School Board Proposals For Citizen Panels Tabled

The board of education considered and then tabled proposals to form two citizen committees last night.

The board indefinitely was a proposal for a committee to study the fiscal independence of the board. The question was put on the board's agenda by Harry Anderson and originally brought before the board by Ralph Henne.

Anderson noted that there were bills before the legislature concerning this item and he thought the board was in need of more information.

Anderson commented that a study group could find out how people feel about independence for the board and whether any action should be taken. He noted that most of the current legislation proposed is permissive.

Chairman of the board Francis Meier proposed that the board wait until the current legislature made a decision.

The second item concerning a citizens committee was proposed by Mrs. Jane Romeyn. The committee would study the length of the school day and school year.

This item was tabled so that the personnel policies committee of the board might discuss it with representative teachers.

In Mrs. Romeyn's proposal the committee would consist of nine members, representing the board, PTA's and the South Windsor Education Association.

The committee, under Mrs. Romeyn's proposal, would study whether South Windsor should have a longer day and whether there should be a longer school year for teachers than for pupils.

Mrs. Romeyn commented that there would need for education of the community for this idea to succeed.

Asst. Supt. William Perry observed that the high school was ready to increase its day. He noted that there was a need for 15 minutes but a half an hour or longer would be preferable.

Supt. Perry emphasized that he would not like to see a longer day for a first grade child, and said the child already had a long enough day.

He commented that a study was not needed for adding two or three days at the end of the year, but if the total number of days was to be much longer a study would have to be done. He also said South Windsor with a longer school year would be looking for teachers.

Supt. Charles Warner said there would have to be salary increases proportionate with the added school time.

Legislators Present

Senator Fred Doocy and Rep. Warren Westbrook and Frank Ahearn appeared before the board to answer questions on bills before the legislature.

Sen. Doocy explained the general aid bill which caused speculation in town on whether there would or would not be public kindergartens in the fall.

He said there are three plans. The Governor's or Democratic program would add 50 million dollars in increased grants to education. This would mean $25 per pupil and the State Board of Education would be doing away with all factors in the past and supports the town to 30 per cent of its cost in education.

Sen. Doocy stated the dollar gain to the town under the Democratic plan would be $27,000 in 1964 and $27,000 in 1965. The Republican, $24,000 in 1964 and $24,000 in 1965. The State Board of Education or 30 per cent factor would mean $14,000 in 1964 and $166,000 in 1965.

He commented that the extra money would come from state bonds. He said he wondered whether there would be enough revenue to take care of all the state programs.

Rep. Westbrook observed that he had heard a rumor that the State Board of Education proposed that the Hartford police department and the state police dogs. A training film on police dogs will be shown.

Following the program, refreshments will be served. All Avery St. School fathers and sons are invited.

Resolution Passed

The town council has urged all citizens to support the Hartford Charter Oath and if there is any professional team representing Connecticut in the forthcoming football season in the recently formed Continental Football League.

The council further resolved that it extends its congratulations to the Hartford Charter Oath on their fine record of the 1964 football season.

High School Board

Supt. Warner reported that Atty. Gen. Glass, who made the communication with the Commission on the State of Connecticut. He noted that the firm is not anxious to put on a new program.

Supt. Warner asked for an assessment reaction from the board on whether an independent organization should assess the situation.

He noted that a $10,000 roof might be needed to avoid a recurrence of the roof cracking and leaking again.

Supt. Warner stated Atty. Ahearn had been charged by the public building commissioner to study the reports from Corn. Glass and Atty. Ahearn said he would like an informal opinion by a firm engaged by the town apart from the architectural firm.

Supt. Warner also reported that flowers were sent to the family of the late Mrs. Brasilli and part of the staff at the funeral yesterday.

Mrs. Brasilli, a teacher at the town apart from the architectural firm.

On Monday, the town will have a smoke inhalation in a fire at her home Sunday night.

Tomorrow at 8:30 a.m. volunteers are needed at the Avery St. School. All interested persons should call the SPSC mailing and other office work.

The senior choir will rehearse at 8 p.m. tomorrow. The junior choir will rehearse Saturday at 11 a.m. in the church.

Patrolmen will meet at the Avery St. School PTA will sponsor a father and son night tomorrow at 7 p.m. at the school.

The evening will feature a demonstration by Sgt. Earl Morfitt of the Hartford Police Department and his trained police dogs. A training film on police dogs will be shown.

Following the program, refreshments will be served. All Avery St. School fathers and sons are invited.

Law Day Noted In Proclamation

Proclaiming May 1 as Law Day, USA, in Manchester, Mayor Francis J. Mahoney has called upon schools, organizations and private citizens to recognize this special day with suitable programs, ceremonies and educational activities.

In his proclamation Mahoney noted that the day should be dedicated to fostering "increased respect for law, for independent courts which uphold the law, and for a deeper awareness of the benefits and responsibilities of citizenship."

"As citizens of this great nation," the proclamation says, "(we) should reaffirm our faith in the rule of law and in the supremacy of government by laws rather than men."

May 1 has been proclaimed Law Day nationally by President Lyndon B. Johnson, and by both houses of Congress, and in the state by Gov. John N. Dempsey.

Eisenhowers End Winter Vacation

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower ended their annual winter vacation on the California desert Tuesday.

Before their train headed east, the Eisenhowers granted a rare visit to six students from the Dwight D. Eisenhower High School in nearby Reno, and headed to return early next January.

It was the first time that the Eisenhowers had visited their farm in Gettysburg, Pa.

In brief talks with newsmen, Gen. Eisenhower said that he had completed the text of his latest book, "Waging Peace."

In response to a question about the attitude of the American people toward the conflict in Viet Nam, Eisenhower said somewhat sternly: "Every person should support the President and the policy of the United States in South Viet Nam."

He noted that "American people should make it their business to find out the situation in Viet Nam so they can follow the changing situation on a day-to-day basis."

The Eisenhowers have been staying in a home at the Eldorado Country Club in Palm Desert, 70 miles east of here, since last December.

"To Stand Firm"

"From Munich until today," said President Johnson in his press conference yesterday, "we have learned that to yield to aggression brings only greater threats and brings even more destructive war. To stand firm is the only guarantee of a lasting peace."

Later in the conference, the President discussed our reason for fighting in Vietnam in similar language, as follows:

"I think that if the enemy there believes that we are there to stay, that we are not going to tuck our tails and run home and abandon our friends, but to be here in due time space can be preserved in that area."

These two statements by the President represent the realistic necessity of the American position in Vietnam today.

"They express what we have to do in Vietnam and what we must do in Vietnam."

Any commentator, or occasional senator, or group of demonstrators talking as if we could, even if we wished, just pick up in Vietnam and run for home, is lamentably far from reality and from responsible comment.

Given the situation as it has developed, degree by degree ever since 1954, we have to "stand firm." We have to refuse to accept defeat. We have to refuse to "abandon" South Vietnam.

There are, admittedly, some Americans and some commentators who have been guilty of discussing the situation in Vietnam as if we could pull up and out just by deciding to do so. But we do not think those thinking this way have ever been very numerous, and they certainly do not constitute the serious division on Vietnam policy which does exist in the country today.

The serious division of opinion in this country today, and in the world, and the division of opinion which requires respect and answer, and which Mr. Johnson still tries to dismiss with a repetition of strained similes with which he attempts to make his point.

The story sound like a soothing bedtime story—the serious division is over what should be meant by "to stand firm."

Mr. Johnson's position is that we should, to illustrate the issue and difference which exists when, yesterday, he made the following claim:

"You must believe that you believe that we are following policies that are ill-advised, but we are following the same policies in Asia that we followed in Europe, that we followed in Greece and Greece and Iran. We are reacting, aggression, and as long as the aggressors attack, we will stay there and resist them, whether we make friends or lose friends."

Mr. Johnson's comparison does not, of course, hold water. If we had done in the case of Berlin, or in the case of Greece and Turkey, or in the case of Iran, what we are now doing in Vietnam, we would have been bombing Russia or at least one of Russia's satellites.

Yet the second half of that same passage—"we are reacting, aggression, and as long as the aggressors attack, we will stay there and resist them, whether we make friends or lose friends"—is a statement of our position and purpose in Vietnam which would be accepted by almost all Americans except for two fringes: the one fringe on the extreme left which would have us pull out, the other fringe on the extreme right which would have us bomb Communist China.

The trouble is that we are not getting, we are not doing, what the President's words describe. That, too, is the inescapable basis of controversy in this country and in the world. If, last February, the President had announced an approaching build-up of every kind of American military contribution to the situation in Vietnam, saying "we will stay there and resist" no matter what happens, there could have been no serious quarrel with him from the great American center.

If, by some process of face-saving degree, American policy in Vietnam now could adjust itself "to stand firm" and "stay and resist" no matter what happens, there would be no serious quarrel with him from the great American center.

It would appear to us that a temporary halt to bombing raids provided a period was not long enough to provide a basis for a serious re-evaluation of the situation in Vietnam, and the threatened Russian volunteers might then actually appear on the scene.

It would appear to us that a temporary halt to bombing raids provided a period was not long enough to provide a basis for a serious re-evaluation of the situation in Vietnam, and the threatened Russian volunteers might then actually appear on the scene.

It would appear to us that a temporary halt to bombing raids provided a period was not long enough to provide a basis for a serious re-evaluation of the situation in Vietnam, and the threatened Russian volunteers might then actually appear on the scene.

Grisson Gets Off Easy

One should not be misled by the fact that Major Vincent I. Grisson, the only American to make two space voyages, has been absolved of blame for the off-target landing of Gemini 3, and has been advised, therefore, to retain his space driver's license.

The reassuring explanation is that twin tunnels do not always predict the actual performance of a space vehicle in space, and that it was a miscalculation among earthy computers, rather than any misunderstanding of instructions, or any piece of bad space navigation, which caused Major Grisson and Lieutenant Commander John Young to come down 60 miles from their scheduled rendezvous.

But the fact that Major Grisson has been exonerated, and no marks have been left against his space driving record is, it should be noted, merely the verdict in the first instance of examination of the performance of an astronaut. As time and space lead on, there will inevitably be a closer surveillance of our space drivers, and one of the first space stations we meet in space will be a space cop and space signals, both certain to zero in on any spastic quirk of orbit scribbling at anything less than 18,000 miles an hour.

Major Grisson, as a first offender, and as a national hero, has been let off easy this time, but his successors will be urged to begin worrying about space tickets and suspensions.

Nobody Knows Why

One of the recurrent stories of our times was told again the other day, out in Long Beach, Calif.

Michael Andrew Clark, 16, was a member of a fine family, which emphasized, in its own living, the finest American and religious values. He attended Sunday School every week. He was a Sea Scout. He had been, as a younger boy, in the Indian Guides, in the Cub Scouts, and the Boy Scouts. He was good at firing appliances for his mother.

His mother has tried to describe him, in the following language: "He always loved people; he was always full of love. I think that expressed him as much as anything—the word love. He was very outgoing and considerate."

It felt to her an extraordinarily fine boy, very much a family boy... we've done many things together as a family."

The mother couldn't understand what this boy did, on Sunday morning, April 25.

"I can't really answer... The gun is not a family gun. My husband went hunting in 1959, took Michael with him and let him fire the gun once or twice at pictures of guns in magazines, and he said he was sort of afraid of guns; that he thought they might hurt somebody."

"He never, ever, hurt anything. We have a baby pigeon and a dog and he loved them. This was a real boy, had a lot of character."

This was, of course, the same boy who took his father's deer rifle and shot it in the morning in the woods. Instead of going to Sunday School, took a position on a hillside along U.S. 101, the route from Los Angeles to San Francisco, and began sniping, killing and canning the Hebrew brooder.

Reed Harris, a State Department man in charge of international information made the decision.

The decision of the Senate subcommittee. Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, R. Wis., asked a question about cutting off the aid.

"If I were an ardent member of the Communist party would I not have taken the same action?"

"I believe I would," the witness, Gerald Doerber of the Voice of America, said.

"Do you believe the action would have been the same if it were a matter of cutting off aid to the Hebrew brooder?"

"Yes, sir," the witness replied.

The hearings then went to Washington. Reed Harris was brought before the television lights. Sen. McCarthy waved a book at the camera, a book written by Harris in 1952 when he was a student at Columbia University. The book, "King Football" was an attack on big-time college football.

The Columbia attack at that time was acting like a lance against the one fringe on the extreme left which would have us pull out, the other fringe on the extreme right which would have us bomb Communist China.

The trouble is that we are not getting, we are not doing, what the President's words describe. That, too, is the inescapable basis of controversy in this country and in the world. If, last February, the President had announced an approaching build-up of every kind of American military contribution to the situation in Vietnam, saying "we will stay there and resist" no matter what happens, there could have been no serious quarrel with him from the great American center.

If, by some process of face-saving degree, American policy in Vietnam now could adjust itself "to stand firm" and "stay and resist" no matter what happens, there would be no serious quarrel with him from the great American center.

It would appear to us that a temporary halt to bombing raids provided a period was not long enough to provide a basis for a serious re-evaluation of the situation in Vietnam, and the threatened Russian volunteers might then actually appear on the scene.

Inside Report

by Rowland Evans Jr. Robert D. Novak

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — "Frankly, I don't think there's anything that will save John Sparkman next year. But if he's going to have any chance at all, he'd better start getting up in Senate next every day and blast Lyndon Johnson."

So says one of Gov. George Wallace's shrewdest political lieutenants. Moreover, this advice has been given privately to Sen. John J. Sparkman, 59, for re-election next year. In no uncertain terms. Though Sparkman is not about to resort to "baiting" in the closing days of a distinguished career, this advice typifies the strange state of politics in Alabama.

Under the general label of "conservatism," the state's mood is anti-L.B.J. and anti-Federal government, and anti-Negro politics. The candidates who best embody the mood are anti-L.B.J. and anti-Federal government, and anti-Negro politics.

The hand count was performed for an appreciative audience. The program was varied, with two weeks and two classical pieces mixed in with marches.

Keith Groethe, music director, said that two of the Sousa marches will be played during the Memorial Day observance. "The band, formed last year, now has about 35 members."

What could now be no-party politics. Party labels are meaningless. Political triumphs go to the candidates who best embody the mood of the white Alabama.

This is made to order for Wallace, whose mass support is in the high school and college boys. There are already a few high schools in the high school band.

The club and its members are now in the high school band. The club and its members are now in the high school band.

Concert, Fair, Baseball—School Activity Steps Up

The tempo of activities at Bolton Junior-Senior High School is increasing. It takes study paring to keep up with the activities at school.

Proceeds will go toward the purchase of a new bus to be placed in front of the school for the "late bus" students to sit on.

Salazar to Speak

Joe Salazar, Cuban exile, will be the guest speaker at 8:30. Members of the church and all area residents are invited to attend the program.

Refresherments will be served after the program.

Bolton Budgets Asked by June For Change in Fiscal Year

Because of the change in the fiscal year, the board of finance is asking all boards to submit their budgets by June 1.

Finance board chairman Norman Freeman will hold a board meeting last night that will take at least two months to float a bond issue to finance the change in the fiscal year.

Month budgets must be prepared before the town can be approved by the board.

The town meeting Sunday will be held at 8:30 a.m. ahead with the change to a uniform fiscal year, which was accomplished July 1, 1966.

Board of finance members discussed the possibility of correlating town elections with the change in the fiscal year.

Although not in the competition, biology projects will also be on display.

A Hammond electric organ donated by Clifford R. Burr and Herbert B. House to Central Church is used for the first time in a big musical program in the church auditorium.

Board of directors voted to ask the Housing Authority of Manchester if it is willing to agree to a system for vacating 11 homes on a tract of Greenhaven land in which the North Methodist church is interested.

A week later, Reed Harris got a call Edward Murrow was on the phone. "We need a translator for this government gobbledygook and regular business talk," he said. "You're a businessman now. You can help us." Murrow's voice crackled. "Besides, I want you back here," he said.

When Harris came to the office to meet Murrow, it was the first time the men had ever met. Murrow was wearing a suit and tie and was looking very serious. "You're a businessman now. You can help us," Murrow's voice crackled. "Besides, I want you back here," he said.

"Gentlemen," Murrow said, "I just want to welcome Reed Harris back from eight years' leave."

A Thought for Today

Sponsored by the Manchester Council of Churches

"The eye is not satisfied with seeing, nor the ear filled with hearing" (Ecclesiastes 1:8)

Man's curiosity is limitless. This is both a virtue and a vice when it becomes greed and lust and drives man to pursue material aims. It is a virtue when it impels him to explore the world, to open new horizons of knowledge and to chart new courses for the advancement of himself and mankind.

NEW YORK, April 28—In 1952, a Senate subcommittee investigating the Voice of America held televised hearings in New York and Washington. An important matter on the agenda was the cancellation of broadcast rights to the Middle East. Few people were listening to the Hebrew brooder.

Reed Harris, a State Department man in charge of international information made the decision.

Town, Board Firm Review Parker Village Plant Plans

The town has received a draft of a report for the plan of Parker Village as a residential development and has asked the Colonial Park Co. to review the plan. It is expected to be completed by the end of the month.

The plan calls for a 100-unit residential development on a 100-acre tract. The plan includes a school, a playground, and a community center. The town board is expected to review the plan in the near future.

Car Crashes Into House

An automobile crashing head-on into the living room of a home at 199 Adams St. early this morning not only punched a wide gash in a wall but also abruptly ended the viewing of a late movie on television for two women. Mrs. John Antonio and her daughter Marie, watching the movie while sitting on a couch against the street-side wall, were shoved forward several feet by the impact.

The operator of the automobile, David W. Shearer, 31, of Wapping, was charged with driving the car into the house. Mrs. Antonio said she was summoned to appear in court on May 10.

Realtors Back Code of Ethics Which Bars Discrimination

Manchester realtors charged last week with possible housing discrimination in Manchester, agreed this morning to continue to stand by their established code of ethics, which bars discrimination in the sale or rental of any real property.

The Manchester Board of Realtors referred to a policy statement accepted last year, stating that property listed with members is "available to all purchasers or renters regardless of race, color, or creed."

There are few Negroes in Manchester and no realtors have been unwilling to show them homes, said Alfred Werber, but because most realtors "have never had an opportunity to show homes to a Negro," he said, "they are not sure."

There just isn't a Negro community in Manchester, he said, to attract new families here. Werber said that the board of realtors met this morning to discuss the Human Relations Commission report, which called for a code of ethics that would bar discrimination on the basis of race, color, or creed.

Pretty Hairdresser Rules Society Queens

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—In huge houses obscured by well-manicured landscaping and here inside the reigning queens of international society.

In a tiny pink house with pink porcelain casings, a pink tulle pool and other very pink, very feminine fro-frou lives the mite-sized, iron-willed French girl who rules over these women with almost totalitarian authority.

She is Colette, their hairdresser.

You would think she was the only hairdresser in miles, the way influential friends must get you in, and how you must mind your manners if you expect to be permitted to return.

Once it is reported the Duchess of Windsor begged Colette to park a friend named from the pink-curtained stalls with their glass-domed hairdryers.

"No, no!" said the pretty French girl with a charming accent. "I have seen such incredible cruelty that my rich clients do not dare complain to me," Colette says, slipping off five-inch gold platform sandals, and squishing her toes in the upstair apartment.

"They are really wonderful but they have so much that if a teeny, little thing goes wrong they are so broken-hearted."

"Dream a little, I tell them."

Because keeping abreast of the newest fashions is essential. Colette returns to Paris to work with Alexandre. Equally as important as her job is her talent for keeping secrets.

"I am sure if I hear them tell what I hear. Often I know much more than the lady who is talking, but I say nothing. I just smile to myself."

Colette is also amused by accounts of her independence, now legends. "I have to be the boss here. I have to be the boss here. I have to be the boss here."

The third time a customer is a little tardy for her appointment she must buy champagne for the house. Sometimes the treat is on Colette. In her kitchen up stairs she has the pale pink petals and pans given her by Mrs. John F. Kennedy and her sister.

Lee Radzwill, the French miss stills up some delectable cuisine to go with the bubblywater. There was a time when Colette had decided to go back to Paris to study, but her ladies wouldn't hear of it. And they were right. She pampers them, too.

Colette, ruler of the queens of society, works on the hair of Miss Katherine McCarty. The French refugee has been THE hairdresser to the great for 18 years. (AP Photofax)

Hal Boyle All-Expense Trip Reward For Loyalty

EN ROUTE to Saigon (AP)—Many firms have a policy of rewarding employees after long service.

So does mine.

On completing 30 years at the same old typewriter plant, I was summoned by an executive who told me:

"We are giving you a free two-month trip, all expenses paid. Where do you think is the best place in the world to be right now?"

"Viet Nam," I replied without hesitation.

"We, isn't that a strange coincidence?" exclaimed my kindly superior. "That's the very place we got a ticket to."

Then he added as an afterthought:

"Better get over there as soon as you can. This money is about to start—and you certainly wouldn't want to miss that."

So it was that I learned I had volunteered to help control a third war. The others were World War II and our "police action" in Korea.

When I informed friends that I was going to Viet Nam they were of two opinions. Some said they envied me, because they felt it would be an interesting and educational assignment. The others, who view I happen to prize more highly, simply said, "You must be out of your mind."

A friendly cab driver to whom I confided my mission had still a different reaction. Turning and looking critically at my blushing hair and bright waistline, he shook his head and remarked:

"Gee, now I'm really worried. I didn't know the situation out there was that desperate. The bottom of Johnson sure is scraping the bottom of our manpower barrel."

The first action in approach was to always be had with red tape. It took two weeks and 12 full needles to go through a series of medical shots protecting against smallpox, plague, cholera, and practically everything else, except the inconvenience of sudden metallic ventilation. My medicine doesn't seem to have a wonder drug to prevent that.

Then you have to go to the Viet Nam Embassy in Washington, D.C. for a visitor's visa. Then you drop by the Pentagon for a chocolate milkshake, a briefing, and a wallet identity card from the Department of Defense which warns our public information officers abroad that you are a newsmen. I thought I would have to console her, but actually she consoled me. I guess we have had so many farewell over the years that her parting from each other had become a way of life for us.

"Don't know what's happening over there is terribly important to us," she said. "I just hope you can explain so that I can understand it. It all seems so mixed up."

As I kissed her at the door, her eyes flooded and she poured out a torrent of last-minute maternal advice:

"Don't forget your vitamin pills. Stay out of the hot sun and those jungles and rice paddies. Don't get your feet wet, get plenty of rest, and you'll be all right."

Then began the long and lonely around-the-clock flight to far-off Saigon, where the strange frontier war we are engaged in seems to be deepening daily.

There I hope to spend as much time as I can with the American men stationed with our different services in Viet Nam, and write for their folks back home the nature of their job and how they feel about it. In war, what happens is the direct dealings with the gridders is always more humanly interesting than where the bullets go off.

Power Struggle in Meriden May Echo Throughout State

RANGOON, Burma (AP)—Burma's military government... The spokesman said the 11 cities and towns Tuesday night, accusing them of anti-government activities.

An official broadcast claimed some monks were being held in a camp for sedition. The monks were working with capitalists to sabotage the government's socialist economic policy.

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP)—President Jomo Kenyatta's government pledged Tuesday to give Kenya a socialist welfare state described as similar to Britain and Scandinavia.

The government published a political manifesto which said "African socialism differs politically from communism because it ensures equal political rights and from capitalism because it prevents the exercise of disproportionate political influence by economic power groups."

PANAMA (AP)—Negotiations between the United States and Panama for a new Canal Zone treaty are being accelerated, a Foreign Office spokesman said today.

He said the new treaty would eliminate the 1903 treaty's provision for U.S. control over the

College Fills Needs Of People: Babbidge

UConn President Homer D. Babbidge Jr. said last night that "the highroads may put the lowroads out of business if the trend of looking down on a note at vocational training in state universities continues."

Dr. Babbidge, addressing the annual dinner of the Manchester League of Women Voters, said, "The next revolution in the function of American land grant colleges is to educate the people at the expense of prestige."

He defended state universities, such as Connecticut's, "for its non-system pattern of higher education, working with the context of the needs of its state inhabitants," and "for its ample all of Yale's combined applicants."

He revealed that the university accepts about one out of each 100 out-of-state applicants and that they comprise about 10 per cent of the freshmen enrollment.

He defended the practice and said, "If we refuse to admit non-Connecticut residents, our states will refuse to accept ours."

He said that about 90 per cent of all UConn graduates (including 50 per cent of the non-residents) remain and work in Connecticut, adding greatly to the state's economic well-being and thereby adding to its economy.

In closing his address Babbidge said, "I hope that the University of Connecticut will not abandon the course under attack here. It is a course of teaching, research and public service, all dedicated to the needs of the people of the state."

TV WIREBOOK
By: Walt Lamoureux

There is an old bromide to the effect that "children should be seen not heard." This brings to mind that TV interference is both seen and heard, although visual interference is most common.

In light of the fact that the band of frequencies used by one TV station is almost as wide as the entire radio broadcast band, it is apparent that a TV set cannot be a sharply tuned set as a radio. It must be selective as we might prefer and on occasion, and under certain conditions, spurious signals (interference) will be present.

Don't let a faulty set cause interference with your program viewing... it just isn't worth it. Write for our new book, "HOW TO BUY A TV SET," 388 Center St., Manchester, N.H. 06102. Come in today and check the simple procedure. We will also put your present set on a test and, if necessary, repair it inexpensively. Phone 643-2303 or 246-5252.

Tomkiel Named By Clerk Group
Manchester's Town Clerk Edward J. Tomkiel has been re-elected chairman of the Connecticut Town Clerks' Association.

Tomkiel, at the association's annual meeting, Friday in New Haven, outlined the pending legislation in the General Assembly affecting election laws and the duties of the town clerk, including the extension of the town clerk's term in office from present two years to four years.

Tomkiel, in urging passage of the bill, said that extending the term would bring about more continuity in the town clerks' functions through continuity in office.

Peggy Lee and Benny Goodman in Rehearsal

Peggy Lee, Benny Goodman Team Again After 22 Years

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—It was with Peggy Lee through a few choruses of "I'm a Fool for You" that the sentimental reunion of Peggy Lee and Benny Goodman was set for a meeting at the summit of a Beale Street apartment house above the Sunset Strip.

The famous pair met with director Nick Castle and members of Miss Lee's rhythm combo to plan her re-teaming with Goodman after a lapse of 22 years. It will take place next week at Melodyland in Anaheim, and aficionados of the swing era will consider it a historic event.

Such types, now pushing bravely through their 40s, can get choked up as they recall gawking before bandstands in the war years and listening to the agile clarinet of the King of Swing and the languorous tones of his beautiful blonde singer.

"Why don't you do it right," she would moan, "like some other men do."

Peggy sang with Goodman for only two years, 1941 to 1943, but their collaboration remains a memorable one. It resumed recently when Benny dropped in to hear his onetime employee at Beale Street East in New York. He got up on the stand, borrowed a clarinet and noodled and head back for North Dakota, but Benny talked her out of it. He told her she would improve, and she did. She started clicking with records of "Somebody Else is Taking My Place" and "Why Don't You Do Right" and other numbers now cherished by aging swingsters.

She quit the band to be a housewife and mother, but husband Dave Barbour convinced her to make some records for Capitol. She embarked once more on a career that has continued to flourish.

A citizens' group from the area, the Save the Parks Committee, has filed a suit challenging the department's authority to take parklands.

A lower court has ruled against the plaintiffs, who have since taken the case to the State Supreme Court of Errors.

Meanwhile, the department is seeking passage of the bill to spell out in unmistakable language that it has authority to take land already in public use for highway purposes.

Knupek and the other officials insisted that the department always weighs carefully all the arguments for and against a proposed highway location.

The highway department, Knupek said, "has never set a highway location based on purely engineering considerations. That would be poor planning."

Opposition to the measure included the Connecticut Forest and Park Association, Federated Garden Clubs of Connecticut, Simsbury Conservation Commission, and the Connecticut State League of Sportsmen's Clubs.

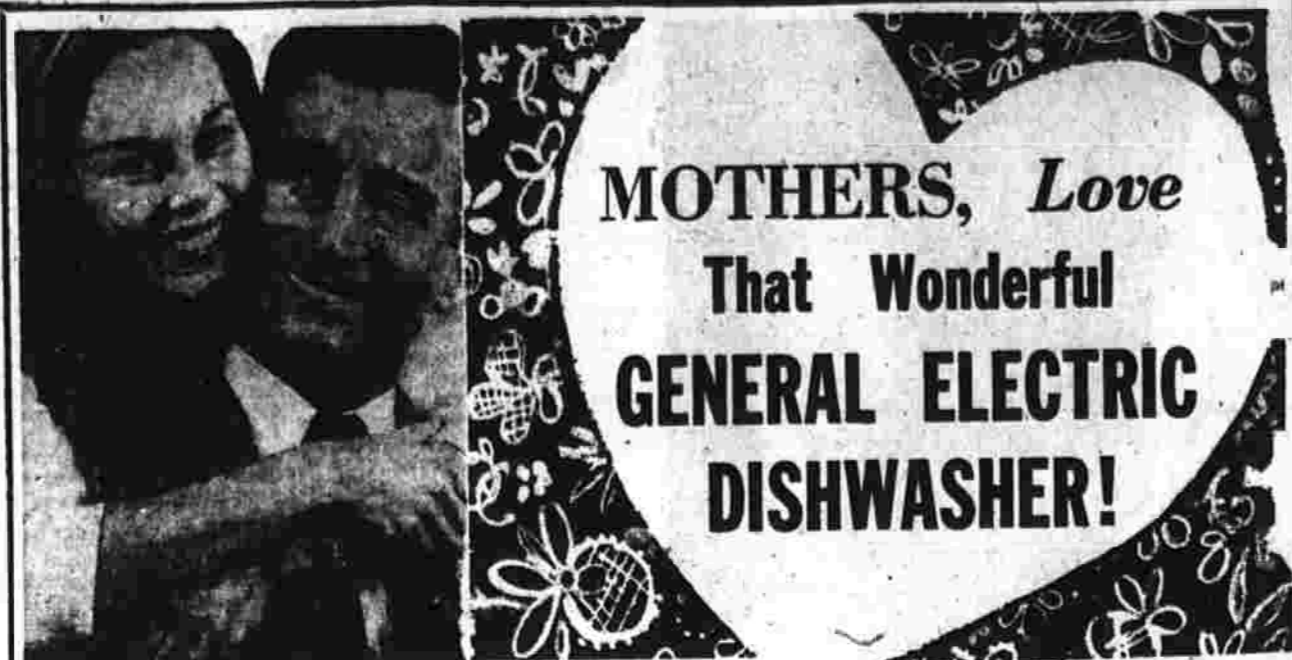

Mayor Richard C. Lee of New Haven, in a letter to the committee, accused the Highway Department of seeking a "license to decimate the parks and open spaces."

In the Legislature Highway Aides Seek Land-Taking Powers

HARTFORD (AP)—State-approved animal destroyed and Highway Department spokesmen have told a legislative committee the department needs a free hand in selecting highway locations.

"Placing power in special groups could eventually lead to a situation where it would be impossible, not merely to arrive at a sound location for a highway but to arrive at any location, good or bad," claimed Adam Knupek.

Knupek and other department officials testified Tuesday before the General Assembly's Roads and Bridges Committee.

"They spoke in favor of a bill that would give the state highway commissioner the authority to take land for a highway even if it is already in public use, as a parkland, for example."

The bill was opposed by several speakers from the Hamden, New Haven area where the department intends to put a connector road for Route 91 through East Rock Park.

A citizens' group from the area, the Save the Parks Committee, has filed a suit challenging the department's authority to take parklands.

A lower court has ruled against the plaintiffs, who have since taken the case to the State Supreme Court of Errors.

Mayor Richard C. Lee of New Haven, in a letter to the committee, accused the Highway Department of seeking a "license to decimate the parks and open spaces."

Liquor Prices

HARTFORD (AP)—"Balance," says Assistant House Majority Leader Nicholas B. Eddy to arguments that Connecticut is encouraging temperance by controlling the price of name-brand liquors.

The New Hartford Republican made the comment Tuesday while speaking in support of a bill that would repeal the state price mark-up law passed by the 1963 General Assembly.

Eddy told the legislature that even if it is already in public use, as a parkland, for example.

The bill was opposed by several speakers from the Hamden, New Haven area where the department intends to put a connector road for Route 91 through East Rock Park.

A citizens' group from the area, the Save the Parks Committee, has filed a suit challenging the department's authority to take parklands.

Housing Bias

HARTFORD (AP)—A bill that would allow the State Civil Rights Commission to seek injunctive relief in housing discrimination cases has received a favorable report from the Senate General Law Committee.

The bill, approved Tuesday, contains a provision requiring the commission to post any bond that may be required by the court or the judge granting the injunction.

Trading Stamps

HARTFORD (AP)—The legislature's General Law Committee has tabled a number of bills aimed at trading stamps. Some of the measures tabled Tuesday would have prohibited the distribution of trading stamps in Connecticut. All of the bills are dead for the current session.

Death Penalty

HARTFORD (AP)—A bill that would do away with the death penalty was given a favorable report Tuesday by the legislature's Judiciary Committee.

The death penalty at present can only be imposed for first degree murder, and then only when the jury returns a separate verdict specifically recommending death. The alternative is life imprisonment.

Voting Times

HARTFORD (AP)—Voters would be able to stay in the polling booths for two minutes under a bill favorably reported Tuesday by the legislature's Elections Committee.

The current limit for voter is one minute.

The committee also approved a bill which allows voters to cast absentee ballots in elections held on religious holidays.

Area Drive Led By Mrs. Smith

Mrs. Robert H. Smith of 381 Hartford Rd. has been named Manchester area captain for the Women's Committee of the Wadsworth Altshouse. Hartford is initiating to benefit the museum building fund.

Mrs. George M. Ellis, 268 Brimfield Rd., Westfield, after Monday.

Proceeds from the sale of the books will enable the women's committee to meet the pledge it made last year to the museum's building fund to pay $100,000 over a 10-year period.

The project is an engagement book entitled "Appointments with Art." It consists of 57 black and white art reproductions selected from the Alshouse's collection with a colored reproduction of Youlou-Lautree's painting, "Jane Avril Leaving the Moulin Rouge," on the cover. The book will follow the school and club year by beginning with Sept. 1 and running through Aug. 31.

A luncheon and a meeting for all workers on Monday at 12:15 p.m. in the Tapscott Room of the museum will kick-off the project. Many hostesses will open their homes for parties at which time they will be purchasing the engagement book.

The workshop is one of a series scheduled from February through May in various regions of this country and Canada.

Fatal Accident Linked to Drink

HARTFORD (AP)—Two teenagers killed in a collision in Kent two weeks ago had been drinking at a tavern in Wadsworth, N.H., the state police commissioner said Tuesday.

"New York state, with its law that permits the serving of intoxicants to 18-year-olds, contributes to lure our youngsters to roadhouses and occasionally to their deaths," said Commissioner Leo J. Mulcahy.

The driver of the death car, Thomas Heuschel, 18, of Torrington, had a blood alcohol reading of .22 per cent, Mulcahy said. Heuschel's passenger, 15-year-old Robert A. Tesseraud of Torrington, had also been drinking but was not intoxicated, Mulcahy said.

The driver of the other car, Mrs. Natalie Coares, 50, of Bridgeport, was seriously injured.

State police said Heuschel's car veered off Route 7, hit the shoulder, careened back across the road and struck Mrs. Coares' car head-on.

Insurance, Coaching Posts Heinsohn, Jones Plan New Careers

BOSTON (AP)—Veteran forward Tom Heinsohn has a new job and so does backcourt ace K. C. Jones but both may be back for another season with the National Basketball Association champion Boston Celtics.

Heinsohn announced at the Celtics breakfast dinner last night that he has accepted a management position with an insurance firm. He said he would like to play another season in the NBA but he made it clear the new position first. He said he will decide in September about playing next year after he determines how much free time his new job will allow.

Heinsohn's University announced it has named backcourt ace K. C. Jones backcourt coach. Jones will start at the end of the season. He will be in charge of the Celtics' defense and will be in charge of the Celtics' training camp.

Before the start of the season, Heinsohn said he would like to play another season in the NBA but he made it clear the new position first. He said he will decide in September about playing next year after he determines how much free time his new job will allow.

Braves' Crowd Skids to New A-Time

Temperature

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Milwaukee's baseball attendance on the skids as once-rabid fans refuse to risk pneumonia to cheer for the lame-duck Braves.

Only 1,677 fans, the smallest crowd in County Stadium history, braved a dreary temperature and a whipping 20 m.p.h. wind Tuesday night as the Braves defeated the hapless St. Louis Cardinals.

Attendance dropped to 3,382 for the second game, played in severe weather. Then 3,382 paid to see the third straight loss. The Braves' attendance for the season is 1,677, the lowest since 1954.

Giants Outlast Phils In Hits, Runs Battle

NEW YORK (AP)—Anyone have a spare dome for sale?

Mail it, special delivery to Horace Stohm, President, the San Francisco Giants, Candlestick Park.

The Giants, who unfortunately built their ball park before the dome came of age, certainly could use a top on Candlestick Park to cut off the wind-tunnel effect that led to a 29-hit slugfest Tuesday night.

The Giants finally outlasted the Phillies 14-13 on Matty Alou's ninth-inning homer. It was the 21st home run that sailed out of the park with an assist from the wind.

Meanwhile, under the dome, Casey Stengel could have hit the roof—even though it's scientifically impossible.

But science can't account for the 29-run, 29-hit slugfest that shakes his fist at father time and the wind.

For 2 1/2 innings, plus two more in the 11th, the two teams traded home runs. The Phillies had 13, the Giants had 14.

CHICAGO (AP)—You'll never convince the Boston Red Sox that the Chicago White Sox are called the "hulless wonders."

The White Sox, who have been so far and Chicago has produced plenty of muscle at the plate to back up the spectacular pitching of John Bush.

Right-hander Steve Carlton, incidentally, has beaten Boston both times with Red Sox ace Bill Monbouquette suffering the loss on each occasion.

The first outing was won by Chicago 3-1 in the 11th inning on a two-run homer by Dick Brown. Tuesday night, every one contributed to the slaughter as the White Sox walloped Monbouquette and two relievers for 10-1.

The Red Sox contributed five unearned runs to Chicago's tally, committing three errors. The Chicago White Sox, however, had no errors.

Twins and White Sox Unleash Power Hitters Part-Time Slugger Pascual Powers Win over Cleveland

NEW YORK (AP)—The Minnesota Twins have so much power, they bench one of their sluggers three days out of every four.

The part-time slugger drove in five runs with a grand slam homer and a single Tuesday night as the Twins bombed Cleveland 11-3 for their seventh victory in nine starts.

Besides sparking the offense, pitcher Camilo Pascual also led the Indians to two hits while winning his second game in five starts.

The grand slam was the second in Pascual's career and the second in the American League this season.

The 27-year-old right-hander climaxed a seven-run first inning with the homer, connecting against Stan Williams, who had just relieved Cleveland starter Sam McDowell. He then capped a three-run fifth inning by launching a run-scoring single.

Pascual, a 12-year veteran, is on a rapid start in his effort to recapture the title of the AL's best right-handed pitcher he lost to Dean Howard last season.

He is also to convince Minnesota's new manager, Tom LaSorda, that he is the best right-handed pitcher he lost to Dean Howard last season.
