of Gen. Alfredo Obando Candia, commander in chief of the armed forces.

Obando had called for unity of the armed forces and entered negotiations Tuesday with the rebels in Cochabamba.

As word spread of Paz Estenssoro's departure, Bolivians began surging into the streets of La Paz shouting "Viva the army!"

Military circles for several weeks had been discussing the tottering regime.

The Interior Ministry said Paz Estenssoro had "gone to inspect his bases."

The Communist Radio Continental asserted the president had left at high speed in his car for the frontier of Peru.

Military circles for several weeks had been discussing the necessity of a takeover to halt the downward economic slide to this land-locked nation, and to quiet unrest.

Apparently, Paz Estenssoro had overstayed his welcome, had left at high speed in his car for the frontier of Peru.

The development came as the chief of the armed forces negotiated with rebellious army and air force factions in an attempt to save the government.

The revolt was led by Vice President Rene Barrientos, who broke with Paz Estenssoro last month after the president cracked down on antigovernment students and a revolt of cracked down on antigovernment students and a revolt of tin miners in the interior.

Leftist-led miners took up the banner of rebellion last month drawing the support of students. In a series of clashes, 17 persons were killed.

A Vote For Our Country Millions of Americans, yesterday, felt their country to be threatened as never before in their experience. In their minds, and in their hearts, this threat came as something more ominous and more potentially final and conclusive in nature than any threat ever posed by foreign war or foreign

This could have been the end of America as they knew it. They responded to this possibility, to this threat, with one of the greatest demonstrations of true courage and patriotism any nation has ever been fortunate enough to receive from its Millions of Americans, yesterday, placed country above party, above their own social and economic and political heritage, even above their partial in-elination not to go all the way into an actual vote for the Democratic candi-

They had to make their party and their nation clean again, and they did

The shame began at San Francisco, when a great American political party submitted itself to the weird and grotesque plot of an extremist minority. And the shame survived into that small portion of the national result yes terday in which there was a success for the hidden and poisoned presumptions upon which the zealot minority based its strategy. If there could be anything close to the unspeakable for the national ticket of the Republican party it would be to have its success limited to a few Southern states where its only appeal was the impression that it stood rights issues. But the main record has been se straight. The long nightmare has been ended Republicans themselves have given at the polls, their answer to the theory that a certain kind of candidate and a certain kind of party stand would automatically produce such lovalty on the part of regular Republicans that victory would follow.

What millions of Republicans realized, in the test, was that they had to leave their party if they wanted to save either party or country.

It must seem plain, today, that they accomplished their sacrificial purpose The American destiny is not going to be subverted or perverted by the high priests of the rightist fringe. And the way has been declared open, again, for the Republican party to develop the kind of men and exalt the kind of principles with which it has previously served its country in times of stress and times of greatness.

The Real Khrushchev?

While everybody watches the Kremlin trying to find clues to the real nature of what may come next, almost every word of criticism of the fallen Khrushchev becomes, as it appears, a subject of analysis.

Unfortunately, those who are trying to destroy Khrushchev's reputation are more interested in quantity of ammunition than consistency of argument. But it is interesting to note that, i the first appearance of criticism of Khrushchev for the Cuban missile crisis, fire has been concentrated on the original rashness of his effort to start putting missiles in Cuba rather than on the crisis common sense he finally showed in taking the missiles out. In other words, by present indications, Khrushchev is being criticized for too much brinkmanship rather than for proving chicken in the crisis. That is at least a reassuring tempoary indication of how his successors in the Kremlin may themselves feel about Because Khrushchev has seemed to have a sort of canny peasant shrewdness in some matters, and because he has shown some awareness of the possible consequences of brinkmanship in other instances, it is still difficult to, try to imagine him indulging in the madness of his Cuban venture. On that decision alone, it would seem to us, history would eventually have to join his resent detractors, and decree that he was not fit to rule no matter how relatively civilized he may have tried to be other matters. What could he possibly have hoped to accomplish, except chance to back down? And if he could be that erany once, how do we know the other indictment now being made against him are not also valid? What do we really know of such world figures, and how do we really judge them?

Peace Lecture In Physics Prize

One process of exciting atoms and molecules pyramids their power into the great mass destruction potential of an atomic or hydrogen bomb. Another process for increasing and channeling the excitement latent in stoms and molecules creates the miracles included in the so-called maserlaser effect. The nature of these miracles is beyond our lay comprehension. We are told that an invisible split secand focus of one of these things can burn a hole through a diamond, or spotlight a square foot on the moon. We surrender to the mystery and the potentialities involved. They are beyond our description.

We suspect, however, that the powers and capacities involved may quite conceivably be more important in determining the future of mankind than the more visibly awesome power of the

For all we know, there may be as much danger in the maser-laser region as there is with the bomb. For all we know, discovery and power in this field may pose just as serious a question to mankind's ability to control and discipline itself for the business of living together rather than dying together as has ever been posed by the weapons of

Consider any portion of all this, and you reach the conclusion that this year's Nobel Prize in Physics has been awarded in a way which constitutes something of a lecture about peace to the people on both sides of one of our great world divisions. The prize for research and progress in the maserlazer field is split between one distinguished American physicist and two of his Russian-counterparts. Like it or not, we must learn to go on from

The Wisdom Of Freshmen

There were some variations between different colleges, but the final summation statistic came out that 50.8 per cent of 13,000 college freshmen questioned rated campus social life higher than academic pursuits. Included in this classification of

'campus social life" were such pleasant things as extracurricular activities, athletics, forming and enjoying friendships, and carrying on college tradi-

On the other hand, only 26.5 per cent of the 13,000 freshmen queried placed vocational goals as having top priority This report, made by the Educational Testing Service for the edification of a recent meeting of the College Entrance Examination Board, is presumably not to be questioned for its accuracy. All that remains, then, is to salute the great wisdom and sanity and the sound instincts of these young people. They are, these young people, quite right. The friendships they make are likely to be more important than the facts they learn. The experience of living on a college campus is, in after years, going to seem worth a million dollars to them. Learning to like and understand their fellow human beings, which is going to be one of their most important equipments for any kind of successful living, is more likely to be achieved in some midnight bull session than in some psychology major. Others may attack these young freshmen for their choice of emphasis. We prefer to commend them, and even reinforce them. That side of life which they have had sense enough to consider deserving of top priority is indeed the one thing in college life any atudent can least afford to lose or neglect. Once that angle of college life has been secured, there is nothing wrong with cracking a few books, too. For one thing, if the student doesn't, he may forfeit the privilege of continuing that valuable social life.

How The Labor Has Fallen The railroads, though only partly by their own fault, have trailed other modes transportation in modernizing their facilities. So maybe it isn't surprising to find them coming in a little late on matter of improving their image. For if the community dogcatcher has become a canine control officer, and the undertaker a mortician, why shouldn' railroad people upgrade and modernize some of their own terms? To do just that, the American Railway Magazine Editors Association some time ago formed a Semantic Committee, which now has issued a leaflet, "Semantics the Rail Way," containing suggested changes

The railway employe now called a perishable inspector," for instance, hereafter would be known as a "perishable freight inspector." For, the committee observes, some inspectors "might consider themselves 'perishable,' but the

So far, so good. But some terms have been in the language of railroading so long-and have long ago passed over nto the common language, for that matter-that they may be a little hard to change. There's "deadhead," for one. That, says the committee, is a term "implying ignorance and stupidity." Instead it proposes "pass holder"

Moreover, it is going to be hard for a lot of people to go along with the department employe" in place of that sturdy and honest word laborer." In recent years, says the con mittee, "the term 'laborer' has acquired derogatory connotation. It is not a title in which a man can take pride. If labor as a term for honest toil has indeed fallen so low and become so sullied, maybe those railway and other workers dedicated to feather bedding and R there. -WALL STREET JOURNAL

With all the rosy afterglo of Tuesday's triumph, Presider Johnson confronts seriou trouble right in the Whit-House. This is the White House stat problem - prosaic and unex citing on its face, but vital to the success of the new Johnson administration.

The problem transcends the fall of Walter Jenkins. Jenkins's tragic departure simpl enlarged a vacuum that alread existed. And yet the Presiden always loath to delegate power no ready reservoir of tal ent to fill it. True, Bill D. Moyers, th 30-year-old Johnson proteg who moved into Jenkin's offithree weeks ago, can do man's job with great skill. ## Bob Kennedy's New York Win Opens Vast Political Future

F. Kennedy stands on the threshold of a new political future today, a potentially vast horizon opened to him by his election to correspondent and the action of the race for the vice presidency.

NEW YORK (AP) — As president Johnson the first, the crowds were massive. Kennedy was encouraged — but hard-headed. He never expected all this emolitional reaction to go into the sion cliff-hanger. Even without opened to him by his election to the U.S. Senate.

Inevitably, speculation will gise on three points—

1. How far will Kennedy go?

Depending on circumstances, he could be in the presidential picture by 1968, and certainly by 1972. He will be approaching his 47th birthday on the latter date. He has a powerful base from which to shape his future. Having been in and around the federal government for more than 10 years, he knows big-league politics.

Washington Associated Press to the Lohn action was "a move which he (John son) certainly was aware would stir up immediate speculation that it was aimed at halting the two proposed and the could be in the presidential picture by 1968, and certainly by 1968, and 1968, and Romney, 57, bucked the Lyndon B. Johnson landslide to win a second term, and is certain to be among those called upon to rebuild the Republican party in the wake of the crushing defeat of Sen. Barry Goldwater, the GOP presidential nominee.

Romney, a former automobile executive, defeated Rep. Neil Staebler, 51, a long-time power of the state legislator.

In the Arizona race, Richard Kleindienst, 41, a field director for Goldwater before the San Francisco convention, fell before Sam Goddard, 45, a Harvard-educated Tucson lawyer.

Discomfort?

Unwise eating or drinking may be a source of mild, but annoying bladder irritations—making you feel restless, tense, and uncomfortable. And if restless nights, with nagging backache, headache or muscular aches and pains due to over-exertion, strain or emotional upset, are adding to your misery—don't wait—try Doan's Pills.

Doan's Pills act 3 wars for speedy relief. 1—They have a soothing effect on bladder irritations. 2—A fast pain-relieving action on nagging backache, headaches, muscular aches and pains. 3—A wonderfully mild diuretic action thru the kidneys, tending to increase the output of the 15 miles of kidney tubes. So, get the same happy relief millions have enjoyed for over 60 years. For convenience, buy the large size, Get Doan's Pills today!

First, a picture which doesn't provide comfortable viewing in a lighted room might indicate a tube is not up to par. An unusually long warmup period is also symptomatic of a weakening tube. Another check is to carefully tune a closeup of an actor's face and cast a crit-ical eye on the highlights on the nose, forehead and cheekbones. A sharp, silvery glare is not poor makeup—it's an-other sign of a tired picture
