ANKARA, Turkey (AP)— The former army colonel who led an unsuccessful 1960 coup against the Turkish government in May 1963, won a reprieve from the gallows today only minutes after a fellow plottor was executed. An appeal to military authorities for a satisfactory explanation of the coup failed to secure a reprieve for the former army major and Aydemir's aide. He died on the gallows, saying "I am a patriot and I will be hanged."

CAIRO (AP)— A German rocket expert says the United Arab Republic is working on a space program but indicated the first launching of a satellite is some time off. The television comments of Dr. Wolfgang Pilz, Friday appeared to end hopes of a space launching next month during celebrations marking the anniversary of the Egyptian revolution. Pilz, who said he had come to work here after he failed to obtain a permit to work in West Germany, denied that German scientists were working on the production of atomic, bacteriological or chemical weapons.

One Small Vote For The Design

On monuments, there can be no easy unifying of tastes and judgments. Each follows his own instinct, and finds an opinion, and then keeps repeating it. And that is the way the new and revised debate over the proposed giant slab monument to the late Franklin D. Roosevelt is beginning to sound.

The design has been modified since it was first proposed, to instant controversy, back in 1961. The number of giant concrete slabs containing passages from Roosevelt speeches and documents has been reduced, and made somewhat more uniform in size. They are to be grouped, a little more regularly, about a conventional statue of the late President—a statue equal in size to the statues in the Lincoln and Jefferson memorials.

Such modification is in the way of appeasement to those critics who wanted something somewhat more conventional than the first design. We liked the first design, with its "stonehenge" appearance. And we like the new, modified design, even more.

We still think, as we thought of the first design, that such a presentation of the historic, moving words uttered by Roosevelt would be a most fitting type of memorial for him. And we think, from description of the new design, that it will be, or would be, magnificent.

The piece of description which makes us think it would be something very effective and beautiful comes in some writing about the design by Ada Louise Huxtable in the New York Times. She wrote, the other day, as follows: "The only way to judge this design is to study the model three-dimensionally, as the historic, moving words uttered by Roosevelt would be a most fitting type of memorial for him."

We want a small, Connecticut vote for the new design. We think such a small Connecticut vote ought to have with as much influence on the outcome as the collective vote of the children of Franklin D. Roosevelt, who met the other day and decided unanimously they didn't like the design. We think the reason they didn't like it was because the design has been controversial from the start, and we think the reason they didn't care a hoot about it would be to poke fun at it. We think the reason they didn't care a hoot about it would be to poke fun at it.

For Sweetness And Light

It has been disclosed that Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge has been instrumental in the latest details of a visa to Madame Nhu, who would like to be in this country to address a rally of the Conservative Party of New York next month. The Ambassador reportedly recommended against the visa because the present government in South Vietnam would not understand our cordial reception to her.

This is, of course, a possibility. But it must also be noted that Ambassador Lodge intends, as soon as he finds himself free for it, to take a part in the approaching Republican presidential campaign. So we are free to guess, if we wish to guess that low, that Ambassador Lodge didn't want Madame Nhu in this country because he didn't want her getting around drumming up sentiment and votes for Senator Goldwater over the top. Not only does Madame Nhu have beauty and charm, but she is full of that sweetest and light which is typical of the inner spirit of the conservative cause, even if it doesn't show on the surface as often as it might.

Break For Communists
The air still needs to be cleared. The rejection of the American Communist Party as a legitimate, indigenous entity has been contested. Some time ago officers of the party were fined and suspended for failing to register with the Justice Department, as required of foreign agents, which the party was adjudged to be. These fines have been thrown out by a Federal Appeals Court and the Supreme Court has let the decision stand. What this means as far as the organization's status is concerned is unclear, but Gus Hall, the Communist Party chairman, says it will enable the party to resume some of its "political" activity, voice the lifting of the classification of his party as an instrument of a foreign power will be a great victory for constitutional liberty. And in a sense, he may be right. A native Communist Party, unaffiliated to Moscow or any foreign power or agency, should be permitted in the United States, if for no other reason than to free in the public eye and demonstrate Jefferson's contention that error of opinion should be tolerated as long as reason is free to combat it.

But Gus Hall and the American Communists have rarely played it straight. Indeed their history has been one of sowing the seeds of the Kremlin party line: of infiltration, agitation, and espionage at the bidding of men overseas. This relationship, or dependence on the Kremlin hierarchy and the whims of the once puissant Comintern, scotched the American Communist Party's claim to legitimacy. If Gus Hall and other Communists can demonstrate that they should not be covered by the Foreign Agent Registration Act; that they constitute a bona fide political party; that they are not in the service of the Kremlin, the Justice Department could review the situation.

But our situation, realistically, is not merely that an intelligent newspaper will continue to put that kind of caption over an editorial. Peace if possible, but if necessary we may become the national policy issued which the Johnson administration has been conducting the day and tomorrow one vote—WATERBURY REPUBLICAN.

Connecticut Yankee

By A.H.O.
This small citadel of Connecticut nostalgia would seem most willingly for a solution of the transportation problem which would still leave each of the 169 Connecticut towns with at least a voice in the State House of Representatives. There apparently remains, under the new federal and state constitutions being written by the Supreme Court at Washington, no simple formula for retaining a guarantee of such a voice for each Connecticut city or town.

But Gus Hall and the American Communists have rarely played it straight. Indeed their history has been one of sowing the seeds of the Kremlin party line: of infiltration, agitation, and espionage at the bidding of men overseas. This relationship, or dependence on the Kremlin hierarchy and the whims of the once puissant Comintern, scotched the American Communist Party's claim to legitimacy. Sponsored by the Manchester Council of Churches
You Can Be Sure — If Three things constitute the heart of effectual Christianity as far as your part is concerned in bringing true grace to pass. The first is your truly being "in Christ." Now many people laugh this off as pious fundamentalism and archaic figurative speech. But the fact is that Jesus in a very literal situation said, "Abide in me, and I in you." He that abideth in me, and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit" (John 15:4-5). Paul later taught saying, "If any man be in Christ, he is a new creature... (I) Corinthians 5:17. Therefore, it is of prime importance that Jesus be completely lost in you. He that abideth in me, and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit" (John 15:4-5). Paul later taught saying, "If any man be in Christ, he is a new creature... (I) Corinthians 5:17. Therefore, it is of prime importance that Jesus be completely lost in you.

Secondly, you must have the disposition of Christ. Piety ought to be associated with today's Church, not yesterday's monks. Peter in his second epistle, chapter one, speaks of believers as being "partakers of the divine nature" and of "escaping being barren and unfruitful" (vs. 8). The ministry today is negligent if it does not cause you to remember this which you ought to know (vs. 12). The third matter which constitutes the heart of an effective life for God is our being busy at the King's service. We must not be idle and do His work. Jesus said, "Ye are my friends if ye do whatsoever I command you" (John 15:14). Many profess like this and yet it is understandable if not always understood by you. It is imperative that you be busy at the King's service. We must not be idle and do His work. Jesus said, "Ye are my friends if ye do whatsoever I command you" (John 15:14). Many profess like this and yet it is understandable if not always understood by you.

But it could also be all-important. We are not sure whether you yield to temptation to survive the lack of perfect one vote one representation of the Connecticut House of Representatives. If you are not sure whether you yield to temptation to survive the lack of perfect one vote one representation of the Connecticut House of Representatives. If you are not sure whether you yield to temptation to survive the lack of perfect one vote one representation of the Connecticut House of Representatives.

PITTSBURGH (AP)— Scores of spectators at a Friday night concert in downtown Pittsburgh watched in horror Friday night as an elderly man plunged to his death from a bridge. He would be restrained, police said.

Director The Fels Planetarium of the Franklin Institute. In early 1964 the highly successful Pioneer series of spacecraft for the exploration of interplanetary space will once more get under way at Cape Canaveral. This time the first launching of a Pioneer since the epoch-making Pioneer 10 which provided such significant information about the environment of the earth and proved the feasibility of long-distance transmission and reception of radio signals.

When the International Quiet Sun Year (IQSY) comes to a conclusion in December 1964, it is hoped that at least two of the four spacecraft programmed for 1964 will have been launched to enter to earth's orbit. This information will come when activity on the sun is a minimum to complement the data received during the International Quiet Sun Year (IQSY) when solar activity was at a maximum.

To permit optimum results the space craft will be the most magnetically "clean" probe ever. Even though it will carry a magnetometer on the end of a boom it is still subject to disturbance from the satellite field and this has imposed a "low-magnetic" field design for all on-board systems. This means that "soft" ferrous and certain casings will have to be avoided and the necessary on-board magnets will be shielded.

The first launching will be toward the earth and Pioneer will fire a solar orbit which will range from 0.8 to 1 astronomical unit. The second launching will be fired away from the sun toward the earth. The success of the next four equals that of Pioneer V. The information derived from this program will mark it as one of the finest bargains in space program.

Operation Crossroads

Art House Leading Sports Corps Abroad

Yesterday, a group of ten Tufts University students—seven boys and three girls—took off from New York's Kennedy Airport for West Africa, where they will spend the summer teaching the Africans sports in a nine-weeks experimental program under Operation Crossroads, Africa. The group leader is Arthur H. House, son of Judge and Mrs. Charles S. House of 150 Westland St., who helped develop the idea of the Sports Corps. A June graduate of Tufts, House also participated in Operation Crossroads during the summer of 1962, serving in a work party that constructed a schoolhouse in Senegal. From time to time, House will write home to Herald readers concerning the Sports Corps' experiment in international living. Here is his first communiqué, written just before departure. "Ever since the summer of 1962 when Tufts University sent me to Senegal on Operation Crossroads Africa I have had an intense interest both in African affairs and in the Operation Crossroads project. My dreams have come true, and I am returning to Africa this summer as the leader of a group going to Togo and Dahomey in West Africa. "Operation Crossroads sent its first groups of young people volleyball, basketball and tennis; and we will compete in these sports against city teams and against the national teams which will be sent to the African Games at Brazzaville. "One other distinguishing feature is that the entire group speaks French. Ten of the 11 students are from Tufts University and one is from Harvard. We have three girls and eight boys, all of whom have been practicing their French and undergoing rigorous training at Tufts since early March. These students are extremely enthusiastic as their long hours of preparation demonstrate. It is inspiring to see these ambitious athletes working on a project which will be difficult and strenuous, yet rewarding beyond their expectations. "I shall describe in a series of articles in The Herald our trip through the nations of Togo and Dahomey as we try to develop a strong understanding relationship with young athletes and students through an ancient means of communication—sports. It is hard to imagine as I write this letter tonight that tomorrow afternoon I will be in Nigeria and on my way to Togo. The spirit in our group is contagious. If this summer is like the one I spent in Senegal two years ago, the excitement of new experience will not end until our return in September.

A Negro minister from New York, Dr. James H. Robinson, founded Crossroads and has been its guiding light over the years. This year over 300 students will spend their summers in a wide variety of projects such as building school houses and health centers, taking a census and helping on medical missions. The group I am leading is a bit different; we are a sports group which will coach high school-aged students in

This project is the forerunner of the Peace Corps and, in fact, President Kennedy told us in 1962 before we left that the success of Crossroads gave him the idea of a Peace Corps. Crossroads is renowned in Africa as one of the best links with the United States and Canada. The entire organization is run on private donations.

The July issue of the "apparel retailer," a New England trade journal published by Larkin Publications of Boston. The feature article praises Dine for his leadership in making House and Hale "a powerful contender for the Connecticut Valley consumer dollar" and based on his management and merchandising procedures.

House and Hale, taken over by Gorin's last year following bankruptcy action, has continued to remain "the store of village charm," the article points out, and has made a giant comeback in the retail trade market here.

Dine has provided an important facet of House and Hale promotional schemes in maintaining separate newspaper and store window display schedules. Sluggish traffic of a year ago has changed considerably with wider varieties of sportswear, ready-to-wear items, and reestablishment of House and Hale's original reputation as a fashion center.

By JOAN CROSBY

NEW YORK (NEA) — Leon Janney modestly admits to having a fantastic memory. The former child star, now grown to the hair-thinning age, doesn't count sheep when he can't get to sleep. He lists the names and dates of reign of all the English kings beginning with William the Conqueror, 1066-1087. Mention any major league baseball player of any era, and Janney will give you his height, weight, birth date, batting or pitching record and fielding average.

But he may show up an hour late for a lunch date, because he forgot.

"It happens to me once a year," he said with a rueful smile. "I never keep a calendar, and occasionally I just plain forget. But basically I'm either an organized disorganized man, or a disorganized organized one."

"One other time I forgot an appointment — and it's a vivid memory. I was playing gin rummy on the second floor of an actor's restaurant when I got a telephone call from my answering service. It turned out I was due for a recording of radio's Theater Guild of the Air."

Ne Sympathetic Father
"I couldn't admit I just forgot, so when I got there I had made up a complicated story about a taxi accident in which an old lady was hurt. For years after, people who worked with me that day, kept asking how all the taxi accident law suits were progressing."

Janney is the kindly father in "Another World," a new NBC entry in the television soap opera form.

Janney got his role in Irma Phillips' "Another World" as a result of his portrayal of Major Page in "As the World Turns," another soap by Miss Phillips.

"All my adult life I have either been a villain or a comedian, but never the kindly, sympathetic father. As a child actor, I was always misunderstood and always charming. When I was told that I would play the head of a child's military academy on 'As the World Turns,' I figured I would be a meanie who pushed tots down stairs and broke teenagers' arms. But I was Reginald J. Charming. I was in the show two months, then left to do this one."

Leon Janney

Baseball Timetable
Janney, who began performing in his native Ogden, Utah, at the age of 3 ("My mother taught me poems from the time I could gurgle"), says "I hate all child actors. Show me a full-time child star and I'll show you a frustrated parent."

"My mother ran away to get married, but her father threatened to disown her. So she came back home, married the first man she could grab, determined to have a child who would act. On my own, I never would have picked this. I probably would have been a lawyer who dealt in unpopular causes or an actuary in an insurance company."

Baseball is the timetable on which Janney's life is run. He has a portable radio going every second when he isn't on camera or on stage. He roots for both the San Francisco Giants and the New York Mets.

"I bought two chairs from the demolished Polo Grounds, and I have them around my swimming pool. I am a manic-depressive, I know. But I lean toward the happy side, which is some help, because, while I occasionally get depressed, it always comes as a big shock to me."

Bluegrass in Willson Special

Music from Broadway, Beethoven and the Bluegrass country gets the special Meredith Willson treatment when the Music Man and his misadventures play host to Debbie Reynolds, Phil Harris, Molly Bee, The Young Americans, the Stony Mountain Cloggers, the Stoneman Family and the Sidewinders on "The Texaco Star Parade" Tuesday from 10-11 p.m. on CBS-TV.

The hour-long musical special, second of the summer season starring Willson and his wife, Rini, has a small-town flavor, representing his attitude of typical Americana, and a cast of guest stars which he describes as "the best in the world."

Entertainment highlights include songs and dances from Willson's Broadway musicals, film scenes from "The Unsinkable Molly Brown," a humorous lesson on Beethoven and a foot-stomping hoedown.

The Willsons perform two of his popular show tunes, "I Ain't Down Yet" and "Til There Was You."

In a rare television appearance, Debbie Reynolds sings "I Ain't Down Yet" and "Til There Was You" from her starring role in "The Unsinkable Molly Brown," movie based on Willson's Broadway musical. Miss Reynolds introduces scenes from the picture.

Phil Harris, fast-talking singer-comedian, kids about how he misjudged the musical "The Music Man" and missed his chance for Broadway stardom by declining Willson's proposal that he play the lead in the hit. He proves he would have been right for the role by singing one of the show's tunes, "Sadder But Wiser." He also sings "This Is All I Ask" and learns a humorous lesson from Willson on how to sing the opening theme of Beethoven's First Symphony.

Molly Bee, a pert songstress who typifies Willson's idea of the girl next door, is featured in a swinging interpretation of "Glad Rags."

The Young Americans provide a 24-voice choral background for much of the program and are spotlighted in "I Ain't Gonna Live No More."

In their first major network appearance, the Stony Mountain Cloggers, a dance group from Asheville, N.C., and the Stoneman Family, a band of musicians from Gayax, Va., are featured with the entire company and the Harry Zimmerman orchestra in a rousing hoedown number, "He's My Friend," from "The Unsinkable Molly Brown."

The Sidewinders, award-winning barbershop quartet from Southern California, sing "All Alone."

Life Aboard Plane Carrier

The rigorous and often hazardous life of the flight deck crews of the huge aircraft carriers in the peacetime Navy, is the subject of "Flight Deck," a special "Du Pont Show of the Week" colorcast Sunday from 10-11 p.m. on NBC-TV.

Producer Al Wasserman and his camera crews spent two weeks aboard the U.S.S. Franklin D. Roosevelt as it sailed toward the Mediterranean, and recorded the entire cycle and rhythm of the dramatic launching and landing flight operations on the carrier.

The crews which man the "cats," as the catapults are called, will be seen in their "routine" day which begins around 5 a.m., continues until 2 a.m., and, in many respects, never really ends. The precision work of these catapult crews in, around and under the 76 jet and propeller aircraft on board will be seen, along with activities of others among the 300 members of the carrier's air unit.

In addition to the normal hazards of aviation, launching and landing planes from the carrier is fraught with potential hazard

He Writes Chillers

NEW YORK (AP) — Henry Slesar, who has written more television shows for Alfred Hitchcock's television series than any other author, has figured out a way to have his cake and eat it too.

Three days a week Slesar concentrates on his job as creative director of a large New York advertising agency. The other four days belong to his flowering career as a fiction writer.

"I keep my advertising job," said Slesar "because there is no security in writing."

He wrote—and promptly sold—his first short story about eight years ago when he was at home, ill, and had nothing else to do. A short time later, Joan Harrison, producer of the then-half-hour Hitchcock show bought one of his published stories. Since then, he has sold close to 40 stories and scripts—half-hour and, later, hour-long——ranging from dangers of blasts from jets, to the vacuum of the nose of the jet and the possibility of an arresting gear wire breaking and lashing across the deck. During the filming of "Flight Deck," a pilot died when his plane crashed into the sea.

of the show. He also has turned out two or three hard-cover who-dunits, other short stories and currently has two ideas for series under consideration by a network and a film studio.

Where does he find his ideas? "If you write, you are always on the lookout for something—maybe only a line that is overheard—that will give you an idea. A story is divided into three main parts—a beginning, a middle and an ending. The germ of the idea may be for any one of these. Then you keep fooling around until you have filled in the missing parts."

Slesar's most successful short story—it has been republished often in anthologies and made into a Hitchcock program—developed from a remark he overheard in a hotel restaurant. An elderly woman said to her companion, "I just don't know what is going to become of Alice. She just sits in that old house and refuses to leave."

Slesar worked and worked around that remark, finally coming up with "The Right Kind of House," a real thriller with a snapper ending about an elderly woman who remained stubbornly awaiting a buyer of a decaying old house on which she had put a ridiculously high sales price.

Two Inside-TV Stories That Missed Wastebasket

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Television columnists, like other tilers of the vineyard, take vacations, and this one is about to start one. This involves a cleaning out of the year's files; I find that, among items saved for reasons now hazy, are two inside-TV stories which should not be consigned to the wastebasket.

1. A well-known producer recently attended a staff "creative meeting" called to find a suitable and unusual occupation for the hero of a proposed new action-adventure television series.

"We mentioned just about every job we could think of that had not been done to death in TV series," reported the producer ruefully. "Finally, the network executive who was—statistically, of course—the most important person present spoke up for the first time.

"I'm surprised," he said, "that in all your talk no one has come up with what is the only really right occupation. Of course, he has to be a private detective."

Worst of all, the producer added, most of the people around the table nodded enthusiastically and two were heard to say, "Marvelous idea."

2. A writer reported that his idea for a comedy series was eagerly embraced by a production outfit. It involved a "middle-aged couple who ran a college fraternity house. Soon the top man of the outfit called and asked suavely if the writer could enlarge the format a bit to include as a regular character a good-looking student from the backwoods country.

"You mean," asked the TV-wise writer, "you'd like a series about Jethro Clappett goes to Princeton?" "Harrumph," was the answer and nothing more has been heard of the series.

Hollywood on TV

By DUKE KLEINER
HOLLYWOOD (NEA)—For those who are interested in such things, please be advised that James Franciscus wears white undershorts.

When I went to see the star of Mr. Novak, filming an episode on location at John Marshall High School in the Los Feliz section of Los Angeles, the color of his underwear was the last thing on my mind.

But, being a trained reporter, when the opportunity presented itself—he had to make a quick change while we talked in his tiny trailer—I observed. As he switched from a suit to a sports outfit, I caught the quick flash of white.

So now you know what goes on beneath the surface in James Franciscus' life and laundry.

The Master Plan
 Something else is hidden under his natural blond exterior. He doesn't wish Mr. Novak a long life.

"I hope," he said, "that Mr. Novak lasts three years. A fourth year would be rugged. And a fifth—oh, boy. But if it lasts three years, I'm happy."

"If it goes for three years, I'm able to do what I want to do for the next 25 years."

You must understand that this timetable is part of what could be called the Franciscus Master Plan. He is investing these early, handsome years in a desperate bid for financial independence, and it looks as if he has it made.

Looking Toward Movies

Franciscus says a three-year run with Mr. Novak, the high school Albert Schweitzer, will enable him to be his own boss for almost all of his life. He is being paid on a deferred basis, meaning that his salary will be continuing long after Mr. Novak has flunked out.

Since the series has caught the public fancy, it would seem that Jim's problem won't be getting a three-year run, but stopping it short of a decade.

"When it's over," he says, "I'd like to concentrate on doing movies. That's what I enjoy most."

Franciscus has been working toward this goal for a relatively long time. And he has, and is, making sacrifices to get in his enviable position.

Never Made High School
 He works hard — a 72-hour week, he says — and rarely gets home before 8 p.m. He usually puts in three or four hours on the weekend reading scripts. For a devoted family man, this is a sacrifice. But he reasons that he's investing time now so he'll have more freedom later.

Another sacrifice is being in the public eye. He is basically a serious, almost shy, individual. He dislikes the limelight and what is known generally as the Hollywood life.

His idea of a whale of a time is a couple of sets of tennis and an evening at home, playing with Jamie, who is 2½, and Kelly, who is six months old "and smiles all over."

The odd thing about his playing a high school teacher — and playing it so well — is that he never went to high school. He is a prep school product (Taft School, Watertown, Conn.), and went from there to Yale.

So the world of Jefferson High is all new to him. It's a tribute to his skill as an actor that he has caught the flavor of educational dedication so accurately.

Barbra Streisand Is Joining CBS

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS has signed Barbra Streisand to a 10-year $2 million contract. The 22-year-old singer-actress, who is the brightest new star to emerge in several seasons, will appear in a series of specials next season — perhaps starting with a one-woman show in the fall.

The competition to sign the star of the Broadway hit, "Funny Girl," was hot. CBS apparently won the day by offering the sort of contract it gave to Carol Burnett, which permitted her development in specials until the right series comes along.

Ailing India Leader Asked To Delegate His Workload

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Ailing Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri was reported in generally good condition today but more of his official schedule was canceled. For the first time there was a public suggestion that the 59-year-old prime minister, who reportedly was stricken with a mild heart attack Friday night, should delegate some of his responsibilities. The Times of India said no prime minister can afford to do without a full-time foreign minister, as Shastri does. The paper called for "a more liberal delegation of responsibility."

Shastri, like his predecessor, the late Prime Minister Nehru, retained the foreign minister's portfolio when he formed his government. He also serves as minister for atomic energy. A government spokesman issued this statement on Shastri's condition: "The prime minister's temperature is near normal now. He slept well last night. His general condition is good and he is cheerful." "In a couple of days the prime minister may be in a position to attend to the business of government," an authoritative source said. Sunday night, Shastri's son, Hari, said his father would need at least a month's rest, and there was speculation some of his aides would take the reins of government temporarily. The son's statement indicated India was again on the verge of a period of temporary leadership. After the late prime minister Nehru suffered a stroke in January, he turned over many of the burdens of his office to Shastri. Since Shastri lacked Nehru's authority, the government was beset by indecision. The government slumped into another leadership crisis when Nehru died of a heart attack May 27, but it ended quickly with Shastri's election as prime minister June 1. Shastri, 59, is officially reported ailing from "overstrain and temperature," but authoritative informants said he suffered a mild heart attack Friday. The diminutive prime minister almost died of a heart attack in 1949. The government's statement on his present condi-

Workman Killed On Road Project

HARTFORD (AP)—A 50-year-old construction worker from Middletown was killed instantly today when a cable snapped on a crane, pouring a bucketload of concrete on him on an East-West highway access road in West Hartford. Soldiers Charged OXFORD (AP)—Two soldiers stationed at NIKE bases in Connecticut face Circuit Court arraignment today on rape charges. Private Corky L. Jaudon, 18, of Lambert, Miss., and Pfc. Fletcher M. Boutwell, 19, of Columbus, Ga., were held in $10,000 bond yesterday after a 29-year-old mother of one told state police both of them raped her on a lonely road in Oxford. The woman, who was not identified, told state police she got out of her husband's car on Rt. 24 in Newtown after a fight and was walking home when the soldiers offered her a ride. She said she got away from the soldiers afterward in Ansonia. Boutwell is stationed in Ansonia and Jaudon at New Britain.

The New Haven office reported a large number of telegrams but refused to say how many.

Lodge Will Press Like To Take Scranton Side

Flies Home After Ending Saigon Duty

WASHINGTON (AP)—Henry Cabot Lodge declared today that he considered it a higher duty for him to return home and fight for the Republican presidential nomination for Gov. William W. Scranton than to remain as U.S. ambassador to South Viet Nam. He told a White House news conference, after receiving a glowing farewell from President Johnson, that he felt the war in South Viet Nam was "on the track" while "I felt the Republican party is not on the track."

Affirming that he did not believe it was too late for Scranton to head off the front-running Sen. Barry Goldwater for his party's presidential nomination, Lodge strongly indicated he would attempt to enlist former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's active support for Scranton. Lodge helped engineer Eisenhower's nomination in 1952. He said he had been talking to the general since 1941, when they were both on Army maneuvers in Louisiana, and that he was "too old to stop now." Lodge returned to a theme he expressed on his arrival four hours earlier, at Andrews Air Force Base—the duty of both political parties to nominate men who are prudent and not impulsive.

He said that the president of the United States is the man who makes the decision about the use of the atomic bomb. "That is something that is very real," he said. "There is a threshold below which no party should go in nominating a man for the presidency," he emphasized. "Both parties should nominate for president a man who is not impulsive or imprudent." Lodge said he does not expect to become the campaign manager for Scranton but expects to do a little telephoning. (See Page Ten)

LBJ Links Peace, War Preparedness

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson says the United States "must be prepared to seek war" to keep its freedom, yet ready to "seek just compromise" to achieve peace. This was Johnson's keynote message Sunday as he ended a three-day trip into Michigan and Minnesota. He took up the matter of war and peace in his only non-political speech of the trip, at a Swedish Day festival in Minneapolis. Facing thousands of cheering Minnesotans who stood under shade trees in Minnehaha Park, Johnson said: "Today, as always, if a nation is to keep its freedom it must be prepared to risk war. When necessary, we will take that risk. But as long as I am president, I will spare neither my office nor myself in the quest for peace."

In South Viet Nam, Johnson said, "We are engaged in a brutal and bitter struggle for the freedom of a friend" and "we will stand firm to help maintain freedom and give them counsel and advice and help in every way." This was a change from his prepared text, which read, "There too, we will use the force necessary to help them maintain their own freedom." Johnson had this to say about compromising East-West differences in the interest of peace: "We must remember that differences with others do not always flow from a desire for domination. They can come

Poles Asked To Aid Peace By Kennedy

WARSAW, Poland (AP)—Encouraged by wildly cheering Polish crowds, Robert F. Kennedy called on Communist Poland Sunday night to help promote the new thaw in the cold war. The U.S. attorney general told Foreign Minister Adam Rapacki that Poland has a unique opportunity to supply a bridge of understanding between the United States and the Soviet Union. U.S. sources said Kennedy told Rapacki that Poland could play a key role in improving relations because of its membership in the Soviet bloc and the strong ties between the Polish and American peoples. They met for dinner at Jablonna Palace, a former royal hunting lodge 10 miles from Warsaw. They also were believed to have discussed the German territories seized by Poland after World War II. The Western allies have not officially recognized these as permanent Polish territory. The meeting followed a triumphant tour of Warsaw by the visiting American despite an official news blackout on his arrival. Poland's official press and ra-

Youths Say Rights Case Boosts Zeal

MERIDIAN, Miss. (AP)—"Certainly, I'm afraid, everyone is afraid," said Marilyn Leonard, "but the importance of the job makes them overcome personal fear." Marilyn, 19, a Negro and a Radcliffe College student from Port Huron, Mich., was one of a fresh contingent of 275 who poured into tense Mississippi over the weekend on the summer project to push Negro voter registration and education projects. One hundred and seventy-five of the civil rights workers, specially trained at Oxford, Ohio, had arrived previously. One of these, Andy Goodman of New York—and Michael Schwerner of Brooklyn and James Chaney, a Negro from Meridian—disappeared mysteriously a week ago after driving into Neshoba County to look at a burned-down Negro church. Police said Moody was riding in a car driven by Bruce E. Limeburner, 21, of Bristol, when it went off Rt. 109 in Morris and overturned. Moody was pinned underneath the car. Roosevelt Howard, 48, of Norwich, was killed Sunday when his car went out of control on Rt. 2 in Boscawen, knocking down 14 wooden highway posts. At West Gloucester, R. L.

Motorists Quizzed In Southern Hunt

PHILADELPHIA, Miss. (AP)—The Mississippi Highway Patrol and FBI agents questioned motorists at a roadblock today whether they knew anything about the three missing civil rights workers. The latest report from the roadblock on Highway 21 about 21 miles northeast of Philadelphia, said no useful information had been obtained. The roadblock was set up near where the civil rights workers burned-out station wagon was found last Tuesday. Each driver was asked whether he knew anything about the disappearance, or whether he knew anyone who did. Officers explained that the state highway is only lightly traveled and that some of the drivers who passed that area today might have passed there last Monday. Authorities also probed a report that two young white men were seen standing beside a station wagon similar to the one used by the three civil rights workers shortly before they vanished eight days ago. The widespread search for clues in the baffling disappearance of Michael Schwerner, 24; Andy Goodman, 20, both of New

Russia Diary Shows Oswald Disillusioned

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Lee Harvey Oswald, the cold war double turncoat accused of assassinating President John F. Kennedy, grew so bitter about the Soviet Union he once embraced that he called its leaders "sick." This and other comments on his two and a half years in the Soviet Union were reported during the weekend by the Dallas Morning News in copyright stories based on Oswald's diary and other writings. He was so disillusioned that when arrested Nov. 2 last year he would only call himself a "Marxist"—in effect retaining Communist theory but rejecting the form practiced in the Soviet Union. Oswald, 24, was shot to death Nov. 24 by Jack Ruby, Dallas night club operator, as the accused man was being trans-

Truce Said Near In St. Augustine

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP)—The possibility of a truce in St. Augustine's racial conflict loomed today for the first time in nearly two weeks. A new effort to establish a biracial committee of two whites and two Negroes to seek peace was reported nearing success. Community leaders predicted that any group would have a difficult time because the middle ground has all but disappeared in the furious, month-long push for integration by Negroes and the equally determined resistance by whites. There has been almost no communication between the two races for more than a week, following collapse of the first effort to find a settlement. In the first fruitless attempt, a St. Johns County grand jury called for a 30-day truce in public demonstrations after which a biracial committee would have been established. The Ne-

Last UN Troops Leave Tomorrow Grenades Mar Vote In Troubled Congo

BACKGROUND: In July, 1960 the United Nations rushed the first of more than 20,000 troops to the Congo after an army mutiny brought Belgian troops back to the newly independent African nation. Tuesday on the fourth anniversary of the Congo's independence, the last U.N. troops leave. Chaos and dissolution still threaten the big nation, but its army for the Congo nearly bankrupted the world organization and it has had enough. One of its chief achievements was ending the secession of Katanga Province, whose copper and cobalt mines are the Congo's government's chief source of revenue. Last week the leader of Katanga's secession, Moise Tshombe, returned to the Congo and many speculated he soon would head the central government. (See Page Nine)

Modern Army on Ancient Carrier

The powerful, plodding elephant—military transport dating back to Hannibal's day—has proven more effective in South Vietnamese jungle warfare than the modern motorized troop carrier. Here an American-advised patrol moves with its supplies and most of its personnel aboard the native beasts. By contrast, 1,000-mile-an-hour planes are also used in the jungle war. (AP Photofax.)

SWIMMER MISSING NEW YORK (AP)—A woman long distance swimmer who left Connetquot in an attempt Sunday to swim the Atlantic is reported missing off Fire Island. The swimmer, Britt Sullivan, was last seen by the escort vessel Marine Center at 11:19 p.m. about five miles offshore. According to the Coast Guard, the procedure in the attempt at crossing the Atlantic was to precede the swimmer by a quarter of a mile and then wait for her to catch up. The Marine Center, which the Coast Guard says was "hit-up like a Christmas tree," missed Miss Sullivan at one of the rendezvous. ESCORTED BY POLICE ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP)—More than 200 state policemen, some hiding dogs on leashes, escorted 30 civil rights demonstrators into the surf at St. Augustine Beach today. The new assault on this old city's racial barriers came as the possibility of a truce loomed in the long conflict between Negroes and whites. Forming a wedge, the police broke through a line of 10 white segregationists and walked into the water in full uniform. There, they formed a protective ring for the demonstrators. The segregationists ran around the ring of officers, taunting and jeering.
