Viet Rangers Find Bodies of 100 Men

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Vietnamese rangers combing a rubber plantation just north of the shattered town of Dong Xoai found the bodies of about 100 government troops today, the remains of the 7th Airborne Battalion, a U.S. military spokesman announced.

Dong Xoai was reported quiet but braced for more trouble from the Viet Cong.

U.S. authorities announced "at the request of the Vietnamese government elements of the 173rd U.S. Airborne Brigade have moved to Phuoc Vinh to protect the airfield and aircraft there."

Phuoc Vinh is the main airfield for the Dong Xoai area. The U.S. paratroopers had been expected to move from there into the Dong Xoai conflict but the Vietnamese commanders were reluctant to ask for them.

The Viet Cong mounted a number of attacks and ambushes in various parts of Viet Nam today, all the way from the 17th Parallel to the southern tip of the nation.

Ninety American and Vietnamese planes hammered targets in North Viet Nam in a series of separate raids.

Twenty U.S. Air Force jet bombers escorted by 30 other jets attacked the Ban Xom Lom barracks 70 miles southwest of Hanoi. Five buildings were reported destroyed and 10 heavily damaged.

Forty-two planes hit three areas of the Ba Bon army barracks 60 miles north of the demilitarized zone, U.S. spokesmen said.

Vietnamese pilots claimed 70 per cent destruction of 38 buildings in one target area. American pilots reported at least one building destroyed and one damaged severely.

Pilots of four U.S. Air Force Thunderchiefs reported cratering the approach to a bridge about 30 miles south of Vinh and leaving another bridge sagging about 10 miles south of Vinh.

U.S. Navy planes from the carrier Midway attacked a three-span steel bridge about 150 miles south of Hanoi. Pilots reported they destroyed the center support structure and the bridge collapsed. The same

Wrong Answer

CANTON, Ill. (AP) — The owner of a service station may be short one regular customer today because he took time to give Sophronia a shower.

Sophronia is a baby elephant.

The 87-degree heat was making Sophronia unhappy, so her driver, an employe of Mills Brothers Circus, pulled into Al Turi's service station yesterday.

"Would you give Sophronia a shower?" the driver asked.

Turi was cooling off the circus star when his telephone jangled. He asked an assistant to answer and have the caller wait.

The aide returned to tell Turi: "She got huffy and hung up."

"What did you say?" Turi asked.

"I just said you were out watering the elephant."

Stamford Begins Project to Stem Drug Addiction

STAMFORD (AP) — Mayor Thomas C. Mayers announced today that this city of 102,000 will launch a community-wide program for the prevention and treatment of drug addiction.

Mayers said the program would be the first of its kind in the nation.

He appointed a committee of 48 leading citizens to work on the program.

The mayor said the program grew out of discussions with the staff of the Narcotics Addiction Service Center of Southwestern Fairfield County, which is located here, and with Members of KINAID, a local organization comprises relatives of addicts.

"Stamford has a growing narcotics problems," Mayers said. "The citywide experiment is an essential step we must take if we are ever going to stop the spread of drug use."

Cabs Robbed, Two Held

NEW HAVEN (AP)—Two men were under arrest today on charges of robbing two taxicab drivers at gunpoint.

Arrested on charges of robbery with violence were Anton Schillo, 21, of 1 Sherman Ave., and Edward Malloy, 22, of 346 Lloyd St., both of New Haven.

Police said that two cab drivers were robbed in separate incidents last night. One driver was robbed of $31 and the other of $21.

Chicago Celebration Fetes U.S. Spacemen

CHICAGO (AP) — James A. McDivitt and Edward H. White II, the Gemini 4 astronauts, came to Chicago today and were greeted by a tumultuous welcome.

McDivitt, a native of Chicago, said he felt "very humble" and added: "We were just doing our jobs."

The wives of the astronauts were handed large bouquests of red roses when they left the plane in which the party flew from Houston, Tex.

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, making the official welcome talk at O'Hare International Airport, said: "No one is more deserving of plaudits than these two great Americans — astronauts, yes, but Americans first."

They were whisked to the downtown lake front in open white cars. Waves of cheers from crowds five deep rolled along with them.

"When I was a kid in Chicago," said McDivitt, "I never dramed of a day like this.

"The last few days make me feel very humble. We were just doing our jobs."

White, responding to greetings and handshakes at the airport, said, "We are very greatly honored to have the day with you. We are accepting it for the industry that created the spacecraft and the booster."

There was no sign of a threatened demonstration by civil rights protesters as the official parade began on a section of Michigan Avenue north of the Chicago River known as "The Magnificent Mile."

Sidewalks on both sides of the route were packed with people — thousands and thousands of youngsters of all ages. Thousands of flags fluttered from many points along the route which included State Street and ended at City Hall after a home stretch up La Salle Street from Jackson Boulevard.

The weather was perfect.

Crowds gathered along the expressway route to the city, and on La Salle Street near City Hall, hours before the astronauts' cars were expected to pass.

Many carried printed signs saying, "Chicago welcomes McDivitt and White." Flags and pennants festooned downtown streets on the parade route.

After a special meeting of the City Council to confer honorary Chicago citizenship on McDivitt, White, and two officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, Dr. George E. Mueller, associate director, and Charles W. Matthews, Gemini project manager, there was a

Congressional Ship Faces Rougher Sea

WASHINGTON (AP)—After more than six months of fairly smooth sailing, Congress is heading into shoal-infested waters that may wreck its plans to adjourn by Labor Day.

Voting rights, union shops, foreign aid, health care for the elderly, minimum wages, closing of some military bases, legislative reapportionment, excise taxes, the antipoverty program and pay raises for military and civilian personnel are among the snags that lie ahead.

Not even one of the dozen annual appropriation bills to finance the government for the fiscal year starting July 1 has been sent to the President, although most of them have cleared the House.

Although publicly voicing confidence that all the necessary legislation can be disposed of by Labor Day, some congressional leaders already are considering a summer recess followed by a fall session. Such a recess is a distinct possibility for the House, which is legislatively in better shape than the Senate.

Two of the major pending bills are on the Senate calendar this week. They are the foreign aid authorization bill and a measure which would cut or repeal emergency excise tax rates. Both have passed the House, but Senate changes will require further House action.

Only one major bill is on the House schedule this week. It calls for creation of a Cabinet-level department of housing and urban development.

The voting rights bill passed by the Senate after a curtailed filibuster has been approved with major changes by the House Judiciary Committee. It probably will be held up several more weeks in the House Rules Committee and is not expected to reach the floor before next month. The threat of another filibuster confronts it when it goes back to the Senate.

A bill to prohibit state laws against union shops has been approved by the House Labor Committee but has not yet been considered by the Senate. It is being held up in the House pending action on separate legislation to protect Negroes' job rights. The whole subject may be dropped until next year.

The health care bill, passed by the House more than two months ago, is bogged down in the Senate Finance Committee.

The administration's bill to broaden application of the minimum wage law is in the hearing stage in the House Labor Committee.

500 Seek Lost Boy In Oxford

OXFORD (AP) — Searchers picked their way through woods and over rocky slopes today, looking for a 2½-year-old Waterbury boy missing since early Sunday afternoon.

Little James Damelio wandered away from his playmates at about 2 p.m. Sunday and hasn't been seen since.

Two helicopters joined the search after daybreak but late in the morning the boy was still missing as a party of some 500 combed the area.

"We're asking everyone who can to participate in the search," state police said today.

Volunteers poured into the Jacks Hill section of Oxford Sunday night to augment a force of State and local police, civil defense workers and firemen in the hunt for the boy.

State Polic eestimates of the size of the search party ranged from 500 to 1,000 persons. The numbers dwindled to less than 50 after midnight.

Shortly after midnight, State Police issued 'an appeal for volunteers to join the search when daylight arrived.

Tired Commuter Buys Own Town

MENLO PARK, Calif (AP)—In the sagebrush and jackrabbit country of lonely northeastern Nevada, Kenneth Grueger, a train-weary San Francisco Bay area commuter, found the little town of Currie—population 50—for sale.

It was just what he and his wife Jeannette had been looking for. So they bought it with their life savings of $85,000.

Tuesday, Krueger and his wife will pull up stakes at their apartment here and point their station wagon east for Currie.

The ex-suburbanites are assured of a cordial reception. Krueger, until last week motor vehicle inspector for Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Co. in San Francisco, automatically will become the town mayor, sheriff, fire chief, ranger, assessor and landlord.

That's because he not only bought the town's 75 acres but its few houses and businesses as well. Krueger and his wife will run the general store, the service station, a bar and a trailer park.

Until 1900 Currie was a railhead for cattle and sheep growers. Now the livestock goes to market in trucks but Currie still caters to hunters and fishermen. It lies at the foot of the towering Goshute and Ruby mountains whose slopes abound in elk and deer and whose streams tumble with trout.

The Kruegers don't know exactly when they got the yen to flee suburbia.

But, Krueger says, "five years ago, on our vacations, we began probing all the desolate areas of California. We were hunting for a spot where, if you wanted to make it as such, you could practially live the year 1859 all over again."

For various reasons the land they saw in California didn't appeal.

"Then we began going to Nevada," Krueger sighs contendedly, "far into the interior. And each time we found it harder to come back to all the hustle and bustle."

Last year the Kruegers stopped in Currie. There they met F. A. Majors who wanted to sell the town — lock, stock and barrel.

"We had the money, says Krueger. "But, believe me, it wasn't through inheritance or anything like that. It was our savings, close-to-the vest living."

"Yes, even beans and hot dogs, at times."

The couple will live in a two-bedroom house. "It's not like here on the Peninusla or in San Francisco," Krueger admits. "But I've seen worse. It's livable."

Mrs. Krueger, who gave up her job as assistant librarian for the Menlo Park School District, will work in the general store. She says she'll also spark Currie's social life to new heights, "organizing or disorganizing as the case may be."

Polio Victim Walks To Receive Degree

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—Nancy Malinosky, 21, a polio victims confined to a wheelchair for 15 years, started practicing walking last January behind locked doors. Only a few close friends who helped her knew about it.

"My parents have done so much for me. I wanted to do it for them," she said. Her parents weren't told, she said, because she didn't want to build up their hopes.

Nancy's determination paid off in a big way Sunday.

"The stage is 33 feet wide — we measured it last February," said Nancy. "Last Tuesday I practiced on the stage. It was sort of uneven, but I was sure I could do it."

Just to be on the safe side, she got word to Baldwin-Wallace President Alfred B. Bonds Jr. so that "if I got to him and he saw that I was shaky he would escort me the rest of the way."

When her name was called as the top student in her class, Nancy rose and walked with measured steps.

"I was too scared to remember much about it," she said later, but Dr. Bonds did meet her half way across and helped her the rest of the way.

Then, while she rested on Dr. Bonds' arms, the audience gave her a five-minute standing ovation.

Her mother, Mrs. Raymond Malinosky of Geneva, Ohio, cried for joy.

"It was a real gift for us," said Mrs. Malinosky.

She said Nancy was struck by polio when she was 6, had tried to walk a few steps then, but since had been confined to the wheelchair.

Now that's she's walked this far, will Nancy keep trying?

"I'm going to do as much as I can," she said happily.

Nancy compiled a 3.87 average and plans to enter Drew University Theological Seminary in the fall to work for a bachelor of divinity degree. She is interested in a career in teaching and guidance counseling.

Artists Visit White House, Urge Caution

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leaders of the art world gathered at a White House festival in their honor today, and right off there was public note of misgivings by some over President Johnson's foreign policies.

Four poets and writers launched the day-long program by reading from their works in the historic East Room. The master of ceremonies, Mark Van Doren, himself a poet, noted with regret the absence of poet Robert Lowell, who declined an invitation because of his "dismay and distrust" of the administration's foreign policy.

Van Doren said he had been troubled as to whether to mention the absence of Lowell, "who assumed that he could not 'enjoy public celebration without making subtle public commitments'."

But Van Doren said he decided to mention it "merely as honoring the scruple of a fine poet who, in his own terms, was 'conscience bound' to stay away."

With Mrs. Johnson sitting in the audience of some 600, Van Doren said the honor the Johnsons were doing the arts is "what in our own fashion we propose to celebrate."

He suggested that they get on

Graduations Today At Yale and Fairfield

NEW HAVEN (AP)—Commencement exercises at Yale and Fairfield Universities today wind up a busy weekend of college graduation ceremonies.

Trinity College, the University of Hartford, Danbury State College, Southern Connecticut State College and Quinnipiac College held their year-end ceremonies Saturday and Sunday.

The scheduled highlight of the Fairfield University program is the appearance of Richard Cardinal Cushing, Archbishop of Boston. Cardinal Cushing is to receive an honorary degree.

Senator Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., Dr. William H. Conley, president of Sacred Heart University, and Dr. Henry W. Littlefield, president of the University of Bridgeport, are also scheduled to receive honorary degrees.

Graduates will include 250 men from the College of Arts and Sciences and 200 men and women from the Graduate School of Education.

Some 580 students graduated from Southern Saturday. Miss Terry Ferrer, Education Editor of the New York Herald Tribune, delivered a commencement address on the topic of campus unrest.

Over 300 students at Trinity College received Masters and Bachelors degrees Sunday. Igor I. Sikorsky, inventor of the first production helicopter, delivered the commencement address.

Governor John N. Dempsey was the main speaker at commencement exercises at Danbury State College Sunday.

NEW HAVEN (AP)—U Thant, secretary-general of the United Nations, and Dr. Benjamin Spock, child care expert were among 12 persons given honorary degrees today by Yale University.

Other degrees were conferred on Robert E. Marjolin, vice president of the European Economic Community; Prof. Claude Levi-Strauss of the College de France; Marshall Nirenberg, genetics researcher with the National Institutes of Health;

The Rev. Roland de Vaux, director of the Ecole Biblique et Archaeologique Francaise in Jerusalem; U.S. Rep. Edith S. Green, D-Ore.; Paul C. Cabot, retiring treasurer of Harvard University; The Rev. John C. Bennett, president of Union Theological Seminary;

Louis I. Kahn, University of Pennsylvania architect; Owen M. Wilson, president of the University of Minnesota; and Wilmarth S. Lewis, a longtime member of the Yale Corporation, the university's governing body.

U Thant's citation said:

"If one day the yearning of all peoples for peace overcomes the clash of national ambitions and calms the turbulence of ideological conflict, mankind will long count you among those chiefly responsible for civilization's survival."

Dr. Spock, a Yale graduate was cited for his "calm and reassuring wisdom."

NO COURT TV

NEW YORK (AP)—The Superior Court has rejected a request that its proceedings be televised by the Columbia Broadcasting System. In an exchange of letters Chief Justice Earl Warren told Dr. Frank Stanton, CBS president "The court has had an inflexible rule to the effect that it will not permit photographs or broadcasting from the courtroom when it is in session." He added he was sure the court "has no intention of changing that rule."

MARINER ON COURSE

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — A radio signal that took 10 minutes to cross 197 million miles of space told engineers today that Mariner 4 has performed its final task before photographing Mars July 14. At 11:50 a.m. an electronic timer aboard the 575-pound spacecraft issued commands adjusting its fix on Canopus, a distant star by which Mariner 4 is steering on its 325-million mile trip.

Summer Theaters

School is out—or nearly so—vacation time is nearing and if any other harbinger of the summer season is needed, tent, barns and tops for balls are being turned into the world of the theater. 'Show Biz,' if you will.

Each Monday in this space brief notices will keep Herald readers informed of what's playing and who's in it with regard to showplaces in the area. The "area" may be a misnomer, since the information dispatched will be pretty generally dependant on what theaters dispatch regular releases.

At any rate two theaters are already in operation.

The Oval in Farmington has opened its 15th season with "The Fantasticks," which stars Don Reed, Ted Weiant and Muffie Barker, Members of the press enjoyed the opening performance last Thursday and were pretty much delighted. Low spot is the lack of power to Miss Barker's voice. She thus became overshadowed by her fellow players, especially during the second act.

By and large though it's another in the long line of Oval hits. The charm of the "piece de about love," as it's called, is in a great measure due to Lester Hartness, who could possibly be described as "that little old scene-stealer, him."

There will probably be the greatest stale attendance of the season this week at the Storrowton Music Fair, located on the Eastern States Exposition grounds. The unusual offering is Ann Corio's satirical offering, "This Was Burlesque."

In Storrowton's years, producer Waddy Beach has suffered nothing more off-beat than Miss Corio's laughter - filled presentation, which closed only a few days ago after 30 months in New York. Girls, comics, tired jokes and even the candy butcher are all included in the production, guaranteed to bring back memories of days gone by.

And girls, you can go, too. The New York audience usually had as many women as men in its makeup.

One opening will be noted this week — Sheila MacRae starring in "Born Yesterday," at Hugh Fordin's Mt. Tom Playhouse, Holyoke.

Next Monday (June 21), Jerry Dale inaugurates the Oakdale season appearing for the first of seven performances. The Goodspeed Opera House will inaugurate its third season June 24 with "The Man from Laramanche." a new musical based on incidents in the life of Miguel de Cervantes, as well as from his novel "Don Quixote." Stay Middleton stars.

The American Shakespeare Festival Theater and the town of Stratford have invited their Connecticut neighbors to attend the first few festival performances at a reduced prices. Tuesday and Thursday afternoon the playbill lists "Romeo and Juliet." Wednesday is "King Lear," and Thursday evening "Coriolanus." Reservations and information may be obtained from the theater office.

Low Bid Listed For Addition to Porter School

The apparent low bidder for the addition to Horace Porter School is the J. S. Nasin Co. of Willimantic.

Among four bids submitted to the board of education last week, Nasin's was $448,000; F. W. Brown of Yantic, $478,201; Alexander Schnip and Sons of Norwich, $486,900, and Joseph Kovarovics, Mansfield Depot, $492,000.

The town has appropriated $515,000 and although the contract has not been awarded as yet, Architect Roy Ferguson will discuss Nasin's bid with him in minute detail this week.

The first letter submitted May 1, were all rejected and since then, the plans have been somewhat modified to bring the costs nearer in the town appropriation. The changes do not involve anything in the educational program.

The addition will be nearer to ground level to avoid the problems of a tremendous amount of fill. Plans to cut down all trees on the acreage recently bought from Mrs. Newton Smith have been discarded.

The new plans also call for a change in the location of the addition to avoid conflict with the sewerage system and the sespage bed.

After the bids were submitted, school board chairman Donald Tuttle called a meeting of the board so that approval of the plans, now somewhat revised, might be voiced once more.

The vote, as has been in the past, was two for and two against acceptance. Chairman Tuttle broke the tie by voicing his approval. Mrs. Phyllis Fox and Wallace Lohr voted to accept and Mrs. Frances Malek and Guy Beck voted against.

Lunch Tickets

Principal George Patros of Porter School has asked that all unused lunch and milk tickets be redeemed before the close of school Wednesday.

He added that requests to the clerical office be kept at a minimum during the last days of school.

Patros wishes to remind parents that charge slips are intended for emergency use only and should not be relied on as a convenience. All outstanding charge slips should be paid without delay and no charge slips should be requested on the last day of school.

dust in the House Rules Committee along with a general housing bill that may be sent to the House floor later this week.

Pay raises for military and civilian personnel are in the hearing stage in the House Armed Services and Civil Service committees.

State legislature reapportionment measures stemming from the Supreme Court's one man-one vote ruling are progressing slowly in the Senate and House Judiciary committees.

The administration's plan to shut down some military installations may stir up a major battle between the White House and Capitol Hill. The House wrote into the annual military authorization bill a provision to give Congress veto power over future base closings. Unless the Senate rejects or modifies the House language, the bill may run into a veto.

HITCH-HIKER CHARGED

HAMDEN (AP) — Richard Ericksen, 18, of New Haven, faces a charge of assault with intent to kill in connection with an early morning hitch-hiking incident.

Police arrested him Saturday in the shooting of John Maher, 28, of Hamden. They said a young hitchhiker shot Maher after Maher drove him from New Haven to Hamden.

"THE WAY I HEARD IT"

by John Gruber

Last week I discussed the relationship between critic and composer. Now I'll get to the relationship between performers and critics, something in which more people are interested-interested anyway, and about which most of them are confident they know more than they do about composers, a treacherous kind of breed.

Actually the relationship with artists is rather complex for the critic; more so than most people realize. Here are many performers of course, and they move in musical circles in their social life. Critics tend to move in these same circles and so are personally acquainted with a great many of the people they review.

There are a few critics who make it a point never to make the acquaintance of an artist, or at least they say so. Personally, I don't see how this can be accomplished unless you stay home all the time. You're just bound to meet some of them. This does not mean, however, that you have to be chummy with them; even though you meet them socially, the relationship generally stays pretty much on a business basis.

Joseph Wechsberg, prominent German critic, has complained that if a critic is seen three times in the company of an artist, the word goes out that the critic "has been bought." He doesn't say to whom the word is given, but I suspect this sort of rumor circulates among other artists.

I can well imagine that if I'm seen with artist "A" and give him a good review, and an never seen with artist "B" who happens to get a poor review, that "B" is likely to circulate such a rumor, and since there is a great deal of gossip backstage, particularly among opera singers, the rumor will grow at the speed indicated by Basilio in Barber of Seville.

This of course doesn't make it true. Personally, I have never gone out of my way to meet a particular artist, but I have never avoided making their acquaintances either. Most of those I have met I have found stimulating and entertaining and I should certainly feel a distinct sense of loss were I to have to abandon these acquaintanceships, even though none of them is a real friendship.

I don't think this affects our business relationships in the slightest. "Sinch" O'Hara of The Herald has likewise made the acquaintance of numbers of opera stars in the course of his duties photographing operas. I don't think he takes more flattering pictures of the ones he knows than of the ones he has never met, and just about the same conditions apply to the critics.

There are, however, artists who definitely try to curry favor with influential critics and this is much more true in Europe than in the U.S.A. When they're at the top they don't need the critic or the music editor for publicity purposes. When they are on the way up, and when they are on the way down, they do.

Recently, a well-known prima donna was quoted concerning "the ingratitude of the New York critics." Immediately I suspect that she must have tried to curry favor somehow and didn't get the results she expected. Perhaps she had given a cocktail party and was at pains to invite the critics before a performance.

A cocktail party at a famous New York hotel can run into money, but it isn't likely to sway a critic in his evaluation; he gets to plenty of cocktail parties anyway. You'd be surprised how many invitations he gets to "a tea to make the acquaintance of Jane Diva, the eminent soprano." There won't be any tea, and chances are we've already met Jane somewhere else. Lizette Societe (nee Lizzy Zzunk) is always giving these things.

So if Jane Diva happens to toss a cocktail party herself, it won't just about as much luck with the critics she invites. Things work the other way, too, Wechsberg just mentioned, feels it was no accident that his name was omitted from the guest list of a particular artist to whom he had recently given a poor review.

Not too long ago, a very prominent and successful German conductor invited the critics from all the influential German newspapers to attend his debut in a foreign country at his (the conductor's) expense. Naturally you'll say, "It couldn't happen here." But it has, and fairly recently, too.

A prima donna managed to inveigle a Chamber of Commerce into footing the bills for critics from all over the U.S. in attending her American debut. Chambers of Commerce sometimes fall for this sort of thing and they did this time. After all, their city is mentioned in the dateline of prominent papers everywhere. Besides, it might turn out like Marian Talley and Kansas City. (Or maybe you don't remember the great publicity on that one thirty years or so ago.)

The prima donna was successful beyond her fondest hopes; papers couldn't spare their critics and it would be hunker on they sent old time employes instead as a reward for faithful service. (After all, it wasn't costing the papers anything.) The oldtimers did what they were supposed to do; they gave uniformly good reviews since they didn't know whether she sang well or badly, and she'd shown them a good time.

The same gal planned her New York debut on a night that was bulging with musical events of more importance. First, second and third string critics went elsewhere and the oldtimers were again pressed into service. Once again they rose to the occasion and gave good reviews, even if meaningless ones.

With their papers already committed twice, the first string critics couldn't very well do a complete about face when she debuted at the Met, so they praised, but not unstintingly. The next year they were cooler yet, and they're still trying to climb down from an untenable position.

This sort of thing doesn't happen too frequently, however. Generally speaking, you get pretty reliable reviews of musical events, and the performing artist knows it.

Many artists claim they never read their reviews. My own experience is that they read them all right and quote them when favorable. It's always the unfavorable ones they fail to read.

This brings me to one other item. There is one particular critic on a newspaper in a city of moderate size who always gives glowing reviews. Press agents for artists always quote him in consequence. And he's happy. His name is one of the widest known in the entire profession. There are even people who believe he is an important critic.

Incidentally, an artist is never supposed to thank a critic for a favorable review; he's just doing his job, the same as she's doing hers. The next time she may not do so well and may get a roasting. Then she too may complain of the "ingratitude of critics."

No, we're not perfect by a long shot, but generally we try, and have experience and background. Even so, Ernest Newman, the late great critic of the London Times, was often when he said, "The critic is only remembered for his errors."

Sheinwold on Bridge

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Little Red Riding Hood would have made a good bridge player. She didn't make a futile dash for the door when she found a wolf in her grandmother's bed. She sweet-talked the wolf until she could make her escape. The same technique can be applied to many bridge hands.

Opening lead—Two of clubs. The non-reader of fairy tales would find himself inside the wolf's belly at the end of today's hand. He would win the first trick with the queen of clubs, draw two rounds of trumps and then lead the king of spades.

West takes the ace of spades and sees his prey escaping. The only hope is to take three diamonds tricks at once, so West takes the ace of diamonds, continues with the queen of diamonds and then leads a third diamond to the king. Yum-yum! A clumsy bridge player is a tasty morsel.

Heroine's Play

Little Red Riding Hood would be so obvious about her escape. She wins the first trick with the ace of clubs, thus convincing West that East has the queen of clubs. Then our heroine plays a trump with the ace and queen and leads a spade from dummy to her own king.

West takes the ace of spades and sees that the contract is beaten even if South has the king of diamonds. There is no need to lead diamonds at once since West can put his partner in with the queen of clubs to lead a diamond.

Salary Plan Tops Agenda

A Ph.D. salary schedule and a revised meritorious service policy will be adopted by the board of education when it meets tonight at 8 in the Bennett Board Room.

The doctor's column on the salary scale has been proposed because one of the teachers received his Ph.D. The revision of the meritorious service policy has long been urged by the Manchester Education Association.

The revision would entail extending the definition of service to include all service whether it be in this or some other school system.

Another attempt will be made to clear the agenda item for the custodianal union. The board rejected the original vocation plan and now the union has come back with a request that the plan be put into practice a year hence but that the board guarantee the plan at this time.

Other items on the agenda follow: The proposed Veterans' Memorial plaque at the high school, a site map for the proposed community school in the Spring-Gardner St. area revision of teachers personnel policy to agree with the new teacher negotiation law, a legal opinion on the transportation contract, a report on Project Head Start, acceptance of tuition students, appointments, and resignations.

Cuban Exiles Strike

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Four Cuban exiles charged with trying to export munitions for use against Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro went on a hunger strike Sunday night, according to a Florida Cuban group.

There was no official confirmation.

Among the prisoners was Dr. Orlando Bosch, head of the Miami-based anti-Castro Revolutionary Recovery Insurrectional Movement.

The four Cubans and two Americans were arrested Thursday night near Orlando. Federal agents said they had 18 bombs. Bosch said they were to have been used for a "master blow" against strategic targets in Cuba.

Mrs. Faulkner Feted At Retirement Party

By VIVIAN FERGUSON

Almost 100 former pupils and friends attended a reception in honor of Mrs. Julia D. Faulkner held yesterday afternoon at Washington School. While the guests attended with mixed emotions, Mrs. Faulkner, who is the parents of her students and with professional personnel. She plans to lead a more leisurely way of life upon her retirement this month. Her various hobbies include golf, gardening, reading and dabbling in oils. She and her husband are members of Manchester Country Club, where she undoubtedly will be found on opening day of school in the fall.

retiring from the school system this year, remained her usual gracious, charming and witty self.

Roy Johnson, president of Washington School PTA, presented the gift of a tea pot filled with a roll of paper money to the teacher on behalf of her students, former students and friends. "Two words came to my mind in thinking of Mrs. Faulkner and upon looking into her background," said Johnson, "determination and dedication." He went on to explain that her dedication was apparent. Mrs. Faulkner has spent 36 years with the Manchester school system and all of these years she has been spent at one school, Washington. She was only 18 years old when she began teaching and, at that time, with her slim figure and short skirts, it was difficult to distinguish her from some of the pupils. Many of the ladies attending the party yesterday admiringly pointed out that Mrs. Faulkner still has the figure of a young girl.

Johnson used two examples of the fifth grade teacher's determination. She began by teaching second grade and, at that time, did not finish the she finally reached the point where she felt that she could teach music, and this was accomplished prior to the present musical program in the schools. She now has one of the finest musical classes in the school. Her determination is also apparent in her golf game. She was women's champion of Manchester Country Club for four years during the 1940's.

Further praise was paid to Mrs. Faulkner by Walter C. Roth, principal of Washington School. "She does not fit the picture of the 'little old school teacher,'" he commented. "So often speak of the well-rounded student but seldom of the well-rounded teacher. She not only taught academic subjects but also manners, morals, guidance and was a friend to her pupils." He commented that she was also a well-rounded person in her personal life. He stated that over 1,000 students have passed through Mrs. Faulkner's classrooms, and pointed out that this was truly a good many lives to have been affected by such a wonderful person.

Mrs. Faulkner was born in Salem, Conn., May 1, 1911, the daughter of Mrs. Joseph T. Dytko still of Salem and the late Mr. Dytko. She studied at Williams Memorial Institute, New London, Conn., and graduated from Willimantic State Normal School, which is now Willimantic State College. She came to Manchester in 1929 and began teaching in the second grade of Washington School. She subsequently taught the third and fourth grades finally being 'promoted,' as she expresses it, to the fifth grade where she has spent the major portion of her teaching career.

Six years after coming to Manchester, she married Thomas D. Faulkner who is now vice president and general manager of C. R. Burr and Co. The couple reside at 160 Hollister St. Mrs. Faulkner became a teacher because she desired an association with children which she has thoroughly enjoyed along with her contacts with

Says Spirit Poor

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — The Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. says that a poverty of the spirit exists in the midst of scientific and technological advances.

King, addressing about 5,000 graduates and their families at Hofstra University's commencement, said, "If we are to survive, the spiritual and moral malaise must be eliminated."

When King arrived at the university, about a dozen pickets carried signs and distributed literature protesting his appearance. The pickets said they represented the Long Island Committee to Preserve Our American Freedom and Students for Constitutional Action.

As King began to speak, an unidentified man in the audience stood up and shouted a derogatory remark. Police ushered the man out.

King received an honorary doctor of divinity degree.

Swanson Seeks Presidency of District Again

Victor E. Swanson, president of the 8th District, announced today that he will run for re-election on Wednesday night, when District taxpayers meet at Bentley School for their annual meeting.

He thus joins five other 8th District officials who will run for re-election, all six apparently unopposed.

The president of the district is elected for a one year term, as are treasurer, clerk and tax collector. Howard Keeney, Joseph Volz and Mrs. Mary Laraia respectively, will seek re-election to those posts.

The six District directors are elected to three-year terms, with two of these positions expiring each year. Winslow Manchester and Clinton B. O'Brien are running for re-election.

In other business Wednesday night, voters will be asked to approve a $97,180 budget and will hear reports from its president, treasurer, tax collector, fire chief and clerk.

The budget will be based on 1965-66 revenue of $79,807 from taxes, figured on 97 per cent collected of assessments, $3,000 from sewer-disposal charges, $7,500 from sewer-connection charges, $3,500 from fire services for the Town of Manchester and $3,283 from a surplus realized during the 1964-65 year.

Following the adoption of the budget, the district taxpayers will be asked to authorize their directors to borrow sufficient funds to meet the obligations of the District, pending collection of taxes.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass
Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plates dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Hold false teeth more firmly, so that they feel more comfortable, so that you enjoy more confidence! Rabbi Leon Wind, left, accepts a plaque commemorating his 20th anniversary as spiritual and educational leader of Manchester's Temple Beth Sholom, as his wife, Ruth, looks on. In making the award, Temple President Philip Bayer extended to Rabbi Wind life tenure, by vote of the congregation's board of directors. (Herald photo by Saternis.)

Rabbi Given Life Tenure

Over 200 members of Temple Beth Sholom, out-of-town guests and dignitaries attended last night's testimonial dinner, to honor Rabbi Leon Wind on the 20th anniversary of his service in Manchester.

Rabbi Wind, who is the dean of Manchester clergy, was granted life tenure by vote of the Temple's executive board.

In accepting a plaque commemorating the event, Rabbi Wind said, "Just as I am now bound, for the rest of my life to continued service to Manchester's Jewry, so also are you bound to me as my people, my congregation, and my life's fulfillment."

The presentation was made by Temple President Philip Bayer, who said, "This life tenure which we are granting today is only a symbol, since we actually granted it in June 1945, when Rabbi Wind first came to us."

Atty. S. G. Rottner, a past president, served as toastmaster last night and introduced the speakers, who included Saul M. Silverstein, honorary life president; Dr. Morris Silverman, rabbi emeritus of Hartford's Emanuel Synagogue; Mrs. Robert Stone, Sisterhood president; and Dr. Bernard Mandelbaum, provost of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, the principal speaker.

Silverstein traced the history of Rabbi Wind's stay in Manchester and pinned it to the growth of Manchester's Jewry and the construction of the present Temple on E. Middle Tpke.

Mrs. Stone pledged full cooperation for herself and the members of the Sisterhood "for years and years to come." She praised Rabbi Wind for his work with the children and pointed to "the marvelous results we see all about us."

Rabbi Silverman brought greetings from the Connecticut Rabbinical Assembly, of which Rabbi Wind is a past president and called him "a rabbi's rabbi—one who is a leader in his chosen field."

He said that Rabbi Wind's accomplishments "run the full gamut, from A (Administrator) to Z (Zionist and Zealot)."

Dr. Mandelbaum, who was Rabbi Wind's classmate at the Jewish Theological Seminary, told the congregation, "You are fortunate to have such a man as your rabbi, teacher and friend."

He said that Rabbi Wind was respected throughout the country as "a top leader among its 700 rabbis."

The dinner concluded with the announcement that Rabbi Wind's wife, Ruth, and their two sons, Joel and Joshua, had donated a pulpit chair to the Temple, in honor of their husband's and father's anniversary.

St. James' Parish Plans New Church

If Downtown Redevelopment plans are favorable, St. James' Church will build a new church and rectory on its present site on Main St., with tentative completion scheduled for June 1967.

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. Edward J. Reardon, pastor of St. James', announced at nine Masses yesterday that Archbishop Henry J. O'Brien has approved the exploration of preliminary plans and that an architect will be chosen shortly.

The new church, which will provide ample parking, will be of contemporary architecture, will seat 1,500 people, and will be constructed in conformity with the new regulations of liturgy.

Msgr. Reardon said today that construction should start within a year, and that he has four or five alternate sites to consider should his first choice (on Main St.) fall through. He declined to name the alternate sites.

Edward Rybczyk, executive director of the Manchester Redevelopment Agency (MRA) said that his agency will be happy to cooperate with St. James' Church, and that, as of now, conditions were favorable for the Main St. construction.

He said that, by September or October of this year, the MRA will have tentative plans for downtown redevelopment to release, which will allow St. James' to proceed with its schedule, on Main St. or somewhere else.

Msgr. Reardon said that "Our church is ready to cooperate with whatever is good for the community, and will accept whatever plan is best for downtown."

He said that the church plans, when ready, will first be reviewed by himself, then by the building commission of the Hartford Diocese, and finally by Archbishop O'Brien.

Msgr. Reardon, when he came to St. James' two years ago, was told that his major task was to see that a new St. James' Church was constructed, and he has geared his efforts to that result.

He said that St. James' Church, which was dedicated in 1876, "is entirely inadequate to meet the needs and the capacity of the present parish body."

Although the structure was repaired after the hurricane of 1938, it was definitely weakened by the catastrophe and, consequently, its upkeep and maintenance have been a constant expense.

The new St. James' Church will be built to withstand countless years of use and will be one of the first in the state to conform with the new liturgy.

Strike Forestalled

The company's contract with the 2,000-member Machinists and Metal Polishers Union expired at midnight Sunday, but negotiations continued through deadline.

George Bennett, public member of the State Board of Mediation and Arbitration, said there will be no strike as long as the talks continue.

Hebron

Funds Raised To Send 11 To Program

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. Richard M. Grant, co-chairmen of the annual Boys' and Girls' State fund - raising campaign, that to date sufficient funds are on hand to send 11 juniors from Rham High School to the University of Connecticut this month. One girl and two boys were named by the faculty committee to go from Andover; one girl and four boys, from Hebron, and one girl and two boys from Marlborough.

Good work done by the local PTA includes the donation of three pianos for use in the elementary school. The organization is also raising additional funds for pianos for the school, and has quite a sizeable fund on hand as a starter.

67 Pints Donated

Results of the bloodmobile visit at Phelps Hall, Hebron, last Monday as reported by the Columbia Chapter of the American Red Cross, show donations of 67 pints. The quota was 75 pints. Too bad there was a shortage of 8 pints, but it might have been worse. Those contributing were 60 regular donors and 12 walk-ins. Mrs. Paul Bramhall, captain for the day, had as helpers Miss Dorothea Raymond and Miss Vera Stanley, staff aides, Mrs. Edward Hopkins and Mrs. Richard Osborne, donor aides.

Mrs. Allen Yale was registered nurse for the occasion. Mrs. Henry Wroblinski was recruiting chairman. The noon dinner was provided by St. Peter's Church women, headed by Mrs. Raymond Stoner.

Spaghetti Dinner

A special notice from St. Peter's Episcopal Church women, is that a spaghetti dinner will be held on Saturday, June 26, the purpose being to raise funds to help in renovating and enlarging the Phelps Hall kitchen facilities. Donations asked will be $1.

PTA Officers

Officers elected by the Hebron PTA at its regular meeting are Mrs. Joseph Drew, president; Joseph Drew, vice president; Mrs. Clyde Washburne, secretary, and Mrs. Albert Attardo, treasurer. Installing officer was Mrs. Ruth Boyington, past president. Retiring president Mrs. George Colgan was presented a past president's pin, elementary school principal Ray Gardiner making the presentation.

Poll Hours

Emery N. Taylor, Republican Registrar of Voters, urges all voters of the town to cast their ballots at the special state election tomorrow. The polls will be open from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m. at the town office building. He calls to the attenion of the voters that Douglas M. Fellows, one of Hebron's representatives to the general assembly, is a candidate for delegate to represent the town at the Constitutional Convenion in July.

House Guests

Mrs. Helen Coleman recently entertained Mr. and Mrs. Wolcott Smith of Vienna, Va., as house guests for two weeks, at her home on the Hebron Marlborough road.

Toward A New Junta?

There may soon be encouraging proclamations, from American sources in South Vietnam and in Washington, that some forthcoming military junta in South Vietnam represents an improved organization of that country for the stern purposes of war.

But what may seem to be superficial good news will also be a mixture of bad news.

If, out of the present new mess in Saigon, we are going to get a straight out and out military dictatorship which will be kept in power, by its own military power and by ours, for the duration of the war, that is also going to mean final abandonment of the studious and prolonged American effort to try to set up and maintain in Saigon something comparable to a civilian government, practicing some slight degree of democracy and devoting some energy to the kind of activity and program upon which the final outcome of the struggle in Vietnam might depend.

What may look like a more efficient government for prosecuting the war, and for controlling incessant political and religious unrest in South Vietnam may, then, be something which actually diminishes our actual chance of victory among the people of South Vietnam, and which may make even the holding of some kind of stalemate more expensive than we have hitherto calculated it might be.

Furthermore, to continue what seems to be an almost inescapably dismal reading of the situation, this good news for Communism comes as something which has been triggered, in part at least, by the first horrible successes of the Vietcong guerrillas in their new monsoon season type offensive.

The Vietcong guerrillas have, in their last few engagements, cut up and removed from military existence five South Vietnamese battalions, one after another. There have been, after such battles, announcements of presumed Vietcong casualties from our side, but observers on the scene do not seem to trust such claims, and they do seem to regard the latest Vietcong operations as successes, in which the guerrillas have succeeded in a strategy of using their entrapment of one South Vietnamese force as the bait for another South Vietnamese force sent to reinforce and rescue, and so on, until nobody knows how many specific battles may be fought at one specific site like Dong Xoai.

Such events in the military field have not contributed to the political stability in Saigon.

Furthermore, as so many observers report, South Vietnam would have troubles enough even if there were no such people as Communists in the world.

The continuing rivalry, jealousy and quest for office between the Buddhists and the Catholics seem rather evenly matched, in terms of power and influence even though the Catholics comprise only 10 per cent of the country's population.

All these factors together add up, unfortunately, to a prediction and an expectation that what is most likely to evolve from the present turmoil in Saigon is the sternest military rule the country has yet known, with the American military fist behind it more powerful and prominent than ever.

If this is what our policy makers feel they have to come to, they will do so on the theory that only something like this can keep the country united and efficient for war.

But the only real, instinctive unity such a situation would begin to promote would be much more likely to be a unity against the United States, and against a war the people of South Vietnam might begin to feel was more our war than theirs.

One can be sure that our policy makers have intelligence enough to remember and to try to avoid the troubles France encountered both in Vietnam and in Algeria, both instances in which we ourselves counseled France to accept defeat.

But some troubles are so deeply rooted and so inevitable in their context that not even the most intelligent planning can outwit them. We look, in Vietnam, more and more like the French in Algeria meaning we may be in a war not even the greatest expenditure of military force imaginable can ever win.

When Congress "Revolts"

Now and then one begins to read from Washington some intimation that Congress is beginning to "revolt" against the rather close control which the man in the White House has been exercising for two sessions now, and one assumes, for a moment, that some healthy redress in the relationship of the powers of government may be about to take place.

It might even be possible that Congress could be reviving some interest in its own supposed power to be the arm of government which declares war.

But if one follows the reported "revolt" down to its specific application, one finds that what the Congress is really up to is the protection of some of its patronage and pork barrel prerogatives, not any assertion of principle.

Getting down to cases, one finds that Congress is fighting the President not in some area of his potential weakness in principle or judgment, but on projects where he seems most likely to be right.

The biggest revolt against the President in the Senate this session took place on the issue of an economy closing down of one kind of federal institution certain Senators wanted to have kept open in their states—veterans hospitals.

And the sharpest revolt against the White House in the House came just the other day as the House voted, without even very much debate, to establish a firm new Congressional veto over any closing down of military installations in the various states. By this vote, the administration may even be forced to reopen the Brooklyn Navy Yard.

In other words, no matter how often the word "revolt" may catch your eye, the sensible thing to do is to assume that actual events are holding close to par for the course, which would be that the Congress goes along most willingly with the President when perhaps it shouldn't, and fights him most strenuously in areas where he happens to be most right.

In An Earlier Arizona

The most exciting archeological discovery currently in the news is that of an ancient system of irrigation canals, built and maintained by a vanished Indian people, the Hohokam, down in Arizona some 1900 years ago.

This discovery that the date of civilization in the region of Arizona had, so long ago, been brought to an engineering prowess and a general cultural level perhaps being approached only now by the modern state of Arizona is, to say the least, disturbing to the modern ego.

In addition to having the engineering for irrigation of their land, the Hohokam were also gifted artists, their jewelry being considered quite nice, and their mastery of such arts as sculpture and etching quite impressive.

All this, even the irrigation, was on a relatively minor scale of things, and if we of modern times and of this modern American civilization wish to pride ourselves and assert our own superiority —a process almost always unwise and vulnerable—we can, of course, taunt the Hohokam with having disappeared off the face of the earth, while we are still here.

But the answer to that could be devastating, perhaps in the literal sense of the word.

Perhaps, in addition to being ahead of us in engineering, and perhaps ahead of us in some of their artistic talents, they were also ahead of their own time and on a par with us in the realm of science. Perhaps they were so smart and so far advanced that they invented their own self-destruction.

Whatever their unusual level of accomplishment, whatever our initial moment of shock and envy at the discovery of their achievement, we have the comfort and solace of knowing that we are catching up, fast.

Fat Moisch

NEW YORK, June 14 — According to the various laws and standards of conduct of the place in which he lives, which is the earth, Fat Moisch from Avenue D in Manhattan is a bad boy.

Whenever he comes around, he doesn't seem to do anything wrong. Fat Moisch is built like a jukebox. In his summer outfit of plaid walk-shorts and white shoes, he sits at the bar and drinks red wine until he falls off the stool. But he has a background of being misunderstood in many places. He has been in trouble with barefooted policemen on St. Andrew's Island, Colombia; in Toronto, Canada, where he issued a group of checks which were classified as "lesapers," and in London, England, where he went on a gambling junket and was discovered checking suitcases in a hotel-room which was other than his own.

When Fat Moisch has to come to court in New York City and a judge asks for his past record, the case always has to be postponed for two days while the clerk types it up.

"Your honor," the District Attorney said the other day, "this man is a blight on society."

The judge looked at the file in front of him which gave Fat Moisch's personal history. The file is heavier than a novel on Lewis and Clark. "The defendant does have a long record," the judge said.

"Rumors," Fat Moisch said under his breath.

He was mad that they had him in court. He was appearing in connection with some nonsense about a man who did business with him. After his appointment with Fat Moisch the man had to go away in an ambulance.

"I'm so bad," Fat Moisch fumed. 'I take bets and pay the winners cash money, right on time. But if somebody doesn't pay me, I kick him in the ankles. That's so bad!"

He shook his head and sat back and waited for the judge to come in the one part of his record that they always stop at. And when he saw the judge he had come up, Fat Moisch said a bad word.

"It's the only thing that seems to get them mad," he said, "And I had nothing to do with it."

He was referring to an incident which grew out of an afternoon of drinking in a bar on Second Ave. near Ninth St. The bar was crowded and Fat Moisch, one of the brutes, a man came into the bar and pushed Fat Moisch to make room. Right away, Fat Moisch got mad at the guy. The guy took out his wallet and ordered a drink. The wallet was a half-foot-thick. Right away, Fat Moisch fell in love with the guy. "Get yourself in there, pal," Fat Moisch said. "Plenty of room for you." He put his hand on the guy's shoulder.

The guy threw a ten-dollar bill on the bar. The inside of the wallet looked like a bank. The guy put the wallet back into his jacket pocket. "Ain't you hot with the jacket on?" Fat Moisch said. The guy didn't listen to him. The guy drank up the ten dollars, then pulled out another ten-dollar bill and went into that one. Pretty soon the guy was in an argument with a man in a sports shirt.

"Go to it, I'm right with you, pal." Fat Moisch told the guy in the jacket.

The guy with the jacket got good and fresh and soon he and sports shirt got up and went outside. Fat Moisch was right with them. "I'll hold your jacket," he yelled. The guy gave him the jacket. The fight started and Fat Moisch's first instinct was to run. But he was afraid his man would spot him and come after him. His second instinct seemed better. Fat Moisch maneuvered right behind his man and gave his man a good shove. His man stumbled forward, face first into a right hand punch. Fat Moisch's man went down like a piece of wood. Fat Moisch took the wallet out of the jacket. Then he threw the jacket over his man so he wouldn't catch cold on the sidewalk. Fat Moisch strolled off into the afternoon to celebrate.

He went to a bar and began throwing ten-dollar bills from the wallet onto the bar and buying for everybody. He was spending money like it was counterfeit, it was.

Fat Moisch wound up with the Secret Service after a man came said that there was $500 worth of counterfeit money in the wallet. They wanted to know where he got it. Fat Moisch told them the truth. He said he took it from a jacket he was holding while a guy he met in a bar was in a fistfight. Fat Molsch was in the Federal detention pen on West St. for two days before he could make the bail. He was going to court for six months before he finally got out of the case.

But the arrest for counterfeiting is there forever. And, Fat Molsch was saying in court, he learned something from it.

"Don't steal no money that's bad," he said.

Outbursts Of Temper Costly

Physicians and psychologists long have warned their patients—and the public—of the dangers to both physical and mental health from temper tantrums, wrathful wrangling or fuming frustrations.

Doleful doctors must often find frustration of their own as many patients disregard their advice and thereafter seek office appointments for treatment of their wrath-incurred ailments which, experts tell us, are both many and varied.

All unknowing and unexpecting famed Yankee baseball star Mickey Mantle may find himself cast in the role of the doctor's little helper.

Mickey, we are told, has a temper and often yields to it in violent outbursts, more childish than curative.

One such, the public prints inform us, has given him a severe "pain in the neck." Said injury, it is said, was incurred back on May 18, in Boston after the slugging ace had struck out for the fourth time. Angry, he jammed his bat into the rack, then tried to break off the handle with his right hand (no little accomplishment, even for an athlete). He failed, obviously, but strained a muscle. Now his neck hurts and hampers his playing efficiency.

Temper! Temper! could prove very costly, both to Mantle and the surprisingly staggering Yankees, buried in the second division and sorely needing the services of Mantle and others on its injury list.—NEW HAVEN REGISTER.

Miss Kellems Plans Sit-In To Protest Convention Vote

NORTH STONINGTON (AP)—Miss Vivien Kellems has her Tuesday plans all mapped out—she's going to stage another sit-in in a voting booth.

The 60-year-old Miss Kellems will be protesting the way delegates will be elected to Connecticut's constitutional convention.

"I will tell the moderator I do not want to vote for any of the candidates," Miss Kellems explained Sunday night. "And I will ask him to unlock the machines so I can write-in my vote.

"He will say no."

Miss Kellems, a former Stonington industrialist, did much the same thing last November when she insisted that the state's mandatory party lever be removed from the voting machine.

She remained in the voting booth throughout the day, finally collapsing of exhaustion at about the time the polls closed.

This time she thinks she may be evicted long before closing time. But if she isn't she's prepared for a long wait.

"I have a little reading and a little sewing to do. I'm interested in early American glass and I'm doing a little research in it. I collect it. And I have a dress that has to be altered."

Miss Kellems announced her plans for a sit-in Sunday in a letter to Gov. John Dempsey. "Where is there a choice? And how is this an election?," she asked the governor. "There isn't even a choice between parties."

The retired industrialist was referring to the arrangements made by Democratic and Republican leaders for the election, which will be, for the most part, a ratification of the delegates already selected by the parties.

Under the election arrangements, seven Democrats and seven Republicans will be elected in each of Connecticut's six congressional districts.

But in five of the six districts there will be only 14 candidates for the 14 convention seats. As a result, all the candidates in these districts are certain of election before the polls open.

There is a contest on the Republican side in the first district where Mr. and Mrs. James Collins are running under a "protest Republican" banner.

The candidacy of the Collinses jeopardizes two of the party-endorsed Republican candidates in the district, but all seven of the Democratic candidates will be unchallenged.

"This is a 'Ja' election," Miss Kellems said, referring to an election process she said was once used in Nazi Germany.

She singled out Republican State Chairman A. Searle Pinney and Democratic National and State Chairman John Bailey "as the boys that cooked this up."

"The gall of those two men," she said.

In her letter to the governor, Miss Kellems said:

"Many voters are going to the polls to close the curtain and refuse to touch the machine. This will cast a blank vote and register a protest.

"I shall not only refuse to touch the machine, but I shall refuse to leave the booth. After one minute, by law, the moderator must remove me or be derelict in his duty."

The election, she said, is a "frightening thing" and a "shocking, arrogant, contemptuous usurpation of the basic American rights of the people of Connecticut."

cuit television. Reagan was first choice not only of Cincinnati but also of Columbus (which wound up with Nixon) and several other cities. No one asked for Goldwater.

This grass roots fervor may well be translated into organized support by the same crew of conservative Republican professionals who put together the draft - Goldwater movement. This includes F. Clifton White, who has been on close terms with Reagan since last fall.

Yet inherent in Reagan's meteoric rise are the same immutable factors that destroyed Goldwater. In a rambling press conference at Cincinnati, Reagan stumbled into the same ideological traps that undid Goldwater. He appointed on the John Birch Society, refused to say "yes" or "no" about a voluntary approach to Society Security and declared his opposition to the most important provisions of the 1964 Civil Rights Act.

It will be the major function of Reagan's new managers—The skilled Los Angeles political management firm of Spencer-Roberts & Associates — to clean up this kind of talk. In fact, Reagan's major goal in the California primary campaign will be to keep his devoted right wing militants happy without scaring the wits out of everybody else (a feat Goldwater never managed). For this reason, the coming struggle in California takes on national implications for the Republican party.

U.S. Tuna Boats Seized

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Four U.S. tuna boats have been seized by Peru in a dispute over what constitutes territorial waters, an American Tuna Boat Association official has charged.

August Felando, general manager of the association, says the latest seizure was Sunday when a Peruvian destroyer ordered the fishing vessel, Hornet, of San Diego, to head for the Peruvian port of Chimbote.

The core of the dispute, says Felando, is that Peru claims offshore jurisdiction out to 200 miles. Felando maintains that under international law, the greatest distance that a nation may claim is 12 miles.

A Thought for Today

'Basics in Christian Faith'

"In the beginning God—" Genesis 1:1

Christians start with the assumption that God is. The first words of the Bible has the same assumption. Evangelical christianity is quite different from other religions. Other religions build steps one by one to meet a reluctant God. If these steps are faithfully taken the adherent supposedly finds God. However Christianity starts with God who comes to us in the person of Jesus Christ. God reveals himself to man through Holy Scripture, the gospel—the news that God seeks to save man from sin and for loving service to God and people; through Jesus Christ the center of the gospel and heart of the scripture; through the Holy Spirit, that is God inside us and about us calling, gathering, enlightening and changing us if we would but let Him. Will you? God is revealed to all who will permit this revelation in their lives.

God and Country Awards Given at St. Mary's

The Rev. John D. Hughes, clergy advisor, presented God and Country Awards to Gordon Palmer, center, and James Alan Rice, yesterday during the 9:45 a.m. service at St. Mary's Episcopal Church.

Palmer, son of Mrs. Eleanor Palmer, 109 High St., attends Robinson School in West Hartford and is a member of Troop 126 at Emanuel Lutheran Church. He started working for this award in April 1964.

Rice, son of Mr. and Mrs. Myron L. Rice of 53 Crosby Rd., attends Manchester High School, is a member of Troop 91 at the Manchester Green School, and started to work for his award in February 1963.

Under the guidance of the Reverend Mr. Hughes, the boys were active participants in five areas of service, study and experience: (1) Christian Faith, (2) Christian Witness, (3) Christian World Outreach, (4) Christian Citizenship, and (5) Christian Fellowship.

The Boy Scout God and Country Program is the Scout's Church Award. It aims to carry out the first part of the Scout Promise "On my honor I will do my duty to God," and the Twelfth Scout Law: "A Scout is Reverent." Upon completion of the requirements, the boys were reviewed by Charter Oak Boy Scout Council and by the vestry of St. Mary's Church. (Herald photo by Saternis).

Rylander Receives Boy Scout Church Award

William Rylander, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rylander Jr., 184 E. Middle Tpke., yesterday received the God and Country Boy Scout award at Second Congregational Church. The presentation was made by the Rev. C. Ronald Wilson, left, associate, and the Rev. Felix M. Davis, pastor. Rylander is a senior patrol leader and life scout of Troop 133. He has been initiated into the Order of the Arrow, a Scout honor society. A Manchester High School athlete, he was tri-captain of the soccer team, participated in varsity sports, was on two junior varsity teams during his sophomore year, and in intramurals during the four years he was at the school. He was also president of the Boy's Leaders Club and a member of the Varsity M. Club at high school. He is a member of the choir and Mu Sigma Chi, the senior youth group, at Second Congregational Church. He plans to enter Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware, Ohio, in the fall. Authorization Given For Kindergarten

The board of education voted unanimously Friday night to authorize Supt. of Schools Charles Warner "to proceed forthwith to take all steps necessary to institute public kindergartens in September 1965." The estimated cost is not to exceed $89,074.

Supt. Warner said under the new legislature bill the unanticipated state aid will amount to $79,537. The first four priority items on the board of education's list total $101,109. This includes a high school reading teacher, $5,862; elementary library, $2,254; high school library, $3,919; and kindergartens, $89,074.

The board also voted to ask the council to consider a request for additional funds for a class of trainable children. Supt. Warner stated it was also possible that a class or services for emotionally disturbed children might have to be added before the end of the year.

This item had not been previously included in the board of education's budget.

At a meeting with the board of education last week the town council offered to supplement the anticipated state aid so the board could reinstate its top four priority items.

Mayor John Egan told the board at that time that additional money in a surplus nature had been found that was not previously available. He noted that in computing the grand list the motor vehicles increased its potential base.

Because of this the town council was able to reconsider cuts in the board's budget, the capital improvements.

Mayor Egan also told the board that the council favored kindergartens, but the council had previously objected only because the town did not have the wherewithall to start them.

The special meeting was called Friday night because once a known figure could be tabulated on the state aid, and if the board voted for public kindergartens, the council would entertain a specific request for funds from the board of education.

Board member D. P. Cavanaugh said starting kindergartens could be done in two ways: The board could wait until the town council has appropriated the money before authorizing the superintendent to make commitments or as the board voted Friday night.

Cavanaugh observed that the town council may only appropriate money for the first four items and that it was justifiable for the board to ask him to get things done.

Mrs. Jane Romeyn asked that several items be placed on the next board's agenda: Status of the curriculum, how the office work will be handled and what will happen to the equipment and supplies of the cooperative kindergarten.

Supt. Warner indicated the cooperative kindergarten has already voted to turn over most of its equipment to the public schools.

Asst. Supt. William Perry stated Miss Josephine Zocco and Miss Hilda Monghan already had most of the curriculum completed. All that was necessary was the art and language which would be completed in a few days, Perry observed.

Mrs. Julia Durig asked for a report from the superintendent at the next board meeting concerning requiring all children to have kindergarten before entering first grade.

Senior League Scores

The Rotary defeated the Lions in senior league baseball play last week. Jeff Holcombe struck out 11, walked two and scattered six hits to pitch the win. Losing pitcher was Greg Turek who struck out nine, walked four and allowed five hits.

Preliminary Approval Granted

The planning and zoning commission has granted preliminary approval for a new industrial park on Rt. 5 just south of Governor's Highway.

The industrial park comprises 43 acres and will contain 25 sites.

The Jean E. Shepard Co. of South Windsor developers, said the first buildings planned are Firestone Rubber Co. of Akron, Ohio, and Sound Reductions of Long Island. The latter makes casting for United Aircraft engines.

All internal road network to service the industrial sites is included in the development plan.

Joseph Carino, chairman of the planning and zoning commission, said a subdivision comprises three or more lots, and because the Shepard Co. is only building on two lots, it can precede immediately with construction. However, final approval must be granted in order for the development to begin construction on the remaining lots.

Awarded Grant

Miss Rosemarie Pugliese, French teacher in South Windsor High School, has been awarded a NDEA grant for a summer institute in French at Anslem's College, Manchester, N. H.

Reception Held By Women's Club

About 55 guests attended a reception for new members of the Manchester Women's Club Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Joseph Swensson, club president.

Mrs. Ralph Maher, Mrs. Louis Champeau and Mrs. George Nackowski were hostesses for outside activities. Umbrella tables were arranged on the patio and lawn. Mrs. Raymond Badger, Mrs. Paul Dodge and Mrs. Benjamin Rouleau served punch.

Mrs. Vernon Muse and Mrs. Frank Conway made arrangements of roses and mock oranges, which were placed throughout the house. Mrs. John Gerard and Mrs. Kenneth McAlpine welcomed the guests and were in charge of name tags and a guest book.

Other members of the executive board assisting Mrs. Swensson with refreshments were Mrs. Frank Fazzina and Mrs. Wallace Grube.

Miss Marta Gernandt of Cologne, Germany, was a special guest at the event. She is a representative of the International Students Service and will be an exchange counselor for six weeks at a summer camp near Albany, N.Y. She was a weekend guest of Mrs. Harold Phillips, 158 Ludlow Rd., through arrangements made by the Service Bureau for Women's Organizations.

ECLIPSE TAKES PLACE

The earth's shadow across the moon was at its maximum at 9:49 p.m. (EST). The eclipse was a minor one, with only 18 per cent of the moon's disk, covered by the umbra, the densest portion of the shadow.

The passage of the umbra lasted 102 minutes.

Nine in State Killed In Weekend Accidents

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Five persons died in automobile accidents. A fire claimed one life, a chemical explosion and a drowning two more.

In addition, two Connecticut residents were killed in accidents out of state.

The chain of accidents began Friday night. Daniel E. Sarajak, 19, of Terryville, was killed when the car he was riding in with two other youths overturned after running off Preston Road, Terryville.

On Saturday, Jerry Lee Peet, 2-year-old, was fatally injured when struck by a car near his Bridgeport home.

Chemistry student, Roger Meresko, 18, of Bridgeport, was also killed Saturday. He was apparently experimenting with chemicals in the basement of his home when they exploded.

Motor Vehicle accidents early Sunday claimed lives in North Haven, Haddam and Middlefield.

At North Haven, Joseph A. Vollano, an employe of the New Haven Register, was killed when the newspaper delivery truck he was driving overturned on State Street.

Vollano, 56, of North Branford, was pinned beneath the vehicle.

In another early Sunday accident, Angus F. McLean, 65, of Haddam was killed in a head-on collision on Route 9, Haddam.

Also early Sunday, James R. Ross, 27, of Meriden, was killed when the car in which he was riding ran off Route 147, Middlefield.

The drowning victim was William Singleton, 23, of Sumter, S.C.

Singleton, in Connecticut to visit relatives, disappeared in 10 feet of water at Lake Amston in Hebron Saturday. His body was recovered.

An out-of-state accident took the life of Herbert E. Mason, 46, of Kensington. His car rammed the rear of a hearse in Littleton, Mass., Saturday.

School Board Advisory Unit Completing Report on Study

A written report for the board of education is being completed by the advisory group to the board, since its study on local educational needs and related facilities is completed. The study resulted in recommendations to be made in the report. Copies of the report to the board will be made available to interested townspeople through the superintendent of schools' office at Coventry High School, Ronald Aronson, chairman of the steering committee of the Advisory Group, reports.

Aronson said present school buildings can accommodate only the increase of the coming year and that it is "evident that some building program must be initiated at once." The opinion is based on the findings of the committee that there "will be approximately 643 more students" in the Coventry schools by 1969-70 than in the present school year.

It was pointed out also that the committee has attempted to find means "that will adequately serve the educational needs of the children, within a reasonable financial framework. With this in mind several key recommendations received strong, majority support of the advisory committee," Aronson stated.

Recommendations include: Maintain present curriculum without major additions or cuts, continue with a four-year high school system and provide an additional building for the middle school years of 5 through 8 or 6 through 8 to release space in present elementary schools as well as in the present high school.

Also, build any new school facility within established cost per pupil guidelines of $1,500 for secondary, $1,250 for middle and $1,000 for elementary schools, and house the superintendent of schools in presently available space in the town office building by the fall of 1965.

The report states all of these recommendations should help to provide needed educational facilities without unnecessary costs to the town.

Aronson's report states the final and approved recommendation for a new four-year middle school building for Grades 5 through 8 was presented by three of the six members on the sub-committee assigned to that responsibility. The other three members of the sub-committee favored a new elementary school and a remodeling of the Coventry Grammar School for the middle grades of 6 through 8. Both proposals, however, included a four-year high school and a building specifically for the middle grades.

Aronson's concludes with the statement that "considering the need for additional school space at all levels of the school system, it is imperative that the townspeople support the board of education in their effort to reach a practical and reasonable solution."

Members of the steering committee's advisory group: Herbert W. Couch, chairman, Paul A. Boardman, Mrs. Jesse A. Brainard, George H. Cour, Mrs. Wesley B. Hill and Donald C. Smith. Officers of the steering committee, in addition to Aronson: C. Peter Van Dine, vice chairman, and Mrs. Lucius A. Pettingill Jr., secretary.

Poll Hours

The polls at the special election tomorrow will be open from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m., instead of just from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. as listed in the column previously.

Elected to Board

Donald Young is the member of the board of education elected by the board to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mrs. Ruth Hansen. He will fill the term to the coming election Oct. 4.

Nursery Graduation

The South Coventry Cooperative Nursery and Kindergarten has its annual picnic and "graduation" program June 21 at the Mansfield Hollow Dam. Drivers will be Mrs. Roland Stoodley, Mrs. Thomas Small, Mrs. Mark Spink, Mrs. Charles Ferguson, Mrs. Malvin Sandler and Mrs. William Cope. Classes close with this affair.

During "graduation" diplomas will be awarded Holly Stoodley, Steven Small, Jonathan Small, Carol Lemire, June Spink, Maureen Moriarty, Laurie Bradley, Julie Breen, Mary-Lou Breen, Marc Goodin, Lori-Ames, Eric Young, Thomas Rogers, Eileen Haun, Timothy Coon, John Kerson, Louis LaBrec, Drake Smith, Justine LaVoie and Leslie Richardson III.

Volunteer mothers assisting with the classes the week of June 14: Mrs. Kenneth Lemire, Mrs. Franklin Richardson, Mrs. Frederick Ames, Mrs. Royden F. Smith Jr. and Mrs. George Rogers.

Building Permits

Building Permits issued by John Willnauer, acting building inspector, during May have estimated construction values totaling $354,559. Of the permits, 22 were for homes at $335,450 and eight alterations and additions at $19,109. Also issued were seven permits for electrical installations, three for plumbing, one for heat, one well and 11 septic tank installations.

Engagement Announced

Mrs. Edna Brose of Altura, Minnesota, announces the engagement of her daughter, Carol, to Paul W. Kenyon, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Kanyon of Church Lane, Coventry. A July wedding is planned.

Post-Graduation Plans

Eleven more Coventry High School seniors list plans for the future:

Roger Alan Bell, son of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Bell of South St., to the University of Connecticut; Devora L. Cole, ward of Mr. and Mrs. Owen S. Trask of Ripley Hill Rd., to Hartford Secretarial School; Howard Cole III, son of Mrs. Kathleen Durand and Howard F. Cole Jr., to Southern Connecticut State College.

Also, Beth Humes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Humes of South St., to Travelers Insurance Company in Hartford; Pauline Lemieux, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Lemieux of Lakeview Dr., to Willimantic Institute of Hair Dressing and Cosmetology, and Benita Plaster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Plaster of Swamp Rd., to Russell Sage College.

Also Herbert W. Love Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert W. Love Sr. of Rabbit Trail, to University of Connecticut; Richard Sills, son of Mr. and Mrs. Delvy Sills of Main St., to Windham Regional Technical School or Pratt-Whitney Division, United Aircraft, and William Valvo, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sebastian Valvo of South St., to University of Connecticut.

Also, Gary Gray, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Gray of Seagrave Rd., to Howell Cheney Technical School, and George Jacquemin, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Jacquemin of Rt. 44A to University of Connecticut.

Town, State Votes Tomorrow For Convention Delegates

Manchester voters, along with those from throughout the state, will go to the polls tomorrow to elect delegates to the July 1 Constitutional Convention.

Each of the state's six districts will elect seven Democrats and seven Republicans, who will be charged with the task of reapportioning the State Assembly.

All 42 Democrats running and most of the Republicans running are guaranteed election. There is a contest, however, among Republicans in the First Congressional District, which includes Manchester. Atty. and Mrs. James F. Collins are running under the "Protest Republican" lever, opposing the regular Republican slate.

The polls will be open from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m. and the election will be conducted as are all other state elections, under the party lever system. Electors will be required to pull the party lever of their choice, but will then be permitted to split their tickets, if they wish.

The local election will be conducted with 27 voting machines and with a full complement of workers.

Atty. Richard Woodhouse will serve as chief moderator and will make his headquarters at District 1, at the East Side Rec on School St.

The other polling places are District 2 at the West Side Rec on Cedar St., District 3 at Waddell School on Board St., District 4 at the Community Y on N. Main St., and District 5 at the Buckley School on Vernon St.

Because of the lack of any real contest locally predictions of tomorrow's turnout range from 5 to 10 per cent of the electorate. Approximately 23,000 are eligible to vote in Manchester.

Secretary of State Ella Grasso has urged all eligible voters, throughout the state, to vote tomorrow, citing the historical significance of the coming state convention. It will be only the third in Connecticut's history.

Groom Unchained

LOS ANGELES (AP) — John Kenyon, 22, is a man who takes his honeymoon lightly.

Before he and his bride Carol, 22, left for Puerto Rico Sunday, Kenyon took the time to find a hacksaw with which to free himself from a 16-pound ball and chain which friends had shackled him with after the wedding Saturday.

The friends had told him a key for the shackles would be waiting at their honeymoon hotel, but Kenyon said he didn't want to wait that long — he didn't want anything to be a drag on his marriage. He got the shackle removed later Saturday.

Mrs. Billings Moderator For Tomorrow's Election

Mrs. Evelyn E. Billings a Democrat will serve as moderator for the constitutional convention election tomorrow. Mrs. Billings, of Westview Dr., is the wife of Willard Billings, who is serving on the board of finance, filling an unexpired term.

Republican election officials will include Mrs. Ernest Aspinwall checker; Mrs. August Mildner and Mrs. Peter Massolini, machine tenders, and Keeney Hutchinson, mechanic. Mrs. A. A. Maneggia is registrar.

Democratic election officials will be Mrs. Sheila A. Chemerka, checker; Mrs. Katherine R. Scanlon, and Mrs. Alice B. Skinner, machine tenders; Donald Massey, mechanic; and Joseph H. W. Stefanik, challenger. Mrs. Mary Morgan is registrar, and Mrs. Elinore Churilla, deputy registrar.

Polls will be open at the Community Hall from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m. for voters to endorse seven delegates from one party or the other to the Constitutional Convention from the Second Congressional District.

Democrats to be endorsed are Hugh McLaughlin of Jewett City, Mrs. Chase Going Woodhouse of Baltic, Dr. C. John Satti of New London, Vincent Sullivan of Moosup, C. Wilbert Snow of Middletown, Charles Tarpinian of Willimantic and Raymond S. Thatcher of East Hampton.

Give Roman Dinner

Five Latin II students, under the supervision of the Latin teacher, Ernest Stokes, and Mrs. Gladyce Bissell, English teacher, presented a Roman dinner to about 45 students in two tenth grade English classes last week.

The girls, Anne Miner, Patricia Smith, Lynn Riley, Jennifer Maxwell and Dorothy Clark, were attired in Roman togas for the occasion.

The menu read "Ab ova ad mala" (from egg to apple). It is reported that, "despite the well-aged aroma of the Romano cheese and the worries of a slippery toga, the dinner was a success."

See News Process

The eighth grade students at the high school went on an educational trip to the Hartford Courant recently to see the complex process to producing a daily paper. This was a culmination of the two-week unit on the newspaper in their English classes.

They also went to the capitol, where they were greeted and introduced to the legislature by Bolton representative, Eugene Gagliardone. They listened to discussions and the final vote on raising the age of drivers.

The trip to the capitol was the climax of study of state government in social studies classes.

The students were accompanied by Miss Mary Anne Aronson, Mrs. Evelyn Halloran and Mrs. Elizabeth Wright.

Plan Dinner

The Women of St. George's Episcopal Church will have their monthly meeting in the form of a spring dinner tomorrow at 7:30 at the Altnaveigh Restaurant in Mansfield. All women planning to attend should be at the church parking lot at 7.

This year's and next year's church school teachers will meet Wednesday at 8 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Robert Gorton.

The Brotherhood of St. Andrew will meet tonight at 8 at the church. Richard Danielson was elected vice president of the Brotherhood at the spring assembly meeting at Trinity Church, Hartford. He will serve a two-year term as one of the state assembly officers.

Confirmation Plans

All children of St. Maurice Church to be confirmed should be in the church basement Thursday by 7 p.m. Those who have not gone to confession will have the opportunity Tuesday afternoon from 3:30 to 4:30. Robes should be returned after the children have their pictures taken with Bishop Hines after the confirmation ceremony.

Altar boys serving at the confirmation ceremony will have an important rehearsal Tuesday at 2:30 p.m.

During the summer there will be a nursery at the 10 a.m. Mass only. Volunteers are needed.

There will be a strawberry dessert from 5:30 to 8 p.m. Saturday, June 26. Mr. and Mrs. William Miner are in charge.

To Hold Supper

The Holy Name Society will have a spaghetti and meatball supper next Monday at 6 at the Rosemount Restaurant. Members are urged to bring along a new member, and commentators in the parish are asked to attend at least the meeting after the dinner. Tickets may be obtained from Ray Cocconi, Tony Armentano, Michael Lynch or any member of the society.

The 10 a.m. Mass Sunday will be an anniversary Mass for Howard Kenneson.

Two Baptized

Two infants were baptized during the Children's Day service at Bolton Congregational Church yesterday. They were Meryth Dean Andrews, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Andrews of Hartford; and Van Russell Hutchinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Hutchinson of Shoddy Mill Rd.

During the worship service, conducted entirely by members of the Sunday school, students in Grade 2 were presented with Bibles by Philip Dooley, Sunday school superintendent, and the Rev. J. Stanton Conover.

It was announced that thanks have been received from the school in Jordan to which Sunday school donations have been made. The collection envelopes for this purpose may be turned in on the regular collection plates this summer.

The Ladies Benevolent Society will have a picnic and installation of officers tomorrow at 6:30. All women are invited and should call Mrs. William Sitzy for details. Everyone should bring a folding tray and chair.

Methodist Baptized

Baptized yesterday at United Methodist Church were Marcelle Renee Erickson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Erickson of Westview Dr.; Scott John Greene, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Greene of Bolton Center Rd.; and Tammy and Tina Corcoran, children of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Corcoran, Cubles Dr., Vernon.

The stewardship and finance commission will meet tonight at 8.

The WSCS will hold its annual picnic tomorrow at 6:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Robert Richardson. Members and guests are to bring pot luck dishes and their own silverware, plate and folding chair. Those attendig should park on Keeney Dr.

Nurse Graduates

Miss Dean McDonough, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. McDonough of Hebron Rd., has graduated from the Grace-New Haven School of Nursing.

Fiano Wins

In baseball Friday Fiano Realty beat M&M Oil 11-4. Jim MacDonald pounded out two doubles and a grand slam home run. Eric Geer pitched for Fiano and John Zeppa for M&M.

Meetings Set

There will be a special meeting of the public building commission tonight at 7 in the town office conference room to open additional pole building bids.

The board of education will meet tonight at 8 in the high school office. Board Chairman Walter Waddell said he did not think the board ... through its other business in time to discuss educational specifications for a proposed new elementary school at tonight's meeting.

The Republican town committee will meet tomorrow at 8 in the town office conference room.

Baseball Schedule

B of P Charged To Two Drivers After Accident

Both motorists involved in a minor collision on E. Middle Turnpike Saturday night were arrested by police and charged with breach of peace for fighting.

According to police, after William Dunlop, 23, of Framingham, Mass., had banged his truck into the rear end of an automobile driven by Rodger Hayde, 24, of the same town, Hayde jumped out of his car and attempted to run away. Dunlop then pursued him, caught up with him and started to beat him up, police say.

Police say that Dunlop had apparently been chasing the other driver in connection with some dispute. Hayde was taken to the emergency room of the Manchester Memorial Hospital and treated for bruises sustained in the scuffle.

Besides the breach of peace charges, Dunlop was charged with following too closely and Hayde was charged with operating an unregistered motor vehicle and improper use of markers. Both have been ordered to appear at the Manchester session of Circuit Court 12 on June 28.

Three persons required hospital treatment after a two-car collision at Center and Trotter Sts. last night. Both vehicles were badly damaged and had to be towed away.

The operator of one car, Robert Salas, 21, of 24 Carter St., was treated at the emergency room for a lacerated nose and discharged. A passenger in his car, Joan Marks of 69 Greenwood Dr., suffered an abrasion of the cheek and was kept over night in the children's ward for observation.

The other driver involved, Thomas J. O'Brien, 24, of 222N St. James St., received a lacerated lip.

Police say the accident occurred when O'Brien, eastbound on Center St. started to make a left turn into Trotter St. and cut in front of the Sales vehicle, which was westbound on Center St.

A motorist who said his attention was momentarily diverted by his three-year-old son was given a written warning for inattention to driving after he ran into the rear of another vehicle yesterday morning.

Police said that Paul N. Hillery, 24, of 138 Pitkin St., was stopped at a left turn into Main St. near Park St. when he struck a car which had just left the curb at a parking stall. The operator of the other car, Andrea Lukas of 112 Woodland St., was wearing a seat belt at the time and was apparently only slightly injured as she was propelled forward against the steering wheel.

Paul M. D'Italia, 16, of Bolton, reported that he was hit by an oncoming vehicle last night on Birch Mt. Rd. which then sped away without stopping. D'Italia's car received damage at its left side.

Robert Henderson, 9, of 233 Burnham St., was knocked off his bicycle after he reportedly turned around in front of a trailing automobile on Burnham St. near Windsor St. last night. He was apparently not injured seriously. The driver of the automobile was Michael Searay Jr., 42, of 383 Burnham St.

Mary K. Finley of 105 Birch St. saw her car towed away with front and damage after she sustained into a parked car on Florence St. near Holl St. Saturday night. The parked car belonged to Albert Salmond of 31 Florence St.

12th Circuit Court Cases

MANCHESTER SESSION

Judge Max Reicher took especial note of teen-agers who delight in squealing the tires of their automobiles, at today's Circuit Court 12 session.

Time after time as one of the young defendants approached the bench to answer to the charge of making unnecessary noise with a motor vehicle, Judge Reicher implored of the accused to offer some plausible excuse. Most often the youth would either shrug his shoulders or place the blame for the squealing tires on a mechanical difficulty, such as a poor clutch or a sticking gas pedal. In one case a puddle of water was blamed.

Ostensibly perturbed by the incessant flow of such offenses past his bench, Judge Reicher indicated sternly that he might very well raise the amount of the fine imposed for this offense in future weeks, perhaps increasing the fine by steps for successive weeks.

As proof that this wasn't just as idle threat, he ordered fines totaling $110 on five youthful defendants arrested on tire noise charges. Last week the highest fine levied on these offenses was only $10.

Included among those fined on this charge are: Thomas D. Jodoin, 17, of 110 Greenwood Dr., $30; Alan Fletcher, 17, of Coventry, $30; Amiza Stanford of 15 Simonds St., $20; Richard F. Larson, 20, of 30 Highwood Dr., $15, and Roy E. Jerome, 21, of 102 Ridge St., $15.

Summer School Canceled

The board of education has announced that the proposed summer school classes to be held at Hicks Memorial School have been canceled. As of the closing registration date, only a few children had been registered, and the number was deemed insufficient to organize even one class to the age span separated.

Car Hits Post, Driver Charged

George Strauss, 66, of 25 Florence St., Manchester, was arrested yesterday and charged with failure to drive right after his car went off the road on Rt. 85.

Police said that Strauss failed to negotiate a right curve and went off to the left knocking over a highway post. He is scheduled to appear in Manchester Circuit Court July 12.

Town Girl Wins Grant's Award

Dianne M. Novakiouski, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Novakiouski of 153 Croft Dr., has been awarded one of the 36 William T. Grant scholarships given each year to sons and daughters of W.T. Grant employees.

She is a Manchester High senior, will attend LeMoyne College, and has worked for the Parkade Grant's. She was elected on the basis of her high school academic and extra curricular record, and college board examinations.

5 Families Driven Out By Apartment Blaze

Five families were temporarily homeless yesterday afternoon when brisk winds carried flames from a burning shed into two High St. tenements.

The fire, which was reported at 2:35, leveled a wooden shed in the rear of 110 High St.

The flames were blown into the apartment building which housed three families, six adults and six children. The flames settled in the roof of the building. Persistent action by firemen finally resulted in the flames being extinguished.

Rockville Fire Chief John F. Ashe noted that the fire was difficult to reach because of numerous petitions in the attic. Firemen chopped holes in the roof and played their hoses in. As the blaze became controlled, other firemen reached the site from the building's interior.

An adjacent house, where two families resided, was also damaged by flames. Firemen were able to extinguish several small fires in the second building.

One unidentified occupant of the first building was slightly burned on the face when he warned other building residents, then attempted to fight the fire while awaiting arrival of firemen.

Chief Ashe said that cause of the blaze was either from an incinerator or set by children.

About two hundred area residents viewed the blaze. Many were forced to retreat from their positions as the wind carried smoke and water at them.

Revere Flag, Says Bailey

"It is significant that our flag, like the nation which it represents, changes to keep pace with our growth in power, in wealth, in social consciousness and in new concepts of freedom."

These were the key words of an address delivered yesterday by Edson M. Bailey, former principal of Manchester High School, in commemorating Flag Day. The exercises were conducted in Center Park and at the Elk's Home by Manchester Lodge of Elks.

A threat of rain had moved the ceremonies from Center Park to the Elks Home, shortly before Bailey's address.

Bailey said, "Our flag symbolizes not just a life surfeited with worldly goods and materialistic riches, but courage, fortitude, hunger and sacrifice—giving and sharing."

He cautioned his listeners, "In this mechanistic age of rapid change—when man can travel through space at more than 17,000 miles per hour, and when he can traverse the breadth of our country while walking in comfort, space we should not forget that in other days and other times men took part in less spectacular events, but events which were a prologue to today, and to tomorrow."

He said, "Our flag symbolizes all that we are and stands for all that we have accomplished as a people, and we must revere it, always."

Yesterday's ceremonies began with a flag raising by Joseph H. McCann of St. James' Church, followed by "America the Beautiful," sung by Nicholas Lanzano, accompanied on the organ by Theodore Fasbender.

Following a presentation of Flag Day exercises by Exalted Ruler Henry Magee and his officers, Fluhrschutz played "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean."

Elmore S. Anderson, past exalted ruler, then gave the history of the flag, and the audience was led by Magee and the lodge's officers in a Salute to the Flag.

Lanzano then sang "The Star Spangled Banner," and was followed by a Response by John Cagginello, past exalted ruler.

Following Bailey's address, the ceremonies ended with Lanzano singing "God Bless America." Flag Sunday for the ceremonies were Boy Scouts of Troop 77 of Center Congregational Church.

A buffet was served at the Elks Home by the Ladies Auxiliary Emblem Club, following the services.

About 6,500 pupils were to put McDivitt and White through a quadrangle answer period in McCormick Place. Other plans for the day included a dinner for the astronauts party given by Major Daley, and a fireworks display at night.

As the civic welcome got under way at O'Hare Airport, about 100 civil rights demonstrators gathered in Grant Park, on the lake front, for continuation of a series of school protest activities.

Education Acts Conference Planned at Illing Tomorrow

A townwide conference to explore implications of recent education acts will be held at Illing Junior High School tomorrow from 2:30 p.m. to 8:45 p.m.

The conference is being sponsored by the board of education as a means of forging a course of action for the town's involvement in federal education laws.

The most recent of these is the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965. About $10.3 million will be allocated to Connecticut.

Since this act provides for the participation of children attending non-public schools, this conference is also seen as the genesis of future cooperative programs between public and non-public schools in town.

Illing's facilities, such as dual enrollment, educational radio and television, educational media centers, mobile libraries, mobile science and language laboratories and central public book depositaries have been suggested.

Starting off the program, Joseph Dyer, head of the State's Office of Economic Opportunity, will speak about the Economic Opportunity Act.

Three representatives from the State Department of Education, Joseph Murphy, Dr. Alexander Plante and Dr. George Candplin, will then explain in the provisions of other federal acts.

Then, discussions groups moderated by various principals and assistant principals within the school system will talk over in detail what the town should do and how it should proceed. The school system has provided each participant with background material.

An open forum remarks by School Supt. William Curtis on "What Comes Next" will end the conference.

Allan Cone, vice principal of Bennet Junior High School, said today that about 100 are expected to attend. They will include teachers and principals from the public and parochial schools, and representatives from the town library, the town welfare department, the board of directors, the human relations commission and the town manager's office, besides other civic organizations.

Golf Equipment Taken from Car

Erno Sauchin of 122 Maple St. reported that $100 worth of golf equipment was stolen from his automobile parked at the Whiton Memorial Library Friday night. The equipment included a set of clubs, a collapsible cart, a bag and some balls.

Police reported what appeared to have been an unsuccessful attempt to break into the Variety Caterers building on 1089 Tolland Tpke. during the weekend. A window at the northeast corner was broken completely away but only a small portion of the protecting wire mesh guard was pried off, yielding a space apparently too small for passage.

Polling Places Are Listed For Tomorrow's Election

South Windsor voters in District one will vote at Pleasant Valley School and District Two at South Windsor High School in tomorrow's special Constitutional Convention election.

Voting hours will be from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Candidates elected will formulate constitutional provisions for the district of the Senate, and apportion the House of Representatives.

There will be seven candidates from both major parties. The Democratic candidates will be automatically elected. The Republican party has a contest between the major GOP candidates and the Protest Republican candidates. Electors may vote for any seven candidates.

Row 2B, Republican, Raymond E. Baldwin, James E. Best, John H. Bome, Frederick U. Conrad Jr., Samuel Gould, Edwin H. May Jr., Frances E. Redick.

Row 3C, Protest Republicans, Constance B. Collins and James F. Collins.

Restrars Claire Gritzer and Roberta Gorton said registered voters who have moved within the town and/or district since the national November election must vote according to their previous residence and polling location in tomorrow's election. The registrars will be available for confirmation of any questions concerning the election.

Continuing Study

Basil Karnazyn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Karmazyn, 432 Buckland Rd., who has received a degree with distinction in political science from the University of Connecticut, plans to continue his studies at Duke University for a law degree.

Arts Meeting

The South Windsor Women's Club fine arts committee will meet tonight at 8:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Richard Reeves, 112 Oak St.

Ladies Night Set

The South Windsor Exchange Club will hold a dinner-meeting tonight at 7:30 at Howard Johnsons Restaurant, Rt. 30. This will be ladies night. A social hour will follow dinner.

Planters Meet

The Valley Planters Club will hold its annual meeting tomorrow. Members will leave at 6:30 p.m. for the home of William Myshrall, 40 Spruce La. for a tour of Elizabeth Park, Hartford. Upon return to Mrs. Myshrall's home, a buffet supper will be served and a business meeting held. In event of rain the tour will be cancelled, but the supper will still be served at 6:30 p.m.

The following officers will be installed; Mrs. Richard Evans, president; Mrs. John Janecyzk, first vice-president; Mrs. Joseph Hebert, second vice-president; Mrs. John Halotsek, secretary; Mrs. Leonard Whitlock, treasurer, and Mrs. Harold Ames, historian.

Leaving For Iraq

Thomas O'Meara, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. O'Meara, 472 Avery St., will begin teaching in Bagdad, Iraq on Sept. 1.

O'Meara will teach algebra and plane geometry in a high school run by Jesuit priests in Bagdad. He graduated today from Fairfield University with a BA degree.

O'Meara became interested in teaching abroad through guest speakers at the university. His mother commented that he also thought it was a good way to gain experience and travel.

O'Meara will leave the United States on Aug. 4 and travel through Ireland, England, France and Germany before reporting to his new position. He is a 1960 graduate of Bloomfield High School.

Girl Scout News

Mrs. Martha Williams, Ellington Rd. was recently presented with a Girl Scout Statuette and a certificate of appreciation from the Girl Scout leaders of South Windsor.

Mrs. Williams has been in scouting since 1931 and has served as leader, neighborhood advisor, troop consultant, fund drive chairman and delegate to the Connecticut Valley council. She is recently leader of Junior Troop 247, Pleasant Valley.

Junior Troop 930 under the leadership of Mrs. Florence Palmer made baskets from twigs and filled them with flowers to be used on Memorial Day.

Power Cut Off

A strong wind yesterday sent a large tree limb crashing down on electric wires and power for the northeast end of town was cut off about an one and a half hours. A spokesman from Connecticut Light and Power said the wires were broken near the corner of Sullivan Ave. and Troy Rd.

Power was cut off at 12:15 p.m. and restored at 1:40.

Arts And Crafts Meeting

George D. Capitan, 17, of 720 Sullivan Ave. was arrested late yesterday night and charged with intoxication and breach of peace. Police said he was spotted running down a street shouting. Residents restrained him when he arrived.

Meetings

The spring raffle committee of St. Francis of Assisi Church will meet tonight at 8 in the church hall.

Our Savior Lutheran Church will hold a mid-week Bible study class tomorrow at 10 a.m.

The united Religion Census Committee will meet at 8 tonight at the home of Mrs. Mrs. Parry Roberts of 1142 Sullivan Ave.

LWV Meeting Set

The development of human resources committee of the South Windsor League of Women Voters will meet tonight at 8 at the home of Mrs. Richard Sievers, 52 Woodland Dr. This topic will be presented by Joseph Mahoney.

A description of the five current federal legislative acts that are providing economic aid to depressed areas, and help to disadvantaged persons will be presented.

The following committee members will lead discussion of the acts: Mrs. Richard Larrivee, "Manpower Development and Training;" Mrs. John Arneson, "Vocational Education Act;" Mrs. Beecher Mosher, "Civil Rights (education and employment sections)" and Mrs. Sievers, "Economic Opportunity Act."

After all local leagues have reported a consensus or agreement of standards, a national position will be taken and the local league will actively work in the community to support the position.

Legion Fetes F. E. Miner

More than 300 American Legionaires were on hand Saturday evening at the Legion Home to honor Past Commander Frederick E. Miner, executive officer of the Rocky Hill Veterans Home and Hospital.

The Legion from the local to the national, was considered the largest turnout in 25 years to honor an individual. Edson M. Bailey served as toastmaster, sending his great humor to the festivities.

Henry Wierzbicki, commander of the Manchester post, welcomed the gathering and credited Miner for his leadership, guidance and dedication. On behalf of the Post, the commander presented the honored guest with a life membership. Words of praise and appreciation were spoken by Edward Kelly, department commander and past national vice commander; by Brig. Gen. Raymond Watts, commandant of the Rocky Hill Veterans Home and Hospital; Hugh Graham, Department commander of Connecticut; Joseph Leonard, national executive committeeman and Edward Lynch, national service officer.

Deputy Mayor David Berry represented the Town of Manchester and read a letter from Mayor Mahoney, who was unable to be present. Sonny Barbara Wallet, president of the American Legion Auxiliary, also spoke. Mrs. Miner, escorted by her husband, was presented a floor basket of flowers.

Miner, who is called "Major" by many of his friends, was commander of the Manchester Post in 1948. He has been active in district, department and national Legion activities. He is currently vice chairman of the Rehabilitation Commission, Dept. of Connecticut. American Legion. He is serving on the Governor's Committee for Employment of the Handicapped, as a member of the board of directors of the Hartford Association for Retarded Children, and is also a member of the Manchester Post's renovation and executive committees.

Person To Person

We read about this conversation supposed to have taken place between a Communist and an American. Comunist: "You people are funny. You call things by the exact opposite of their nature. A great big fel- low you call 'Tiny,' a bald headed guy you call 'Curley.' How crazy can you get?" American: Tell me, what's the meaning of the Russian word 'Pravda,' the name of you Government's official publication?" Communist: "Why, 'Pravda' means truth. Why do you ask?" American: "Well, I simply wanted to show that you Communists officially label things by the exact opposite of what they are. We do it only in fun." Well, truth and fun and friendliness are part and parcel of our philosophy in business, here for you to use and enjoy at your convenience, with terrific fares and values. May we serve you? Quartet Wins Two Events On Saturday

Competition was keen and enthusiasm high Saturday at Memorial Field for the first annual Manchester Junior Chamber of Commerce Track and Field Meet. With more than 50 trophies, medals and plaques for the top three finishers in each of the 19 events, more than 70 athletes from Manchester, Bolton and Coventry competed.

First place winners in the Senior Division are eligible for the State Meet, to be held in East Hartford July 10. From there they may qualify for regional honors.

David Colpitts was a double winner in the Junior Division, winning the 220 and 440-yard runs. Senior Division competition had three double winners. Bob Martens finished first in the high jump and discus, Paul Phinney won the 120-yard low hurdles and the hop-skip and-jump, and Rich Dumaine took the 100 and 220-yard dashes.

Assisting the Jaycees were Wigren, Tom Kelley, Russ Maloney, Bob Sines, Bruce Watkins and Paul Phinney. Local merchants donated merchandise which was given to the winners.

JUNIOR DIVISION

100-yard dash—1, Richard Dyer; 2, Robert Bieller; 3, James Becker.

Sikes Sinks Putt For Open Victory

CLEVELAND (AP) — Easy-going Dan Sikes knew what he was doing when he rolled in a 35-foot putt on the final hole to capture the $135,000 Cleveland Open Golf Championship.

"I had to make that putt . . . who wants to play off with Tony Lema?" the rangy Sikes quipped after he whipped Champagne Tony by one stroke Sunday.

The end came dramatically when Sikes, who hadn't won a tournament since the Doral, Fla., Open in 1963, sank his pressure putt from the edge of the 18th green.

It was his fifth birdie of the round and gave him a five-under par 66 on the Highland Park 6,821-yard layout.

Sikes, who started the final round three strokes back of the 31-year-old Lema, finished with a 72-hole total of 272 — 12 strokes under par.

It was a great comeback for the 34-year-old Sikes, a non practicing attorney, whose best previous effort this year was a second place finish in the Los Angeles Open.

Lema, who failed in his bid to win a second straight Cleveland Open, also lost the $25,000 first prize, biggest purse on the tour this year.

The 27-year-old Devlin, who putted brilliantly, started the day six strokes off the pace and wound up third with a 274.

Amy Pirkey Wins Top $$$ In Duckpin Tourney Here

Taking home the $155 top money and the trophy in the third annual Maureen Walsh Gilberto Tournament yesterday at the Holiday Lanes was Manchester's Amy Pirkey. Mrs. Pirkey rolled 853 to Mavis Small's 832 to take top honors. Miss Small town women's champ, won $80.

In the Scratch division, Ann L'Heureux of Pawtucket won $145 first money with an 840 total pinfall. She had a comfortable lead over Donna Moissonnier of Danbury who rolled 803 for second place.

There were a total of 118 entries looking for a piece of the $755 prize money.

Wilt Fined

NEW YORK (AP) — Wilt Chamberlain, star center of the Philadelphia 76ers, has been fined $750 by National Basketball Association President Walter Kennedy because of a magazine article which appeared under Chamberlain's byline.

Chamberlain's name appeared last April over a story in Sports Illustrated, titled: "My Life in a Bush League." Kennedy said the article, critical of NBA owners and coaches, "contained many wholly inaccurate statements of fact, all of which drew conclusions from an erroneous premise."

Coventry Out Of C Tourney

Coming from behind with two runs in the seventh inning, Plainfield High eliminated Coventry High from CIAC Class C competition Saturday with a 6-5 victory in Middletown. The winners meet Saybrook for the championship, while Coventry finishes with a 15-6 record.

Leo Keith opened the Plainville seventh with his third hit. A wild pitch enabled him to take second and Roy Mercer's single put him on third. After a fly out, Mike Beausoiel lined another single to score the winning run.

Rich Young suffered the loss for Coventry, taking over for starter Dave LaPointe in the sixth.

Randy Ryan and Ron Hudak combined for five of Coventry's nine hits. Dave Storrs supplied the power, blasting a two-run triple in the third inning.

Did You Ever INSPECT your Household DRINKING WATER?

You probably have not! Like most people we take water for granted. It's always available and as much as we want, and assume it is clean and pure. BUT . . . if you were to inspect your water very closely you would probably find SILT, RUST, SEDIMENT, SCALE PARTICLES, SAND, ALGAE, DIRT, CLOUDINESS, MOST OTHER SUSPENDED MATTER and above all . . . WORMS!

SURPRISED?? Most people would be, but it's true. They are very common in water and you drink them without knowing it. These creatures are called "nematodes" which are small and threadlike. This is not a "scare message" but DON'T settle for these water conditions. Like MAGIC, you can turn your present water supply into CLEAN, CRYSTAL-CLEAR water with "PURITY" the amazing water filter with throw-away sediment S-1 cartridges. For just pennies a day, this hard working "PURITY" operates efficiently and out-performs any other filter. (It does not soften water.) AND THEN CAME THE FANS' OPINION — Umpire Chris Pelekoudas shouts that Mets' runner Johnny Lewis is out at home on tag by Dodgers catcher John Roseboro—and then most of the 57,175 fans in the Mets' Shea Stadium gave vent to strong disagreement with the umpire. Olympic Boycott Possible Again for Games in 1968

CHICAGO (AP) — In 1928, a dissident National Collegiate Athletic Association boycotted the Amsterdam Olympics, and—40 years later—the same thing may happen at the 1968 Mexico City Olympics.

This seemed possible following the U.S. Olympic Committee's approval of a measure solidly bolstering the Amateur Athletic Union's role in Olympic preparations.

The USOC, in a special meeting Saturday, accepted by better than the two-thirds requiring vote, 1,339-585, a rule giving any internationally recognized U.S. governing body majority membership on each of more than 20 Olympic sports committees.

This junked previous equal membership on each games committee between the feuding AAU and NCAA.

It gave the AAU control of prime games committees, including track, swimming and basketball.

And it left the NCAA sharing a minor organizational role with high school, military and other non-AAU partisan groups.

The revision was proposed by the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen, which disclaimed it was a "pawn of the AAU" as suggested by some NCAA folk.

Jack Sulger, chairman of the sponsoring rowing group, said his group was one of 18 independent organizations holding international sanction.

"We don't intend to be sacrificed on the altar of harmony between the AAU and NCAA," said Sulger, implying that eventual coalition could wipe out rowing, cycling, soccer and like autonomous groups.

This brought this retort by an NCAA leader, commissioner Bill Reed of the Big Ten:

"Then our position is that the colleges feel we have been sacrificed on the altar of disharmony."

That feeling was translated into a caucus of some 40 collegiate, high school, junior colleges and coaching leaders, immediately after the USOC adjourned Saturday afternoon.

The group proposed appointment of a "select committee of nationally prominent educational leaders to determine a course of action to be pursued by all of the various organizations involved."

"It is more than an athletic difference now," said an NCAA spokesman. "Now it is a matter of how much administrative work and finance the school people should put into an Olympic movement in which they feed great talent, but now have no influence whatsoever."

Early Morning Lecture Pays Dividends for Mauch

Gonzalez 'Delivers'

NEW YORK (AP) — Gene Mauch, the explosive Philadelphia manager, doesn't throw spare ribs any more. Now he conducts lecture sessions at 9:30 in the morning.

The subject of Mauch's dissertation Sunday was lackadaisical play. The object of Mauch's displeasure was outfielder Tony Gonzalez.

And the result of Mauch's disciplinary action was a homer, double and single by Gonzalez that carried the Phillies to a 5-0 victory over Houston for their fifth straight triumph, lifting them to the .500 level for the first time in almost a month.

Mauch, who has been known to throw spare ribs around the clubhouse when he's fuming, has kept his temper all season long while the Phillies have languished in the second division. But Saturday Mauch had enough of Gonzalez' play and pulled him out in the middle of the game.

Then Sunday, Mauch and Gonzalez had their chat for what the Philadelphia manager termed failure "to execute four plays much less than his capabilities."

"He was right," admitted Gonzalez. "It was my fault. I just go out now and do my best."

He did it right away, leading off the first with a homer, tacking on the other two hits and raising his average to .298 while providing the only support Chris Short needed in subduing the Astros on five hits.

The Los Angeles Dodgers, meanwhile, stretched their National League lead to 3½ games over Milwaukee, defeating the New York Mets 5-2 and 4-3 while the Braves split, beating St. Louis 4-2 before getting walloped 12-2 in a wild, rhubarb-punctuated second game.

Elsewhere, the Chicago Cubs rapped Cincinnati 9-7 before the Reds took the nightcap 7-0 and Pittsburgh edged San Francisco 2-1.

In the American League, Detroit edged Minnesota 5-4, the Chicago White Sox nipped Washington 2-1, Baltimore defeated Boston 1-0, the New York Yankees blanked the Los Angeles Angels 3-0 and Kansas City whipped Cleveland 8-4 before the Indians won the second game 5-2.

DODGERS-METS—

The Dodgers put the opener out of reach with a four-run fourth-inning uprising keyed by Willie Davis' two-run single. Claude Osteen, tagged for Ron Swoboda's 13th homer, got the victory for a 5-6 record with ninth-inning help from Bob Miller.

In the nightcap, the Dodgers overcame a 3-2 deficit in the ninth on a walk to Jim Gilliam, a sacrifice, Ron Fairly's run-scoring single and a double by Wally Moon that sent the Mets down to their 10th straight defeat.

BRAVES-CARDS—

The Braves snapped a 2-2 tie in the opener on Gene Oliver's two-run single in the eighth inning while Wade Blasingame completed a four-hitter against the Cardinals.

The Braves not only lost the nightcap but Manager Bobby Bragan and their starting battery—pitcher Hank Fisher and catcher Gene Oliver—in a series of ejections during the fourth inning as the Cardinals pushed across seven unearned runs.

CUBS-REDS—

Rookie catcher Chris Krug and Ron Santo each hammered three-run homers while Billy Williams connected for a solo job in the Cubs' first-game victory.

The Reds came back to take the nightcap behind the hitting of Frank Robinson, who drove in three runs with a double and single in support of Joey Jay's five-hit pitching.

PIRATES-GIANTS—

Vern Law pitched a three-hitter for the Pirates, winning his fifth straight, and scored the winning run on Bill Virdon's seventh-inning triple after collecting a single. Willie McCovey hit his 13th homer for the lone Giant run.

Third One-Run Loss Absorbed by Red Sox

BOSTON (AP)—"The way we're going if you pitch a shutout the best you can get is a tie."

The expression of futility was that of Red Sox righthander Bill Monbouquette who tossed a fine three-hitter for eight innings before being lifted for a pinch-hitter—and wound up with his seventh defeat for his trouble, a 1-0 decision to Baltimore.

The loss was the third straight one-run verdict to Baltimore in the current series, the fourth setback in a row for Boston and the seventh in the last eight.

The teams wind up their series tonight with Earl Wilson (4-4) scheduled to face southpaw Dave McNally (2-3).

Monbouquette got tagged with the defeat because of John Orsino's sacrifice fly, Milt Pappas' recovery and the one-pitch relief of crafty Stu Miller who outsmarted young Tony Conigliaro to end the game.

"I'd rather be lucky than good," Monbouquette said. "When things are going right for you — and that takes some luck, you can get away with pitches which other times might go sailing right out of the park. But now one pitch goes a fraction of an inch off and—wham, you've lost."

Boston outhit the Orioles 6-4 in the game.

The only run came in the fifth after Monbo had retired the first 12 men in order. Brooks Robinson skied a double high off the left field wall. Rookie Curt Blefary — later criticized by manager Hank Bauer for the play—got Robinson to third with his first sacrifice of the year. Orsino followed with his first sacrifice fly of the season.

Pappas (6-2) retired 17 in a row between Bob Tillman's two out single in the second inning and one - out double in the eighth. Wilson, sent in to run for Tillman, made it to third when pinchhitter Tony Horton singled off the third base bag. But Pappas got Lennie Green on a popup and fanned Dalton Jones.

A Felix Mantilla single and a walk to Lee Thomas with one down in the ninth brought on Stu Miller who in his last 20 appearances spanning 34 innings has saved seven games and won four.

Conigliaro, a noted fastball and first-ball hitter was up. He remembered the last time he faced Miller the latter threw him some slow stuff on the outside corner. Miller threw a fastball, Conigliaro rapped it to third and the ensuing double play ended matters.

"Sure, I know Conigliaro is a fastball hitter and goes after the first pitch," said Miller. "But I threw the fastball because he was crowding the plate instead of standing deep as usual. So I jammed him and he fell for it."

The other Sox threat was in the first inning. With one out Jones singled and was held up at third on Carl Yastrzemski's double because of the quick outfield relay. Pappas walked Mantilla, the league's leading RBI man. Then he threw a pitch which got by Orsino halfway to the screen but hustled to the plate where he made a diving tag to put out Jones trying to score. Thomas then fanned.

Over the last seven games, Boston has been outscored 31-19, has committed 14 errors and been the victim of seven unearned runs.

Sellers Getting Job Done Astride Top Two-Year-Old

The way things are going Johnny Sellers has his mount for next year's Kentucky Derby. The name of the colt is Our Michael the leading contender for the 2-year-old championship of 1965.

Sellers, who won the 1961 Derby astride Carry Back, has ridden Our Michael in all of his five races to date at five different tracks.

Result: Four victories and one second with the latest triumph coming last Saturday in the 5½-furlong Christiana Stakes at Delaware Park.

In the Christiana, Our Michael spotted New Windsor a two-length lead, then drew out in the last furlong to beat Flame Tree by 2½ lengths as New Windsor faded to third.

In Saturday's other features Gummo won the Swaps Handicap at Arlington Park, Turbo Jet II took the Spring Handicap at Monmouth Park, Prairie Schooner scored in the Macomber Handicap at Suffolk Downs and Reverse took the Michigan Derby at Hazel Park.

Start it up and it turns into a Volkswagen.

For one thing, the motor starts.

The reason the Ghia revs right up is because it's got one of those air-cooled Volkswagen engines in the back.

Drive a Ghia for a while, and your gas and oil bills will fall into that economical Volkswagen tradition. Tires will take you some 40,000 miles, Volkswagen style.

Ditto for everything else Volkswagen.

But there is one thing that's a far cry from our beetle-nosed job: the Karmann Ghia's beautiful Italian-designed body.

So you can start it up, turn into a little bug, and nobody will know you're undergoing a metamorphosis. Except you.

Skowron Delivers For Club

Tracy, as Bill Skowron is known because of his winter occupation, handcuffed the Washington Senators 2-1 Sunday and steered the White Sox to within one-half game of first-place Minnesota.

Skowron tied the game with a home run in the seventh inning, then tripled across the winning run in the ninth.

The 34-year-old first baseman is in his first full season with the White Sox, having helped them to within one game of preventing the New York Yankees from capturing their fifth straight pennant last year.

After the grueling AL fight, Skowron and teammate Pete Ward went in for another kind of prevention. They joined a Chicago area detective agency.

Their primary assignment was selling the company's patrol service, but at times they also went on patrol duty, cruising around in a car complete with two-way radio hookup and flashing red light.

Skowron plans to return to his role of detective, but before he does he'd like to help the White Sox win the pennant. Right now he's hitting .289 and leads the team in runs batted in with 30 and home runs with seven.

In other AL games, Detroit edged Minnesota 5-4, New York blanked Los Angeles 3-0, Baltimore nipped Boston 1-0 and Kansas City defeated Cleveland 8-4 before losing 5-2.

In the National League, Los Angeles swept New York 5-2 and 4-2, Pittsburgh edged San Francisco 2-1, Milwaukee trimmed St. Louis 4-2 before bowing 12-2, Philadelphia whipped Houston 5-0 and Cincinnati belted Chicago 7-0 after losing 9-7.

Skowron's game-winning triple off Pete Richert followed Floyd Robinson's leadoff double. The first baseman's home run offset Don Lock's second-inning homer and ended Richert's string of 19 scoreless innings.

TIGERS-TWINS—

Hank Aguirre posted his seventh victory against two defeats although he needed ninth-inning relief aid from Mickey Lolich. Before he departed, though, Aguirre singled across the eventual deciding run in the seventh. Bob Allison's two-run homer in the Minnesota eighth made it close.

YANKS-ANGELS—

Pedro Ramos rescued Whitey Ford in the ninth inning and saved the Yankees' victory. Ford, now 6-6, permitted only one Angel as far as second base. The Yankees scored all of their runs in the fourth inning, two on a bases-loaded single by Hector Lopez.

ORIOLES-RED SOX—

John Orsino brought home Brooks Robinson with a sacrifice fly in the fifth for Baltimore's only run. Milt Pappas picked up his first triumph in nearly a month with one-pitch relief help from Stu Miller in the ninth. With two on and one out, Miller got Boston's Tony Conigliaro to hit into a game-ending double play.

A'S-INDIANS—

The Athletics won the opener with five runs in the seventh inning, three on Ken Harrelson's homer and two on shortstop Dick Howser's error.

Chuck Hinton's leadoff homer in the second inning of the nightcap sparked a four-run Cleveland rally, helping Lee Stange pick up his first victory of the season. Rain cut the second game to 6½ innings.

Wethersfield Here Wednesday for Opener at 6

Legion, Niantic Play 1-1 Tie

Warming up for Wednesday night's opening regular season game at Mt. Nebo against the Wethersfield American Legion, Coach John Cervini of Manchester got 16 squad members into action last night at Mt. Nebo in a 1-1 seven-inning tie against the Niantic Legion. Darkness curtailed play at this point.

It was a pitcher's day all the way, the locals getting only two hits off Niantic's Bob Eldridge and three Manchester pitchers limited the downstaters to but three.

Both clubs scored in the first inning. With two down in the top of the frame Niantic's Fred Malan was safe on an error. Bud Ellis singled him to third and an attempt to cut down Ellis at second gave Malan time enough to score.

Manchester jumped back with a run in its half. Mike Leach singled, stole second and went to third on a throwing error. Mark Heller and Ray LeGace drew walks to load the bases. Another walk to Dave Brady forced in the run.

Duke Hutchinson started for Manchester fanning one, walking one and allowing one hit in three innings. East Catholic High pitchers Ray LaGace and Frank Kinel split the last four innings, each walking one. LaGace pitched hitless ball and fanned two.

Niantic posted a threat in the fourth, putting men on first and second with none out. Kinel settled down to retire the side on a strikeout, a pick-off and a infield grounder.

Third Year Away from New York

Skowron Would Quit Game Before Returning to Yanks

NEW YORK (NEA) — The familiar "Moose, Moose!" assailed Bill Skowron's ears the first time he trotted out to his position. From the first base boxes at Yankee Stadium, one foghorn yelled, "Hey, Moose! How'd you like to move back here?"

Skowron tapped his grey Chicago road uniform, tapped the "SOX" on his hat with his first baseman's glove and yelled back over his shoulder, "Hell, no!"

It was the start of the third year that Skowron has been away from New York. When the Yankees trade away a guy who's 32 years old, you can figure he's washed up—especially after wearing these "NY" pin stripes for nine seasons.

In the visitor's clubhouse, Skowron tried to touch the floor with his fingertips and reflected, "They did me a favor when they traded me (to Los Angeles after the '62 season). I was having problems and didn't want to play here anyhow."

What, a red-blooded American who didn't want to be a Yankee?

"That's right," Moose nodded, "and if they ever sent me to the Yankees again, I'd quit before I came back here."

The "problems" Skowron referred to resulted in a divorce and a relocation to Chicago, his home town, where he has bought a house for his mother on the edge of the city near O'Hare Field—20 minutes from the ball park by expressway.

It's Bridie Murphy time in the career of the veteran slugger.

"He's helped us," said third baseman Pete Ward, "by just being who he is—an established, famous player."

"If we'd had him all of last year," said manager Al Lopez, "there's no doubt in my mind we'd have won the American League pennant."

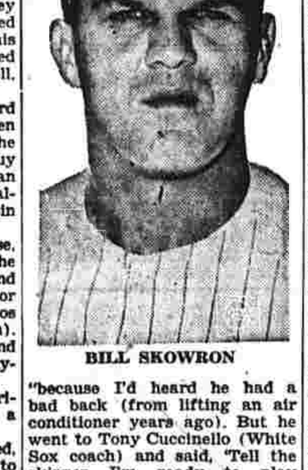
"I tried to get him when the Yankees sent him to the Dodgers," said general manager Ed Short, "and when the Dodgers sent him to the Senators."

What they finally got after the All-Star break last summer was suspect goods, because in his first season away from Yankee Stadium, Moose batted a puny .203 on a championship Dodger team in 1963.

"Hell," he scoffed, "I never got to play. Two hundred times at bat. Besides, I didn't know the parks or the players. It was lonely."

With the Senators last spring he revived, and with the Sox he was a revelation in the late summer.

"My thought was to rest him occasionally," admitted Lopez, "because I'd heard he had a bad back (from lifting an air conditioner years ago). But he went to Tony Cuccinello (White Sox coach) and said, 'Tell the skipper I'm ready to play doubleheaders if he wants me.'"



BILL SKOWRON

He batted .293 and has maintained the same pace this year while leading the Sox in runs-batted-in. Still, the Moose is a born worrier and even the new life with Chicago palls occasionally.

"It's the traveling," he said. "I've had 15 years of it. I'm thinking of quitting baseball after this year."

Must be those trips to Yankee Stadium.

Practice Schedule

Following is the practice schedule for the Alumni Junior Baseball League this week: Tuesday at Charter Oak, Tigers. Wednesday, Red Sox at Charter Oak, and Twins at Keeney Street. Thursday, Orioles at Charter Oak and White Sox at Keeney. Friday, Yankees at Charter Oak. All practice sessions will start at 6. In case of rain the players will be notified as to the next practice.

11 Records Set In Coast Meet

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP) — Eleven records were posted today in the books of the U.S. Track and Field Federation — notably a 3:56.4 mark for the mile run set by Bob Day of UCLA in the windup of the USTFF's two-night Bakersfield meet Saturday.

Day not only broke the national collegiate mark, 3:56.9, set by Tom O'Hara of Loyola of Chicago in 1963, but also eclipsed the meet record of 4:02.2 by Cal Elmore of Wichita set in 1963.

Ed Dean of Notre Dame, 4:04.8, and Paul Schlicke, of Stanford, 4:06.4, chased the 20-year-old UCLA junior to the tape. Day's fractions were 58.5, 1:57 flat and 2:56.5.

Other meet records set in the two nights were in the hammer throw, discus, 220 and 440 dashes, 440 hurdles, 120 high hurdles, high jump, triple jump, and the three and six-mile runs.

Penny Receives DeMolay Honors

Stephen Penny, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander C. Penny of 395 Burnham St., won first place in Connecticut and second place in the United States in the International DeMolay Essay Contest. His essay was titled "Masons and DeMolay A-team." The first place award won him $250 plus the William Savitt plaque, and the national award $100 and a plaque.

The state award and plaque was presented to him Thursday night by the Council of Deliberation of Scottish Rites Bodies at its meeting in Norwich. They were represented, together with the other award and plaque, during a three-day DeMolay state conclave at Moodus, which ended Saturday night. Grand Master William Campbell, also the executive officer of DeMolay in Connecticut, made the presentation.

Penny is a past master councilor of John Mather Chapter, Order of DeMolay. He received the Dad Walsh Award in January for being the outstanding DeMolay boy of the year.

About Town

George Bettinger, chairman of the Blackledge District of the Charter Oak Council, Boy Scouts of America; and J. Morey Roy, an executive of the Blackledge District, spoke at a meeting of the PTA Council last week asking the PTA to sponsor new Cub Scout packs at schools where there are now none.

Newly appointed committee chairmen of the Junior Century Club will meet tonight at 8:30 at the home of Mrs. Lawrence Decker Jr., 189 Laurel St., Wapping.

The annual outing of the Army-Navy Auxiliary will be held Sunday, June 27, at Garden Grove. Reservations close June 24 and may be made with Mrs. Florence Plitt, 829 Main St., or Mrs. Charles Pickett, 613 Main St.

Manchester Assembly, Order of Rainbow for Girls, will have a business meeting tonight at 7:30 at the Masonic Temple. Officers are reminded to wear short white dresses.

The staff of Manchester's Camp Kennedy, including the volunteer counselors, will meet tomorrow night at 6:30 at the West Side Rec on Cedar St.

The Past Matron's Association of Temple Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, will have a picnic Wednesday afternoon at the cottage of Mrs. John Trotter of Columbia Lake. Members are reminded to bring dishes and silverware. Those wishing transportation may call Mrs. Helen Elliott, 177 Summit St.

The Brewster Circle of North Methodist Church will meet Tuesday at 6 p.m. at the church.

The Women's Society of Community Baptist Church will have a cookout tomorrow at 6:30 p.m. on the grounds of the Youth Fellowship building. Members are reminded to bring meat and rolls. Dessert and beverages will be served. Those desiring further information may call any leaders of the church circles.

Manchester Lodge of Masons will meet tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. at the Masonic Temple. The Master Mason degree will be conferred.

The Mailmams will have their annual supper tomorrow at 6 p.m. at Willie's Steak House. Those attending are reminded that reservations for the film, "My Fair Lady," must be pick-up by 8 p.m. at the Webb, Wethersfield.

A testimonial dinner will be given Wednesday at 7 p.m. at the Italian American Club for Aldo Pagani and Robert Senibaldi. Tickets may be obtained from Bienviedo Montalvo, 82 Wells St., or Romolo Pagani, 22 Foster St.

Two Degrees Set By Friendship

Friendship lodge of Masons will have two Master Mason degrees this week, one at a regular meeting Thursday night and the other at a special meeting Saturday night. Both will be in the Masonic Temple, starting at 7:30.

On Thursday, District Deputy Howard Bond of Thompsonville will make his official visitation and inspection of the lodge. Senior Warden Jack Von Deck Jr. will preside. Officers will wear summer formal.

Saturday night, the Caledonian degree team from Waterbury will fill the chairs, with Thomas Johnstone presiding. This team is noted for its ritual work, which is performed while in Scot dress. It also uses bag pipers. The team put on its work all over the eastern seaboard. Johnstone will be presiding over his 102nd Master Mason degree.

Friendship and Manchester lodges join together on Sunday to attend St. John's Day services at South Methodist Church. A breakfast will be served in the Masonic Temple at 7:30 a.m. and the lodges will attended the 9 o'clock service. Tickets for the breakfast can be obtained from officers of either lodge.

Voters' Turnout Light In Delegate Election

Manchester voters were staying away from the polls in droves today and, unless a last minute rush develops no more than about five per cent of the eligible voters will cast ballots.

At 1 p.m. only 554 ballots had been cast, or about 2½ per cent of the 22,990 eligible.

Advance predictions of today's Manchester total vote had ranged from a low of 900 to a high of 2,200.

There were less than 1,000 in West Hartford, and about 300 in East Hartford at mid-day.

There was a turnout of about 1,000 in Greenwich and less than 400 in Stamford.

In New Haven, only 50 votes were cast in a district where 5,000 were eligible.

In a regular state election, the turnout by noon would have been far greater everywhere.

The chief reason for the lack of interest was the fact that there were no contests outside the first congressional district.

Party-endorsed candidates in five of the state's six congressional districts are all alone on the ballot and are virtually certain of election.

The one exception is the First District where Mr. and Mrs. James Collins of Hartford are listed as "Protest Republicans." The seven Democrats running in the district are unopposed.

Fourteen delegates, seven Democrats and seven Republicans, will be elected in each district to the 84-member convention.

The convention will open July 1 at the State Capitol to amend the State Constitution in keeping with the U.S. Supreme Court's "one-man one-vote" reapportionment decision.

Although almost all of the party-endorsed candidates are certain of victory, the election could generate some excitement.

In North Stonington, for example, Miss Vivien Kellems plans a voting booth sit-in to protest the lack of choice being offered voters.

And in two districts, the second and the fourth, latecomers are staging write-in campaigns.

Mrs. Suzanne Silvercruys Stevenson of Chaplin, a sculptor, and Chase Kimball of Pomfret, a college professor, are write-in candidates in the Second District.

"They all get elected whether you like it or not," he said.

The polls open at 6 a.m. and will remain open until 7 p.m. Drinking places will be closed during polling hours.

18 Soldiers Die in Crash Of 'Copters

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP)—Eighteen soldiers were killed today in the collision and Crash of two troop-laden Army helicopters on a training flight over a swampy area of Ft. Benning.

Possibly more infantrymen were killed in the flaming crashes at 9:54 a.m. shortly after the aircraft took off from an airstrip on the sprawling reservation of the U.S. Army Infantry Training Center.

Rare Painting Discovered in Trash Barrel

Mrs. George Simon holds missing painting — Madonna — reclaimed from the Grosse Point, Mich., trash collection. The painting, which may be the work of a 16th century painter named Il Sassoferrato is valued at more than $20,000. It was reported lost by the Simons earlier this year and recovered from the trash heap by a Grosse Point artist who trades disposal area workers cigarettes for paintings and frames they pick up in the rubbish. Underwood Out For Second Day; Talks Continue

HARTFORD (AP)—A work stoppage by union members went into its second day today at the Olivetti-Underwood Corp.

A union spokesman notified members of the International Union of Machinists that a rank-and-file meeting scheduled for 10 a.m. today was postponed until Thursday.

He said the company's final contract offer was received at 4 a.m. and would require further study. Negotiations were scheduled to resume at 3 p.m.

Meanwhile, the union spokesman said operations at the typewriter manufacturing plant at Capitol Avenue, where about 1,800 union workers are employed, would remain halted.

The rank-and-file meeting scheduled for today but postponed until Thursday had been arranged to discuss previous proposals and any that may have been advanced at the mediation session.

The primary obstacles to settlement were said to be company demands for major changes in seniority procedures and union demands that the company commit itself to remain in Hartford.

Compensation Voided

HARTFORD (AP) — A package workmen's compensation policy covering contractors building the $104.5 million Connecticut Yankee Atomic Co. power plant at Haddam Neck was voided today by the State Supreme Court of Errors.

The court sustained an appeal brought by eight out-of-state mutual insurance companies which objected to a "wrap up" policy written by the Hartford Accident & Indemnity Co. It previously had been approved by the former State Insurance Commissioner, the late Alfred N. Premo, and supported by a decision in Superior Court.

Judge Frank Covello, in support of Premo, said the decision "was in the public interest." He agreed that since the project was of such magnitude—the project is owned by 12 public utility companies—that Connecticut Yankee might well seek to effect savings in the cost of insurance.

The mutual companies then appealed the matter to the State Supreme Court. It was their contention that "every wrapped up contractor is required to deal with an agent and carrier which he has no voice in selecting and to accept loss prevention, medical and claims service over which he cannot have the same influence as is possible with a regular carrier."

In today's decision, Chief Justice John Hamilton King ques-

House Committee Doubles LBJ's Military Pay Hike

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Armed Services Committee approved today a $1 billion military pay bill — more than double what President Johnson had proposed.

The vote was 33 to 1 with only Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y., voting against it.

In effect, the committee approved the 10.7 per cent average annual pay hike contained in a bill introduced by committee chairman L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., and 33 others of the 37 members of his committee.

But they also included provisions from the administration bill whose proposed pay raises had been denounced by Rivers as "disgracefully inadequate."

The committee took from the administration bill a variable re-enlistment bonus and a plan for yearly reviews of military pay.

Both these proposals had been stressed by Pentagon officials, from Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara on down, as a big help in solving the services' retention problem.

The variable bonus would allow the armed services to pay as much as $8,000 to a man in some critical skill — such as radar technician — who re-enlists.

The pay bill proposed by Johnson and strongly backed by McNamara would have given an average yearly increase of 4.8 per cent in total compensation, to become effective Jan. 1 next year. The Rivers' bill would become effective the first day of the first month after it was enacted.

The committee's approval of its own bill was the administration's second legislative setback in less than a week at the hands of the committee. The group won House passage Thursday of a bill giving Congress a veto over closing of military installations.

Along the same line, the committee dismissed today the idea in the administration bill of giving Congress only a veto power over future military pay legislation. It called instead for an annual review of military pay to be submitted to Congress, and a review of the military pay structure once every four years, the first due in January 1967.

Rivers said the pay bill plus the military construction bill will "go a long way to answer the plaintive question asked by many servicemen: 'Does anyone care for us'?"

Stratton, who voted against approval of the bill, said "I am not against a military pay increase. I have served in the Reserve for 23 years, six of it on active duty in two wars. But this is just too much of an increase at this time and it has been badly handled."

Stratton said that "In relation to its heavy cost to the taxpayers it will not do nearly enough to help the armed services where they need the help most."

The Rivers' bill, aimed at making military pay comparable to Civil Service was criticized by McNamara for giving so much attention to the lower grades of enlisted men and officers.

McNamara said the raises should be focused "at decision points"—the place where military men decide to stay in uniform. By not doing this, McNamara said, Rivers' bill was not meeting the main issue — the need to keep more experienced men in service.

Vivien Kellems Arrested For Voting Booth Sit-in

MYSTIC (AP)—Vivien Kellems staged a voting booth sit-in today, and promptly was arrested on charges of breach of the peace.

Two women registrars of voters, one Republican and one Democrat, lifted the retired industrialist out of the voting booth amid gales of girlish laughter.

Miss Kellems, 69, whose fight with the federal government won her national attention in 1948, was protesting the way delegates will be elected to Connecticut's constitutional convention.

She doesn't consider the election an election, and gave plenty of advance warning that she planned to make a fuss.

Miss Kellems—a battery of newsmen and photographers waiting—arrived at the Broadway courthouse in Mystic in a white Cadillac. She told newsmen that she was wearing television makeup.

She entered the voting booth, and after less than one minute sat herself on a valise she was carrying.

Moderator James Fusaro asked her three times whether she was having trouble with the voting machine. The diminutive Miss Kellems answered simply each time that she had no intention of voting.

Fusaro summoned the registrars of voters—Democrat Mrs. Agatha Marikle and Republican Mrs. Flora Morin—who merely lifted Miss Kellems from the booth and stood her on her feet. All three laughed gaily.

A police cruiser took Miss Kellems to headquarters for booking on the charge on a complaint filed by Fusare, based on violating the state election laws that impose a limit of one minute in a voting booth.

Miss Kellems said that her civil rights—and those of all the people in Connecticut—had been violated.

The two political parties agreed in advance to share convention seats equally. There will be seven Democrats and seven Republicans elected in each district.

"Where is there a choice?," Miss Kellems asked Gov. John Dempsey in a letter Sunday. "And how is this an election? There isn't even a choice between parties."

Referring to the election as "a shocking, arrogant, contemptuous usurpation of the basic American rights of the people of Connecticut," Miss Kellems informed Dempsey that she will refuse to leave the voting booth.

"After one minute," she re-

Four from State Killed in Crash On Bay Bridge

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The flaming collision of a tractor-trailer and an automobile on a bridge section of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel has killed four persons from Connecticut — the first fatalities since 17.5-mile crossing was opened a little more than a year ago.

A third vehicle, a truck carrying ammonia, was nicked but not damaged in a chain-reaction crash Monday 4.1 miles from the eastern shore end of the crossing.

State police identified the victims today as Charles F. Musk Jr., 38, and his wife Mary Ann, 38, both of Woodhaven Drive, Avon, Conn., and Warren Goodrich Horton, 49, and his wife, Virginia, 46, both of Dowd Avenue, Canton, Conn.

Horton and Musk were partners in a Hartford, Conn., firm, Marsden and Wasserman. They had attended a business conference in Williamsburg, Va., and were en route home in a car driven by Musk.

Police said all three vehicles were northbound. The ammonia truck and the Musk car behind it were slowing for a flagman, police said, and the tractor trailer truck failed to slow.

Skin Cancer Curb Reported Through Low-Protein Diet

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Curbing growth of a deadly form of skin cancer through low-protein diet was reported today by the University of Southern California's School of Medicine.

Dr. Harry B. Demopoulos said elimination of all foods with significant protein content apparently removes elements necessary for the growth of pigmented cancer cells.

The report was one of two prepared for a news conference called to announce fall construction of two new buildings on the medical campus and an increase in the size of the medical class from 88 to 96.

Dr. Jerome Harold Kay, chief of cardiac surgery at USC, disclosed development of an improved heart-lung machine which he said has resulted in faster recovery of several hundred heart-surgery patients. He also said a new and quieter artificial plastic valve is ready for implantation in human hearts.

Dr. Demopoulos said eight patients with far advanced pigmented melanoma — a skin cancer which usually starts in a mole and spreads rapidly throughout the body — were placed on a low protein diet.

All eight eventually died of cerebral hemorrhages associated with the cancer, he said, but autopsy showed the melanoma cells had regressed.

Eight new patients with less advanced melanomas are under study in hope the diet will control their cancers. They, like a diabetic on insulin, must stay on their diet indefinitely.

In the USC diet, all but two of the essential body-building amino acids found in protein are supplied by a powder. The two — tyrosine and phenyalalanine — are given in reduced quantities. Without sufficient amounts of these the cancer cells cannot consume enough oxygen to grow, he explained.

Dr. Kay said his new heart-lung machine, which supplies blood and oxygen during open-chest operations, requires only one to three pints of blood, compared with 8 to 20 pints necessary for machines presently in use. It can use blood from blood banks, he said. Other machines require blood donations at the time of surgery.

Dr. Kay said the new heart valve, for use between the left upper and left lower chambers of the heart in rheumatic fever patients, has a disc instead of a floating ball to control flow of blood.

The university also announced that construction of a $4.45-million medical research building will begin in September, followed in November by a $1.2-million medical library.

One Crewman Killed

U.S. Plane Crashes At Paris Air Show

PARIS (AP) — A U.S. Air Force B58 jet bomber crashed and burned today before horrified thousands at an international air show. One of its three crew members perished.

The crash of the B58 occurred at Le Bourget Airport as it came in for landing after arriving from the U.S. Air Force Base at Torrejon, Spain.

The U.S. Air Force had issued a statement saying all three crew members had been killed. Later a French hospital reported it had two survivors of the crash. A hospital attache identified one as a Maj. Harold Covington of Jacksonville.

Air Force officers were at a loss to explain how they made the error in announcing all aboard were killed.

The hospital said the survivors were badly burned.

The plane is part of the B58 SAC wing stationed at Little Rock and had flown to Paris via the SAC base at Torrejon, Spain.

An Air Force spokesman said the plane landed short and apparently struck instrument approach beacons at the north end of the Le Bourget runway.

He added, however, that the determination of cause will depend on findings of an Air Force board of inquiry.

The plane crashed with a thunderous roar which shattered wings and fuselage and burst into flames. One engine, some distance from the aircraft, belched flames.

It was the second B58 to crash during an international air show at Le Bourget. In 1961 another made a demonstration pass, went out of sight of the crowd and crashed, killing the crew.

The B58 is a strategic medium-range bomber built by the General Dynamics Corp. It has a speed in excess of 1,300 miles per hour at 35,000 feet and has a ceiling higher than 60,000 feet.

The crash came after a mammoth Soviet transport plane landed and attracted wide attention at the air show. The Russians claimed their plane, which stands more than five stories, can carry 720 passengers or a payload of 80 tons. It flew nonstop from Moscow.

In Madrid, U.S. Air Force officials said the B58 Hustler which crashed had performed before more than 40,000 people last weekend in Spanish-American Friendship Day air show in Spain.

It was with other U.S. bombers and fighters in fly-pasts at displays at Madrid and in Maron, near Seville.

Officials in Spain said the B58's departure for Paris was normal.

Gemini Duo Get Welcome In Michigan

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — The Gemini space twins landed at Ann Arbor today for a welcome back to the university which helped launch both of them on their career as spacemen.

Astronauts James A. McDivitt and Edward H. White II landed at nearby Willow Run Airport to a burst of applause from about 800 persons and a welcome by Gov. George Romney and other government officials.

"I'm glad to be back in my own home state of Michigan," said McDivitt, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. James A. McDivitt Sr., live in Jackson.

Romney told the crowd "No two graduates of the University of Michigan ever achieved so much and such heights."

Romney and the astronauts climbed into an open car to lead a 13-car motorcade to the university's 101,001-seat stadium, where the astronauts were to receive newly created honorary degrees of doctor of astronautical science.

Later, they were to help their alma mater dedicate the new, $1.7-million space research building.

Gemini pilot McDivitt was graduated No. 1 in a class of 606 when he won a bachelor's de-

Russia Unveils 720-Passenger Transport Plane

Russia's new 720-passenger turbo-prop transport, the "Antacus," was unveiled today at the Paris International Air Show after a flight from Moscow. The huge plane, capable of speed close to 500 miles per hour, lands on six dual landing wheels. This photo, released by Tass, was made earlier this month. (AP Photofax)

Disastrous Drought Ahead for Northeast

NEW YORK (AP) — A severe drought is plaguing most of the northeast United States causing water shortages and threatening crops, an Associated Press survey shows.

"If we don't have about three weeks of rain, we'll have the worst drought in 70 years," says Herbert W. Peabody, of the eastern division of the Federal Extension Service in Newport, R.I.

One Rhode Island city, East Providence, has taken steps to curtail the use of water for watering lawns.

New York is one of the hardest-hit states. Crops are affected. Experts predict a situation similar to last year when 35 of 62 counties were declared drought-disaster areas.

Syracuse is building a 30-mile, $45-million pipeline to tap Lake Ontario.

Albany, the New York capital, must cut consumption by five million gallons a day — to about 20 million.

Throughout upstate New York, local governments have banned lawn-watering and car-washing among other water conservation measures.

In New York City, all ornamental fountains have been ordered shut off. Restaurants are not permitted to serve patrons a glass of water unless specifically asked.

The U.S. Geological Survey district engineer says Maine has a "serious but not yet critical" drought condition. The engineer says that if the June rainfall is much below normal, some curtailment of the public water supply must be expected.

In Vermont, the outlook is bad for the hay crop, which would cause higher hay prices for dairy farmers, according to Agriculture Commissioner Raymond G. Rowley. Lake Champlain is near an all-time low level.

Recent rains have helped alleviate a drought situation in Connecticut, but rain generally is still about 5½ inches below normal since Jan. 1. Some water restrictions are in effect.

The Weather Bureau says Boston is in its third consecutive year with less than normal precipitation.

Nurserymen in western Massachusetts have stopped digging up plants, selling only trees and shrubs already on hand.

In New Jersey, Gov. Richard J. Hughes has declared a state of emergency in four northern counties and the city of Elizabeth to combat a critical water shortage. The restrictions include use of public water for car washing, watering of lawns and streets.

In New Hampshire, the outlook is reported gloomy for hay crops, especially in the western area of the state. The legislature was asked to approve a $100,000 contract for cloud seeding.

In some states, however, recent rains have helped tremendously.

In Maryland, heavy rains rescued the state from what could have been severe truck crop damage in the millions of dollars. Strawberry crops benefited particularly.

EAST HARTFORD SESSION

John V. Brennan, 50, of Coventry, charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor, had his case nolled on the grounds that no actual operation of his vehicle was proved.

Brennan reportedly rammed his automobile into a tree on Green Manor Blvd. on May 16, injuring himself moderately and inflicting extensive damage to the vehicle.

The case against Donald E. Jorgenson, 19, of 23 W. Gardner St. was continued to July 19 and will be presented in Manchester. He was charged with assault with intent to rob and was arrested in Norwich on a warrant issued by the 12th Circuit Court yesterday and placed in the Hartford State Jail last night.

The assault Jorgenson is accused of occurred at a local dry cleaner in May say police. His bond has been set at $5,000 and he has not yet posted it.

Two $150,000 Suits Started Over Triple Road Fatality

Two suits have been brought against four parties today involved in a violent accident on the Wilbur Cross Highway in East Hartford in May in which three Manchester residents died. The suits follow the just released coroner's report on the deaths.

The plaintiff in the first suit is Mrs. Maria Metcalf, the mother of the deceased Mrs. Olive M. Ray, and the plaintiff in the second is Thomas Ray Sr., father of the deceased Thomas Ray II.

Both suits claim $150,000 dollars of the same defendants, a truck driver, his employer, the truck owner, and the truck distributor.

The coroner's inquest into the three deaths has placed blame for the accident on the alleged criminal negligence of the driver of a trailer truck which jackknifed across the road, starting the fatal chain of events.

Hartford County Coroner Louis W. Schaefer determined that the truck driver, John C. Stratton of Mattawaumkeag, Maine, had apparently failed to keep a proper lookout for traffic which he was following in the passing lane, failed to employ a brake control for the slippery road surface and was following too closely, at high speed, the traffic moving ahead of his rig.

Two of the victims, Olive M. Ray, 45, late of 33 Lyness St. and her 14-year-old son, Thomas W. Ray Jr., lost their lives when their automobile collided with the rear of the jacknifed trailer. The other, Maria Scheer, 61, late of 187 Spring St., was killed as she fell from the passenger seat of a car operated by her husband Peter J. Scheer Jr., who had tried to avoid collision with the rig by swerving from the driving lane. Mrs. Scheer was struck immediately by an oncoming car.

The accidents occurred May 29 about 10:45 east of the Forbes St. overpass during a moderate rainfall. Stratton, eastbound and driving in the passing lane, reportedly moved back into the right hand lane just as traffic in that lane was slowing. He applied his brakes but the truck twisted off course, traveled across the separator strip into the westbound lane, blocking the stream of traffic.

At this point, the Ray vehicle slammed into the blocking trailer. Scheer's car, also westbound, veered to the right to avoid a similar collision, ran onto an embankment, sideswiped a traffic sign and then swept across both westbound and eastbound lanes to the opposite bank of the road where it finally hit a tree. Mrs. Scheer was catapulted out of the vehicle onto the eastbound lane in the path of a car driven by Leo J. Lemelin of South Norwalk.

A third car, operated by Richard T. McNamara of Hebron for the Mal Tool and Engineering Co., also crashed into the rig, but McNamara saved himself by throwing himself across the seat of his car.

Stratton was arrested and charged with two counts of negligent homicide and with reckless driving. His case is scheduled for the East Hartford session of Circuit Court 12 on Aug. 16.

YOU CAN CONQUER OLD AGE
There are a few people who live more than 100 years and many more could achieve this goal if they followed these good rules for healthier living. For, advancing age exposes everyone to certain dangers, many of which can be comfortably lived with.
SENIOR CITIZENS NEED MEDICAL HELP
They are more subject to rheumatism, arthritis, heart trouble, bronchial colds and falls or accidents. Men may develop a prostate ailment. Frequent urgency to empty the bladder is a warning to both sexes. Gradual breaking down of tissues can cause hardening of the arteries and liver.
CONSULT A PHYSICIAN QUICKLY
At the first sign of ageing troubles a physician should be asked for help. We now have many new, important drugs which can give some quick relief to most aches and pains. Sustaining medicines help stop sickness from worsening.
DENTAL PROBLEMS CAN CAUSE TROUBLE
Sensitive or poorly fitting dentures prevent proper food mastication, leading to digestive disturbances and constipation. Senior citizens should visit their Dentists regularly for attention.
TRY TO "THINK YOUNG"
Have some friends who are younger. Have a hobby, especially if you are retired. Do the amount of exercise your physician advises.

Stevenson Dies In London

Adlai E. Stevenson

Ambassador to U.N. Collapsed in Street

LONDON (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson collapsed in the street outside the U.S. Embassy today and died in St. George's Hospital. He was 65.

The U.S. ambassador to the United Nations was on a short visit to London and had just left the embassy on Grosvenor Square when he was stricken. He had kept up a busy schedule here, visiting friends and political contacts.

Cause of death was not immediately announced.

Earlier today Stevenson had conferred with Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart at the foreign office. On Sunday he lunched with Prime Minister Harold Wilson at Chequers, the country home of British premiers.

He had arrived here from Paris on Sunday and had been expected to return to the United States this week. During his trip to Europe Stevenson also attended the meeting of the U.N. Economic and Social Council.

The man who was the Democratic presidential candidate in 1952 and 1956 did not appear to have been in poor health.

Monday night he was interviewed on British Broadcasting Corp. television about the U.S. policy in Viet Nam. To viewers, he seemed his usual self-possessed articulate self.

His last appearance at the United Nations was before the recent Security Council meeting on the Dominican crisis.

At that time he vigorously defended the U.S. action in sending military forces to the Dominican Republic.

For almost three years during President Harry S. Truman's administration he served as a delegate to international conferences, including the first two sessions of the U.N. General Assembly in 1946 and 1947.

Stevenson had been an important figure at the San Francisco conference of 1945 that drafted the U.N. Charter.

Probably no politician in the United States ever had more devoted followers than did Adlai Ewing Stevenson. The fact that he twice met stunning defeats as the Democratic candidate for President failed to depress his admirers, who wanted him nominated again.

They argued that Stevenson lost in 1952 and 1956 to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower because the latter was an extraordinarily popular candidate with an extraordinarily popular appeal as a World War II hero—a combination that made him unbeatable.

Though Stevenson insisted he was not a candidate in 1960, there were many who endorsed him for standard bearer a third time. They considered him uniquely equipped, a man of rare eloquence, imagination and ability.

Everywhere he went prior to the Democratic National Convention that year there was evidence of strong support for him, and there was a tremendous roar from the galleries when his name was placed in nomination at the Los Angeles conclave.

The plaudits came largely from the galleries, however, as many of the delegates already had pledged their votes to others.

"I submit to you this man who is not the favorite son of any one state, but the favorite son of 50 states," said Senator Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota.

LBJ Near Tears At Bad News

Shock as well as sorrow was evident in Congress.

Johnson was notified of Stevenson's death by Secretary of State Dean Rusk who had received word by telephone from the U.S. Embassy in London.

Both the President and Rusk were at the White House for a luncheon honoring members of the joint United States-Japan committee on trade and economic affairs. The 1 p.m. luncheon was briefly delayed, but not canceled.

Rusk appeared grim and distraught when he hurried into the press office at the White House seeking press secretary William D. Moyers. Newsmen told him there was bad news and he said, "Yes, I heard."

Rusk also relayed the word to congressional leaders.

The death was announced to the House by Democratic leader Carl Albert of Oklahoma.

"I have been informed by the secretary of state that a great American, Adlai Stevenson, has died in the city of London, where he was on a peace mission," Albert said.

Sen. Paul H. Douglas, D-Ill., announced the death to the Senate, calling it "a great loss to the world and to the nation." Stevenson was a former governor of Illinois and longtime close friend of Douglas.

With the announcement, the Senate put aside debate on a housing bill and senator after

Mariner 4 Answers First Earth Order

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—Spacecraft Mariner 4 has responded to its first earth command in five months, indicating it is ready to begin making later today an historic series of close-up photos of Mars.

At 7:28 a.m., Pacific Daylight Time, scientists at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory sent a signal across 134 million miles of space to order a warmup of Mariner's instruments. Twenty-four minutes later an answer flashed back, signaling that Mariner was obeying.

At 5:20 p.m., if all goes well, the 575-pound craft will start making up to 21 photographs as it flies within 6,000 miles of the Martian surface. Thursday it is supposed to send the photos back to earth — perhaps shedding light on the ancient question of whether the mystery planet has life.

The warmup signal was sent with Mariner only 107,000 miles from Mars and traveling 9,970 miles per hour in relation to the planet. Its speed will increase to 11,000 m.p.h. by the time it flies by.

The earth command, first since last Feb. 12, was transmitted from a tracking station at Johannesburg, South Africa. It started a light-sensitive scanner looking for the bright disk of Mars.

And it started Mariner's camera making warmup clicks, although it will not actually take pictures until the scheduled time.

Since February, the spacecraft's activities have been controlled by an on-board timer.

The activity today — in which other experiments in addition to the photographing will be undertaken — climaxed a 228-day, 325-million-mile flight.

If everything works scientists expect to release Thursday night or Friday history's first closeup of the one other planet in the solar system believed likely to harbor some form of life.

Reddish-tinged Mars, one-fourth the diameter of earth, is the only planet with surface markings visible in telescopes. It has white caps at the poles which could be ice, and vast desert-like areas around its equator. Between the polar caps and the desert are splotches of dark green that some scientists have speculated are vegetation. The whole central belt is crisscrossed by canal-like lines with city-like smudges at the intersections.

Whether or not Mariner 4 finds evidence of life, its success would bring the United States tremendous prestige for the greatest technical achievement yet in deep space: Transmission of photographs across 134 million miles.

The Soviet Union's attempt to duplicate the feat failed last April when the Mars-bound Zone 2 — launched two days after Mariner 4 shot aloft Nov. 28 — stopped sending back signals.

Mariner 4 is expected to take up to 21 pictures in a 25-minute north-south photo sweep at altitudes ranging from 7,000 to 5,600 miles. The clearest, which may show objects as small as 1½ miles in length or diameter, could prove once and for all

Hippo Goes Hopping After Bridge Crash

HARTFORD (AP)—Eyes popped and traffic halted this morning as a hippopotamus roamed the grassy plain on the Hartford side of the Charter Oak Bridge approach.

Blinking in the morning sun was a three and one-half ton hippo, an escapee from an overturned circus truck.

Surrounding him were state and local police, firemen, tow truck mechanics and handlers—both professional and amateur.

The truck was part of a group of about 30 belonging to the Von Brothers 3-ring circus, which had been laying over between billings at a wild animal farm in Newington and started out this morning for Merrimack, N.H. where the show must go on Saturday.

Driver Ivan Lay was guiding the truck on a curve approaching the bridge over the Connecticut River from the Hartford side when Jessie the hippo apparently decided to move to the outer side of the truck, shifting all the weight there and flipping the truck over on its side. At first, Jessie stayed inside the toppled truck while the heavy flow of traffic was detoured across grassy strip and onto the bridge approach.

Police contacted the owner, who promised to send a new cage-truck to complete the journey.

Mechanics attached chains and started to lift the truck by hoist with Jessie still in it, but Jessie saw her chance and butted her enormous head through the side and strolled out onto the highway.

There was a brief scurry as bystanders looked for a safe spot, but Jessie turned out to be as friendly as could be. With gentle prodding, she moved over to the grassy area to relax while awaiting the new carrier.

Appeal Denied, Sheppard Must Return to Jail

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The U.S. 6th Circuit Court of Appeals denied today a rehearing for Dr. Samuel Sheppard in the case in which it had ordered him returned to the Ohio Penitentiary to resume a life sentence for murder.

Dr. Sheppard, a Cleveland osteopath, had served about 10 years of his sentence when a federal district judge ordered him released last July 16 on grounds he had not received a fair trial.

The appellate court reversed that ruling May 5, holding by a 2-1 vote that Sheppard should be sent back to prison.

Sheppard has been free since then, pending a decision on the motion for a rehearing. The court of appeals clerk's office said he now has five days in which to ask for another stay to prevent his return to prison. Such a stay would be asked if the case if carried to the U.S.

Small Portions of Glitter Shown in New Accessories

By RHEA STEWART
(Special Herald Writer)

NEW YORK—You don't have to drench yourself in ostrich feathers from hem to chin, or gleam all over in gold in order to dazzle people this fall the way designers have been telling you to. It was accessory morning at the Pierre Hotel where the New York Couture Group has gathered fashion editors from all over the world—there are slant eyes and unusual accents among the crowd.

Fluff in small doses was offered by Emily Wetherby of Orange, Conn., probably the country's leading designer of frou-frou, in a small shoulder cape of flower petals in white organza interspersed with fronds of ostrich plumes, all worked as carefully as fur. A bit of glitter was there in her triangular stole edged with a deep ruffle, in gold lame. A jacket in black and gold matelasse, slightly fitted in the front, had a ruffled collar.

"I was in Milan for exactly three hours, and I rushed over to Falconetto and ordered this wonderful velvet," she said, bringing out a new kind of coat, cut with flare through the back, a bow at the back of its ring collar, and a shallow yoke in front, in a gleam of bright flowers in black. The little capes worn by cyclists in Salzburg inspired a curved cape fastening in front, of beige camel's hair edged in white wool fringe.

Another way to go glittering is to carry your "mad money" in a foldover of black and gold lame, or black velvet edged with jet. Edger Kress showed

This cape, designed by Emily Wetherby of Orange, is completely covered in white silk organza petals, interlaced with ostrich feathers, worked out as carefully as a fur piece. In hand, the model carries a compact clutch of imported French brocade.

Court Action Barring Pickets Is Continued

LITCHFIELD (AP)—A continuance to Friday, July 23, was granted today in the Court of Common Pleas hearing on a request for an injunction against mass picketing in the strike at the Electric Boat Division of General Dynamics Corp. in Groton.

Shad No Hazard

MIDDLETOWN (AP) — A health director says there is no immediate danger from hundreds of dead shad floating onto shore from the Connecticut River.

The dead shad, most of them from seven to eight inches long, were first spotted Tuesday.

The physician said he expected the ebbing tides would carry off many of the fish and the situation would clear soon.

No Bikinis

NEW LONDON (AP)—It appears now that mothers won't picket Mohegan Avenue in itsy, bitsy bikinis in a dramatic effort to stop speeders after all.

Mrs. Marshall J. Cohen, a leader in the safety drive, says her purely facitious remark was misconstrued" Tuesday.

But she's delighted, she says, with the results. Both state and local police have moved into action to slow down the rate of speed.

As for the bikinis, Mrs. Cohen says she "wouldn't own a bikini, and, in addition, my husband wouldn't permit me to wear one."

Increase in Viet Nam Forces Expected After New Survey

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara said today new U.S. troop increases in South Viet Nam would make it necessary to consider calling up military reserves, extending tours of duty and enlarging draft calls.

McNamara, Ambassador-designate Henry Cabot Lodge, and Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, are to leave for Saigon tonight on a week-long survey which is generally expected to result in a decision to make substantial increases in the U.S. forces in Viet Nam.

At a forenoon news conference, McNamara said:

"The Viet Cong are continuing to increase in South Viet Nam. They have forces in the country they have not yet assigned to combat.

"We can expect further increases in Viet Cong operations."

President Johnson had disclosed that calling reserves to active duty and enlarging draft quotas were under consideration but said no decisions would be made pending the return of the McNamara survey group.

"We will do whatever is necessary," Johnson told a news conference.

He also forecast that "new and serious decisions" will have to be made.

McNamara said the purpose of the trip to Viet Nam is to review U.S. force levels, the number of American troops to be assigned there under present plans, and the level of equipment and supplies for waging the anti-Communist war.

"If forces are increased in strength," McNamara said in response to a question, "it will be necessary to consider calling up reserves, and extending tours (of men now in military service) and increasing the draft calls."

McNamara disclosed that the United States is considering a 60 per cent increase in the number of helicopter companies in the Army. Helicopters have been increasingly used in Viet Nam to give U.S. and South Vietnamese forces mobility. He also said that stocks of modern high explosive bombs — nonnuclear bombs — are 500 per cent higher now than in 1961 and will be 1,000 per cent higher by the end of 1966.

McNamara was asked what method the Johnson administration uses in determining force increases in Viet Nam — whether by long-range planning or by periodic discovery of greater need.

He said that both methods are used, declaring: "The situation changes and we change our plans. Changes in the situation are beyond our control. We cannot predict the future actions of North Viet Nam."

McNamara did not give any figures on U.S. forces, which are known to have reached a level of about 75,000 now and are expected to go well over 100 000. He did, however, say that the Viet Cong forces — including reinforcements from North Viet Nam — total 65,000 regular guerrillas and up to 100,000 irregular guerrillas.

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. fighter-bombers made their deepest penetration of North Viet Nam today by attacking two trucks 37 miles north-northeast of Dien Bien Phu, a U.S. spokesman announced. The point appeared to be about an equal distance south of Red China's frontier.

The spokesman said four U.S. Air Force F105 Thunderchiefs heavily damaged the two trucks during a reconnaissance mission. The raid was one of a series staged by more than 70 U.S. and South Vietnamese planes, largely against barracks, staging areas and military depots.

Referring to the attack on the trucks, the spokesman said:

"The planes hit the target at a point farther north of Hanoi than any target previously hit by U.S. aircraft."

South of the border, a round of mortar fire from a U.S. Marine position that fell short of its target accidentally killed two U.S Marines and wounded nine at a bunker in the village of Le My, 12 miles northwest of Da Nang. A spokesman said two of the wounded were hospitalized in critical condition. He told newsmen the mortar crew had fired 30 other rounds on target.

Ground and air action raged in the area of Da Nang, the air base center 380 miles northeast of Saigon. More than 150 planes attacked a suspected Viet Cong headquarters. Red guerrillas overran a government outpost, killing 26 defenders.

Between 150 and 200 U.S. and Vietnamese planes blasted a 1.5-square-mile area 40 miles south of Da Nang for three hours in one of the heaviest air assaults in central Viet Nam in months, a U.S. Air Force spokesman said. The pilots said they could not estimate the damage because 90 per cent of the area was dense jungle.

Twenty-five miles southwest of Da Nang, a guerrilla force of unknown strength overran a government outpost at An Hoa, in Quang Nam Province, killing 26 in the garrison and wounding one.

First Religious Theme On Christmas Stamps

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Christmas postage stamps you'll be licking in about another five months will show the archangel Gabriel blowing his horn.

For the first time in the four-year history of Christmas stamps, a religious theme will be prominent.

The decision to depict Gabriel sounding his trumpet follows the best legal advice Postmaster General John A. Gronouski could find on whether such a stamp would be constitutional.

Last year, Rep. Melvin R. Laird, R-Wis., complained that the Post Office Department would do well to use a religious scene on its Christmas stamps. He contended that nobody would consider that such a design would violate the First Amendment's stipulation on separation of church and state.

The department replied tartly that apparently other Americans didn't agree with his call for a religious theme, since more than a billion Christmas stamps were being sold.

But then, it was learned, Gronouski, genuinely concerned over the constitutional question — began to seek a way out of the dilemma without overemphasizing the religious aspect of Christmas.

The result of his deliberations with government lawyers and Bureau of Engraving and Printing artists will be a red-green-and-yellow five-cent postage stamp depicting a weather vane manufactured in 1840 by a Boston firm and later captured in watercolor by Boston artist Lucille Gloria Chabot. The 1939 painting is now in the National Gallery of Art here. The design for the stamp was announced today.

SYMPATHETIC EXPERT ACTS AS PEACEMAKER

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

When an opponent pounces on his partner, the best procedure is to make peace between them. There's no harm, of course, in giving a little ammunition to the opponent who seems to be getting the worst of it.

Opening lead — Jack of Diamonds.

If you think that Lew Mathe overbid the South hand, practically everybody will agree with you. It's hard to find fault with him, however, because he has the annoying habit of making his impossible contracts.

Mathe ruffed the opening diamond, cashed the ace of clubs and ruffed a club in dummy. He ruffed a second diamond in his hand, a second club in dummy and a third diamond in his hand. Then he led the fourth round of clubs.

After deep thought West discarded his last diamond. Mathe ruffed the club in dummy and returned the king of diamonds. East put up the ace, and declarer carefully discarded a spade.

Defensive Slip

East shifted to a trump, but it was too late. Mathe took the ace of trumps, led a spade to the ace and ruffed a spade to win his tenth trick.

"You gave him the hand by leading the last diamond," West complained, "Just lead a trump, and he never sees daylight."

As East was getting ready to apologize, Mathe innocently asked West: "What would happen if you ruffed the fourth club with the king of hearts and returned a trump?"

It was East's turn to pounce on his partner, since this simple defense would have defeated the contract. Mathe said he was sorry he had brought it up since the opponents squabbled for fifteen minutes before he could make peace between them. It's a bad year for peacemakers.

Daily Question

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player bids two hearts. You hold: Spades, A-10-7-6-4; Hearts, 8-3-2; Diamonds, K-7-6-2; Clubs 7.

What do you say?

Answer: Bid two spades. You would bid four spades if the overcall had been two clubs, but you should not jump to game with three small cards in the suit bid by an opponent. If partner has good distribution, he will bid again and you can then accept an invitation to game.

Buying Survey To Be Conducted

Families in this area will be asked their intentions to purchase homes, cars, major household appliances as part of the U. S. Bureau of the Census July Current Population Survey. These questions will be asked in addition to regular inquiries on employment and unemployment asked by the Bureau each month for the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the U. S. Department of Labor.

The information will be collected during the week of July 19 from selected households in this area.

Convention Meets Again Scheduled for July 28

HARTFORD (AP) — Delegates to the state constitutional convention, sporting special auto license plates, will return to the State Capitol July 28 for their third session.

The delegates met Tuesday in the Hall of the House of Representatives for 18 minutes to mop up some housekeeping details. "We are ready to do business," said convention chairman Raymond E. Baldwin of Glastonbury afterward.

Baldwin told the delegates to ready their proposals for changing the state constitution. He reminded them the deadline for filing resolutions is July 29.

In addition to the session scheduled for July 28 at noon, another is planned for July 29. Then the convention sessions are expected to be suspended for most of August.

During August, committees composed of delegates will hold public hearings throughout the state on changes proposed in the resolutions.

Three assistant floor leaders were named for each party and co-chairmen, one from each party, were named for the three standing committees. Every delegate was assigned to a committee.

The delegates received their special license plates, mostly white with blue trim, identifying them as delegates.

The convention's main business is to rework the constitution to provide for reapportionment of the General Assembly. But other resolutions submitted by the delegates will range far afield.

Fifteen resolutions were on file in the clerk's office Tuesday.

Newman M. Marsilius Jr., R-Trumbull, said he planned to submit a sizable number of resolutions. One would call for a one-chamber General Assembly.

Other Marsilius resolutions would:

Permit alumni of the University of Connecticut to elect half of the members of the university's board of trustees.

Reduce the number of elective state offices from six to three—governor, lieutenant governor and secretary of state.

Strengthen the office of governor by allowing him to reorganize the executive branch, subject to veto by the legislature.

The 15 resolutions on file with the clerk come from three delegates, Arline W. Ryan, R-New Branford, Penn T. Kimball, D-Westport, and Lawrence J. DeNardis, R-Hamden.

DeNardis and Mrs Ryan proposed four-year terms for state senators and annual sessions of the legislature. One of Kimball's proposals is to allow the governor to reduce the amount of an appropriation in the budget. At present, he must let the appropriation stand or delete it entirely.

Meade Alcorn of Suffield, the Republican floor leader, said appointments to various patronage jobs in connection with the convention have been held up until the state attorney general rules on whether state legislators can legally hold the jobs.

The Republicans are considering Sen. Ralph Shulansky of West Hartford for their counsel and George Saden of Bridgeport for director of party research.

The Democrats already have appointed former Atty. Gen. Albert L. Coles as party counsel and have in mind for research director State Rep. John A. Carrozzella of Wallingford.

Alcorn said his party will not move on the patronage jobs until the attorney general makes a ruling. "I think as soon as it's ruled on we ought to be able to fill all the patronage jobs, at least the important ones," he said.

Committee co-chairmen: Constitutional Resolutions Committee—John D. Alsop, R-Avon, and Mrs. Chase Going Woodhouse, D-Sprague; Reapportionment Committee — Charles M. McCollam Jr., D-Bethel, and J. Tyler Patterson, Jr., R Old Lyme; Rules Committee—Henry D. Altobello, D-Meriden, and Nicholas B. Eddy, R-New Hartford.

Assistant floor leaders: Republicans—John D. Lodge, of Westport, Louis J. Padula of Norwalk and Edwin H. May Jr., of Wethersfield, Democrats—James J. Kennelly of Hartford, John R. Keilty, of Stamford, Antonio P. Mazza of Greenwich.

Committee appointments include: Paul Groobert of Manchester and Douglas Fellows of Hebron to the constitutional resolutions committee.

Real Auto Toll Rises

LANSING, Mich. —A safety conference here was told that highway fatalities per hundred million miles increased from 5.2 in 1961 to 5.7 last year.

Bond Passed For Rt. 6, Wilbur Cross

The relocation of Rt. 6 and the widening of the Wilbur Cross Highway were carried a step further yesterday when the State Bond Commission authorized two bonds amounting to $17.5 million for the acquisition of rights-of-way and preliminary engineering fees.

The Rt. 6 bond is $4 million and covers construction from East Hartford to Bolton.

The highway widening bond is $13.5 million from East Hartford to Vernon.

These two authorizations were a part of a total $60 million bonding package cleared by the commission yesterday.

The bond program was passed by the General Assembly this session. This program is, in turn, part of a six-year, $510 million highway construction project.

Other highways involved are Rt. 2 from Marlborough to Colchester, Rt. 2 from Colchester to Bozrah; Rt. 6 from Columbia to Windham, Rt. 72 in New Britain, Rt. 6A from Meriden to Southington, and Rt. 82 in Haddam.

Animals Symbolize Peaceable Kingdom

NEW YORK (AP) — The deer nibbled at the goat's ear. The kangaroo nuzzled noses with the donkey. The llama looked bored. Jewish and Christian clergymen recited psalms and prayed.

It was an odd assemblage, and also ecumenical ecclesiastic and zoological.

It was held at the World's Fair Tuesday to show — as a possible lesson to man — how amiably animals could live together in a "peaceable kingdom."

O Lord, open, we beseech Thee, our eyes to behold Thy gracious hand in all Thy works," prayed the Rev. Robert Seekins Jr., rector of Trinity Protestant Episcopal church in Troy, N.Y.

The assorted creatures — the dogs, a baby lamb, cats, a tiny pony, fish, a blinking scarlet macaw — along with the Scripture verses and blessings, made a curious pastoral scene in a furnished lounge.

"The theme expressed here is peace," said Cleveland Amory, chronicler of high society life and assembler and director of the animal kingdom exhibit at the fair.

"If animals of high individuality and which normally fight can live together happily, then the idea might spread to people, and maybe there would be hope for athem, too," Amory said.

The mood among the beasts there was harmonious and tranquil, until the Shetland pony began kicking the wall behind the sofa and the bull calf tried to leap over the coffee table.

Father Ambrose Agius, a Washington, D.C., Roman Catholic and vice president of the National Catholic Society for Animal Welfare, prayed:

"O God, by whose providence these and all animals are lent to us for companionship and cooperation, grant us always gratefully to acknowledge in them Thy power and goodness, and to reproduce towards them Thy own fatherly care."

From a small vial, he sprinkled holy water across the herd, while Morgan, the basset hound, slept, and Sir Llancelot, the llama, sniffed disdainfully at Dana, the deer.

Rabbi David Goldberg, of the American Council of Judaism in New York, said a time will come, according to the prophecy of Isaiah, when "the wolf shall dwell with the lamb and the leopard with the kid; when the cow and the bear shall feed together and a little child shall lead them... when they shall not hurt nor destroy."

Pierre, the macaw perched on a curtain rod, stretched and flexed his wings. Lula Belle, the white terrier, let off a few barks, and Guinevere, the shaggy English sheep dog, yawned and licked a Persian cat's back.

Until the prophesied time comes, said Rabbi Goldberg, "man has to learn to comport himself with his animals as to hasten the millennium of the 'latter days'."

Father Agius stroked the head of a Great Dane, and said, smiling, "I love them. They seem to understand me."

CAR BAGS BOBCAT

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — W. G. Gerrard and his family were driving along south of Miami at night recently when something dashed out of the shadows and crashed into the car. Back along the road, Gerrard found a 30-pound female bobcat with a broken neck. "A beautiful animal," he said. "All of five feet long."

Tolland

Wanat Seeks Top Position

Eugene Wanat, former first selectman, has announced that he will seek the position of first selectman at Saturday night's Democratic Caucus to be held at 8 in the Hicks Memorial School gym.

Wanat stated that he has maintained an active interest in government during the past thirty years.

He stated "This year, our town clerk and tax collector have expressed their desire and intent to retire. A transition of these offices may cause considerable confusion and extra expense if inexperienced or incapable persons should be nominated and elected to all offices.

"I, therefore, submit my name as a candidate for the nomination of first selectman, as I can offer experience, knowledge and business ability and guide others as well."

Vandalism Reported

Resident State Trooper Harry Tomasek reported that vandals poured sand in the gas tanks of a bulldozer and dump truck owned by the N & R Construction Co. of Woodstock, sometime Sunday night.

Tomasek said that this was the first act of vandalism of this nature in town this summer.

Sport News

The Mens Softball League schedule for the balance of the week is: Tonight, Hayden and Mason vs. Grous and Christensen; tomorrow, and Friday, Bouchard Foundation vs. Rockville Welding. Country Hills played Loehr Realty Monday night and Rockville Welding played North American Printed Circuits last night.

The Tolland Boys League schedule tonight Pirates vs. Indians; tomorrow Yankees vs. Cards; last nights game was between the Braves and the Reds.

Tolland's Babe Ruth League team will play the Willington team tomorrow night.

Several errors appeared in the Babe Ruth League schedule. The games are played on Monday and Thursday nights not on Wednesday and Saturday as shown on the schedules.

Stocks in Brief

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market picked up some strength early this afternoon but trading remained dull.

Stocks were mixed at the start and gradually moved higher on balance, although there was nothing much in the way of group leadership.

Concern over the U.S. role in Viet Nam caused considerable caution. But caution over Viet Nam has continued for some time and there was nothing drastic to cause a selloff.

Airlines recovered from losses taken Tuesday. The trend was a little higher among chemicals, office equipments, electronics, steels and aerospace issues.

Oils were lower and utilities were down a bit.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .3 at 328.8 with industrials up .8, rails up .4 and utilities off .4.

TRACTORS TOP 130,000

MADRID — The number of tractors in operation in Spain exceeds 130,000.

Silo or Elevator?

Residents Attack Plan For Grain Storage Bin

About 50 residents of the Woodbridge St. area are petitioning the town to investigate the proposed construction of a 130-foot grain storage bin by the Central Connecticut Co-operative Farmer's Association.

The petitioners claim the addition to the association's plant on 10 Apel Place, across the street and railroad tracks from Woodbridge St., will "add to the nuisance and decrease the value of our property."

The nuisance referred to is, according to the petition, "houses covered with grain dust," "air pollution," "noises and odors from the mechanisms," and a "pigeon problem."

The association has already filed an application for a building permit to construct a silo costing $60,000 and designed by the firm of Borton, Inc., of Hutchinson, Kansas. The permit has not been approved yet.

One of the major arguments of the petitioners is that this is not a silo but a grain elevator and as such would be in violation of the zoning regulations, which set a 40-foot height limit for industrial zones.

However, according to zoning regulations, a silo is an exception to this height rule. There are apparently no height limitations for a silo.

The responsibility for issuing the building permit lies with the town building inspector Thomas Monahan.

As a consequence of this petition it is likely he will have to seek an opinion from the town counsel as to whether this proposed structure is a silo or a grain elevator.

From that point three alternatives may arise.

1. If the town counsel decides it is a silo a building permit is issued, the petitioners may request an injunction halting issuance of the building permit pending a court decision.

2. If the town counsel decides it is a grain elevator, the association may request a variance from the height regulations on the grounds that three of their already existing storage bins are 70 feet high.

3. If the decision is with the association but they cannot build because of the injunction issued at the request of the petitioners, the association could in turn request a court order forcing the town to issue the permit.

A second argument of the petitioners involves a second claimed violation of the zoning regulations. Section Nine says that buildings may be erected in industrial zones except if they are detrimental to the neighborhood by reason of the emmission of dust, odor, noise, wastes, or because of any other objectionable feature.

A woman who lives in the neighborhood says she had to buy an air conditioning unit for her bedroom because of the dust caused by the grain sliding on shutes at the plant.

The particles can be seen floating through the air, she says. Odors and the presence of unusual numbers of pigeons due to the grain are also nuisances, she says.

The petitioners say that the higher addition will carry dust to many more streets and that the extra operating machinery will cause more noise.

The petition was signed by tenants and landowners living on Woodbridge, and N. Elm Sts., Green Rd., and Sherwood Circle.

It was accompanied by a letter signed by A. George Russell of 142 Woodbridge St., and Eugene G. Rall of 16 N. Elm St.

In requesting an investigation, the petitioners say they would be justified in requesting property re-evaluation if the "town does not take some action before allowing a violation to exist."

The petition says that the previous bins were erected "before anyone involved knew what was going on." There are presently eight small bins and three large ones at 10 Apel Place. According to the Planning Department they were erected well after zoning was established.

The petitioners were informed of this new 130 - foot storage bin by a secretary who works in the building department at the Municipal Building.

A spokesman for the building department said today that the town counsel will be asked to decide whether the bin should be built.

Bob Morse Anonymous At Studio

"It happens every time," he said with a shrug. "I keep telling them I'm a star, but they don't remember me the next time I walk through the gate."

"Okay, Buddy," said the guard to Bobby. "Who are you?"

"I'm Bobby Morse, one of the stars of a picture we're making here, 'Oh Dad, Poor Dad, Momma's Hung You in the Closet and I'm Feeling So Bad'."

"If he doesn't remember me, the name of the picture gets to him," explained Bobby.

The trouble is that Bobby, with his pale face and Napoleon haircut, doesn't look like a star.

Yet for two years, the boy from Newton, Mass., packed them in on Broadway as the brash young lead of the musical hit, "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying."

Moviegoers will begin getting accustomed to his face with "The Loved One," based on Evelyn Waugh's satire on undertakers, and "Oh, Dad, etc."

In the latter he plays the son of a domineering mother (Rosalind) Russell) who carts around the body of her dead husband (Jonathan Winters) and keeps Bobby under protective custody in their hotel room — until he is nearly seduced by the young lady upstairs.

"That explains the pallor," said Bobby. "We were on location in Jamaica for eight weeks and I was forbidden to get a suntan."

The real Bobby Morse is more comic than comic actor. He doesn't need a script to be funny. His conversation and mimicry are often funnier than some of the scripts he encounters.

An actor since junior high school plays, Bobby financed serious training in New York as a Schrafft's cookie salesman and a Fuller brush man, and under the GI Bill.

After a small role in the film, "The Proud and the Profane," he did a turn in radio, then landed a feature role in the Broadway comedy, "The Matchmaker." He repeated the role in films eight years ago.

His Broadway career continued upward with the comedy, "Say Darling" and a lead in the musical, "Take Me Along."

Then came "How to Succeed" and stardom.

Film Stars Disagree on Nude Photos

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Nudity, all of a sudden, has become a way of life in Hollywood.

Hardly a movie — or a girlie magazine — comes along without some actress baring all. Stella Stevens, Carroll Baker, Carol Lynley, to name a few. Ursula Andress, since those nude photos by her husband, actor John Derek, is known in the trade as Ursula Undress.

All of which poses the question, does nudity hurt or help a girl's career in showbusiness?

But what about the young girls just starting?

Chris Noel, a willowy green-eyed blond, says she was offered $5,000 to do a nude layout for a girlie magazine. She could use the money but turned it down.

"I think it would ruin my career as an actress. I would forever be labeled as a starlet. Producers would only see me as an actress who takes her clothes off," says Chris.

"Had I posed nude, I couldn't have even got an audition for this movie," she adds.

"It helped my career," says Jo. "I keep getting all kinds of offers now from producers."

After a pause, she added: "And they're all legitimate offers for roles."

Jo, at first, was against posing in the nude. Finally, her boy friend talked her into it.

"I was working in all the beach and surfing movies. So he said: What have I got to lose?'

"Since I've posed, I've had all kinds of publicity. American-International immediately sent me on a tour of the country to plug 'How to Stuff a Wild Bikini.'

"Every radio and television interviewer knew all about me from Playboy.

"They all were very interested in me."

A Compact With St. Swithin

These are the kind of times in which new religions are created, or new and reckless bargains made with the old devil.

For the farmer, or small gardener, who sees his stand of beautiful green corn beginning to shrivel and turn yellow, any itinerant rainmaker could easily attain the status of a welcome reincarnation of some pagan god.

What lady gardener, perhaps on her knees in dust, would not sell at least a small portion of her soul to any leprechaun who, hiding in a rosebush, should swear ability to make it rain?

How can any of the people who have put some kind of bet on a normal summer — a new seeding of a patch of lawn, a new shrub planted, a new shrubbery started—refrain from a desperation wish that some kind of supernaturalous bargain could be offered them, by which those same sums could be restored to the weather?

At such a time, it is relatively an easy matter, then, to pledge credence and loyalty to good St. Swithin, the one time Bishop of Winchester, who had such a fine idea of the value of rain he wished to be buried out where every mile that came could fall on him.

If one believes in St. Swithin, which we are all, at the moment, quite willing to do, our present drought can be broken. All we need to do it to get it to rain tomorrow, which is St. Swithin's Day, and then, according to the barometers of the ancients, it will rain for the next 40 days as well.

There has never been a year before in which any of us poor children of earth would have been willing to enter into such a bargain without any reservation whatsoever. We would always have some doubt whether we really needed as much as 40 days of rain, or whether we could stand that much.

But now there can be no doubt or hesitation. Forty days of rain is precisely what we need, not a drop or day less. If we can get it, we will take it.

Russian Press Stimulated

The highest compliment yet paid to United States Information Agency broadcasts has now come from Russia, and it is precisely the kind of compliment and dividend we would have hoped for.

It is an official Russian directive to the official Russian press to be sure and print the important news of the world before the Russian people hear all about it from our broadcasts.

There is some domestic irony for us, that this triumph for the Voice of America effort should come at this particular moment. For what has been heard in this country about the Voice of America lately is that it has recently been forced to lower its standards of objectivity in order to make a more pleasing impression on President Johnson. Mr. Johnson has his strong ideas of what should be printed and said in the American press and the American air, so he could hardly be expected to keep his hands off a performance in the news field which is run by his own government itself. The result has been a feeling, among some observers, that the Voice of America was beginning to lose some of the respect it had built up, abroad, and beginning to make its propaganda too obvious for it to be effective.

In any case, although the Russian directive to the Russian press urges it to get the true news about world events to its readers before the "falsifications of bourgeois propaganda" reach them, one can hope that the competition in information has indeed led to the best of all possible returns—the development of a freer and more responsible press inside Russia itself.

Let us hope that the beginning of any kind of fuller news reporting inside Russia, whatever the motivation for it, is not going to be paralleled, whatever the motivation in the Johnson administration, by any era of shutdowns on legitimate news in this country. There have been too many indications, lately, that Mr. Johnson would very much like to write, select, and edit his own news. An old nightmare concerning the evolutions of the Russian and the American ways of life keeps reviving its alarm and fright. It is the nightmare which has Russia, in its evolution, and the United States, in its, passing each other, Russia on its way toward a fuller imitation of us, and the United States on its way to imitation of some of the things—like denial of some elemental freedoms—it once considered so horrible in Russia.

The President And The Presidency

How then, does the President go about his day? How does he live out each hour, facing the problems that never go away?

The President, thank the Good Lord, has extra glands. I am persuaded, that give him energy that ordinary men simply don't have. He goes to bed late, and rises early, and the world is here never heard him say are: "I'm tired."

Each night when finally he leaves his office to walk the 100 yards from the oval Presidential Office in the West Wing to the Mansion's second floor living quarters, he finds on his bed what we in the White House call, with simple disguise, the night reading. In stacks of brown envelopes are heavy buckets of material—reports from State and Defense, latest intelligence reports, cables from Ambassadors, memoranda from various Cabinet Officers and White House staff members, budget data, project reports from task forces working on various problems, magazine articles, newspaper clippings, personnel recommendations as well as a selected sample of the day's mail. In a week's time the President will have read the equivalent of a 700,000 word novel. This is in addition to the reading he does in the quiet of his own office. The reading a President must do is an avalanche, a never-ending river of words that pour across the Presidential dikes with the floodgates open.

On practically every piece the President will scribble his comments. A "Yes" or a "No" or an admonition, a suggestion for another task, a request for more information on the improvement or an order to move out swiftly.

The Director of the Budget once told me he was astonished at the President's grasp of the most complex details and how quickly decisions were made. The President is impatient with stalling, hesitation, or any kind of shuffling in front of the decision door. He wants that door opened, and activity to move through.

He may read for 2 to 3 hours in the late evening and when at last he turns off the light above his pillow, he falls to sleep easily.

It is true that in his mind is an alarm clock that silently nudges him about 4 in the morning whenever there is air action in Vietnam. In the darkness he turns and lifts the phone to call the Situation Room deep in the basement of the White House. He gets the latest information about the strike, casualties, if any, received the information quickly, and then hopefully goes back to sleep. No man can really tell with certainty if sleep comes easily then. He's never discussed that with me, and I have never asked. Once an admirer wrote a passage about the great lady of Greek letters, Edith Hamilton, and it applies so accurately to Lyndon Johnson it is worth repeating now: "She feels, like a personal experience, the giant agony of the world; there are not many in this aristocracy of humanity." It may or may not seem strange to you, but to the President one pilot's life lost in Vietnam troubles him greatly. He is visibly saddened.

I remember so well one morning when I walked into his bedroom about 8:30 in the morning. He was propped up as usual with pillows against his back, working on the papers and reading. When I entered, he looked up, smiled hugely, and with great jubilance, said: "They found him—isn't that wonderful news?" I learned that during the night the President was informed that two U.S. pilots were shot down and one had parachuted to safety. Just before I saw the President, he had been told that the second man was safely back in U.S. hands. This one boy's life, spared to go back was precious to the President of the United States, and he wanted to share that joy with everyone he saw.

After about 3 hours work in bed, finishing up the night reading, the President exercises in his room, shaves and showers and is in his office about 10 a.m., ready for the day's appointments.

For some last year, the workday focuses on problems beyond the rim of our shore. If you were to take an index from 1 to 100, you would score about 75 or 80 on the index for foreign problems. Contrary to the public notion, the President spends a small chunk of his time on the so-called domestic issue.

Secretary Rusk, Secretary McNamara, McGeorge Bundy, Admiral Raborn, of the CIA, Secretaries Manly Ball, Bundy, and Vance members of the National Security Council, members of the White House staff, and, of course, the Vice President, are consulted and talked to both by phone and in meetings.

Contrary again to popular notion, the President is not fond of those who continually say "yes" to him. He thrives on new ideas, new initiatives, innovations, fresh thinking. If a man consistently agrees and offers no new counter arguments, that man is not asked for advice. The President believes, that unless a man is thinking he is valueless, and therefore, is of no benefit to the President. But the thinking man can expect the President to assault him with questions—terse, printed, homing in on the nerve-edges of the issue.

In a top-secret meeting of advisers of the Security Council, the President's method of leadership is clearly, cleanly visible. He sits back, head against the thick padded top of the black swivel chair, in the middle of the octagon shaped table in the Cabinet Room. He calls in each adviser, asks them for their opinion. Sometimes the discussion is spirited, the President listening quietly, turning his head to look at the man talking. He is unperturbed, relaxed. He is not a doodler, preferring to watch the full face of the speaker, absorbing both the words, and the demeanor.

Busy Biographers

NEW YORK, July 14—In a house at Hyannis, Mass., each morning, Theodore Sorensen sits down with a yellow legal pad and starts writing his way, in slow, painstaking longhand, toward his daily quota of 2,000 words on a book about the President he worked for, John F. Kennedy. At the same time, Arthur Schlesinger sits in a house in the Georgetown section of Washington and works on his book at a quicker rate, using a typewriter. In the morning, while these two are writing, Pierre Salinger gets out of bed in Los Angeles at the 6:30 a.m. his time. He sits at a typewriter for three hours, producing his Kennedy book at a daily pace of 3,000 words. Then he leaves for his office. And at night, in Arlington, Va., Larry O'Brien, after a day in the White House, and Ken O'Donnell sit and recall the Kennedys they knew from Boston in 1946 to Dallas in 1963.

All of the copy comes to Manhattan publishing houses, except for that of Salinger and O'Donnell, who are under contract to Little, Brown in Boston. All of it is expected to be the first serious, highly knowledgeable writing about the Kennedy and his Administration. And all of it is expected to sell, spectacularly and steadily, for the next year and a half. The major industry in New York City this summer is handing words about John F. Kennedy.

"The market appears to be insatiable," a publishing executive man was saying yesterday. "Aside from books by Kennedy staffers, there are two others ready to come out soon, and they'll all sell. You can look for as many as three Kennedy books to be on the best seller list at the same time. There is no event in history, not even World War II, which has produced such a concentrated flood of books, and readers waiting for them."

The hope is that all of these efforts will produce some informative writing that is in English and will, as that somebody can get something out of the books in the future. If the three literate years of John Kennedy are turned over to the writing of historians, it will be a tragedy. For there are, a top Manhattan literary agent noted yesterday, only about six known academic people in the whole country who can write.

The writing in grammar school and high school textbooks is absolutely terrible," the agent said. "College textbooks are not much better. The minute a good textbook shows up, the writer immediately jumps into the trade field. This country has developed an academic community of learned illiterates. The people who have the knowledge to communicate never have taken the trouble to learn how to communicate. The colleges have this 'publish or perish' policy for their faculties. As far as I'm concerned, our scholars should do the nation a favor and accept the alternative."

The first of this Kennedy copy to appear is in Life this week. It is the first article of a condemnation of Arthur Schlesinger's version of Kennedy's 1000 days in the White House. Schlesinger is a historian who has done much writing. When Schlesinger gets away from all these schoolyard adjectives, the Life article is almost breezy.

Sorensen's book, which will start in Look at the end of the month, finished second in what became a race with Schlesinger. But the Book of the Month Club, which is picking up both books, chose Sorensen's first. Sorensen's work is less chatty and more serious than Schlesinger's. He said yesterday that he hadn't seen Schlesinger's piece in Life yet. People handling Sorensen's book say that they feel the book he is doing is one Kennedy would have written, himself.

The writing for O'Brien and O'Donnell is being done by Sander Vanocur, an NBC newsman, "We'll have it out in the fall," Larry O'Brien said in the White House yesterday. "I think it should represent the most authoritative look at the permanent changes Jack Kennedy brought about. We start in

Baubles and Bubbles

A certain woman who had received an inheritance found among the household articles that came into her possession a collection of what seemed to be costly and precious stones. She could hardly wait until she could take them to a master jeweler for appraisal. She found to her surprise that the gems most valuable were those which seemed insignificant to her untrained glance, and that the large flashy stones were really of little value.

"All is not gold that glitters" is a saying we can take to mind. It is a good thing for us to take an inventory of our values at frequent intervals. To lay before God our collection of ambitions, hopes and dreams which we keep locked in our hearts and minds. It is good for us to let the Master Appraiser tell us their true worth, that we might know which ones are worth our time and effort. In the light of His Plan and Purpose, we can then evaluate more wisely our own plans and purposes. The baubles of this world are mere trifles in the Treasury of Lasting Values. The bubbles of imaginary conquests are broken dreams when seen for what they really are. In the light of God's Appraisal, we find the possibility of a new outlook.

Inside Report

Rowland Evans Jr. and Robert D. Novak

WASHINGTON—Some time near the end of this month, Sen. Thomas Kuchel finally will make an official delayed trip back to California that could determine for years to come the fate of the Republican party in the nation's largest state.

On the basis of what he sees and hears in private conversations in California, liberal Republican Kuchel at long last will decide whether to seek the nomination for Governor next year against Hollywood actor Ronald Reagan—heir to Barry Goldwater as messiah of the Republican right.

Although he privately told friends last spring he would announce his decision in June, Kuchel now tells them he will say nothing before the end of August. But those who know Kuchel best yesterday in Congress than ever to forsaking the comfortable prestige of a senior Senator (and Republican Whip) and plunging into the ordeal of a confrontation with Reagan.

The main reason: After much skepticism, Kuchel finally admits he probably is the only Republican who can beat Reagan. Moreover, he has come to recognize that Reagan as nominee could go on to beat two-term Democratic Gov. Edmund (Pat) Brown. In fact, one poll shows Brown so weak that any candidate Reagan and Kuchel could defeat him today.

Kuchel sees Reagan's election or nomination as the ultimate victory for the right wing in the eight-year-old ideological fight inside California's Republican party. Indeed, it would be a major conservative triumph nationally—one reason why several liberal-leaning Republican state Governors are discreetly pleading with Kuchel to oppose Reagan.

Because of his delay, Kuchel's supporters back in California have new hops. If he had announced his decision in June as scheduled, the answer surely would have been "no." Yet, the delay also has provided tangible assets to Reagan.

As we reported in May, the top California political manager and finance chairman of Spencer-Roberts & Associates wanted to handle the Kuchel-for-Governor campaign, but gave up waiting and accepted a lucrative contract with Reagan. Now, while Kuchel writhes in indecision, political technicians Stu Spencer and Bill Roberts are reportedly tooling Reagan.

"The speech," Reagan's articulate exposition of Goldwaterite philosophy, has been quietly internal. Reagan first delivered "the speech" over television during the Goldwater campaign with much conservative acclaim and has repeated it in slightly varied form on the Republican banquet circuit. But it shall be heard no more.

Currently, Reagan has been withdrawn from public view while he hones up on state problems.

Reagan is completely cooperative. To show how serious he is, he has announced his aversion to flying and plans to campaign by air in California beginning this fall (aboard a plane loaned by Walt Disney).

Moreover, during these past months of Reagan activity, Kuchel was swallowed up in the humdrum politics of the Senate (declining frenzied pleas from supporters to spend more time in California). While polls early this year gave Kuchel a healthy edge over Reagan among Republicans, the most recent sampling shows Reagan in front.

Kuchel's long delay gives still another asset to Reagan: as long as Kuchel is still a possibility, no third candidate can prosper.

Partly for this reason, former Mayor George Christopher of San Francisco has not gotten off the ground as an announced candidate. Although Congressman Alphonzo Bell is testing out feelers for the Governor's race and would be totally acceptable to Reagan, no statewide build-up could be successful until Kuchel eliminates himself. By then, it might be too late.

But Kuchel's delay is not the usual brand of political procrastination. He always has known he would rather stay in the Senate than go to Sacramento. What he has not yet decided is whether he is willing to make such a sacrifice to prevent what he sees as political catastrophe. On his coming trip home, he must find his answer.

To the Editor:

This letter is mainly in regard to the article in the Herald on Wed. July 7, concerning the curfew and anti-loitering act. In the first place there is always a police officer of some kind there to keep charge of the parking lot. Rarely do the town police have to say anything to the teenagers around there. (One exception was Thurs. night when a Manchester policeman made a comment and found $1,330 in cash and checks.

Police traced the money to the Corey Creek Country Club. Jack Marsh, club secretary treasurer, confirmed that the money fell from his car while he was on his way to a bank. He said it was all there, and gave Mrs. Vendur a substantial reward.

Arthur and Ted may be finished before me, but I'll be the first one at the bookstore to buy copies. I intend to use them, of course, as research."

Fifty years or so from now, when they start doing the history of Kennedy's time, the schoolboy who should be suspended for 20 days every time they touch a typewriter, might give readers a break and do some outright plagiarizing.

Today is Wednesday, July 14, the 195th day of 1965. There are 170 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History

On this date in 1850, Commodore Matthew Perry presented a letter from President Millard Fillmore to the emperor of Japan after a ceremonial parade in Tokyo of 500 U.S. Navy bluejackets and officers. The opening of trade with the land the next year was assured.

On This Date

In 1789, a French mob stormed and captured The Bastille, marking the start of the French Revolution.

In 1853, the first international exposition in America was opened in New York City's Crystal Place.

In 1918, the son of former President Theodore Roosevelt, Lieutenant Quentin Roosevelt, was killed in aerial combat. He was buried with military honors by the Germans.

Board to Meet On Pioneer Road

The board of directors will hold a special meeting tonight at 8 to accept the deed to land on which will be built Hale Rd. — a 2,000 foot road leading into the site Pioneer Parachute Co. has chosen for its Manchester plant.

The deed will cover only the 2,000 feet of the road leading in from McNall St. The remaining 1,000 feet will be over land owned by John Barsini, the developer of the industrial park.

Teething, Marks Linked

CHICAGO — Teething has been found related to performance in school among boys and girls whose replacement of baby teeth with permanent ones was ahead of schedule do well in class. By contrast, those whose second teeth were slow in coming tend to do badly.

LUCKY DISCOVERY

Finally Reach Minimum

Congress Raising Restaurant Wages

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress, which first passed a federal minimum wage law in 1938, is now getting around to giving its restaurant employes the current minimum — $1.25 an hour.

The Senate is taking the step through the committee process. The House is moving faster. Speaker John W. McCormack has passed the word. There are 410 waiters, servers, bus boys and the like employed in the restaurants, cafeterias and snack bars on the two sides of the Capitol and the adjacent office buildings. Of these, 200 are paid less than the federal minimum, with hourly salaries from $1.01 to $1.24.

Actually this is entirely legal. Cafeteria employes are not covered by federal minimum wage law. So the action by Congress to look after its own help is entirely voluntary.

The Senate restaurant operated at a $181,000 deficit last year, the House loses about $200,000 a year. For two main reasons, the Capitol's cafeterias customarily operate in the red.

Liquor — a healthy source of income for restaurant operators — is not served. Nor is dinner, the big money making meal. The Capitol's restaurants don't have dinner hours, but they are open for dinner when there is a late session.

A third possible reason is that meals are a bit cheaper than in the better restaurants in town.

The Senate Appropriations Committee last week provided for the wage boost by specifically earmarking an extra $100,000 for it. However, the Senate Rules Committee, which supervises operation of the restaurants on that side of the hill, has the last word.

Said the Appropriations Committee in its report: "Prices in the Senate restaurants should be increased in order to assist in financing these wage increases."

Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., taking up the argument, told the Senate:

"I can well imagine that not all my colleagues, and not all the staff members of the Senate, will be too happy about the recommendations that prices of meals be increased in the Senate, but they can still buy cheap dinner buckets or dinner pails.

"I think it would be wonderful to see them carrying their dinner pails to their Senate offices if they do not want to pay for any increases in the price of meals."

Miracle of Niagara

Florida Boy's Memories Include Nightmarish Ride

EDITOR'S NOTE — Roger Woodward is a typical 12-year-old, a sturdy, athletic youngster with an engaging smile. Untypically, Roger harbors a memory of terror as the only person to survive an unprotected plunge over Niagara Falls.

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — A pin snapped — a little steel pin no bigger than a match — and an afternoon boat ride on a bright summer day became first a nightmare and then a miracle.

That day, five years ago Friday, will forever be impressed in the memories of Roger Woodward, his sister and their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Woodward.

On July 9, 1960, Roger, then 7, became the only person to plunge unprotected over the Horseshoe Cataract of Niagara Falls and live to tell about it.

But Roger and his family seldom tell about it now. They want to forget it.

The Woodwards moved to this central Florida town from Niagara Falls, N.Y., three years ago, partly to escape the publicity.

It began when Roger and his sister, Deanne, 17, were taken for a boat ride by James Honeycutt, 40, their father's foreman at the Niagara power project.

They were well above the falls, where the Niagara River is broad and a powerboat can stay away from the tons of cascading water that drop to a whirlpool 161 feet below.

Then a shear pin snapped.

"I knew something was wrong when the motor began to race," Roger recalls.

Honeycutt began paddling frantically, trying to move the boat toward shore. But the current quickened.

"He told us to put on our life jackets," Roger says. "I remember crying, 'We're going to die.' Then a wave hit and Mr. Honeycutt yelled, 'Hold on!.'"

A second wave flipped the boat and tossed the three into the torrent.

"He (Honeycutt) didn't have time to put his life jacket on," Roger says. "He swam over to me and he grabbed my hand. He said something to me and then I heard him say, 'I'm tired.' That's the last time I saw him."

Honeycutt's body was recovered four days later a quarter-mile below the falls.

Deanne recalls that she clung to the capsized boat for a moment, then was swept away.

"I thought this was it," she said. "Then I saw a hand reaching out and I grabbed it."

The hand belonged to John R. Hayes, a vacationing policeman from Union Township, N.J. He and a companion pulled her to safety.

But there was no hand for Roger.

"I knew when I went over the falls," he says. "I felt like I was hitting rocks every minute. All of a sudden there was a big bump and everything was dark. Then I saw light."

On a small steamer that takes tourists around the base of the balls, Capt. Clifford Keetch, who had seen the drama unfold, watched as the 55-pound boy bobbed to the surface.

He turned the craft around and maneuvered toward the boy.

"I didn't think they saw me," Roger says. "That's when my heart sank. I almost gave up. Then they tossed me a life buoy but I couldn't reach it. I finally caught it on the third throw."

Three other persons have survived a trip over Horseshoe Falls, but all were encased in protective containers.

Medicare-Hospital Links Under Study in Manchester

Manchester Memorial Hospital has been chosen as one of the two hospitals in the country to participate in a special pilot study of the effects Medicare will have on the average community hospital.

Bernard Felton, the hospital's assistant administrator, said that Manchester was chosen because it was research-oriented, because it had participated in federal programs in the past, and because it was an average community hospital.

Johns Hopkins University Hospital in Baltimore, Md., is the other participating hospital.

A representative of the Social Security Administration's main office in Baltimore has been studying hospital files and records here since early this month.

The Medicare bill has passed both the Senate and the House and now awaits only minor adjustments before going to the President for signing into law.

As a law it will be part of the social security system and will provide hospital insurance for persons over 65.

In anticipation of the problems connected with setting up such a vast health insurance program, the Social Security Administration is studying procedures and record keeping operations used by the hospital in adjusting private medical insurance claims.

Of special interest to the social security administrator here is the communications problems that may arise between the hospital and Social Security offices, said Felton.

He said that the hospital will have to maintain close liaison with the Social Security offices in Hartford and Baltimore to insure, for example, that patients do not overextend their coverage.

Keeping hospital and social security records up to date would be similar instance of the cooperation that will be needed between the federal government and the hospital. The communications phase of the study will end by July 31.

More Trucks Likely

NEW YORK — A small rise in truck output is expected this year from the record 1.56 million of 1964. Production of trucks in the lightest weight category — 6,000 pounds gross vehicle weight or less — and in the heaviest category — more than 33,000 pounds — both advanced about 10 per cent over that of a year earlier. Output of trucks in each classification ranging from 14,000 to 33,000 pounds declined.

MUNICH PLANS HIGH CAFE

MUNICH — Munich plans to open in the spring of 1967 a 950-foot TV tower. The mast will include a revolving restaurant at the 600-foot level with seats for 300 and a view of the city and the Alps.

PARIS (AP) — France showed off part of her budding atomic air force today as a highlight of the annual Bastille Day parade.

Thousands jammed the Champs Elysees to see a parade featuring armored strike power and parading units of all France's armed forces.

Tall and erect, he saluted the applauding crowd as he stood in an open car. As usual, he wore his brigadier general's uniform.

Flying in tight and precise formation, 12 Mirage IV bombers, each of which packs a 60-kiloton punch, roared in almost at rooftop level, passing over the reviewing stand where De Gaulle stood.

Lumbering after them were huge Boeing K135 tanker planes, the mother ships for the twin-jet Mirage bombers.

QUITO, Ecuador, (AP) — Tanks and army trucks patrolled Guayaquil, Ecuador's largest city, Tuesday night after more rioting against the ruling military junta. A curfew was imposed.

A 17-year-old girl was reported killed Tuesday in another of the antigovernment demonstrations that have been going on intermittently since Friday in Quito and Guayaquil.

One person was reported killed in Quito Monday night and a number were reported wounded in the capital and in Guayaquil. There was no report of trouble in Quito Tuesday.

Student, labor and political organizations are trying to force the military junta to hold national elections. The four-man junta took over in July 1963, after throwing out President Carlos Arosemena because of his drinking.

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — An American soldier on guard duty mistook a South Korean army private for a Communist infiltrator before dawn today and killed him, the U.S. Army announced.

The two men were on guard duty together along the demilitarized zone about 20 miles northwest of Seoul. The Army said the Korean apparently strayed away from the guard post and was shot as he was making his way back.

The army withheld the names of both soldiers.

LONDON (AP) — The bill to abolish hanging as the penalty for murder went to the House of Lords today after final approval in the House of Commons by a vote of 200-98.

The Commons approval was so convincing that most legislators thought the Lords would approve it also. In the past the upper house has always opposed the abolition of the death penalty. The lords can delay the legislation but cannot kill it.

MANILA (AP) — Typhoon Freda headed for the highly fortified Communist Chinese island of Hainan today, leaving an estimated 37 persons dead in the Philippines and extensive damage.

The storm was reported 260 miles south southeast of Hong Kong and moving west northwest at about 14 miles per hour. The Hong Kong Observatory said if it kept to its present course, it would pass 200 miles south of the British colony Thursday.

LONDON (AP) — Three young Czechs — two of them scientists — have defected and asked for asylum in Britain, the Home Office said today.

The government ministry said Robert Holub, 28, his wife Marie, 22, and Milan Bedarek, 28, quit a party of tourists last week and spent six days in a Salvation Army hostel before going to the police.

The Home Office said their request was being considered. Holun and Bedarek were reported to be science graduates of Prague University.

McCarrick, Treat, Pesce Win GOP Caucus Contests

Incumbent John McCarrick and aspirant Robert Treat will be the two Republican candidates for two of the three vacancies on the board of education in the Oct. 4 town election. They pulled the most votes in a five-man contest last night at the GOP caucus. In a bid for nomination as selectman, Raymond Cooper lost to incumbent Michael Pesce. Joseph Prentice was the loser in a constable race, with five men filing for four vacancies.

The caucus was attended by 68 Republicans. For the first time, background information was read about each candidate, whether incumbent or aspirant, old-time resident or relative newcomer. This method was well received by everyone, judging by a brief discussion at the end of the caucus when the town committee asked if their fellow Republicans would prefer a committee-endorsed slate to the current method of filing for vacancies. Everyone seemed to be in favor of filing, with the added touch of the biographical data.

As incumbent first selectman, Richard Morra was the first candidate introduced in the new manner. He, and all other candidates present, were given warm rounds of applause.

Morra, who has served one term, said, "I've been through the freshman year; as I go into my junior years I'll try to do a little better."

In the contest for selectman, Pesce, who has held the office for 20 years, received 48 votes and Cooper, 19. After the ballot vote count was announced, Cooper asked the Pesce's nomination be made unanimous by a voice vote, which was done as he strode over to congratulate the victor.

Mrs' Olive Toomey was endorsed as town clerk, a position she has filled since the death of her husband, who was town clerk for many years. Mrs. Shirley Riley was endorsed as town treasurer and agent of the town deposit fund.

Mrs. Manie Maneggia was endorsed as tax collector. She was appointed to succeed her husband in this capacity after his death earlier this year.

Malcolm Lambert was endorsed as assessor. He was appointed recently to succeed Keeney Hutchinson, who resigned; he attended an assessors' course at UConn last month.

James Finnegan was endorsed for the board of tax review. He was recently appointed to succeed Charles Church, who resigned.

In the constable contest, Thomas Carpenter, a constable for 10 years, polled 61 votes; Elmer Wilson, a constable for 16 years (and manager of the Manchester Drive-In Theater), polled 56, and James Hassett, chief deputy sheriff of Tolland County and a constable for six years, polled 50. Albert Pullo, owner of Al's Sunoco Station on Rts. 6 and 44-A, received 41 votes, nosing out Joseph Prentice, a retired resident with experience in police work of different types, who received 40 votes.

School Board

The board of education vote was Treat, 50; McCarrick, 37; Morris Silverstein, 24; LeRoy Peckham, 10, and Allan Hoffman, 7.

After their biographies and qualifications were read, each contestant gave a brief speech. In the Republican caucus two years ago, one speech was given during the whole caucus, by a board of education aspirant, who subsequently was defeated. In that election there were two candidates from each party for four vacancies on the board and consequently no contest in the fall election.

This year there are three vacancies on the board. The Democrats will also put up two candidates, and whichever party puts two candidates on the board will have the majority. The remaining four members are split: Walter Waddell and Harold Smith are Republicans, and Harold Porcheron and Kenneth Matthews are Democrats.

The Democratic town committee has endorsed incumbent Mrs. Claire Warfel as one candidate. Charles Lathrop, committee chairman, said this morning that the second candidate will be chosen at Friday's committee meeting. The party caucus, at which nominations may be made from the floor, will be next Tuesday.

In his remarks last night, McCarrick, who has served one term on the school board and was its chairman during the struggle to get a junior or junior-senior high school started, said that, in looking around the room, he noted that he had probably voted in opposition to everyone at one time or another. He said he hoped he had been more right than wrong.

Treat, who received the most votes, gave one of the shortest speeches. He said he was "interested in good education and likewise in what it costs."

Hoffman, whose reasons for aspiring had not been included in his biographical data, spoke of the need for better management by the school board and his desire to have the best educational system possible.

Silverstein, who polled the most votes below the two winners, spoke of his hope to turn the school physical plant into an asset rather than a liability and the necessity for a more conservative attitude on the part of the board of education, which he likened to a corporation running a business for the taxpayers who are the stockholders.

Silverstein also said he felt that bickering between two boards (currently the boards of education and finance) should not be carried on in the newspapers but privately by liaison between the boards.

Other Nominees

In other endorsements, William Riley will run for the board of finance. He was appointed two years ago to fill a vacancy created by the necessary resignation of Morra, who became first selectman. T.J. Crockett, now a member of the public building commission, will run for the finance board also.

Peter Massolini, incumbent, and William Cavanagh will run for fire commissioner. Cavanagh was the only person filing who did not choose to give any biographical information.

Howard Jensen was chosen by the town committee at a meeting preceding the caucus to run for the zoning board of appeals. Jensen, a long-time resident and former school board chairman, is the brother of Milton Jensen, town committee chairman.

James Veitch, incumbent, will seek re-election as a ZBA alternate.

Edmund Morancey, with seven years of experience on the planning commission, was endorsed to seek re-election. Giving his reasons for running with his biographical data, Morancey spoke of the need for logical planning for the growth of Bolton and his interest in the formation of an industrial park along Rt. 6. Morancey is also a delegate to the Capitol Region Planning Agency.

Douglas Cheney will seek re-election to the public building commission. Herbert Johnson was endorsed to seek the second vacancy.

Its slate completed for the town elections, the caucus passed a resolution expressing gratitude to Mrs. E. Pierce Herrick for the gift of 72 acres of land to the town.

Controls Save Steps

MINNEAPOLIS — Until the first automatic temperature control was sold in 1885, thermostats merely gave signals to indicate temperature above or below what was desired. It was up to the furnace tender to act—which usually meant a trip down the cellar stairs.

BUZZY CAME BACK

AUSTELL, Ga. (AP) — Two years ago the George L. Wilsons found a baby red winged blackbird in their yard, took it in and named it Buzzy. He soon became a house pet.

After 14 months Buzzy flew away. Now, nine months later, Buzzy is back. Mrs. Wilson said she knew it was Buzzy because his first stop after flying in through a window was the kitchen sink shower bath, one of his favorite spots.

Town to Begin Berm Program

A $4,500 berm construction program will start tomorrow at Dover Rd., Walter Fuss, the director of public works, announced today. The program will be financed through the state highway grant.

Roncari Industries of East Granby will do the berming and the town highway department will do the back-up work.

In all, 15,000 feet of street in various areas of town will receive 300 tons of bituminous concrete curbing. Fuss said that a list of the streets is available at the Public Works Department in the Municipal Building.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara claimed today his cost reduction program had saved $4.6 billion in the last fiscal year — more than double the $2.1 billion saving he forecast a year ago.

McNamara said the program is going so well that savings of $6.1 billion a year by fiscal 1969 and each year after that "have been set as our new long-range goal."

This is a boost of $1.5 billion a year over the previous objective and is the third successive annual increase in the long-range goal.

"The results of the Defense Department cost reduction program, now in its fourth year of operation, have far surpassed our most optimistic expectations at the time of its launching in 1962," the defense secretary said.

He stressed that "these savings are being accomplished without any adverse effect on our military strength and combat readiness." The 1965 fiscal year he was talking about ended June 30.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Internal Security subcommittee in a pamphlet has called the American Friends Service Committee a "well-known transmission belt for the Communist apparatus."

Colin W. Bell, executive secretary of the American Friends Service Committee, said at Swarthmore, Pa.:

"We cannot make any sense out of the quotations as given in the article. We will decide on the action to take when we have read exactly what has been written in the report. There is no use trying to comment on what now sounds like gibberish to us."

The pamphlet, made public this week by the subcommittee, said, "in the United States, the powerful American Friends Service Committee shelters half of the pacifist groups.

"Miss Marion Miller, a former FBI underground agent in the Communist party, testified that much of the propaganda literature of the peace committee was written within, and distributed by, this AFSC, well-known as a transmission belt for the Communist apparatus."

It said the pacifist movement undoubtedly attracts many honest peace lovers but many groups are manipulated directly or indirectly by the Communist apparatus "which has an especially easy task with the decent, but unexperienced, emotional and naive trumpeters of Jericho."

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Association of Broadcasters has promised cooperation with a Federal Communications Commission policy to tone down "objectionably loud" radio and television commercials.

But NAB President Vincent T. Wasilewski said the FCC policy statement was premature and the problem involves "subjective elements and is so complex that no solutions have yet become apparent."

On Monday, after a two-year study, the FCC demanded that announcers avoid delivering commercials "in a loud, rapid and strident manner, with the maximum number of words crammed into the time period."

Wasilewski said Tuesday he had urged the FCC to withhold action pending completion of a series of tests sponsored by the NAB, aimed at developing better methods of measuring and controlling volume on radio and television.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has passed a $14.2 billion appropriation for 27 government agencies and a $7.9-billion bill to run the Agriculture Department. Both amounts were higher than the House had approved, so they will go to Senate-House conferences to adjust the differences.

The independent agencies bill includes money for civil defense, the space agency and the Veterans Administration. It passed Tuesday by a vote of 84 to 2. The Agriculture appropriation was approved 86 to 2.

Later the Senate passed by voice vote and sent to the White House a bill appropriating $360.2 million to finance the Washington, D.C., city government in the current fiscal year.

CIGARET WARNINGS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress has completed passage of a bill requiring health warnings on every pack of cigarettes.

The Federal Trade Commission, however, is barred from ordering the tobacco industry to include such a warning with cigarette ads.

President Johnson's signature will pave the way for every cigarette pack, box and carton sold in the United States to bear — conspicuously — the following lable by Jan. 1, 1966:

Mixed Crew Works, Ricketts Boss Says

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The skipper of the Navy destroyer Claude V. Ricketts believes she has shown the world that a ship can be run smoothly and efficiently with a crew of mixed nationalities.

"I thought before we sailed in February that mixed-manning was militarily feasible," said Cmdr. Thomas E. Fortson. "I am even more convinced today."

Fortson spoke as the Ricketts, with her crew of 300 recruited from six nations of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization returned to Norfolk Monday after a five-month tour of duty in the Mediterranean with the U.S. 6th Fleet.

The captain gave no details, but the obvious high spirits of his crew — American, West German, British, Dutch, Greek and Italian — testified to the absence of any problems of morale.

The Ricketts originally was envisaged as the forerunner of a multilateral NATO force — an idea of the Late President John F. Kennedy through which other NATO nations could share control of nuclear weapons.

As proposed by Kennedy the force would have consisted of 25 ships each armed with eight Polaris missiles capable of delivering nuclear warheads.

This idea has been shelved, for the time being, at least. But both in her training period, when the crewmen had trouble understanding each other, and in her actual cruise, things went fine for the Ricketts.

If the mixed-manned crew conception didn't enthrall every NATO nation, it apparently aroused the curiosity of the Russians.

Fortson said that for five April days of her Mediterranean cruise — as she practiced gunnery, rescues and refueling — the Ricketts was followed by a Soviet guided missile destroyer.

"It got to be rather enjoyable having him around," Fortson said. "He had very good sea manners and didn't try to get in the way."

One day as the ships scudded side by side, the rousing voices of the Red army choir were amplified from a recording by the Ricketts and wafted 300 feet across the water to the Russian crew.

"They said it was very nice. It really seemed to make them happy," said the Ricketts' Lt. Robert Dibble, who is British.

The Russians repaid the compliment by playing some American jazz for the Ricketts crewmen.

"Instead of staring at each other with hate in our eyes," said Dibble, "we became just two ships from two different navies — each doing his job."

MEDICARE TALKS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate and House conferees meet today to start working out a compromise on the medicare bill, and congressional leaders predict fast agreement.

The Senate added 513 amendments to the House version of the bill, which provides health care for the elderly and increases Social Security benefits. Agreement must be reached on all of these changes before it can go to the House and Senate for final approval.

But, as House Speaker John W. McCormack said Tuesday, "They always get together." Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield also said he foresaw no difficulties.

Building Panel Returns Book Bills to School Board

The public building commission has refused to spend any money it doesn't have until it is sure it has it. The commission has returned two bills for books totaling about $140, to the board of education, and has written to town treasurer, Mrs. Shirley Riley, stating that until a special appropriation is made, it will not go on spending money as if it had it.

The commission discussed the matter Monday night. Its letter asked that $6,500 be transferred from what remains of the high school bond issue to the preliminary plan account. This money has been the subject of much accounting controversy.

The board of education has been purchasing library books from $6,000 of the bond issue money considered by the PBC, but because the $6,500 must be removed, the contingency fund will run short.

Although Mrs. Riley has assured the PBC that the town at the next town meeting will reimburse the bond issue the necessary $6,000, the PBC is loath to spend before it actually has the money. The board of education has purchased about $4,000 in books so far, all paid for except the last order.

According to Mrs. Riley, Harold Garrity, town counsel has advised her that the PBC should let the school board go ahead with the library books since so many have been purchased already.

Douglas Cheney, PBC chairman, said last night that, once the $6,500 is removed, and darkening devices have been paid for, only about $450 will remain of the bond issue. (The bid has already been awarded for the drapes to darken high school classrooms for audio-visual use.)

The reimbursement will not take place, the town meeting set for this Monday, but at a subsequent meeting, Mrs. Riley said.

Picnic Held

The Junior Sharpshooters 4-H club went on a family picnic to Old Furnace State Park in Danielson last weekend. They went on a five-mile hike which ran along ledges in the park's recently acquired new area.

Reception Set

A reception for the Rev. Bernard L. McGurk, former pastor of St. Maurice Church, and the Rev. Robert W. Cronin, new pastor, will be held Sunday afternoon from 2 to 5 in the church auditorium.

Selectmen Meet

The selectmen will meet tomorrow at 7 p.m. in the town offices. A voter-making session will be held in the town offices from 8 to 8 p.m.

Fire Drill Canceled

Members of the fire department have canceled their drill tonight and will meet at the firehouse at 7 to go to the Watkins-West Funeral Home to pay their respects to the late Mrs. Everett T. McKinney, mother of Thomas McKinney.

Credit Use Speeds Up

DEARBORN, Mich. — Although car buyers spend the same 11 per cent of income on car payments today as five years ago, use of installment plans has increased. Last year 64 per cent of new cars were bought on credit.

Long Wait

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP)—A man and a woman were held 17 days in the Pinellas County jail because neither could post $50 bond.

Julie Louis, 43, of Fort Lauderdale and John Klado, 50, of Hollywood, were released yesterday by Justice Jack Dadswell after pleading guilty.

"This is ridiculous," said Dadswell. "How can this happen?"

He sentenced each to $10 fine or two days in jail and said they had served more than enough time to satisfy the court.

Investments Increase

NEW YORK — Increases in life insurance companies' investments set a record in 1964 as total holdings reached $143.5 billion, up 5.8 per cent. Most of the total is in corporate bonds and mortgages.

Clasps on the simulated pearls by Richelieu were large chunks of gold set with multicolored stones for that necessary oriental touch. For the French touch, some pearls were combined with strands of blue enamel.

Harem-draped skirts are sensational on the most formal of gowns, and a harem drape for at-home pants was shown by Hollywood-Vassarette in a delightful costume which is described as lingerie but, being opaque, would probably not shock anyone outside the home. It's a one-piece garment that you step into and wrap around yourself, ending with your legs wrapped like Oriental knickers and a sash draped around your middle. Poppies by Paisley makes this—in the most oversized of designs and the most dramatic of color combinations.

Even umbrella handles shine with rhinestones. Polan Katz showed them decorated with little rhinestone balls, but the most striking had whimsical handles: A French poodle, a hand with the forefinger pointing upward, a duck's head, and the most graceful of all, a long plume curved to hang over the arm.

There is no end to what they will dream up for stockings, although the conturiers dislike any strong pattern, all except Rudi Gernreich who designed his own stocking to go with his own dresses, putting the wide green stripe up one leg to join the wide green stripe down the skirt, and heaven help you if you get that seam crooked! Hanes showed velvet marigolds appliqued on sheer black nylon and an op sock in black and white geometrics.

The country mouse and the city mouse carry their money in different ways as a gentleman from Coblentz Bags said that women in big cities like their bags small, and if they have a lot of stuff to carry around, they put it in a separate tote bag. In smaller places they like the purse big enough for everything. Shoetery Vancouver in the bigger cities fashion models have given status to the tote bag.

Anyone who has drunk the Italian aperitif Campari will know what shade of dark red its importers are promoting in all sorts of fashion items. Someone even has dyed Australian possum Campari red and made an Eisenhower jacket stipped up the front. This was to be worn skiing—by any one who can afford a $600 ski pants. A jump suit, fitting as tightly as leotards, was made in that ubiquitous oversized Paisley. After often imbibing, several of the drinks that gave the color its name, you wouldn't believe your eyes.

'Instant Fish' War on Mosquitoes

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) —"Instant fish" will be tested this summer as a weapon against mosquitoes whose itchy menace is spreading swiftly in California.

The inch-long fish from Brazil and Argentina will be planted in rice fields. They live about a year and gobble mosquito larvae. Each female fish lays hundreds of eggs.

The rice fields are flooded from May to September, but drained at the end of the season. The eggs of the South American fish can survive drying out for up to two years, however. When the fields are flooded again, the eggs hatch within 20 minutes, giving rise to the nickname "instant fish."

Despite a $6 million annual abatement program, California is losing its war on mosquitoes. In fact, the pest is more ever before in the state's history.

Besides their annoying bite and buzz, mosquitoes are potential carriers of malaria, yellow fever, dengue—breakbone—fever, filariasis—elephantiasis—hemorrhagic fever, encephalitis —sleeping sickness and other disease, including heartworm in dogs.

In 1962, the state recorded 800 cases of encephalitis when continuing rain and mild weather led to a great surge in the species' mosquito-rules' larval—is—that carries the disease.

That was the last serious epidemic of encephalitis in the state. But Richard F. Peters, chief of the California Bureau of Vector Control, fears another combination of circumstances, intensified by continuing failure of control methods, can bring on a worse epidemic.

Like other insects, mosquitoes have developed resistance to most of the toxic chemicals used against them.

"A toss-up exists whether new techniques will be available before present control technology fails completely," says Peters.

Public health officials note that California harbors 43 species of mosquitoes, including carriers of all the diseases named.

The chief reason for California's mosquito population explosion is the state's intensive farm system, most of it requiring irrigation. Nine million acres are under irrigation now, a quarter of all such land in the United States. Acreage will be doubled by a vast federal-state water development program under construction.

Mosquitoes complete a breeding cycle in four-to six days. They find a happy home in California, where fields of some crops may be flooded as many as 10 times a season, producing a hatch each time.

Researchers at the University of California and the Bureau of Vector Control laboratory in Fresno are attacking the problem from many angles.

The South American "instant fish" are being tested by Dr. Ernest Bay of the university's Riverside campus, center of chemical research for the World Health Organization's malarial control program.

Mosquitoes have many natural enemies besides fish and men. Various beetles, caddis flies, water bugs, snails, worms, crustaceans and even some carnivorous water plants—more than 200 predators in all— consume mosquito larvae. Some water beetles have been observed to eat 1,000 a day.

But still they multiply.

Dr. Bay says he believes that insect diseases and his "instant fish" offer the best opportunity for mosquito control.

Town Committee Endorses Jean, Young and Boardman

The Democratic Town Committee last night endorsed Lionel Jean as its approved candidate for first selectman, and named Donald Young and Paul Boardman as candidates for two available nominations to the board of education.

Town Democrats will be asked by the committee to formally endorse the slate at a caucus Thursday at 8 p.m. at Robertson School.

The only contest was for the school board, where Young and Boardman drew the largest vote of four candidates. The third, Mrs. Ruth Benoit, scored 11 votes, to 18 for Young and 12 for Boardman. Young was appointed to fill the unexpired term of Mrs. Ruth Hanson, who recently resigned.

A full slate of candidates was endorsed to the party caucus Thursday. Other names are:

Richard Hawley, selectman; Robert Moriarty, town clerk and treasurer; Twilla Jackowski, tax collector; Lionel Jean, agent of town deposit fund; Albert Stevenson and Fred Ballestrini, two year terms on the board of finance; Nelson Bearce, incumbent, and Peter Van Dine, four year terms on the board of finance.

Also Ernest Hamblett, board of tax review; David Roach, zoning board of appeals; Albert Rossi, zoning board of appeals alternate; Elizabeth Richling (incumbent) and Beatty Ryan, board of welfare; Alan Cahill, planning and zoning commission; Ethel Harris and Raymond Burham, incumbents, and Harvey Morris, board of health; Frank Casaz, Anthony Paulis, Frederick Blasell, all incumbents, and Chester Ladd, constable.

Jean who was named as the committee candidate for first selectman has served as third selectman for the past two years.

Ballestrini's nomination for a four year term on the school board is provisional; the town council, the Manchester law firm of Lessner Rotner Karp, and Piepler has been asked to rule whether or not there is a vacancy for which Ballestrini can run.

Both he and Stevenson are running for unexpired terms on the board; Stevenson was appointed to a vacancy earlier and Ballestrini was nominated for an unexpired term after a previous appointee declined to run for nomination.

Under state law, persons appointed to fill unexpired terms must run for election at the next scheduled election. The confusion arises because Ballestrini was not appointed to the post but is being nominated now for the first time.

ACCIDENTALLY SHOT

WATERFORD (AP)— Carl Swenson, 51, of Waterford, died Tuesday at his home after he accidentally shot himself in the neck while cleaning a pistol.

Medical Examiner Robert Henkis said the shooting was accidental.

100 CANDLES TODAY

TORRINGTON (AP)—John Virgillio of Torrington observed his 100th birthday today in a convalescent home here where he is recovering from a broken hip suffered two months ago.

Mrs. Joseph Gautieri, a daughter with whom he lives, said her father was in good health despite the accident. The cutting of a birthday cake was a feature of the celebration.

Youth Orchestra Plans Concert

The University of Connecticut's Summer Youth Orchestra makes its debut before the public as an ensemble Friday at 8 p.m. in the Jorgensen Auditorium.

The orchestra, which is composed of 75 unusually talented musicians recruited from across the Eastern half of the nation, has chosen a varied program of symphonic works for its maiden performance.

Under the baton of Dr. Jack Heller, a member of the University's music faculty, the youth orchestra will open with Berlioz' "Roman Carnival Overture." The BYO will then move into the evening's principal work — Beethoven's "Symphony No. 8."

Following a brief intermission, the orchestra will return with Debussy's "Afternoon of a Faun" and conclude with Hindemith's "Symphonic Metamorphosis."

The concert is one of three "full - dress" performances scheduled by the BYO here during a two-week residence on the University campus.

On July 20 the ensemble will offer an admission - free pops concert in the UofC's "music shell" shating rink at 8:30 p.m. The orchestra will conclude with a pre-tour concert in the Jorgensen Auditorium at 8 p.m. July 22.

LBJ Near Tears At Bad News

senator arose to offer tributes.

Chief of Protocol Lloyd Hand notified the guests at the White House luncheon of the death.

As the Japanese and other guests were introduced to the President, each spoke a word of condolence.

Vice President Hubert Humphrey preceded the members of the U.S. Cabinet and there was a solemn handshake and a few words for each.

Douglas recalled to the Senator that he and Stevenson ran together on the Democratic ticket in Illinois in 1948, Stevenson for governor and Douglas for the first senate term.

"It always have considered him a fervent friend," he said. "We shall miss Governor Stevenson but we can be grateful for his years of service."

Sen. Gordon Allott, R-Colo., who served at the U.N. General Assembly with Stevenson in 1962, told the Senate:

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., said Stevenson raised "one of the most eloquent voices for freedom ever known. He stirred the hearts of millions around the world."

Witcher, who is married and the father of two, said "it was a pretty hectic 20 minutes" when the word came that they were going to ditch.

The crash was like "hitting a brick wall at 100 miles an hour," the survivors said. It was pulled down deeper and deeper" as the plane sank, Witcher said. "I struggled with my seat belt, unloosened it while still under water and then went up and up and up and up. I'm still a little fuzzy as to how I got out of the plane."

When he bobbed to the surface, there was wreckage close by, Witcher said, but he pushed it away "because I didn't want anything to cut my rubber suit."

Surles, an electronics technician who also is married, said when the plane hit the water he tried to do his assigned job in ditching, to release a life raft in a locker at the right wing.

"I couldn't get to it," he said. "It was too far under water. I felt out through an opening in the side."

Witcher and a second survivor, Airman 2.C David Surles, 24, of Raleigh, N.C., told newsmen Tuesday they never gave up hope as they floated more than 10 hours in the cold Atlantic.

The third survivor, Airman 1.C John M. Puopolo, 20, of Boston, was still under treatment from swallowing large amounts of sea water.

Adlai Stevenson Dies, Collapses in London

in placing Stevenson in nomination for President for the third time.

He said Stevenson was even more than that—"the keystone of every country in which he's known, and the favorite son of every country in which he's unknown but where there's a spark of desire for liberty and freedom."

As McCarthy finished, there was a wild ovation, and a chant from the galleries—"We want Stevenson. we want Stevenson." But Senator John F. Kennedy was the overwhelming choice of the delegates.

After Kennedy's election, many Democrats backed Stevenson for appointment as Secretary of State. However, the President chose him instead as Ambassador to the United Nations. He had been, especially trained for such a post.

Stevenson was born February 5, 1900, in Los Angeles. His father had left the permanent family residence in the Midwest and gone West in the hobster his health.

For a while, the elder Stevenson managed Arizona gold and copper mines for Mrs. Phoebe Apperson Hearst, whose deceased husband, Senator George Hearst, had been a Washington friend of the first Adlai E. Stevenson when he was Vice President.

From that employment, he went to Los Angeles as assistant business manager of The Examiner. The newspaper was a property of William Randolph Hearst, the famed publisher son of the senator.

Back to Bloomington

The Stevenson family returned to their home in Bloomington when the future governor was 6 years old and he grew up there. He had a sister, Elizabeth, two years old. The sister became Mrs. Ernest L. Ives.

Stevenson was married to Miss Ellen Borden, a Chicago socialite, in 1928, shortly after her presentation at the Court of St. James. The marriage was one of the season's most brilliant social events. He was 10 years his wife's senior. They had three sons—Adlai III, Borden and John Fell.

After more than 20 years of married life, Mrs. Stevenson in 1949 obtained a Nevada divorce on the grounds of mental cruelty. Although her testimony was not made public, the governor had blamed "the incompatibility of our lives" for the divorce action. Mrs. Stevenson declined to comment on reports she did not care for public life as a governor's lady.

Some said that her upbringing, wealth and artistic temperament did not fit into the gregarious, handshaking and glasbowl life of a public official's wife.

Stevenson did not contest the divorce suit, although he said he was "deeply distressed" and opposed to divorce in general.

Polly's Pointers

By POLLY CRAMER.

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

DEAR POLLY—Our company employs many young women and that means a lot of turnover. We rejoice with them when they become engaged and wed but often they do not stay long enough for us to get to know them well. Nevertheless, we like to let them know we did appreciate their work and want their good wishes. When a girl leaves we make a little fuss over it and include a copy of the Polly's Pointers book with an inexpensive going away present and a little cook book. — D. R. A.

Girls — I know all you single girls would like to work for D. R. A. — sounds like a wonderful boss, doesn't he? — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY—To save time when making cloverleaf rolls, try my trick. I found it took so long to shape so many little balls of dough for these rolls. Now I make one ball for each muffin tin hols and then cut in four parts with the scissors, as I drop it in the pan. Mrs. F. W.

DEAR POLLY — Old wool skirts make perfect A-line jumpers for little girls. Just lay the pattern on the bottom of the skirt so as to use the same hem and cut away. Face the top by bind sleeves and neck and sew up the side seams. What could be easier? — Mrs. T. F. A.

DEAR POLLY—For a simple beach barbecue, dig a hole in the sand and line it with aluminum foil. Put your briquets and wood inside the foil-lined pit and cook away. The foil will reflect the heat and the hole will keep the wind from blowing the fire in one direction. Food cooks in a hurry.— A. B. K.

Girls — Another of our boy friends sent this timely Pointer. A metal cake rack could be used over the top of the pit for a grill top. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — My 9-year-old son is at the model building age which helped me discover my Pointer. The parts for these airplanes and cars are attached to pieces of plastic. After he takes the parts off the plastic, I use the plastic sections to hold vining plants in pots. The plastic pieces come in various designs and I have three different ones in a pot on my kitchen window sill and have often been asked where I found such nice supports for my plants. — Mrs. W. S.

Medicare Doubleheader Coming

The Herald is now offering a double-barreled value in connection with the soon to be enacted Medicare bill.

By ordering now, readers may obtain an 80-page booklet comprehensively describing Medicare and its implications. Publication will begin the day President Johnson signs the bill into law.

Shortly after, the Herald will begin a 14-part serial abridgement of the booklet.

Both are written by John Troan, science reporter for the Scripps Howard papers and an expert on social security legislation.

A program as comprehensive and far reaching as this deserves the close scrutiny of every citizen. The coupon below with $1 will insure that this easy-to-read booklet will be readily available as your guide in this complex area.

Australia Seeks Pupils' Pennies

CANBERRA — The Australian Government has appealed to schoolchildren to take all their pennies out of their money boxes. The Treasury minted 80 million pennies in 1964, but needs to stop production to make the change to decimal coinage, coming in 1966.

About 800 million pennies are needed for normal circulation, and the Government hopes most will appear if children heed the federal plea to free the hoarded coins and open bank accounts.

U.S. Runs 168 Libraries

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Information Service maintains 168 libraries overseas, plus 58 reading rooms. The 2.4 million books, a fifth in local languages, are consulted by 30 million people a year.

Stamps In the News

AP Newsfeatures
By SD KRONISH

Many countries throughout the world as well as the United Nations have issued stamps honoring the 100th anniversary of the International Telecommunication Union. The U.S. commemorative will be issued on Oct. 6 in Washington, D.C.

The 11-cent stamp for international surface mail use will show a map of the world in yellow. Superimposed on this design in a series of curved lines in black which are symbolic of a radio sine wave. Beneath is the Morse Code spelling of "ITU" four times. The dates 1865-1965 are in red.

First day collectors may send their requests together with remittance to cover the cost of the stamps to be affixed, to the Postmaster, Washington, D.C., prior to Oct. 6. The outside cover to the Postmaster should be addressed: "First Day Covers ITU Stamp."

Also announced by Postmaster General John A. Gronouski is the exact design of the Robert Fulton commemorative to honor the 200th anniversary of the inventor's birth. The 5-cent stamp reproduces a bust of Fulton sculptured by Jean Antoine Houdon. To the left is Fulton's first commercially successful steamship, the Clermont.

First day ceremonies will be held Aug. 19 in Clermont, N.Y., where Fulton resided. First day cover collectors, however, should address their requests to: "First Day Covers Fulton Stamp," Postmaster, Kingston, N.Y. 12401, prior to Aug. 19. The covers will carry a Clermont cancellation, nevertheless, because that town does not have a post office. The nearest is Kingston.

The Republic of China will issue a set of four new postage stamps from Formosa in honor of the fifth Fisherman's Day, reports the World Wide Philatelic Agency. The stamps will illustrate fish underwater in multi-color design. The fish portrayed are the Red Seabream, White Pomfret, Skipjack and the Moonfish.

The Canadian Post Office has announced many new issues for 1966. One set will include the official flowers and armor bearings of the various provinces and territories. There will be a stamp honoring the 300th anniversary of the arrival of La Salle in Canada. A Highway Safety stamp is also scheduled. The theme of another set is "Peaceful Uses of Atomic Energy." There will be, for the third consecutive year, a set of Christmas stamps in the usual 3 cent and 5 cent denominations, most commonly used for Christmas cards and letters.

Shoe Lands on Roof in Lake St. Accident

Both driver and passenger were injured in an accident on Lake St. last night when the foreign convertible in which they were riding went off the road and over-turned against a Lake St. home—with one of the driver's shoes landing on the roof (arrow). Peter V. Becker, 18, of 38 Waranoke Dr., Manchester, and passenger Charles H. Koch, 16, of 35 Lake St., Vernon, were taken to Manchester Memorial Hospital by the Vernon ambulance after the accident, which occurred about 10 p.m. yesterday. Becker was admitted with cuts on his head and neck after treatment in the emergency room; Koch was reportedly released after treatment. According to Vernon police, Becker said the car swerved twice after it was forced off the road by a car coming toward him; it finally rolled over and came to rest against the home of Thomas J. Quigley. Damage to the Quigley home was slight. (Herald photo by Saternis.)

Shorter Honeymoons Called Sweeter Ones

CHICAGO (AP) — The honeymoon is much sweeter when short, says a wedding consultant, and short honeymoons are better for a marriage too.

"The most surprising thing is that many times a couple gets bored with each other on a long honeymoon," consultant Louis Seno said in an interview.

"The shorter the honeymoon, the better. Two weeks is the most I'd advise," he said.

Seno, a wedding consultant 20 years, said the anxiety and excitement leading to the wedding puts a couple on their best behavior.

"Then suddenly they're married. They think they know each other, but then they start spending 24 hours a day together and discover they don't.

"In a strange resort, surrounded by strangers, the discovery that Prince Charming snores or has a few minor faults can be devastating.

"The newly married couple obligates each other to constant entertainment. They see little or nothing connected with their home life."

Seno, 41 and father of four, said a short honeymoon gives the couple a chance to be alone, and that the return home means the real beginning of happiness.

"At home, even though it's a brand new apartment, a bride can take things in stride," Seno said. "The man gets up and goes to work, and the wife has a chance to relax, do her daily chores and dismiss the little frailties of her husband.'

Seno said the most susceptible persons to a soured honeymoon are women who have lived with their parents and have made few trips.

"The more the homebody, the more they look forward to a trip — and stretch it too long," he said. "Many women end up getting homesick. As a result impatience and misunderstanding develop."

Seno emphasized that he wouldn't think of changing the age-old honeymoon tradition.

"A honeymoon is necessary, and if possible both persons should see new, romantic places," he said. "But just don't make it for too long."

Seno said the long honeymoon is a throwback to a primitive era when men kidnaped their brides and had to stay out of sight until the girl's tribe cooled off.

"But this is no longer a problem," he said.

BODY NOT BODY

HAMDEN, Conn. (AP) — A party of state and local police and the resident park ranger climbed down a rock face at Sleeping Giant State Park to investigate reports of a body.

They found a stuffed dummy, made of wood and excelsior. State police said Francis Peters, 17, Meriden reported seeing something on the ledge this week.

Shovel Scrapes Wire, Sets Pole to Flaming

A post-Fourth of July 'fireworks' display was accidentally held for residents of Charter Oak Street and vicinity yesterday afternoon when a power shovel ignited a fire in a utility line pole.

George Boudreau, 313 Adams St., was operating the shovel digging a hole for a 5,000 gallons oil tank — when he saw sparks coming from under the shovel. He said later he thought the shovel's bucket and scraped some stones, but it was found he had scraped power lines leading from the pole to a partially finished apartment building.

The scrape caused a short circuit on the pole and the wires started to glow like huge Fourth of July sparklers. The heat from the wires started the pole on fire.

A box alarm brought two fire engines and a ladder truck from the Town Fire Dept. on the scene. Assistant Fire Chief Sedrick Straughan said his men could no nothing to put out the fire because of the 220 volts of electric power being fed into the sparkling wires. The men handling the hose would be electrocuted and the wires would still be going, he said.

One of the volunteer firemen on hand, Randall Brown, who lives close by on Spruce St., is an employe of the Hartford Electric Light Co. He went up a ladder and pulled out fuses on the telephone pole on the street. This cut the current and stopped the sparkling and other firemen quickly hosed out the fire on the pole.

Frank Guinipero of 11 Eldridge St., owner of the apartment building said the underground wires had been laid a few months ago, and apparently had been forgotten.

Boudreau said that similar wire strikes have happened to him while he was digging, but that he has yet to receive a shock from it.

The Town Fire Dept. was busy all afternoon with a grass fire on W. Center St., a woods fire at Mt. Nebo Pl., and another woods fire on West St. The 8th District Fire Dept. had a very quiet day.

Wiet, CofC Said Seeking An Accord

Attorneys for John P. Wiet, former executive vice president of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce, and the New Haven Chamber were reported to be working on a settlement in the aftermath of his suspension July 2.

Wiet had been executive vice president of the New Haven Chamber before his suspension for what was called "incompatible" views with the rest of the chamber leaders.

At a meeting of the executive committee Monday, 21 of the 22 members present were reported to have voted to uphold the suspension and to ask for his resignation.

Attorneys, though, are reported to be working on a settlement that will be satisfactory to both Wiet and the chamber. But this is not expected to result in Wiet's retention.

Police Arrests

Manchester Police detectives, Sgt. Joseph Sartor and John Krinjak, arrested Howard McConnell, 62, of 221 Main St. yesterday morning on a warrant issued by the 12th Circuit Court charging him with delivery of liquor to minors.

McConnell appeared in the East Hartford Session of the 12th Circuit Court this morning where his bond was set at $500 and court appearance set for July 19 in the East Hartford Session of Circuit Court 12. He did not post bond and was sent to the Hartford State Jail.

Two men were arrested at the Hartford State Jail yesterday just before they completed a sentence, by Manchester police on a warrant issued by the 12th Circuit Court. Warren Forbes, 23, of 843 Main St. and Jeffrey Thomas, 24, of Windsor were each charged with indecent assault and risk of injury to child.

Chief Prosecutor Eugene Kelley ordered both released without bond because they have already posted bond after being arrested in Hartford. Court appearance is set for July 16 in East Hartford.

Joseph Rourke, 17, of 49 Flower St. was arrested late last night after he allegedly went through the traffic light at Main St. and Middle Tpke., police say. He was charged with failure to obey traffic control signals and will appear in the Manchester Session of Circuit Court 12 on July 26.

Hospital Lacks Two Officers

Jack Hunter has resigned his post as assistant administrator at Manchester Memorial Hospital to take a similar position at Westchester Hospital in Westchester, Mass., it was announced by the hospital today.

Hunter's resignation leaves the hospital without the services of two administrators, Charles Markel, also an assistant administrator, left in April to become administrator of the Mary Black Memorial Hospital in Spartanburg, S.C.

It is expected that two new assistants will be named in August.

ELECTRIC OUTPUT HIGHER

PARIS — FRANCE produced 96 billion kilowatt-hours of electricity last year compared with 88.8 billion in 1963.

UNCOMMON VALUES
Shearson Names 10 "Undervalued" Stocks As Today's Outstanding Bargains

Free 28-page report describes selected stocks Shearson analysts expect to show significant gains in the next 12 months.
Shearson's once-a-year report, UNCOMMON VALUES IN COMMON STOCKS, is just now off the press. In it the firm's securities analysts express the opinion that the recent market decline has knocked down issues that were reasonably valued even at their peaks. This 28-page report recommends a portfolio of 10 stocks which Shearson expects to enjoy significan earnings gains.
UPSIDE POTENTIAL. These research men predict that most major economic indicators for the full year 1965 will show substantial gains over 1964. For example, corporate profits as a whole will likely be up at least 10%.
The stock market already appears to reflect to a considerable extent the difficulties that the economy might face next year. It may well turn out that investors have been taking an excessively negative view of prospects for 1966. For example, many major cyclical issues are selling at or under 10 times current earnings, apparently discounting a drastic earnings deterioration which may never materialize.
THOROUGH RESEARCH. Shearson's industry specialists have spent months visiting the offices and plants of dozens of companies, interviewing top management, reading and analyzing thousands of pages of written material. The reports turned in by these analysts have been read and discussed in detail by Shearson's senior partners at meetings of the investment policy board.
The result of all this study and analysis is this 17th annual edition of UNCOMMON VALUES, a report stating in definite terms Shearson's recommendations for the guidance of investors in the current market. Included in the diversified list are high grade stocks recommended for a variety of objectives. The 10 as a group form a portfolio designed to exploit the investment climate Shearson foresees in coming months.
ARE THESE STOCKS STORMPROOF? No one can say for certain that these 10 stocks will thrive regardless of what happens in the next 12 months. But Shearson's Research Department is convinced that all 10 should show gains even if there is a slowdown in total economic activity. Their growth potential showed up no matter what analytical yardstick was used. Each one has an important plus factor... new products, strengthened management, growing markets... that does not seem to be adequately reflected in the price of the stock.
GET YOUR FREE COPY NOW. This 28-page booklet, Shearson believes, can help you make money in today's market. The recommendations are documented and clear cut. Find out for yourself which stocks are considered outstanding bargains by one of Wall Street's most respected research departments. Send for your free copy with the coupon below.

Hebron

Class Space Must Meet Regulations

Now to house those kindergarten children for whom there isn't any room available at the Hebron elementary school is a matter still brewing. The First Congregational Church has offered to rent a room for them as previously, but the state fire marshal has something to say about it.

The Kindergarteners can't meet there unless certain conditions are met, as follows: Installation of a fire alarm system, automatic fire detectors for kitchen and boiler room, exit signs and a fire evacuation plan prepared.

The school board has authorized the administration to prepare an agreement with the church on the subject, along lines similar to the one adopted in 1961.

The Dart Dairy Company of Manchester was awarded the milk contract for the elementary school for the coming year. Other bidders reported were Hillyland, Scotland; Mountain Dairy, Storrs, and Brookhall Dairy, New London.

The contract for fuel oil for next year went to Hampden Oil of Glastonbury.

Other needs for shades for two rooms at the elementary school have been awarded to Vernon Heipler, cost: $196.96. A bid for driveway at the school, by A. J. Dooley of Marlborough was accepted, cost: $275.

The bid for furniture was awarded to Maines School Supply, Canton, Mass. cost totaling $648.88, including two easels, two folding tables, 20 pupil desks and chairs and a two-drawer file.

The school board authorizes the administration to make student accident insurance available to elementary school pupils next year through the Massachusetts Casualty Company.

State Aid Available

Supt. Avram Damarjian stated that Hebron is eligible for $6,567 in 1965-67, in legislation granting state aid for disadvantaged children under the State Welfare Department's Aid program.

Funds available under the federal legislation are not as yet determined.

Elementary school principal Ray E. Gardiner has reported a June enrollment in the school of 470 pupils. The elementary school office will be closed Aug. 2 to 8.

Building Panel Named

Named to the school building committee are Gordon Lasow, Richard Lando, Mrs. Edward A. Foote, John Barnes, Donald Dzienis, and first selectman Richard M. Grant. Two other members are to be named, one from the finance board and one from the planning and zoning commission.

Expenditures through June 30, reported by the Hebron board of education, show a surplus of $7,711.25, for the 1964-65 fiscal year, which exceeds surplus estimate by over $1,000. Thornton Secor has been named by the board to represent the town on the committee for the vocational-agricultural center in Lebanon.

Fire Drill Set

A special fire drill for tomorrow is scheduled by the Volunteer fire department at Camp Hi-Hoti, at 7 p.m. A regular drill will also be held at the local firehouse, July 21, at 7 p.m.

Picnic at Fond

We don't know just how that Gilead-Hebron Congregational Church picnic Sunday at Foote's Pond in Gilead came out, as there was a sprinkling of rain, just enough to be tantalizing and sort of picnic spoiler, but we're pretty sure the hospitality of the Foote family would find a way out of any difficulty caused.

Gilead people were greeted at the church door by Mrs. Leonard Brewer and Miss Gwendolyn Ellis. Ushers were Kenneth Porter and John Hooker.

Anyone wishing to contact the pastor, the Rev. John N. Cross, during the day, and receiving no answer at the parsonage, may leave a message with Mrs. Edward Poole.

Legion Clambake

Grant; sports and entertainment, Richard Parker; music and public address system, Walter W. Donald; seating, Leonard Porter and G. Richard Ives; booths, tables and chairs, G. Richard Ives and G. Earl Porter; wood and ice, Robert Cafazzo and Walter Donald; stone, Walter Donald, Robert Cafazzo and Louis Bellone; burlap rags, Dick Parker; signs, etc., John Kulynych; publicity, Mrs. Richard M. Grant.

Becomes Major

Promotion from captain to major in the United States Army Reserves has been given to George Mitchell of Hartford, formerly of Manchester. He is a member of the 1117th unit stationed in Hartford.

Mitchell, a World War II veteran of service in North Africa and the China - Burma - India theater, was also recalled to active duty during the Korean War. He has been in the Army 22 years.

The new major, a physical education teacher and coach at Bloomfield High School, is also owner-director of the Glen Haven Boys' Camp in Bolton. The camp has been in operation seven years.

Mitchell, well-known for many years as a sports promoter in Manchester, is married and the father of three sons.

Area Weather

A chain between hot, humid air and cool Canadian air over the nation's midsections has resulted in a band of showers and thunderstorms from Chicago southwest to Texas. As the frontal zone along the leading edge of the cooler air moves slowly eastward, it will slowly increase the chances for showers over the southern New England region.

Meanwhile, hot and humid weather will continue over southern New England today, with inland temperatures reaching into the low 90s this afternoon. Low cloudiness and patchy fog moved inland over portions of southern New England during the night, and is thickest over southern Connecticut. But this will give way to sunshine in all sections by mid-morning.

WINDSOR LOCKS (AP) Five day forecast

Temperatures in Connecticut Thursday through Monday are expected to average 3 to 5 degrees below normal. Turning cooler early in the period with little change thereafter. Normal high and low temperatures for Hartford are 86 and 65, for New Haven 83 and 66.

Precipitation may total about ½ inch occuring as scattered showers Thursday and possibly Saturday and again at the end of the period.

Quick Confirmation Seen On LBJ's Top Appointees

WASHINGTON (AP)—Party leaders predicted today the Senate will approve two of President Johnson's top nominees—Judge Thurgood Marsnall to be solicitor general and Leonard H. Marks to direct the U.S. Information Agency.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield and Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen said in separate interviews they see no reason both the appointees should not be confirmed with reasonable speed.

However, Johnson's selection of Marshall, a Negro circuit judge, to succeed Archibald Cox as solicitor general, aroused some Southern opposition.

Sen. Spessard L. Holland, D-Fla., said he believed the choice of the former general counsel for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People as the government's chief trial lawyer was unwise.

"To make him the special pleader for the whole of the government certainly opens the matter up to controversy," Holland said.

Johnson announced the nominations Tuesday at a White House news conference. Major topics included:

VIET NAM — The President said increased aggression from the north may require an increased American response on the ground. It is quite possible that new and serious decisions will be necessary in the near future." In response to a question on whether military reserves might be called up and draft calls increased, he said, "The government is always considering every possibility and every eventuality."

DISARMAMENT — He said the Soviet Union has agreed to the resumption of disarmament negotiations in Geneva and that the United States has suggested the 17-nation talks resume July 27.

POLL TAXES — Johnson said he has asked Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach to work with House and Senate conferees in an effort to deal with state poll taxes in the voting rights bill. The measure as passed by the House would ban the use of state poll taxes in state or local elections. The Senate's version of the bill would not ban them, but would call for a quick court test on them. The President said he hopes the conferees can "agree on satisfactory language that will give us the most effective repeal provision that is obtainable and that we think can be supported in the courts." He said he is against the poll tax and would like to see it repealed.

CIVIL RIGHTS — Asked about comments by some Republican leaders who have suggested that over the years you have changed your position on civil rights," Johnson said, "I am going to try to provide all of the leadership that I can, notwithstanding the fact that someone may point to a mistake or 100 mistakes that I made in my past."

Following announcement of Marshall's nomination, Sens. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., and Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., applauded his record on the Circuit Court of Appeals, on which he was appointed by President John F. Kennedy on Sept. 23, 1961. Marshall served under a recess appointment and was not confirmed until Sept. 11, 1962. At that time 16 Southern Democrats voted against him.

In announcing the appointment of Marshall, Johnson noted that the nominee will be taking a reduction in salary. He drawn $30,000 yearly as a circuit judge, will get $28,500 as solicitor general.

Marks was employed in various positions in the Federal Communications Commission, including assistant to the general counsel, and was appointed by Kennedy as one of the original incorporators of the Communications Satellite Corp.

The nominee served as attorney for the Johnson radio-television interests in Texas when Mrs. Johnson placed her holdings in trust.

Dirksen made no comment on Marks' qualifications for his new job. Mansfield said he does not know the nominee well, but assumed that Johnson had found him qualified for the post. Holland said, "I never heard of him."

Mars Photos Set to Begin Later Today

whether the so-called canals are the handiwork of intelligent beings.

Even if the camera should fail, scientists say they will not be overly disappointed in the $200-million Mars exploration program. The windmill-shaped craft carries instruments to measure solar radiation trapped in Mars' magnetic field — a possible hazard to a manned landing planned in the 1970s.

If its radio is working when Mariner 4 swings behind Mars, precise calibration of the fading signal will show the density and depth of the planet's atmosphere.

MRS. AND MRS. CLIFFORD MELKER ERICKSON

Miss Louise Smith and Rite Clifford Melker Erickson, both of Waltham, Mass., were united in marriage June 26 at First Baptist Church, Waltham. Miss Smith was a teacher of Grade 1, Lincoln School, Manchester.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert R. Smith, Waltham. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Erickson, Waltham.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore a full-length gown of silk faille, designed with lace trimmed scooped neckline, short sleeves, A-line skirt and chapel train. Her veil of silk illusion was arranged from a large cluster of fabric petals, and she carried a bouquet of white roses, snapdragons, carnations and baby's breath.

Mrs. Edward J. Gorman of Living AFB, Maine, a cousin of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Suzanne Neagle of Waltham, Miss Joyce Perry of New Bedford, Mass., and Miss Marianne P. Hart of Marblehead, Mass.

The bridal attendants were dressed alike in full - length gowns of mint green, fashioned with chiffon skirts and lace bodices. They wore headbows to match their gowns and carried bascets of white snapdragons, yellow carnations, orange roses and baby's breath.

Leonard Erickson of Waltham served as his brother's best man. Ushers were Ens. Ralph Mabie of Whiting Field, Milton, Fla.; Joseph LaGreca of Waltham and John Oldham of Rhode Island.

Mrs. Smith wore a turquoise crepe sheath with matching accessories and a corsage of yellow roses. The bridegroom's mother wore a pink crepe sheath, matching accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

A reception was held in the vestry of the church.

Mrs. Erickson is a graduate of Bridgewater, Mass., State College, where she received a B.S. degree in education in 1964. Ens. Erickson is a 1964 graduate of Tufts University School of Engineering, where he received a B.S. degree in mechanical engineering. He is serving in the U.S. Navy Air Corps. The couple will live in Milton, Fla.

School Board Shifts Tripp, Names New Avery Principal

The board of education last night appointed Joseph Tripp principal of the Union School and Ellsworth middle school and named a West Hartford man, Philip R. Smith, to replace Tripp as principal of the Avery Street School.

Tripp will fill a vacancy created by the recent resignation of James Welch as Union and Ellsworth principal.

Tripp's 13 years of public school experience include three years as a teacher of seventh grade mathematics and science in Southington, before he came to South Windsor as a teacher of science in Grades 7 and 8 at the Wapping school. He was made principal of the Avery Street School upon its completion in 1959.

Tripp is now doing graduate work in school administration, reading and science at the University of Connecticut. He served as chairman of the town's science curriculum revision committee during 1964-65.

Smith served last year as the elementary mathematics consultant in West Hartford. For the two previous years, he was assistant principal at the Duffy School there. He has served as a teaching principal in the Amherst, Mass., school system.

He becomes principal of the Avery Street School immediately.

Smith is a graduate of St. Anselm's College, and received his masters degree at the University of Massachusetts. He has taken further graduate study at both St. Joseph's College and Central Connecticut State College.

He was appointed to the National Science Foundation Mathematics Institute at Rutgers University.

Smith began his professional career 11 years ago as a junior high school mathematics teacher at the Frontier Regional High School in South Deerfield, Mass. He also taught Grades 5 and 6 in South Deerfield and West Hartford.

He has served as an instructor at the University of Hartford and as a visiting lecturer at Worcester, Mass. State College.

He has served as treasurer of the Associated Teachers of Mathematics in Connecticut, conducted a systemwide pupil orientation meetings and inservice workshops in West Hartford, served as convention speaker in his field of modern mathematics.

He holds memberships in the National Education Association and Connecticut Education Association.

Smith and his wife have one daughter.

Chief Crombie advised the building commission that a serious fire protection problem exists at the Eli Terry School site. The letter notes that the fire hydrant at the school is 200 feet from the nearest paved driveway, which makes the hydrant inaccessible.

Chief Crombie stated in his letter that he would be glad to view the site with the building commission to recommend a change in hydrant placement.

Warner stated that he has received a letter from the president of the South Windsor Kindergarten Association, offering its equipment to the board of education when it institutes public kindergartens.

Board member Mrs. Julia Durig expressed the board's thanks to the association for its offer and moved that it be accepted.

Warner stated that the Pleasant Valley Kindergarten Association also has offered to turn over its equipment for use in the public kindergartens. Thanks was expressed to both groups on behalf of the board.

Mrs. Durig commented graduation awards should come from the board of education. She said that there were many areas in which a student could receive awards.

Mrs. Durig said she was in favor of giving awards to graduating students to "encourage scholarship, good attendance and excellence in work."

She called for uniformity in presenting, and selecting candidates, for awards throughout the school system, and moved that a study be made by the superintendent's office of student graduation and awards on the elementary and high school level. The report is to be presented to the board of education by midyear.

The board named a preliminary committee to make recommendations on a local conference on public education, to be held in September. Mrs. Jane Romyn, Mrs. Durig and Harry Anderson, all board members, and Superintendent Warner, are on the committee.

A report prepared by high school principal Fred Carido, on the 1965 graduating class of the South Windsor High School was presented to the board by Warner.

The report showed that, of the 194 graduates, 17 plan to attend a public four-year college, 21 plan to attend private four-year colleges, 23 plan to attend a two-year junior college, three plan to attend a technical school, three nursing school, eight business school, five postgraduate work, six technical school (no degree) and one hairdressing school.

The percentage of graduates planning to attend either a public or private four-year college is 38.36. The class was composed of 80 girls and 54 boys.

Discussion of the proposed resolutions, to be presented to the Connecticut Association of Boards of Education, was tabled to the next meeting.

Secretary Named

Town Manager Terry V. Sprenkel announced today that Mrs. Irene O'Neill of 2529 Ellington Rd. has been appointed secretary to the town manager.

Mrs. O'Neill, a town resident for nine years, was top scorer on a recent examination and will begin work Aug. 2.

Since November, 1962, Mrs. O'Neill has worked at the state prison as an administrative secretary. Prior to her work with the state, Mrs. O'Neill worked for Manpower Inc. of Hartford.

In announcing Mrs. O'Neill's appointment, Sprenkel stated he was pleased with the excellent background of the applicants.

Sprenkel said that he was pleased that the town had finally compiled a list of town residents, qualified under civil service rules, large enough to make the appointment. The position has long been vacant.

Legion Delegates

Alternates for the auxiliary are Alice Scagel, Marie DiCiancis and Doris Mikelis.

The Legion auxiliary has announced that it won the Legion's District One award. Anne Skinner and Dorothy Colton won the poppy poster contest for the auxiliary district.

Temple Board Meets

Temple Beth Hillel will begin the fall membership drive this week, according to Temple President Abraham Glassman. The board will meet July 20 at 8:15 p.m. at the Temple; committee chairmen and interested members are invited. Further information is available from Glassman, 74 Miller Rd. or Dr. Lawrence Andros, 86 Birch Rd.

Family Picnic

Mrs. H. H. Hoskins, Main St., has announced that the Hoskins Family Association will hold it annual family picnic Saturday at Emerson Park, Auburn, N. Y.

DeLos Leland Hoskins of Auburn is president of the family association. H. H. Hoskins of South Windsor was former president. Mrs. Hoskins is the association's genealogist.

Driver Sought

BRIDGEPORT (AP) — A 15-state alarm has been broadcast for Donald Gray of 272 Williams St., a 42-year-old truck driver employed by the Connecticut Gray's employer, said Gray collected about $2,000 in cash from the firm's customers Tuesday morning but failed to complete his route.

The truck had $8,000 worth of cigars, cigarettes and other merchandise in it when it left the company, the official said.

Appeal Denied, Sheppard Must Return to Jail

Supreme Court, as his attorney has vowed.

The court of appeals also denied a defense motion for the full court of six judges to consider the request for a rehearing.

In its brief opinion, the court said its original majority holding was based "upon the conclusion that the petitioner had failed to meet his burden of proving that as a matter of speculation, but as a demonstrable reality" that upon his trial he was deprived of federally granted constitutional rights."

The opinion referred again to defense claims that the trial judge had made pretrial remarks which should have prevented him from presiding over the case.

"As to the latter issues," the appellate court said, "we decline to hold clearly erroneous the district judge's finding that the trial judge had made the remarks attributed to him.

Board to Try Plan For Insurance Fees

The Vernon Board of Representatives has agreed to give a one-year trial to a proposal to take the town's insurance out of politics and place it in the hands of professionals.

The proposal, submitted by a sub-committee headed by Thomas Wolff, will have a five-man insurance advisory board created to consider the town's insurance. Coverage would be handled by an agent of record selected by the advisory board and approved by the board of representatives.

Under the terms of the proposal, only agents who derive at least 75 per cent of their income from insurance sales would be eligible for appointment to the board. They will be reimbursed five per cent of the commissions paid from town insurance.

The agent of record will receive 50 per cent of the commissions.

Advisory board members must be general agents, and not representatives of a specific insurance company.

The 25 per cent commissions remaining after advisory board members and the agent of record are paid will go to the town.

Wolff noted that under his proposal commissions would go into an escrow fund, and advisory board members and the agent of record would be paid at the end of the year.

Wolff's proposal was submitted to the board quite some time ago and was defeated then. Main controversy at that time was whether Wolff and Richard McCarthy, also a board member, were eligible to serve on the advisory board.

Town counsel Robert Baum later ruled that the charter prevents the two insurance agents on the board of representatives from serving on the advisory board.

At that time Wolff, who was recently named to the Million Dollar Round Table for the eighth straight year, offered to serve without compensation.

Among the proposals presented at Monday's board of representatives meeting was one by former mayor Herman Olson who suggested that advisory board members be paid a set fee, instead of commission.

Then they'll go out & get the best possible coverage," Olson said.

Thomas G. Carruthers, a board member and a Republican Town Chairman, has constantly insisted that underwriters be permitted to serve on the advisory board.

"If an underwriter happens to work for an insurance company recommended by the advisory board, it would be an unusual coincidence," Wolff replied.

Wolff noted that the advisory board would not have any power: That any recommendations would have to be approved by the board of representatives.

Movies Planned

A program of children's movies will begin tonight at Henry Park at 8:45 and will continue for the next six weeks.

The program will include cartoons and short comedies in color, and the program will last about 30 minutes. The program has been popular for the last several years.

Recreation officials suggest that parents should accompany small children because the youngsters will get home after dark.

The Vernon Junior Swimming team will participate in a triangular meet in Windsor today at 5 p.m. with Windsor and Simsbury.

The local swimmers lost their first meet Monday to Newington.

Carleton "Bebe" Milanese was elected chairman of the Vernon Recreation Commission, and Mrs. Alyce List was named secretary.

Promoted

Lance corporal Michael J. Angelo, was promoted to his present rank July 1 at Camp Lejune, N.C. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Angelo of 6 Allen Dr. He joined the marines last July after graduation from Howell Cheney Technical School.

Trumbull Home Open to Public

The historic Jonathan Trumbull Homestead at Lebanon will be open to the public Thursday, July 22, for a tea and sale sponsored by the Connecticut DAR, owners of the landmark.

Proceeds of the sale will be used for the Trumbull House Restoration fund. Hostesses will conduct a guided tour of the Homestead.

Built by Joseph Trumbull between 1735 and 1840, the house was the home and war office of his son, Jonathan, who became Governor of Connecticut in 1769. Miss Mary Hubbard Dutton bequeathed the house with a trust fund for its care, to the DAR in 1908.

Many of the original Trumbull possessions have found their way back to the house, which is furnished according to the period when it was Jonathan Trumbull's home.

12th Circuit Court Cases

VERNON SESSION

A Market Street tavern figured in the fines of four men presented before Judge Max Belcher in court yesterday. Leonard G. Brace Jr., 33, of 14 West St., was fined $5 after he pleaded guilty to a charge of intoxication. Brace was discovered by police as he tore shingles from the tavern.

In a companion case, William Davis, 25, of 746 Hartford Tpke., was also fined $5.

Two men who were arrested as they fought in front of the same cafe were fined. Hartley R. Frazier, 39, of 6 Cherry St., paid a $25 fine on a charge of breach of peace, and his sparring partner, Kenneth K. Hoke, 31, of 37 Virginia Ln., Tolland, was fined $5 for intoxication.

Henry P. Baily, 39, of 29 Vernon Ave., pleaded innocent to charges of indecent assault and injury or risk of injury to a minor child. His case was continued to July 27 for a hearing in probable cause for possible bindover to superior court.

Edmond G. Dube, 31, of 14 Hudson St., Manchester, was fined $25 on a charge of breach of the peace, stemming from an incident on Park Place.

Robert Ham, 46, of 71 Berkley Dr., was given a 30-day suspended jail term and probation for one year on a charge of breach of peace by assault. The charge stemmed from a domestic dispute.

William E. Winne, 22, of 35 Kenwood Dr., Manchester, was fined $35 on a charge of breach of peace. The charge was reduced from larceny. Asst. prosecutor John Lombardo told the court that Winnie had taken four hubcaps from a car, but later returned them. Winnie said he had been drinking just before the incident.

Thomas Chatenay, 18, of Sunset Dr., had a charge of intoxication nolled (not prosecuted).

Other dispositions: James Cromwell Jr., 17, Mountain Spring Rd., Tolland, hazardous parking, $10, parking without lights, $10; Howard W. Wilson Jr., 17, Ellington, failure to obey state traffic control markings, $25, failure to carry license, $3, and failure to carry registration, $3.

PROBLEM IN MODESTY

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP) — Farley Bonner Hodges says she recently ordered a two-piece bathing suit from a mail order firm.

When the package arrived, it was two pieces all right — both tops.

Mrs. Hodges mailed back the pieces and said she wanted the usual two-piece suit — top and bottom.

Sorry, the mail order house replied in a letter, we don't have suits with bottoms in that style.

TROOPER SUMMONED

Delaware State Trooper J.P. Esham told Magistrate J. Alton Knowles that Mr. Spence was doing 78 miles per hour in a 35-mile zone.

Then Esham was arraigned before Knowles on a warrant charging that he drove 32 miles an hour in a 35-mile zone.

The warrant was signed by Nelson N. Spencer Sr., a passenger in his son's car. He said the violation occurred as Esham led the Spence car to the magistrate's office.

FREE BANK LOAN

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A 58-year-old steel worker who went to his bank for a $1,000 loan was amazed when the bank gave it to him as a gift.

Officials of the Marine Trust Co. of Western New York handed Henry A. Knave, of suburban Orchard Park, ten $100 bills Tuesday and marked his loan paid in full.

A bank spokesman said that last month the bank noticed it had granted 400,000 loans and decided to make a gift of a loan sought by its 700,000th customer.

Knave was No. 700,000.

RAILROAD PLAYHOUSE

LISBETTTOWN, Md. (AP) — Twenty-five miles from the nearest railroad tracks, a Baltimore-Ohio Railroad caboose stands in a backyard of this tiny Western Maryland community.

The 50-year-old car serves as a playhouse for Marina Sgt. William M. Bill's children.

Sgt. Bill said the idea of a caboose for a children's playhouse originated with his wife, Martha.

Last year, Bill found a caboose in the B&O yards at Brunswick, Md., ready for the scrap heap. He persuaded railroad officials to sell it to him for $350, then he spent another $480 having it moved the 35 miles to his backyard.

BIG (FERRIS) WHEEL

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Jim Baldch, 19, a San Jose City College freshman, today claimed a world record on the ferris wheel — 14 days of continual revolution.

The student slept, ate, listened to a radio and talked on a phone while aboard the ferris wheel gondola, located in a San Jose amusement park. He staggered slightly as he landed Tuesday, but said he was feeling fine.

Norway Opens Design Center

OSLO — The Norwegian Design Center, first of its kind in Scandinavia and Europe's largest, has just been opened in Oslo. It occupies two floors, with a total of 26,000 square feet, in Oslo's new 19-story House of Industry.

The center, created by a non-profit foundation, will receive a government subsidy for five years. Initial exhibits number about 800 high-quality products from 350 Norwegian firms. The center will also conduct design courses, perform market research and hold prize competitions.

Mutton Market Created

TOKYO — Promotion of New Zealand mutton, particularly in school lunch programs, has resulted in a rise in imports of the meat from four tons to 40,000 tons a year in the past five years. The mutton is served to 2½ million Japanese schoolchildren in stews and curries.

Whale Transfer Poses Several Tricky Questions

SOINTULA, B.C. (AP) — Four-ton Namu, the killer whale who blundered into a salmon net, plowed on toward United States waters today — and nobody seemed to know the answer to the question:

What does the law have to say about taking a live whale across an international border?

The best guess: nothing.

"Nobody has asked me this before," said Samuel Hutchinson, regional director of the U.S. Bureau of Fisheries in Seattle, Wash. "We have never been confronted with this problem."

They're free to export so far as we're concerned," said Canadian Fisheries officer Maurice Houghton in Vancouver, B.C. "We have export regulations covering salmon, but not whales."

Avery Peterson, Canadian consul-general for the United States, proved that diplomacy extends even to killer whales.

"The whale is a very benevolent beast and, I understand, takes exceptionally good care of his young," Peterson said. "I believe it would come under the immigration and Naturalization Act."

Fishermen who shoot at them, rate killer whales a notch or two below barracuda for benevolence.

The 22-foot whale has been purchased by Seattle aquarium operator Ted Griffin, who paid $8,000 to the two fishermen who netted him at Namu, B.C. A 40-by 60-foot pen was built for Namu at Namu and the whale, pen and all, is being towed the 400 miles to Seattle.

The trip is expected to take another week because the tug, the powerful Isaac Foss of Tacoma, Wash., is making only three knots. It can go faster, but Namu can't.

Meanwhile in Seattle, a civic row has developed over whether the chairmanship of waterfront restaurateur Ivar Haglund, who complains: "There is no accepted protocol for welcoming killer whales."

Namu's odyssey has even inspired a newspaper editorial.

"All of us should be grateful to Namu," the Seattle Times said Tuesday. "The whale business of the whale is a pleasant diversion for the populace in a summer when diversion is needed."

Rides for Children Available To Fife, Drum Corps Muster

Transportation will be provided for all children interested in attending the annual muster of fife and drum corps Saturday from noon to 8 p.m. in Deep River.

The selectmen's office is to be contacted before 4:30 p.m. Thursday by all persons needing transportation. Cars will leave from the town office building at 10:30 a.m. An executive committee is formulating plans for a local fife and drum corps in sponsoring the trip to the affair which will include a parade and demonstrations by various groups.

On this local level, the committee has drawn up proposed bylaws and is to meet July 21 to time and place to be decided. The meeting will be in the interest of adopting such rules and regulations prior to the formation of a local corps.

Meetings

The board of selectmen meets at 8 p.m. Friday in the town office building, instead of tomorrow. The meeting date has been changed because Democrats have their caucus at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the Robertson School.

All boys in Grades 7 through 12 interested in playing summer soccer are to meet today at 6:30 p.m. in Coventry High School cafeteria. Raymond DuCharme will be in charge of setting up teams.

Heads JA Program

Twenty-five-year-old Arthur C. Forst Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Forst Sr. of Seagraves Rd., has been appointed executive director of the Junior Achievement of Northern Virginia, Inc. This is a program enabling high school students to learn about business and free enterprise by organizing and managing their own business. Forst's office is in Washington, D.C.

Forst received his elementary education in Coventry, is a 1958 graduate of Windham High School in Willimantic where he was a "B" honor student for four years; a 1962 graduate of the University of Connecticut, with a bachelor of arts' degree, majoring in political science and a minor in history and sociology. He did a year of graduate work at Suffolk University School of Law in Boston.

While living in Coventry, Forst was appointed to the town's Insurance Advisory Committee for 1963-65, and was a member of the Democratic Town Committee for four years.

Opens Shop

Mrs. Mary Ellen Forst of Seagraves Rd. opens her curio shop on Rt. 32 in Mansfield tomorrow with hours from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday and from 11:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. Sunday.

The sixth annual Tri-Town Horse Show starts 10 a.m. Sunday at the Toland Agricultural Center on Rt. 30 in Vernon. Judges will be Nancy Potter Smith of Franklin and Donald Gaylord of Storrs. Classes open to anyone under 21 years of age are: Hunt seat, saddle seat, western and pony, with trophies to be awarded in each category. The affair is to be held rain or shine. Further information may be had from Mrs. Roger Hatch of Stafford.

The Coventry riders donated $100 from the proceeds of last year's show toward the barn at the agricultural center. The towns jointly gave money to buy lumber for a new judges' stand and refreshments booth, and for a new set of jumps.

Refreshments will be available during the day's events.

Colony Meeting

The Actor's Colony Assn. has scheduled a special meeting Aug. 29, place and time to be announced. The association's annual meeting scheduled July 12 could not be held because of a lack of a quorum. Those attending voted that last year's officers remain.

Mrs. Duane Follansbee was elected secretary to replace Mrs. May-Britt Longley, who resigned and David Kinsman was elected the private development constable, replacing Joseph Krasnansky, who also resigned.

Grange Program

Coventry Grange meets at 8 p.m. Thursday to hear a nature travel program by the Hillstown Grange of East Hartford, and to observe youth night at the Grange hall on Rt. 44A.

Recreation Openings

There are openings in the girl's recreation program, sponsored by Coventry recreation committee, from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at Coventry High School. Further information is available from Mrs. Everett Thompson of Bellevue, a committee member, or Miss Jane French, class instructor.

Seven Scouts of Troop 60 passed cooking and two hiking tests over the weekend: Curt Wittig, Timothy Murphy, Steven Montgetti, Edward Bristol, Peter Tilley, Richard Waitte and William Pratt, Jr. Unable to attend the overnight camp out were Jeffrey St. Martin and Kenneth Clark. Accompanying the troop were William Pratt Sr., scoutmaster, and Edwin Wittig and David Samuels, assistant scoutmasters.

People In the News

JOAN SUTHERLAND

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Joan Sutherland's triumphal return tour of her Australian homeland ran into a spot of trouble today as one of the assistant conductors quit because of a dispute with the soprano's husband.

"It was an artistic disagreement," said conductor John Matheson. "Will horses won't drag anything more out of me."

Miss Sutherland's husband, Richard Bonynge, is artistic director and principal conductor of the company which she and the J.C. Williamsons agency formed for the operatic tour.

Bonynge refused to discuss the dispute with Matheson but John McCallum, Williamsons' joint managing director, told newsmen: "Yes, there has been an artistic disagreement. Mr. Matheson is leaving, but the company is very well off for conductors."

In addition to Bonynge, it has three — chorusmaster Gerald Krug, William Weibel and Georg Tinter. The troupe is presenting a repertoire of eight operas.

GAMBLE GALLAGHER

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Heiress Gamble Benedict and her new husband, state police investigator Thomas F. Gallagher Jr., honeymooned in Bermuda instead of Ireland, Gallagher says.

"I hope there were a lot of press agents waiting at the Dublin airport," Gallagher said. When they were married July 1 in Clinton, N.Y., the couple said they were going to Ireland.

Gallagher, back this week to attend special classes in homicide in suburban Loudonville, said: "We would like to lead a normal, quiet life now. My wife has resolved herself to the irregular life of a trooper — she's one in a million."

RAJMOHAN GANDHI

NEW YORK (AP) — Rajmohan Gandhi, 39-year-old grandson of Mahatma Gandhi, says he has invited 100 young Americans to tour Asia to display "a more exciting revolution" to their counterparts in the nonaligned world.

Gandhi, editor of an English-language news magazine in Bombay, said Tuesday in an interview he hopes to sponsor such a tour for the members of a musical revue created by students attending a demonstration on Mackinac Island, Mich.

Gandhi came to the United States to attend the demonstration sponsored by Moral Re-Armament, an international organization. He heads the movement in India.

ANNA KASHFI

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Anna Kashfi cried Tuesday on the witness stand as she told how actor Marion Brando, her ex-husband, took custody of their child, Christian Devi, last Dec. 7.

Miss Kashfi is charged with assault. A policeman who accompanied Brando said Miss Kashfi slapped the movie star during a wild argument over possession of the boy, now 7.

Brando testified that several medical authorities told him Miss Kashfi was psychoneurotic.

JOHN ANDERSON

DETROIT (AP) — John Anderson Jr., 48, former governor of Kansas, has been appointed as executive director of the newly formed Citizens Committee on State Legislatures.

The appointment was announced Tuesday. The group was formed recently to improve the public image of legislatures and build support for them.

When Shirts Pile Up

It can happen easily in the summertime. Drive up to "MARTINIZING" TWO-HOUR SHIRT SERVICE at 299 West Middle Tpke. The men in the family will like the way the gleaming shirts are prepared and packaged. Comfortably crisp, meticulously pressed, there is something very special about a professionally "done up" shirt at "MARTINIZING", now located also at MAIN AND BIRCH STREETS. Bring all your fine garments and home accessories to "MARTINIZING" and know that your apparel will be thoroughly cleaned and pressed and returned to you looking like new. Here is dry cleaning of the better kind. All work is done right on the premises. The minute your back is turned, capable hands are taking the first of many steps to freshen and renew the appearance of your wardrobe.

For scalp and hair health avoid heavy coatings of spray. Spray the hair with quick spurts with the container held 10 to 12 inches from the head. This gives an even distribution.

Weight watchers will find their diet foods tastier. One manufacturer recently introduced milkshake flavors — chocolate marshmallow, cherry, banana and tutti-frutti — to its prepared diet liquids.

A good way to shorten the sleeve of a coat is to stitch a tuck in the lining. In fact, it is sometimes wise to buy a growing girl's coat with sleeves too long and to give it this treatment. When longer sleeves are needed, it's simple to pull the stitches out of the tuck in the lining where they do not show.

HUSBANDS ALSO HAVE THEIR DOUBTS

For years now the experts on family living have been worrying out loud and in print over the American housewife and how confused she is over her role in modern society. She has been pictured as feeling guilty if she works outside the home and guilty if she doesn't contribute to the family income.

She's not sure, according to the experts, of her own worth—because everyone tells her how easy she has it with all of today's labor-saving equipment.

She no longer even believes that "mother knows best" about her own children and so she is a frightened, instead of a confident, parent.

Now a sociologist who has been teaching marriage courses for many years claims that the American husband is confused about his role, too. Dr. Henry A. Bowman of the University of Texas says men "no longer have a definition of what it takes to be a real two-fisted, red-blooded he-man."

Because there is no real way for a city dweller to measure this quality in himself many men today, says the professor, become too absorbed in their jobs, spending more time than they should away from home. Or they become overly strict in disciplining their children. Or they try to prove their masculinity by woman-chasing.

If both men and women are as confused and uncertain in their roles in this fast-changing world as the experts claim, it would seem that in this period of transition husbands and wives should try harder than ever before to make each other feel secure, needed, loved and admired.

After all, a wife isn't going to worry too much about her own worth and her own contribution to the world if her husband lets her know that he thinks she is a wonderful wife, a fine mother, a stimulating companion and real helpmate (whether she is a full-time homemaker or a working wife).

And a man needn't worry about proving his masculinity if his wife glories in it — letting him be head of the family, leaning on his strength and building up his ego as only a truly feminine woman can.

So while husbands and wives are stumbling along trying to find their way, they can make the road much easier for each other — if they only will.

'Nuoc Mam' Seen Worse Than Cong

They are "Viet Cong." The other two are "Nuoc Mam."

There are some who say they'd rather face the Viet Cong for a week than spend an hour in the presence of Nuoc Mam.

Nuoc Mam isn't the name of an enemy organization. Aside from rice, it is the most highly prized item in the Vietnamese diet.

A pungent sauce eaten at most meals, Nuoc Mam is made by pressing alternate layers of fish and salt that have been left standing for a period of weeks or months. What drips through, friends, is an oily, odoriferous mixture that assaults the nose.

There are three squeezings of Nuoc Mam, but the first squeezing is most highly prized. Heaven help the man who gets the third.

The Vietnamese douses it liberally on rice, meat, fish, poultry and most vegetables. After considerable urging, and some trepidation, I sampled it at a Vietnamese dinner recently and wound up eating a saucer of it.

It is quite flavorful, but like olives or raw oysters it's an acquired taste. You don't notice the odor yourself. But after I returned to the press camp, my friends insisted I stand downwind from them for the rest of the evening.

Most Vietnamese eat fairly well. They consume only about two-thirds as much daily calories/protein and vitamins, particularly among the poorer classes. They rarely get beef, and when they do it often comes from an elderly water buffalo who spent the best years of his life stolidly plowing the paddies.

Incidentally, you may have heard much of the ability of Oriental soldiers to perform miracle feats of military endurance while fueled by only a handful or two of plain boiled rice.

"There is no doubt they can do a lot on little," he said. "But they don't get by on just rice and salt.

"Only about 55 per cent of their diet is rice. The remainder consists of about 15 per cent fish, poultry or meat, and 30 per cent vegetables, such as potatoes, cabbage, turnips, cucumbers, peas and beans."

Some troops, like some people at home, aren't quite sure just why we are over here. It has been explained officially, of course, again and again that Americans are here at the invitation of the South Vietnamese government to help the people in their quest for political freedom from the North.

But the most eloquent statement of our purpose here was made by a young U.S. Army lieutenant.

"What we are doing here is nation building," he said. "Until the country is raised to a 20th century level, this war won't be over. It may take 10 or 15 years.

"They're growing very fast economically and technologically. But their thinking isn't growing that fast. That's why it will take so long."

Hoisting Vivien Calls for Raise Say Registrars

MYSTIC (AP) — Two women registrars of voters are seeking $10 each from the town of Stonington for their unexpected labor of hoisting Vivien Kellems out of a voting booth during the June 15 election of delegates to the state's constitutional convention.

Mrs. Flora Morin, Republican registrar, and Mrs. Agatha Markle, her Democrat counterpart, have billed the town a total of $50 each for their chores at the polling place. Of the amount, $40 was for regular duties.

The $10 item on their bills was for "forcing removal of Miss Vivien Kellems from voting booth on order of the moderator, James Fusaro..."

Miss Kellems, 69-year-old retired industrialist, planned to stage a stink when she came to vote, in protest of the manner in which delegates to the constitutional convention were elected. She said voters actually had no choice in the matter.

She entered the booth and sat down on a suitcase. The moderator ordered her removed, and the two women registrars lifted her out of the booth.

SMART POLICEMEN

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Fulltime sheriff's deputies in Multnomah County will need a college degree.

The County Civil Service Commission voted Tuesday night to make the bachelor's degree a requirement for fulltime sheriff's deputies and staff.

Sheriff Donald Clark said no other city, county or state police force has this requirement. Multnomah County is Oregon's largest. It includes the city of Portland.

Clark is a graduate of San Francisco State College and his undersheriff, Samuel Chapman, a former professor of police administration at Michigan State University, graduated from the University of California.

Chapman said the county now has almost 30 college graduates on its force of 210.

ALUMNI LEAGUE

Making every hit count, Green Manor came up with three runs in the seventh inning to beat the Elks, 4-3, last night at the West Side Oval.

It had been a pitch-for-pitch battle between Paul Smyth and Bud Bielski with help from Steve Banas. Smyth allowed only four hits and struck out 10 in losing. He was the only man to collect more than one hit, showing two for the night.

Green Manor 000 010 3—4-5-7
Elks 001 010 1—3-4-4
Bielski, Banas and Sproul; Smyth and Ware

ALUMNI JUNIORS

Paced by Bob Kiernan's two-hit pitching, the Red Sox defeated the Twins, 5-3 last night at Keeney Field. Kiernan survived a trouble-filled third inning to go the distance.

Red Sox 301 01x x—5-4-3
Kiernan and Rouk; Holloran and Hassett.

ALUMNI LEAGUE

Overcoming eight errors, the Orioles defeated the Tigers, 8-4, last night at Charter Oak Park. It was a come-from-behind win, the Tigers scoring all their runs in the first inning.

Bill Sproul and Steve Fish held down the Tiger offense while their mates scored two runs in the third and four more in the fourth to take a commanding lead.

Sproul and Gene Riccio had two hits apiece for the winners while Steve Keeney had a pair for the losers.

SUMMER BASKETBALL

The night was full of Eagles at Charter Oak Park last night. First the Eagle Juniors defeated the Mel Counts, 43-20, followed by East Catholic's Eagles' win over the Hawks, 48-44.

Butch Lacy paced the Juniors with 10 points and a fine all around game. Mates Gary Melody and Dan Lodge chipped in with eight and six points respectively. Art Saverick led the Counts with six points.

Baskets in the final minute of play by Bob Marten and Ray LaGace gave the Eagles their victory over a small but hard-nosed Hawk five. Martens took scoring honors with 20 points, followed by LaGace with 12. Bill Viot paced the losers with 18 points, helped out by George Clifton (12).

DUSTY SOFTBALL

Fighting back from a 7-0 deficit, Sportsman Tavern rallied to beat Rogers, 11-8, last night at Robertson Park. The win gave Sportsman sole possession of third place.

Jack Burkowski with a homer, double and single and Newt Beaudet with three hits paced the winners. Stan Forostowski also contributed a homer and three RBIs to the Sportsman attack.

Roland Spearin included a three-run homer in his three hits for Rogers.

Willie Accomplishes Usual Feats in Annual All-Star Attraction

Battered Mays Batters American League

APPLAUSE FOR WILLIE — Teammates greet Willie Mays as he returns to bench after first inning homer. (AP Photofax.)

MINNEAPOLIS - ST. PAUL (AP)—Willie Mays came to the All-Star Game with a painful bruise and without his batting helmet. But when he left he had accomplished the usual—but a homer, scored the winning run, set two records and managed to squeeze in his fence-crashing act.

Sharing the spotlight with San Francisco teammate Juan Marichal in the voting for the most valuable player, Mays played his usual key role as the National League edged the Americans 6-5 Tuesday and took the lead in the series.

Mays cracked Milt Pappas' second pitch of the game for his third All-Star homer and 21st hit, breaking a tie with Stan Musial for the all-time high in the hit category.

In the seventh inning, Mays led off with a walk and then scored the run that broke a 5-5 tie after singles by Hank Aaron and Ron Santo. The two runs brought Mays' total to 18 in All-Star play, extending his own record.

In the eighth inning, with two on and one out, Dick McAuliffe tagged a long liner toward center. Mays took one step, slipped, then started racing back and made a lunging one-hand catch.

"I don't mind telling you I was scared to death," Mays said in the dressing room "I didn't misjudge it, but I slipped as I started to go back."

What about in the fifth inning when he chased McAuliffe's homer into the center field fence, leaping against it in a futile attempt to make the catch?

"I didn't think it was going over," Mays explained. "I know when I jump, I can get up over the fence, so I thought I had a chance."

Mays hit the fence with such force that he bruised the right side he injured in a home plate collision at Philadelphia Saturday night.

Mays might not have known what he was doing, but Marichal did, edging Willie in the most valuable player balloting 46-45.

The high-kicking right-hander stopped the American League on one hit through the first three innings, easily the most effective performance of the 11 pitchers used in the game.

But he did experience some difficulty with the height of the mound, slipping to the ground on his first pitch before realizing what the trouble was.

ALL WOUND UP—Pitcher Juan Marichal, National League, got into this angular position while working against American Leaguers.

American Mark Poor Since Cronin Arrived

MINNEAPOLIS - ST. PAUL (AP)—The most frustrated man in baseball today must be Joe Cronin. If he isn't, he should be.

Since he took office as president in 1959, his American League has won only two of 11 All-Star Games while tying one. In the same span, the league has lost four of six World Series.

Genial Joe squirmed in the heat Tuesday while the National League once again turned back his American All-Stars 6-5, despite blowing a 5-0 lead.

It marked the fifth straight defeat for the Americans in All-Star and World Series competition.

The National League, which once wanted to call the whole thing off when it found itself trailing 12 games to 4, has taken a lead for the first time since the competition began in 1933.

The victory, their seventh in the last eight decisions, has given the Nationals an over-all 18-17 lead.

The Nationals simply had too many guns Tuesday. They out-hit the Americans 11 to 8 and out-homered them three to two.

Then, when they needed stout pitching after the Americans had made up a five-run deficit, they called on World Series hero Bob Gibson. The St. Louis right-hander stopped the Americans in their tracks.

With the Nationals ahead again 6-5, Gibson came in to pitch the last two innings. After giving up a leadoff double to Tony Oliva in the ninth, raising the hopes of the 46,706 American League partisans, Gibson quickly dashed them by setting down the next three hitters, two on strikeouts.

The crusher was his whiffing of Harmon Killebrew, the Minnesota strong boy whose fifth-inning two-run homer had tied the score 5-5.

As he has done in so many previous All-Star Games, Willie Mays took the spotlight.

The San Francisco wonder boy, unmindful of a painful bruise on his right hip — a souvenir of a home plate collision at Philadelphia Saturday night — opened the game with a home run. It was hit off starter Milt Pappas, Baltimore Oriole right-hander.

Willie didn't get any more hits in his leadoff role, but he walked twice and one of those walks developed into the winning run.

That came about in the sev-pass off Cleveland left-hander Sam McDowell, raced to third on Hank Aaron's single, remained there while Roberto Clemente grounded into a force play and ambled home on Ron Santo's crazily bouncing single over second base.

For two innings, it looked like a breeze for the National League. Taking their cue from Mays, Milwaukee's Joe Torre and Pittsburgh's Willie Stargell followed with homers, each with a man aboard, and before the Americans had their first hit, the Nationals had a 5-0 lead.

In the meantime, the Americans, led by Al Lopez of the Chicago White Sox, could do little with Juan Marichal, the National League starter. The 26-year-old San Francisco right-hander faced only nine men in his three innings. He gave up a single to Vic Davalillo of Cleveland, but the center fielder was erased on a double play.

It was not until the fourth inning, with Jim Maloney of the Cincinnati Reds on the mound, that the Americans finally came to life.

They scored their first run on a walk and singles by Dick McAuliffe of Detroit and Rocky Colavito of Cleveland. Then came the big fifth when the Americans tied the score with four runs.

McAuliffe accounted for the first two with a 400-foot homer over the center field fence. It scored Minnesota's Jimmie Hall, who had walked. Mays ran into the fence in a vain attempt to keep the ball inside the park and jarred his injured right hip.

Brooks Robinson of Baltimore followed McAuliffe's homer with a single and trotted home ahead of Killebrew's 410-foot drive into the pavilion in left center. Mays didn't even bother to turn around to see where that ball was going.

The National used six pitchers to five for the losers. Sandy Koufax, who pitched the sixth inning, was credited with the victory. The Los Angeles Dodgers' southpaw, far from sharp after pitching a complete game Sunday, walked two but worked himself out of trouble.

Don Drysdale of the Dodgers and Dick Farrell of the Houston Astros also saw action for the Nationals. After Pappas the Americans used Jim Grant of Minnesota, Pete Richert of Washington, McDowell and Ed Fisher of Chicago. McDowell was charged with the defeat.

Fifth Defeat for Al Lopez

Rival Star Skippers Hope to Meet Again

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP)—Gene Mauch and Al Lopez, who managed this year's All-Star Game by default, would like to face each other again next year—but this time on their own.

Mauch won in his rookie try while Lopez suffered his fifth loss without a victory Tuesday as the National League edged the American League 6-5 and took a one-game lead in the 36-game All-Star series.

"I'll be more than happy to keep trying to beat them," said Lopez, "if we (the Chicago White Sox) can win a pennant and put me in the game again."

Asked how it felt to help put the National League ahead by one game, Mauch of the Philadelphia Phillies said:

"Good, but not as good as it would feel to manage the team that puts them two games ahead."

Both Mauch and Lopez were substitutes this year. Their teams each missed winning pennants by one game in 1964, but both became the All-Star managers when Johnny Kean of St. Louis and Yogi Berra of the New York Yankees changed leagues.

Following their first encounter, Mauch said his team "would have thought of another way to win it if they hadn't won it the way they did."

The home run hitting of Willie Mays, Joe Torre and Willie Stargell plus the pitching of Juan Marichal and Bob Gibson dominated postgame discussions in the NL dressing room.

But an infield bounder which took two crazy hops after leaving the bat of Ron Santo of the Chicago Cubs in the seventh inning had the American Leaguers shaking their heads.

Sam McDowell of Cleveland, the pitcher at the time, said:

"We should have had an easy double play on it...until it started taking those goofy hops. It had some top spin on it, and it looked like it hit something.

"It was an inside slider that Santo hit—a good pitch. It bounced over me, and it bounced over Bobby Richardson. By the time it got to Zoilo Versalles it was too late."

Fogarty's Lose

Scoring six runs in the sixth inning, the Ridges defeated Fogarty Bros., 7-2 last night in a Willimantic Twilight League contest. Wes Feshler had three hits for the losers while Bill Viot contributed two bingles. Steve McAdam suffered his fifth loss, striking out 11.

Willie Mays of the Giants has three extra base hits for his 64 official bats in 17 World Series Games. They were doubles.

Welcomed Relief for Charges

Boston Sox Rested After Cape Trip

BOSTON (AP)—If nothing else, the reeling Boston Red Sox should be well rested for the opening of a four-game series with the Indians Thursday night.

The break for the All - Star game was a welcome relief for manager Billy Herman's charges. A year ago the Red Sox were only three games under the .500 mark. Now they are 20 under with a 31-51 record.

Second baseman Felix Mantilla, a refugee from the National League who must occasionally wish he were back with the New York Mets, started in the 36th All-Star game at Minneapolis-St. Paul Tuesday. He grounded out and flied out before retiring.

With Mantilla the only Boston representative in the annual inter-league classic, many of the Red Sox spent the day relaxing. Herman and a few of the players remained on Cape Cod, where they went for an outing 24 hours earlier.

Two who returned to Fenway Park were outfielders Carl Yastrzemski and Lennie Green. They are nursing leg and wrist injuries, respectively, and underwent treatment. They also took a little batting practice.

"It's too bad," Pesky said, "I really feel for Billy Herman. Apparently there have got to be some things done."

Ron Zinn Killed, Ex - Olympian

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The U.S. Army announced today that 1st Lt. Ronald L. Zinn, the national AAU two-mile walking champion in 1963-4, was killed a week ago in an anti-Viet Cong operation.

Zinn, 26, represented the United States at the 1964 Tokyo Olympics and finished sixth in the 20-kilometer walk.

A native of Peoria, Ill., he also represented the United States at the 1960 Olympics and at the 1963 Pan-American Games. He finished second at the 1963 International Military Games.

Zinn was a graduate of West Point. The Army said his wife, Barbara, lives in Cambridge, Mass.

Military officials said they had no details of his death in the big operation in D Zone, north of Saigon, in which the U.S. 173rd Airborne Brigade and Australian troops took part.

Other sources said he was killed while leading his platoon during one of the sharp fire-fights between American troops and the Communist guerrillas.

Served Two-Year Apprenticeship

Sullivan Most Surprised When Named A's Manager

NEW YORK—(NEA) — Haywood Sullivan should have known that in the Alice-in-Wonderland world of Charles O. Finley you learn to expect the unexpected.

How else do you explain Sullivan's new job as the fifth manager of the Kansas City A's in the five years Finley has owned the team?

Two years ago, the A's decided that Sullivan was through as a player and handed him a bus ticket to Portland, Ore., and a slight reward for services rendered — the title "player-coach."

"When I left Kansas City," the 34-year-old ex-catcher said, "I frankly didn't know whether I wanted to manage or not."

"I figured I'd give the teaching end of it a few years and then if I didn't have it, I'd get out and do something else while I was still young."

After his apprenticeship as a Portland coach, Charley O. (the man, not the mule), gave Sullivan the head job with the A's farm club in Birmingham, Ala., of the Southern League.

Boss in Minors

"Something must have impressed them," Sullivan said. "We were in first place for 101 days and we had a very young ball club. Although we finished second, it had been a good year."

Next stop: Vancouver, B. C., of the Pacific Coast League.

"I know we got off to a pretty good start," says Sully, "but who would ever expect this to happen?"

Precisely.

The impatient Mr. Finley fired Mel McGaha in early May and announced Sullivan was his new man.

"If a lot of people were surprised," Sullivan said, "think how I felt. At the very moment they were calling me to tell me I was the new A's manager I was out looking for a house in Vancouver so I could bring my family up.

"It was a tremendous break. I realize just how lucky I was when I think of some of those guys who have been managing in the minors for 25 years."

Young Team

The main reason the A's made Sullivan the manager is his ability to work with young ballplayers and Kansas City has more first year players on the roster (seven) than any other club.

"I know most coaches and managers have a certain style that makes them different," Sullivan said. "But I honestly can't say that I do. Not yet anyway. Believe me, I'm still like those young kids out there — just developing."

With a team like the A's the progress can be painfully slow. Joe Gordon, Hank Bauer, Eddie Lopat and Mel McGaha have tried before Sullivan.

TRY NEW LUCKY STRIKE FILTERS

THE Herald Angle

By EARL YOST, Sports Editor

Nice Honor for Nice Guy

Nice honor for a nice guy was the naming of the new $2.6 million health and physical education building at Central Connecticut State College for Harrison Kaiser, known to one and all as just plain Jim. Kaiser is the retired director of athletics and former head coach of baseball, basketball, football and track at the New Britain college when it was better known as New Britain Teachers College.

The new fieldhouse, which overlooks Arute Field, has a gymnasium which seats 4,500, a natatorium wing with a regulation swimming pool and two wings for classrooms and offices.

Central has grown, like many New England colleges, with leaps and bounds since the end of World War II.

When Kaiser came out of Illinois North Central College, after winning 13 letters in the same four sports he later coached, and joined the staff at New Britain in 1934, the total male enrollment numbered but 66 young men.

Ironmen Teams

Despite the lack of personnel, Kaiser's early football teams were known as Ironmen, for obvious reasons, many having to play the full 60 minutes because of the lack of substitutes.

The quiet, well-mannered and popular Kaiser retired in 1962, after 28 years.

Football was his best sport and his 1939 squad missed by just one game—the finale—of turning in an undefeated season. The team received a bid to the Brain Bowl in Missouri.

Besides coaching, Kaiser, who did his graduate work at Columbia University, developed the first intramural program which involved all the young men at New Britain who were not engaged in varsity athletics. During those early days, Kaiser was not only a one-man coaching staff but also a one-man physical education department head.

"A sport for every man, and every man for a sport," became Kaiser's oft-repeated motto and he personally coached every student.

Veteran of service in both World Wars, Kaiser has also made a leading contribution to the New Britain area through church, community and YMCA work.

Due to his immense popularity, a number of alumni proposed Kaiser's name for the fieldhouse. The formal dedication is slated for mid-September.

Dimensions

The fieldhouse is 300 feet long and 220 feet wide. The main lobby contains four box offices and entrances to all wings. Trophies won by Central athletic teams, many of which were achieved when Kaiser was at the helm, will be prominently displayed in two large custom cases.

Folding bleachers of metal and wood will accommodate 4,100 spectators. When opened, the electrically-operated bleachers extend 45 feet onto the floor. Closed, the 16-foot high bleachers nest to the wall and take up only five feet of space. Seating for an additional 400 people will be available at the ends of the basketball court.

Good news for working newsmen is that the press box will be suspended from the ceiling which frames the west bleachers. The area is 70 feet by six feet which should be ample room for all medias of the press.

JIM KAISER

Three parallel 94 by 50 foot basketball courts are located in the gym. The center court will be used for varsity practice and games while the other courts will get full use in the intramural program.

Modern Design

Additional courts include 10 doubles and two single badminton courts, six volleyball courts and two indoor tennis courts.

The natatorium wing, which has a 75 by 42 foot collegiate regular-size swimming pool, can seat 800.

The Kaiser Fieldhouse is the latest in modern design. No penny was spared to provide the best and most complete athletic plant in New England.

No one will be prouder than Jim Kaiser when he steps front and center at the dedication ceremonies.

Off the Cuff

Preliminary plans have already been drafted to stage some basketball action in next season's CIAC Tournaments at the Central gym . . Jim Kaiser Jr., son of the former Central Connecticut director of athletics, is a member of the Manchester High faculty. Young Jim, who was a fine athlete in his own right, resides in Vernon . . . Pat Mistretta, who sports a perfect 5-0 won-loss pitching record with Moriarty's in the Hartford Twilight League, is a member of the Rockville High faculty. Mistretta was a three-sport star — baseball, basketball and football — at West Virginia Wesleyan during his undergraduate days . . . Bill Knight reports plenty of interest and enthusiasm in the new local private tennis club. Anyone wishing any information may contact either Knight or Phil Hyde.

Pagani Caterers Win, One Game from Title

Only one more win away from the Little League Town Championship is Pagani Caterers, by virtue of a 9-5 victory over National League winners, Moriarty Bros., at Waddell Field last night. It's the second victory for Pagani's in the double elimination tourney, having beaten the Army & Navy Club, 12-1, Sunday.

The two losers play Thursday at Verplanck Field at 6 o'clock for the right to get one more chance at Pagani's.

Carl Werkhoven paced the victors on the hill and with the bat. He went the distance for Coach Ed Fitzgerald, fanning eight and walking but three. As a hitter, he collected a double and triple and three RBIs.

Pagani's needed only four hits off Craig Johnston, taking advantage of eight walks and three Moriarty errors. Johnston struck out five in meeting his first defeat of the year.

Ed Rowley has a single for the winners and two RBI's. Dave Sproul had a pair of singles for the losers while Mike Pensiero collected the only extra base hit, a double.

Ahead 5-2 going into the fourth, Pagani's took off with four runs to put it out of Moriarty's reach. The losers staged a late rally, scoring three runs over the last two innings, but Werkhoven regained form to halt it far short.

Church Meeting

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (AP)— The Clark County sheriff's office sent several deputies Tuesday night to break up a bat - swinging free - for - all between two softball teams.

One man was hospitalized with a possible concussion. Another player was treated at the hospital and released.

Deputies said the fight started over an umpire's decision during the game between teams from the Lutheran Inner Mission and Good Shepherd Lutheran Church.

1,000th Hole Coming Up July 25

14th ICO for Veteran Ford, Big ($$) Winner over Years

When Doug Ford putts out on the 10th hole in the final round he will have played exactly 1,000 holes in ICO competition. The 14th annual Insurance City Open sponsored by the Greater Hartford Jaycees will be played at the Wethersfield Country Club July 22-25 with a record high purse of $70,000.

Doug, born in West Haven, first played in the Insurance City Open 13 years ago. During the intervening tournaments he has been in the money every time and collected over $10,000 in prize money.

Won Share of Loot

Since joining the PGA Tour in 1950, the powerfully built 190 pounder has collected 19 tour titles and over $350,000 in official money. Only three other players have won more in the "Modern Era" of tournament golf.

Always one of the most regular of the tour regulars, Ford has reduced his schedules somewhat during the past couple of years, but still captured the Canadian Open championship for a second time in 1963.

Last year he played in only 20 tournaments, and for only the second time since his initial victory in the 1952 Jacksonville Open, failed to win a title during a season.

Just two years earlier, Ford won twice, the first time he had been a double victor since his great 1957 season when he bunched the Los Angeles and Western Open titles with the Masters championship. In 1962, Doug defeated Joe Campbell in a playoff for the Bing Crosby National and also captured the Eastern Open.

Only two other regular players — Arnold Palmer (1956 and 1960 ICO winner), and Billy Casper (1963 ICO winner) — have won more titles on the tour. A professional since 1949, the year before he joined the tour, Doug is one of nine players who have won both the PGA Championship and the Masters.

Son of Pro

He developed an interest to golf at the Van Cortlandt Park course in New York City, but learned the game from his father, Mike. Doug caddied at upstate New York courses where the elder Ford was the professional. He began his habit of playing fast as a boy. "I had to caddie or work in a golf shop," he explains, "the faster I played, the more holes I got in."

As any one of his hundreds of fans here in Hartford will attest, "Doug always looks as though he's playing through the group he's playing with."

No matter what his recent slowing may be, he can never be discounted in a tournament, especially the ICO. As Ford, himself, once summed up his basis style of game while describing a win. "This is a great win for the scramblers. There aren't many of us scrapers left." And he's right.

The Jaycees all want to wish "Durable Doug" the very best of luck in his 1000th Anniversary with the ICO and say that they fully expect him to celebrate his 2,000th with them.

With the purse at $70,000 a growth of $35,000 since the first ICO in 1952, this year's ICO will be the biggest event yet staged.

Club Championship Pairings

Stanley Hilinski Tourney Medalist

Premier tournament of the season at the Manchester Country Club, the coveted Club Championship, starts this weekend with first round play slated in all flights. Joe Evankovech is the defending champion. Medalist laurels in the Championship Flight were won by Stan Hilinski Jr., with a 70.

Hilinski is a former three-time winner — 1956-57-60 — and was runner-up a year ago. Besides Evankovech and Hilinski, the only other former winner in the Championship Flight is Erv Kennedy, 1961 champ.

First round play in the Championship Flight will be played Saturday, second round Sunday, third round on Saturday, July 24, with the 36-hole finals set for Sunday, July 25.

Adolph Named To UConn Post

Dave Adolph, 28, of Akron, Ohio, was named an assistant football coach at the University of Connecticut by J. Orlean Christian, athletic director, who says Adolph has been appointed as an assistant professor and will teach physical education in addition to his duties as a coach. Adolph, a graduate of the University of Akron, received his master's degree in meteorology at the University of Wisconsin and a master's degree in education at Akron.

Legion Nine Plays Bristol, Rockville at South Windsor

Keeping one eye in South Windsor, Zone Four leader Manchester gets a taste of baseball under the lights tonight when it travels to Bristol's Muzzy Field to take on the Bristol Legion at 8. Meanwhile, South Windsor, a half game off the pace, hosts a resurgent Rockville Legion tonight at 6 in a Zone encounter.

Last night's scheduled game between Manchester and Windsor Locks in the Lock Town never was played. When Manchester arrived, the team found no opponent.

Earl Petersen, local manager, said it was a mix-up in dates. The game may be rescheduled in Manchester.

Coach John Cervini's crew is looking to reverse a trend which sees them do poorly outside of Zone Four. In three previous exhibition games, the locals lost to East Hampton and West Haven and managed a tie with Niantic.

South Windsor will be gunning to gain a half game lead in Zone Four against their next door neighbors, and meet Manchester in Manchester Friday night. Coach Porter Blinn's crew holds only one win over the Windy City entry.

Defending champ Rockville, however, seems to have picked up the pace since that loss and still threaten from third place. They have won three straight, the last two coming Sunday on great pitching jobs by Allan Putz and Jim MacKintosh.

Fox Endorsed; Only Break From Town Committee Slate

There was only one upset at last night's Republican caucus in the orderly and largely routine nomination of a slate to run on the GOP ticket in the October town election.

Edward Fox, a local dairyman, running for selectman unendorsed against Stewart Tibbits, the town committee endorsed candidate, won the nomination by 22 votes. The total vote was 89 for Fox and 67 for Tibbits.

A record crowd of about 175, some of whom did not vote, were in attendance at Yeomans Hall.

Other nominees, all endorsed by the town committee, are as follows:

First selectman, Vincent Iedjeski, with 100 votes of the paper ballots cast, defeated Donald Tuttle, with 56. Tuttle moved that the caucus make it unanimous for Sledjeski, and it was so voted.

Mrs. Erminia Lowman overcame Mrs. Arline Gudmandson for the nomination for tax collector, 102 to 48, in the only other contested position.

Others are Mrs. Margaret Dilworth, town clerk; Mrs. Harriet Lyman, treasurer and agent for the town deposit fund; Wallace Lohr and Mrs. Ellen Hills, board of education (Mrs. Hills is a newcomer, and Mrs. Phyllis Fox, present secretary, is retiring); Morris Kaplan, board of assessors; Walter Wheaton and Leonard German, board of tax review; Robert Tuttle and Edward Peterson, zoning and planning commission; Leonard German, zoning board of appeals; Peter Naumec and Wallace Lohr, alternates for the zoning board of appeals; Russell Wheeler Jr., Fred Chowanec and Richard K. Davis, constables.

A rising ovation was given to Clair Robinson, present first selectman, who is retiring after 42 years of service; Mrs. Laura Squire, tax collector, retiring after 29 years; and Mrs. Phyllis Fox, long-time secretary to the board of education.

Sledjeski, who has been second selectman for several years, said, "I was so excited I forgot to read a speech I had prepared." It read, "I deeply appreciate your confidence and trust in nominating me as first selectman. I especially wish to thank my friends, Mrs. Elizabeth Hutchins, Howard Bates and LaVergne Williams, and the town committee, for their support.

"I certainly will do my best, with the assistance and guidance of the Republican town committee, to give our townspeople a good solid administration for as low a dollar as possible. I do hope our slate has everyone's vote in October."

Mrs. Lowman has been active in town affairs for many years. At one time she was employed by the Connecticut Light and Power Co., as bookkeeper and clerk in the collection department. This year she did the town rate book for the tax collector. She has been active in Scouts, Brownies, PTA and the Red Cross bloodmobile. She is secretary of the Republican Town Committee.

She said, "I want to thank everyone for their support at the caucus and I promise to carry out my responsibilities to the best of my abilities, if elected."

Fox manages his large dairy farm, is a former member of the Young GOP and is now on the Republican Town Committee. He is local deputy sheriff. His mother is Mrs. Phyllis Fox.

Fireworks Contributions Will Not Offset Costs

The donations for the fireworks display were more than $300 below last year's reports Henry Wierzbicki, the American Legion commander. A deficit is feared.

Gate donations were $1,064.98 compared to last year's $1,368. Advanced mail contributions totaled $352 this year and last year were $409.

The cost of the entire display will be approximately $1,650 says the commander. This means there will be a deficit of $233.12.

The only thing that will prevent it is the profit the Legion makes on the refreshments sold on the fourth. The total sum has not been figured out yet, but it is believed that it won't be much over $300.

Commander Wierzbicki said that he hoped the surplus would be enough to pay for Manchester's Boy's State representatives, the annual gathering of high school leaders at the University of Connecticut. The money will now have to come out of the Legion's general funds.

Despite the inadequate contributions this year the Legion plans to do the same show next year and try to finance it with contributions again as the show has more than 30,000 people attend each year.

Contributions are still being accepted by the Legion and can be sent to Vincent Ingraham at the Connecticut Bank and Trust on Main St.

Contributions received before the 4th of July but not published are: Dr. Melvin Horowitz, $5; Aerokinetics Instrument Co., $2; Albert T. Dewey, $3; Dr. R. R. Keeney, $5; the Manchester Evening Herald, $15; anonymous, $5; anonymous, $5; Army and Navy Club, $25; Mrs. Austin Cheney, $5; Manchester Women's Republican Club, $5; Charles Lucas, $5; Rogers Corp., $15; Walter Farley, $1; Hans Engel, $1; Wayne Kaygas, $1; and Brae-Burn Realty, $5.

Alarm, Dog Stop Attempt At Burglary

Two attempted thefts failed in the early hours of the morning yesterday and today, report the police.

The burglar alarm and an unfriendly German Shepherd dog frightened off a would-be thief from Gerich's Service Station on Tolland Tpke. this morning say police. Olin Gerich of Wapping, the owner, reports that a broken rear window was the only damage done.

Pry marks on the soft drink machine at Champs Service Station on Hartford Rd. found yesterday morning indicate to police that another attempt to rob a coin box was made. It is the sixth reported attempt in the last five days. Only twice was money actually taken.

A radio was stolen from Richard Trexler of 30 Goslee Rd. within the last month the police report. Trexler says it was probably taken from his cellar.

Charles Fuller Jr. of 34 Marble St. reported his bike was missing yesterday from the Globe Hollow parking lot but a resident of Hackmatack St. called police and said it was left in front of his home. Police have returned it.

Drinking Bandit

HARTFORD (AP) — A man ordered a beer but then pulled a gun and fled with $356 in a holdup of a bar and grill early today.

Only the owner, Charles Sposito, and a waitress were in Sperry's Grill and Restaurant at 698 Park St. when the man entered shortly before 1 a.m.

The waitress went to make some coffee, and then the man told Sposito to hand over the money. Sposito described the gunman as in his early 30s, and with tattoos on both arms.

Autos Collide On Main Street

Two cars collided on Main St. at Woodland St. yesterday when Harris Price, 34, of 38 Deerfield Dr. started to make a left turn into Woodland St. from Main St. and was struck on the left side by Asahel Lathrop, 67 of High Manor Park, Rockville. Damage was done to both cars' fenders but no one was injured.

Lathrop was arrested and charged with passing at an intersection and will appear in court on July 26.

MHS Unit Seeks to Spur Use of Structural Grammar

A Manchester High School committee believes that teachers familiar with structural grammar can better help their students in improving their spelling, vocabulary and understanding of the early writers.

The Curriculum Committee on Structural Grammar said in a report that its purpose was to promote interest in the new method of teaching English and to provide material for teachers.

Structural grammar, the report said, places stress of speech sounds and on the difference between speech and written language. The method also becomes involved in the relationship of parts of sentences.

The study of the structure of English, the report said, has been carried in several classes at the high school for the past two years.

The report said the chief values of structural grammar "have to do with the objective descriptions, the logical generalizations, and inductive methods which aid the understanding of the English teacher's problems in the teaching of reading, spelling, punctuation, effective writing and speaking, as well as the teaching literature."

Structural grammar has some resemblance to the controversial new math in that it goes beyond rules and rote learning and concentrates on basic principles—the whys of the subject.

Like new math, structural grammar employs a number of new terms, including "verb cluster," "function units," "subordinators" and "form classes."

In its report, the committee recommended "more activities and drills" for the classrooms in which structural grammar is taught.

Mariner 4's Picture Signals Hailed by Jubilant Scientists

Photos Are What Men Hoped For

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—Jubilant scientists received from Mariner 4 today what they said were just the kind of Mars picture signals they hoped for.

Late today or early Friday they plan to make public what should be the first close-up photograph of the unknown planet's surface. It could indicate whether Mars harbors life, solving a mystery that has intrigued man for ages.

Mariner 4 flew past Mars Wednesday night and its signals hinted of trouble in the camera's tape recorder.

But this morning, transmitting from beyond Mars en route to an orbit around the sun, the windmill-shaped, 575-pound spacecraft began relaying the first of a hoped-for score of photos.

Signals came in line by line at the rate of one line every two and a half minutes. In all, it required 8 hours and 35 minutes for all 200 lines of the picture to be received.

Scientists at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, which built and controlled Mariner, said "the raw data is exactly what we expected."

He said the signal's strength has been good throughout the transmission to tracking stations at Johannesburg, South Africa, and Madrid, Spain.

The spacecraft was expected to come within the field of the tracking station at Goldstone, Calif., at 12:31 p.m.

Because of its position between the two stations, Madrid was expected to receive all of the first picture, the other stations only parts of it. All three stations will transmit what they receive to the laboratory here, where the signals will be pieced together and converted to a black and white picture.

The spokesman said that at 10 a.m. Mariner 4 was 159,000 miles past Mars, traveling at a speed of 9,933 miles per hour.

The signals are electronic units of information called bits. A bit is either a zero or a one. Six bits make up one dot. There

Many Honors Slated For Fallen Statesman

LONDON (AP) — In death, Adlai Ewing Stevenson started the journey home today—back to Washington where the highest gift of the American people eluded him, then on to Illinois for burial in the state that elected him governor.

Accompanying the body of the fallen statesman were Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, Stevenson's three sons and a party of U.S. officials.

The eloquent spokesman for U.S. policy as ambassador to the United Nations since 1961 and twice the unsuccessful Democratic candidate for president, Stevenson collapsed and died outside the U.S. Embassy Wednesday. The embassy said he had suffered a heart attack. He was 65.

The coffin was removed from a crimson covered catafalque in the U.S. Embassy's main entrance foyer for the trip to the airport, where President Johnson's personal plane was waiting.

Humphrey, the three younger Stevensons and a delegation of U.S. officials had arrived in Johnson's plane three hours earlier.

As the presidential jet plane bearing Stevenson's body was flying across the Atlantic, the White House announced plans for tributes including memorial services at Washington's National Cathedral Friday, with President Johnson attending.

The cathedral services were scheduled for 11 a.m. (EDT). A close friend of Stevenson, Judge Carl McGowan of the court of appeals of the District of Columbia, will deliver the eulogy. Officiating will be the Rev. Dr. Richard Hall Graebel, pastor of the First Presbyterian church in Stevenson's home town of Springfield, Ill.

The funeral plans, arranged by the family with government officials cooperating, called for Stevenson's body to lie in repose in the National Cathedral after its arrival late today until the services are completed there Friday.

Then, the body will be flown to Springfield to lie in state in the Illinois Capitol rotunda from 10 a.m. Saturday until 10 a.m. Sunday.

Burial will be in Bloomington, Ill., on Monday with a private family service at the interment.

In a message to the British people, Humphrey said Stevenson's message for the people of the world was one "of unyielding faith in the basic decency and the common goodness of man, of buoyant optimism in our capacity to make of this world a better place to live.

"Above all, the dogged pursuit of peace on earth."

About 2,000 persons, many of them American tourists, watched in silence as the coffin was carried from the embassy and placed in a hearse. Many

Capital Speculates Over a Successor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Politicians speculated today that President Johnson may want to choose an American with world standing to succeed Adlai E. Stevenson as chief of the U.S. delegation to the United Nations.

Administration officials said that so far no consideration has been given to naming a successor for Stevenson, who died Wednesday in London. But it was expected that Johnson might wish to fill the position soon after the ambassador's funeral because of the pressure of coming events at the United Nations.

Francis T. P. Plimpton, No. 2 man in the U.S. delegation, will take over Stevenson's duties temporarily until a successor is named.

Johnson's comparison Wednesday of Stevenson with Lincoln in his accomplishments was interpreted as indicating the President looks upon the U.N. assignment as one of the most important in shaping world opinion.

Although the field of possible successors is wide, the number of Americans who might rank with Stevenson in world recognition is not too large.

For this reason there was some speculation that the President might want Secretary of State Dean Rusk to transfer to the U.N. post.

Johnson said Tuesday that Rusk "ranks first in the Cabinet and ranks first with me." Whether he would think Rusk more valuable to the country at his side in Washington or at U.N. headquarters in New York was a matter of conjecture.

Undersecretary of State George W. Ball is another who has had wide contact with top ranking diplomats and heads of other states, as has ambassador at large Llewellyn E. Thompson Jr.

Mining Magnate Sought Again In Stock Case

HARTFORD (AP) — The arrest of John Christopher Doyle, 49-year-old Canadian mining magnate, was ordered today when he failed to surrender to the U.S. marshal to begin serving a sentence for using the mails to sell unregistered shares of Canadian Javelin Ltd. stock.

Doyle is board chairman of Canadian Javelin but the firm was not involved when Doyle was indicted.

Unless Doyle can show good reason in U. S. District Court next Monday for his absence today, he runs the risk of spending three years in prison instead of three months at the Federal Institution at Danbury.

At the request of U. S. Atty. Jon O. Newman, U. S. District Judge T. Emmet Clarie ordered the forfeiture of Doyle's $10,000 cash bond under which the Canadian businessman had been at liberty.

Dempsey Asks 'Soil Bank' Land Release

HARTFORD (AP)—Gov. John Dempsey asked the federal government today to release an estimated 2,500 acres on "soil bank" land for grazing to aid drought-stricken farmers.

At the same time, the governor urged Agriculture Commissioner Joseph N. Gill and Water Resources Director William S. Wise, along with related agency heads, to "be ready" to take advantage of any federal assistance that may be forthcoming for the northeast.

In a telegram to Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freedman, Dempsey certified the need for "seasonal grazing and haying for the state due to extreme losses of hay and forage because of prolonged drought conditions."

There are an estimated 5,000 acres of farmland in the state which individual farmers have contracted to plant with "cover crops"—either trees, or grasses and legumes which are not grazed or cropped—under the federal soil conservation program.

About 1,000 acres are from an old "conservation reserve acreage" program, while 4,000 are contracted under the newer feed grain program under which corn land was turned to cover crops.

Viet Nam Believed Topic Of Harriman, Kosygin Talk

MOSCOW (AP) — W. Averell Harriman, a U.S. roving ambassador, talked with Premier Alexei N. Kosygin for three hours in the Kremlin today.

Harriman met with the Soviet premier as soon as Kosygin returned to Moscow from a provincial tour. Here on what is officially called a vacation trip, Harriman had told reporters he wanted to pay his respects to Soviet leaders. But three hours of paying respects was regarded by diplomats as a bit long. A general review of Soviet-American relations was considered more likely.

President Johnson said Tuesday those relations had been strained by the Viet Nam situation but that he was very anxious to maintain relations with Moscow. Johnson said the United States was looking for every opportunity to work with the Soviet Union for peace.

"We would like to improve the relations in any way we can," he added.

Communist correspondents were told later by a government spokesman that the session was "a meeting of an informative character."

"Harriman illustrated the points of view of his government on the international situation, and the situation in Viet Nam could not be omitted," the newsmen quoted the spokesman as saying.

Harriman said later, through an American Embassy spokesman, that he would not comment on his talk with Kosygin. He added that "we discussed my personal plans in the Soviet Union during the coming week."

The embassy also refused to say what else came up. Asked specifically if Viet Nam was discussed, a spokesman replied, "No comment."

The embassy said it had no information on Harriman's future movements. Harriman indicated to reporters earlier he might travel within the Soviet Union and would be in this country at least until next Wednesday.

The Soviet foreign ministry issued a statement on the morning's talks.

Reservoirs Dropping

Bone-Dry Northeast Speeds Conservation

NEW YORK (AP)—"Take brief showers instead of baths."

New York City enlisted these slogans as water conservation programs were stepped up Wednesday by officials in drought-plagued northeastern cities. Some officials looked ahead to avoiding future shortages.

Two blimps cruised over New York Wednesday night flashing the water conservation slogans for the first time from signboards attached to their huge gas envelopes.

Two blimps will cruise over New York tonight, weather permitting, flashing the water conservation slogans for the first time from signboards. High winds prevented the operation from going off Wednesday night.

As supplies in the reservoirs declined again, New York started a house-to-house campaign to show every consumer how to save 25 more gallons of water daily.

In Newark, N.J., Mayor Hugh J. Addonizio told leaders of seven communities sharing that city's reservoirs at Pequannock that he was ordering a 50 per cent cut in pressure in the main that delivers supplies to them as an automatic means of reducing excess use of water. The reser-

Boost to 179,000 Men Sought for Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP)—The nation's military chiefs have recommended unanimously that the strength of U.S. forces in South Viet Nam be boosted to 179,000 men by the end of the year, it was learned today.

This would be more than 100,000 above the 75,000 U.S. force now scheduled to be in South Viet Nam.

This recommendation by the Joint Chiefs of Staff will be considered by top U.S. officials in the light of what Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara determines during his week-long inspection visit to Viet Nam. McNamara left Wednesday night.

Sources told The Associated Press the joint chiefs would include the remainder of the 1st Infantry Division in the new projections for a buildup to meet growing Communist strength. One brigade of that

Skiers, Sailors, Cowboys Inspire New Male Styles

By RHEA STEWART
(Special Herald Writer)

NEW YORK—A man's best accessory is a woman Lilly Dache, who designs for the ladies but has a husband of her own, told the fashion editors of the nation that yesterday at a show of the American Institute of Men's and Boys' Wear, part of the week of fashion shows presented by the New York Couture Group. But she thinks that men are more interested in their own clothes than they pretend, and she likes them in pink shirts and yellow turtleneck pullovers.

A female model, wearing hostess pajamas of wide-mesh fishnet over a body-stocking which fit literally like skin, was one accessory that almost drew attention from the man she accessorized. He was also in at-home clothes, cuffed gray slacks with a formal tucked shirt and black brocade coat cut like a dinner jacket with satin lapels. A gray ascot was tucked in the shirt collar.

Sports clothes were inspired variously by the ski look, the Navy chief petty officer, and the cowboy. That ski look included corduroy knickers and a two-tone fisherman's sweater with turtleneck knitted dickey. The original of the CPO shirt was bought in a Navy surplus store. Its copy appeared with wheat-colored jeans in stretch fabric and a red cotton turtleneck sweater. The cup-shaped hat was described as one "seen often when that man was in the White House and at Campobello." A more current USA president inspired the wide-brimmed hat worn with jeans and a duckskin jacket for the cowboy look.

Slacks of corduroy cut on the bias, in a chevron look, had such a deep look to the corduroy pile that the editors cried out at first, "Look, he's wearing fur pants!"

Hopsacking slacks were worn with a bronze cardigan and a cap taken from the Scandinavian merchant marine accompanied a military raincoat in what was described as "an important raincoat style."

If it was sports clothes that dominated the picture for the man, dressiness and elegance overshadowed everything else among the female fashions. The diamond industry showed its wares at a dinner where the models in formal or at-home clothes were shining like Christmas trees. One model had a Christmas tree shine in a Gothe dress that sells for $1,200 — all shimmering Czechoslovakian crystals embroidered by some Frenchwoman onto white net, crystal by crystal, a six-week job.

Some of the most fascinating lines of formal clothes were seen in this collection that Gina did for Gothe. One a short red chiffon gown, tucks swirled on the bias from shoulder to the hipline, where they were released in fullness that culminated in a hem of ostrich feathers. The same asymmetric seaming gave style to a cut velvet, crimson flowers on a black satin background.

The artist's smock look had sparkle here, in a white silk jersey, smocked at hip and neckline with a tiny brilliant in each puff of smocking and a belt of gold and brilliants. Gothe gave inverted pleats to the hem of one long black gown, and to another a circle of lace godets matching the lace at wrists. A peony pink brocade was an example of "the exit back," a deep V decolletage crossed with straps that buttoned on each side.

Twenty-four carat gold mingled with silk in a side-draped tangerine gown by Jo Copeland of Pattullo. But Miss Copeland also used that most business-like of fabrics, gray flannel, in a long gown that buttoned on a slant almost to the floor. The buttons were large pearls.

How far we have returned to the feminine in fashion was exemplified by a blue brocade evening gown of Jo Copeland that brought to mind the milkmaid dresses worn by ladies of the 18th Century French courts, and was almost as revealing. Its snug basque bodice was laced up the front with the same blue brocade.

This all brought out a new philosophy of fashion that Larry Aldrich, president of the Couture Group and not a fellow to mince words, stated at the start of his showing: "For
