do it once and its over."

Hiken has one novel theory about television. He thinks the industry should stop trying to do good things.

By RUTH E. THOMPSON

It's been well over a year since "Today" — NBC's flourishing morning perennial watched by the likes of you, me and the powers-that-be in Washington — asked Maureen O'Sullivan to become the show's best girl.

Jerry Madden of NBC News said, "Producer Al Morgan and I feel her wide range of interests and varied experience in all phases of the entertainment field will certainly contribute greatly to the many features presented throughout the year on 'Today'."

Maureen kept saying, "No." Until just lately, that is.

Not that she was playing hard to get. She was hard to get, what with being solidly signed to the hit comedy, "Never Too Late," opposite Paul Ford that made her the toast of Broadway the past year-and-a-half (and which she could continue forever, if such was her wish).

But as of Monday it's "Today" and Maureen as a steady combination.

"It's not without misgiving that I made the decision," smiles the gentle redhead who weighs the same — and looks the same — as when she played Jane to Johnny Weissmuller's Tarzan.

"One must keep growing. One must keep going. I feel there's something I can do on 'Today' from the woman's point of view. I have great respect for the program."

"People ask why I work." She is genuinely puzzled. Her husband, director-writer John Farrow, to whom she was married for 25 years, died last year of a heart attack.

"I have six children to bring up. I have to earn money to do it. I am now mother, father and breadwinner. No, there was no huge estate... but luckily, I believe in keeping busy anyway."

Maureen's "Today" day starts with coffee and toast at 4:30 a.m. By 5:15 she's at the RCA building for makeup (so faint, by the way, you'd not be jarred by it on the street). Next comes a run-through of her commercials and a briefing on any changes a major news break might make in format.

"No, after years in films I don't mind early morning starts. Furthermore, it's going to mean more hours with my kids."

"Kids" — when she says it — is a blend of wistfulness and elegance, for Roscommon-born Maureen, speaks with the Dublin intonation that is considered the English language at its purest.

"Our house is in Westport where the younger children go to public school. Because of the hours of the play I've also had to have an apartment in New York.

"And though I was a housewife for twelve years while the children were small I didn't cook until this past year. Mia and I are learning together. "We say our cooking method must be sort of a Zen. You know, we try to figure if we were a steak how long would it take to us to get cooked. So far the steaks have been fine."

'Great One' Goes Musical

"The Jackie Gleason Show: The American Scene Magazine" will have a new look tonight when Gleason presents a music anniversary show celebrating his 15th year in the music world as a composer, conductor and publisher. The CBS-TV show is from 7:30-8:30 p.m.

Gleason, who has recorded 35 albums of his own music and owns four gold records, each signifying sales of one million records, will present the following performers singing songs or playing tunes written by him:

Pianist Errol Garner, singers Wayne Newton, June Valli, Frank Frontaine, Enzo Stuarti and Linda Hopkins, and trumpeters Bobby Hackett and Max Kaminsky.

Garner will play "Allo-Allo," a song from Gleason's motion picture "Gigot"; Newton will sing "Melancholy Serenade," the theme song of the Gleason television series; Miss Valli will sing "All Are Wondrous Things"; Stuarti will sing "What I'd Give for Just One Yesterday"; Miss Hopkins will sing "Upon My Lips a Song"; Hackett will play "Gigot," the theme song of the film, and Kaminsky will play "Strolling Through Dixie."
