LaBelle Specifies Events Highway Charges

HARTFORD (AP) - State's Atty. John D. LaBelle filed an amended bill of particulars today in the case of Atty. Robert S. Palmer of Middletown, one of the 11 men arrested as a result of the year-long probe into the appraisal activities of the State Highway Department.

The bill of particulars charges that Palmer "intended to influence" Franklin Aldridge of Meriden, a state employee in the Rights of Way Bureau, "to solicit, secure or assign fee appraisal work to said Palmer."

It also alleges that Palmer sought to influence Aldridge to "violate conflict of interest rules, regulations or orders of the State of Connecticut Highway Department by the employment of Aldridge by Palmer."

The state has charged that Palmer paid Aldridge $25,000 in "kickbacks" for providing him with maps and other information which would be valuable to Palmer in his work as an independent appraiser for the state.

LaBelle also charges that Palmer, in his capacity as chief of the title division of the Rights of Way Bureau, used his position to influence Aldridge to "violate conflict of interest rules, regulations or orders of the State of Connecticut Highway Department by the employment of Aldridge by Palmer."

Palmer was arrested in 1962 as a result of a year-long probe into the appraisal activities of the State Highway Department. He was charged with soliciting, securing or assigning fee appraisal work to himself.

Wallace Turnout Large; Taft a Landslide Winner

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) - Gov. George C. Wallace, the Alabama invader who championed states' rights, claimed a victory for his cause today, but Democratic Gov. Matthew E. Welsh held the field for President Johnson in Indiana's presidential primary.

Wallace, who made his campaign a crusade against Johnson's civil rights bill, piled up a big protest vote in Tuesday's election, but his showing fell short of the upset race he ran in Wisconsin against another Republican stand-in for Johnson.

Teachers Balk At Contracts In Hartford

HARTFORD (AP) - Nearly 850 Hartford public school teachers have balked at signing salary agreements for the 1964-65 academic year in protest over failure to get raises. Kenneth L. Feltnik, superintendent of schools, said yesterday that his office has received only 650 signed salary agreements from the school system's 1,200 teachers.

The conflict of interest orders which the state charges Aldridge violated have also been attached to the bill of particulars. The regulations listed by the state's attorney are all signed by Howard A. Ives, state highway commissioner, and include rules which stipulate: No highway employee shall have direct or indirect financial interest in any business or enterprise which may be engaged in or operated by the state.

NEW YORK

Mr. Charles Mancuso, 642 Main St., Poughkeepsie. "I like to shop only where the Triple-S Blue Stamps are given. When redeeming my stamps, you have such a wide selection of gifts. I have no difficulty finding my needs. I do not receive this kind of service at your competitor's stores."

NEW YORK

Mrs. Anna Papadakis, 35 Chester Ave., Brooklyn. "It's like a year 'round Christmas with expensive gifts. Like getting a bonus every time. I must commend Triple-S on its most colorful, descriptive magazine. Imagine dreams coming true, with all the presents given away cordially."

NEW JERSEY

Mrs. Jean Harris, 689 Walsh Ave., Orange. "I feel you get better value by saving Triple-S Blue Stamps instead of many of the others. I particularly like the idea of getting a greater number of gifts with only 1/4 to 3 books of Blue Stamps."

NEW YORK

Mrs. Betty Stephens, 1314 Hicks St., Bronx. "Blue Stamps are the only stamps I save. I've gotten numerous baby articles—bouncing chairs, bottles, diapers, playthings for the children. I also got a lot of things for the house—pots and pans and name brand articles."

NEW YORK

Mrs. Kay La Valle, 404 Baly St., Elmira. "I've been saving Triple-S Blue Stamps since my marriage 8 years ago, and consider them money in the bank for rainy day needs. Blue Stamps premiums are the best in well known brand names and in quality."

A Tax Rate Freeze—Let's Hold It
 Monday night the Board of Directors held the line on the new tax rate. Conceivably, it may be that less was done so, it may be that less was appropriated for some accounts than the town will have to spend. It may be that more income was estimated for some accounts than will be realized. And it may be that, this being an election year, there was some deliberate strategy of trying to postpone some of the new fiscal year's natural obligations. So far as any of these strategies may have played a part in the result, there will be some future struggle for the Directors and the General Manager as they try to live through a new fiscal year with the same tax rate they had in the old.

But we commend this struggle to them. The taxpayers commend the fact that the tax rate has, at least, been held. And, speaking candidly, the struggle ought not to be too impossible. For the minority on the Board of Directors was Monday night actually a few cents below the tax rate by half a mill, and then "freeze" it.

That would have been fine if we could have got it. But the town will take holding the line with better grace, and it will congratulate the Board on having realized, at last, that there must indeed some day be an end to the process of unbridled increase in taxes.

This special victory for the taxpayers, achieved in an election year when the influence of the taxpayers is perhaps just a shade stronger than usual, should now be itself become a new and binding mandate.

It should be the signal for the taxpayers, for the Board of Directors, for the General Manager, for the department heads and the Board of Education and school system administrators, all to expect that, next year too, and the year after, and the year after that, the tax rate will at least remain frozen at its present level, if it cannot be reduced as our grand old town and our dear old retirement burden decrease.

That is something taxpayers have a right to expect, so that they can plan in Manchester.

It is something all our public officials should be prepared to dedicate themselves to, and to adjust their own planning to, in the effort to make Manchester a place people and business can count on.

If the people of Manchester will themselves now resolve that their tax rate has been frozen, that this is it, that this has now become the top beyond which we will not go, that will be the way it will be.

Three Circles At Geneva
 The old lesson about the whole being greater than any of its parts, and the disappointment and disillusionment in store for anybody who insists on trying to forget it—that lesson is now being moralized again, over in Geneva.

If you hadn't heard through the history which had produced the encirclement of circles now being exhibited you would be likely to accuse somebody of making it up.

But it is not imaginary, it is real. Possibly it didn't have to happen. Possibly, if those who preached and warned against it had somehow known how to be heard more effectively, all could have been avoided. But, possibly, too, this is the way we achieve our evolution in such weighty and unwieldy matters.

Market. But it does not include the nations of Eastern Europe.

The Common Market, with its own trade system, prefers to deal with the rest of the world through its own bargaining with individual outside nations, rather than submit itself to any general agreements made under GATT.

No fact that the medium-sized circles of GATT contains the smaller circle of the Common Market threatens to be a support for GATT to have as it is supposed to. The existence of the Common Market inside GATT may be the thing that cracks GATT up.

While GATT, for its part, thus finds its own inability to control the smaller circle inside itself a factor which threatens its own very existence, GATT, on its own level, continues to rebel against becoming a true part of the larger circle it itself inhabits. GATT wants the Common Market to yield to GATT, but it doesn't want GATT to yield to the world.

GATT resents it when the Common Market discriminates against Britain or the United States; to these obstinate Common Market nations it preaches the good of true internationalism and a lowering of all trade barriers.

But GATT itself refuses to practice what it preaches when it comes to the rest of the world. It, for its part, doesn't want any open internationalism of trade with Russia; it wants to keep its own restricted area highly fenced; just like the Common Market. GATT believes in favor trade only up to a certain size of circle.

One would find it hard to believe, viewing such a situation, and its built-in conflicts, that there are statesmen in the world who have apparently cheered each of the two smaller circles with apparently equal zeal and enthusiasm, as if each represented an ideal in itself. But there have been such. Sometimes they have used the excuse that one must go along in these matters, and that a few nations like culture, economy and welfare must be allowed to form a smaller circle together before anybody tries to form a bigger one, or even thinks about admitting the necessity and the inevitability of the one big circle which is this poor globe of ours itself.

We begin to wonder, however, if the truth is not almost the opposite—in these world-shaking times of ours, it is usually the wiser to try to keep the all-inclusive circle than it is to try to keep on with the conflicting smaller circles. Would it be more, or less trouble to try to make GATT really work than it has been to try to run the Common Market successfully? Might not a one world trade agreement, under the auspices and with the scope of the whole United Nations, be actually less controversial and complicated than the scheme under GATT?

Easier or not, it is the thing which must ultimately be attempted. And it is a great historical waste of time to keep trying to make the little, smaller circles so brittle and prickly and tightly welded that they become indigestible. Digested and absorbed they must be some day. It is a monstrosity of appraisal and nomenclature to call the Common Market a thing of vision, or to call GATT a dream for the future, when both are so far to the rear.

Once An Inappropriate Pleasure
 There is inappropriate seasonal concentration, by various civic and public agencies, on putting bicycles in condition for a safe and happy summer.

Mechanical condition of vehicles is very important. The married people warns. Riding habits and techniques should also be watched. Cyclists should ride on the right hand side of the road, with traffic, rather than on the left, facing it. Cyclists should travel single file. They should keep off paths and sidewalks. They should yield the right of way to pedestrians. They should be careful not to crash into suddenly opened doors of parked automobiles.

All this emphasizes what has been known for some time, namely that the bicycle is like other modern modes of transport, potentially a dangerous contraption, and not merely the harmless and useful boon to mankind which was in the mind of the original inventor of the wheel.

The wheel itself was innocent enough, and left alone might have been a thing of unalloyed benefit to mankind. But somebody had to put two wheels together, first parallel, to make farm carts and chariots, and then tandem, to make bicycles. And then somebody invented the gear, which suddenly raised to reckless proportions the speed of which the tandem wheels, or bicycle, was capable, and then it was only a short step to the fast-moving parties of today and the need for cautious and safety rules and riding codes.

Indeed the world does move. It was only yesterday—well a yesterday of a decade or two—that it was still possible to consider bicycling a pleasure.

The "easy book collection" of picture books and picture-story books is always a very popular group of books in any library. Several new titles have recently been added to the Junior Room of the Mary Cheney Library and will be of particular interest to parents and teachers of young children.

"Where the Wild Things Are" with story and pictures by Maurice Sendak has recently been given the Caldecott Award, a prize for the best picture book of the year in the opinion of the judges. The story in this book of "beasts" or "monsters" are soft and beautiful, and that is probably the greatest appeal for adults. However, today's children love "beasts and monsters" and they take all these strange wild things in their stride. Wherever this book "Where the Wild Things Are" has been read to groups of children it has been read with deep enjoyment. Mr. Sendak has illustrated many books including his recent "Night" with pictures and text by Wilfred and Cecil Lobell is an attractive and informative book of nature for very young children. Juliet Kuper "Ladybird Ladybird" is a gay and colorful interpretation of the old nursery rhyme. "Ladybird, fly away home."

"BOYBIRD" by Denise and Alan Cross tells the story of a modern little girl in a red dress who is in rubber boots and black and white illustrations of the 18th century style. This presents a contrast to the large and bold illustrations of most modern picture books. A few other new titles for these our youngest library patrons are: "Benjamin Franklin" by Judith Kuper; "The White House" by Sandberg; "The Wild Goose" by LeVine; "Harrison Loved His Umbrella" by Merrill; "High, Wide and Handsome" by LeVine.

Another recent addition in the Junior Room is "Childcraft," a set of fifteen volumes which is planned especially for parents and teachers to use with young children. Volume 4, entitled "Life Around Me," seems particularly interesting at this time of year for it has two-page spreads on life-cycles of plants, animals and insects. Volume 5, entitled "How Things Change," contrasts transportation, family life, cooking, shopping, farm life and communication. Even the traditional Saturday night bath is contrasted in pictures with the gleaming bathtubs of a 19th century. This article further adds that a recorded book in an edition of 200 copies costs an average of $3,000, and a press-braille book in an edition of 20 copies costs about $600.

Those who have heard Mrs. Emily Cheney DeVille speak recently at the Mary Cheney Library, or who may have followed the several Herald articles about her and her Newbery Award winning book "It's Like This, Cat" will be interested to know the book will soon be available in braille and in talking-book form for blind children. In a new item in School Library Journal for April, Robert S. Bray, chief of the Division of Braille at the Library of Congress, is quoted as saying that "Cat" was ordered in 27 copies of talking books and 47 copies of braille. Twenty-six Newbery prize books are already available in talking books and nineteen in braille. This article further adds that a recorded book in an edition of 200 copies costs an average of $3,000, and a press-braille book in an edition of 20 copies costs about $600.

charges. He said he found the girl naked and unconscious on the floor of the second-floor office and placed a jacket around her.

Miss Romero had blackened eyes, a bleeding mouth and neck bruises. She said the injuries were inflicted by her assailant, who stripped her and raped her. She told of fleeing down the stairs and being cornered once again by the attacker.

The Bronx case recalled the fatal stabbing of Miss Catherine Genova on March 13 in New Garden. Queens Detectives had discovered 28 persons had seen the attack on Miss Genova during a 28-minute period without aiding her or summoning police.

Despite the similarity of apathy to violence, the two incidents had many common factors. The death of Miss Genova occurred in a quiet residential area in the dark pre-dawn hours. The attack was seen by persons from the apartment windows.

The incident involving Miss Romero was in daylight and on Tremont Ave., one of the Bronx's busiest thoroughfares. Police say those who failed to come to her aid were close to the attack and could clearly hear her shouts.

Gets Fellowship
Kenneth L. Ames, a senior at Carleton College, Northfield, Minn., has won a $3,500 university fellowship from the University of Pennsylvania for the 1964-65 academic year.

The fellowship will provide him with full tuition and fees and a stipend of $2,000 for the study of art history leading to his Ph.D.

Ames, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul L. Ames, 84 Tanner St., will specialize in the study of the Italian Renaissance. His ultimate goal is to become a museum curator of painting, according to his mother.

He is a June candidate for his bachelor of arts degree at Carleton, where last year he won the Everett Memorial Award for outstanding work in art history.

He was an honor graduate of Manchester High School in the Class of 1960, where he was elected to the National Honor Society and was a member of the variety track and cross country teams.

Fire District Tax Cut Once Before
The Herald was in error yesterday when it said that the 1964-65 Town Fire District tax rate cut off two tenths of a mill is the first such cut in the eight years that the district has been a town agency.

In May 1961, the Republican-controlled board of directors cut the fire district tax rate by one tenth of a mill for the fiscal year 1961-62. At the same time, it increased the town property tax by one mill.

The following year, with the Democrats controlling the board, the town tax rate was raised another cent mill, and the fire district rate was raised one half mill.

The rate for the fiscal years 1962-63 and 1963-64 was thus set at 44 mills for the town, and 34 mills for the district.

The guest list included Congressman A. Stavropoulos, undersecretary of State; Charles of the United Nations, the personal representative of Secretary-General U. Thant.

Others included Gov. Frank Morrison of Nebraska; former Gov. Herschel C. Loveless of Iowa; Rep. Richard Bolling, D-Mo.; and Charles Murphy, undersecretary of agriculture.

Sines Awarded Science Grant
Robert H. Sines, a biology and science teacher at Manchester High School, has been awarded a National Science Foundation grant to study marine biology this summer at the University of Rhode Island.

He is one of 40 participants chosen for the program from more than 3,000 applicants throughout the country.

This will be the second NSF grant awarded Sines, who attended a previous summer institute at the University of New Hampshire to study botany.

Sines has taught at MHS for 11 years. He holds a B.S. degree from Northeastern University and a M.S. from Boston University. Before entering teaching, he was a research technician for four years at Harvard Medical School, Cambridge, Mass.

He is also cross country and assistant track coach at the high school. He is married and lives at 87 Wedgewood Dr.

During his walkabout in the White House back yard last Saturday he told reporters he is usually in bed by 11 p.m. — and awakes without becoming emotionally exhausted, and without any alarm clock, he indicated —

He stays about a couple of hours after that, reading, or just resting.

Thus, he indicated, he rests up to 16 hours, even though he is not sleeping that long.

Moreover, he awakes before lunch—and takes a nap every afternoon.

CIGARETTE SALES
HARTFORD (AP) — About 100,000 more packs of cigarettes were sold in Connecticut this April than last April, the State Tax Commissioner reports. John L. Sullivan said yesterday that 32,500,000 packs were sold this April, netting about $2 million in taxes. Cigarette sales dropped sharply in January, after a governmental report that linked smoking to lung cancer was issued. Sales steadily increased through February and March.
