New Algerian Chiefs Quell Demonstration

ALGIERS (AP) — The military regime of Col. Houari Boumediene held Algerians in a firm grip today after an overwhelming show of force crushed demonstrations by supporters of deposed President Ahmed Ben Bella.

Thousands of troops and riot police converged on the capital Monday and stopped a few hundred youths who marched through the streets waving Algerian flags and chanting pro-Bella slogans. It was the second demonstration in 24 hours.

On Mohamed Khemisti Square in front of the central post office, the demonstrators were dispersed by fire trucks that drenched them with jets of cold water.

While there were no reported injuries in Algeria, unconfirmed reports said at least 10 persons were killed in a bloody clash between troops and Ben Bella supporters in the east Algerian city of Bone.

Bundy Backs U.S. Viet Nam Policy

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Lyndon B. Johnson's Vietnam policy is the best policy in a difficult and dangerous situation.

"That policy, Bundy asserted, is that we should stay there as long as it takes to win, and we should not leave until we have a peace agreement that is just and honorable."

Speaking for the critics, Dr. Hans Morgenthau, professor of political science at the University of Chicago, said, "I think our aim must be to get out of Viet Nam but to get out of it with honor."

He rejected the idea of an immediate withdrawal and said the United States should seek a peace agreement that is just and honorable.

Rockville/Vernon City Council Formally Fires Bartlett in 1961 Incidents

One of the last acts of the city council last night was the firing of former police Sgt. Leonard Bartlett. The council voted 7-1 to remove Bartlett from the force.

Atty. Edward M. Lovett, the city's corporation counsel, noted in a resolution that Bartlett was formerly a sergeant with the Rockville Police Department, who "while and during the period of duty from July 1, 1961, to July 1, 1961, inclusive."

The resolution noted that Bartlett was demoted to patrolman effective July 1, 1961. "He has failed to report for duty, he has been given the opportunity to do so without prejudice to any rights which he claims to be entitled to, and he has failed to do so."

From July 1, 1961, to date, the resolution noted, he has not reported for duty. "He is reported to have been traveling west on Center St. The demotion was a result of a traffic violation on Center St. on July 1, 1961, the resolution concluded.

Because of his disputes with the city, Bartlett instituted legal action against Mayor Leo R. Fishery, Jr. and Police Commissioner Joseph G. Morissette. The suits are still in the courts.

Police Sgt. Quada M. Lewis was promoted to sergeant on July 1, 1961. He was promoted by Mayor Fishery, Jr., and Police Commissioner Morissette. The promotion was effective July 1, 1961.

Bolton Life Waits in Ghana

Miss Sara Williams, home economics teacher at the Junior-Senior high school this year, will begin an entirely new life in Ghana, West Africa, where she will marry John O'Brien, an economic officer with the Ghana planning commission.

Miss Williams has been living in Acers, Her Honor just received her master's degree in education from Yale University. She said she hoped to be able to teach in Acers, use her experience in the field of nutrition, and to be able to help the government to state by the Ghana government. He said he would like to go to a Ph. D. but that there are other men who must wait away to school. He received his undergraduate training at the Ghana branch of the University of London.

He will serve a two-month internship with the United Nations before returning to his own country, where he hopes to be able to put his new experience to work.

College Unit Seeks Architect To Plan Nike Site Campus

The executive committee of the Citizens Advisory Council took two initial steps last night toward determining the future of the Manchester Community College campus.

The committee asked the school board to petition the State's higher education commission to bring an act to the legislature for accepting jurisdiction and responsibility of the college.

Also asked the board to arrange a $4,000 appropriation to hire an architect to prepare plans for converting the former Nike site to a campus.

Dean Frederick Lewis announced that the school board has approved a plan to accept jurisdiction and responsibility of the college.

The motion to request hiring an architect was based on two factors. The first is a Nov. 15 deadline for submitting recommendations for federal aid to reconstruct the Nike site. Involved is about 40 per cent of the total $250,000 cost.

The second is that if and when the state assumes possession of the community college, it will take over all the debt and liabilities made since the passage of the bill. This includes the state to assume jurisdiction of the college. It will also offer the services of the Citizens Advisory Council to the State.

The council has said that it expects copies of the proposed charter are available in the town office building.

Voting polls are for the first district, in the town office building, and for the second district, in the North Coventry firehouse.

Referees and election workers were listed by Mrs. Anita Hammett and Mrs. Gertrude Haven and Mrs. Helen G. Brown.

Troops Stop Supporters Of Ben Bella

Live Ben Bella - that had resumed through the streets Monday night.

Stores and offices remained open and city buses rumbled through the streets as usual.

Yet popular discontent with Ben Bella's removal appeared widespread in the city, and new outbreaks of rioting seemed likely.

Informed sources in Cairo said Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser has offered to grant asylum to Ben Bella.

The new regime informed Nasser that Ben Bella would like to go to a Ph. D. but that there are other men who must wait away to school.

Nasser sent a top aide, Vice President Abdel Hakim Amer, to Algeria to make inquiries into Ben Bella's case.

Monday and Col. Hourani, commander of the 1st division, saw him off at the airport.

The 113 African-American members of the British Commonwealth month also asked that Ben Bella's life be spared.

The 48-year-old former president was reported under guard at a military camp.

It officials said in Washington Monday that the United States has refused to recognize the new Algerian government in a day or so, having just received word from the State Department officials.

U.S. Ambassador William J. Foster has already established contact with Foreign Minister Abdelaziz Bouteflika.

The British government announced Monday it was accepting the new regime and then sign Office spokesman said a plan to accept jurisdiction and responsibility of the college.

Section 10-38a of the general statute is repealed. This is the enabling act for community colleges. If community colleges do not choose a standard, they will continue to be operated as private institutions.

An appropriation of $1,000,000 will be allocated to the commission for higher education for accepting and operating community colleges for the fiscal year 1966-67.

A balance of $2,200,000 in the state fund for the fiscal year 1966-67 is to be used for the construction of a new building for the Manchester Community College.

home, by the verbal recommendations of such airpower enthusiasts as Barry Goldwater, who clings to the idea that all we have to do in Vietnam is to use more bombs on bigger targets, in which case airpower would do it all.

We think everyone might concede that, given free permission to transport and drop nuclear weapons, airpower could speedily prove itself able to fight and finish a war, and a world, all by itself. Short of that, however, airpower has its limitations which are merely magnified of proportion if either high strategy or units in the field rely upon it too exclusively.

Vietnam is not the first, but in reality at least the fourth war in which ideas of cheap and easy victory through the use of airpower have been given their test. Always the eventual resort has to be back toward a balance of forces, with each asserting to the full its own particular kind of muscle, and one guesses that American strategy in Vietnam will have to head back toward such balance if it proves capable even of holding its own.

A Mirror Becomes a Legend?

Bernard Baruch was in the market, and an operator in the market, and his financial start, all right, before the virtuous fable of his not being wined to give orders to his broker on a religious holiday suddenly turned him into a rich man. And once he had struck it rich, he had brains enough not to lose it all.

Rate him, then, a somewhat better than average, and luckier than average, player of the stock market.

As for his career in public life, his advice to Presidents, like the folklore of his park bench, became a tradition and a superstition which everyone, including apparently Presidents, accepted without question. One remembers, as a pleasant anecdote in the 1952 campaign, the way both Dwight Eisenhower and Adlai Stevenson paid court to him, in quest of an open blessing for themselves, that were possible, but at least intent upon seeing that the other candidate didn't get such a blessing all to himself.

As for the supposedly great public service of his maturity, that consisted of leading the final preparation of the historic proposals by which this nation, after World War II, went through the motions of pretending to offer to share control of its nuclear power with the rest of the world.

Any intelligence or statesmanship which might have truly been out of the ordinary would not have led that moment of desperation for a moment, as a 1965 Yankee fan, you had the distinction of suffering your longest day one day early, on Sunday instead of Monday. After Sunday, it became safe to give up on the Yankees this year, and do it without the normal risk that they might rise up out of the league cellar with three times as many base hits as before.

This year is on the decline, and half just causes, dried up premises, along with all life's thistles, too, can be chopped down boldly, so that one can get and spend the rest of the summer with whatever few things may be fine and benign and healthy and beautiful. No lettuce, no Yankees, no thistles, but perhaps, somewhere, one rose without blemish?

After The Longest Day

Now that summer has officially arrived and the long day pauses before it turns on its journey toward the long night, one can get to the cutting of thistles and to other sunny tasks which make sense only after the half-year mark of the year has been attained.

If you cut thistles before the summer solstice, three of the prickly pests will appear in place of every one you have cut down.

But, from now on, cutting down thistles will be at least an even kind of battle. If you cut one down, you will get only one back, right where you cut it. There are some other things that begin to be safe, once we have put the longest day behind us.

You can lose up the lettuce that has stood stunted since the second week in May. This is just not your year for fresh, tender, crisp home grown lettuce, now, as summer enters its dry, dusty decline, you haven't got a thing to lose by giving up.

If you want to depart from the garden variety desperate for a moment, as a 1965 Yankee fan, you had the distinction of suffering your longest day one day early, on Sunday instead of Monday. After Sunday, it became safe to give up on the Yankees this year, and do it without the normal risk that they might rise up out of the league cellar with three times as many base hits as before.

Airpower Not A Crucial

It is not sound military policy to rely on airpower as a crucial which can supplement other weapons which are lacking.

Neither is it true justice to the real possibilities of airpower itself.

From the first point of view, the military operation, and the military personnel, which come to depend upon airpower in every crucial, which comes to depend upon it, psychologically, as a crucial, and do begin to think and operate as if they could do nothing without it.

From the second point of view, airpower which is asked to fight a whole very difficult kind of war alone is being subjected to an unfair kind of test, which can prove much too costly in terms of money, equipment and lives.

Clinically speaking, the war in Vietnam seems to reflect tactics toward a dangerous degree of both military and psychological reliance upon airpower.

For a few experimental months this winter and spring, all United States pilots in Southeast Asia was relying upon the air arm to redeem, all by itself, a war which was being lost on land.

United States military policy has been turned back toward the idea of being better able to fight on land, the use of the air arm has been accorded the increasing tactical importance of a land unit which makes contact with its enemy immediately sends for the army, either to drop bombs, or to land reinforcements, or to evacuate wounded, or to evacuate American advisers.

Reports of battles have begun to sound as if not much fighting was being done unless planes of various kinds arrived to help do it, and as if morale on land was almost totally nonexistent if the army did not appear. There have even been disturbing reports from the battlefield of American officers with their South Vietnamese units calling their own helicopters and getting into them and flying away from an encirclement to live and advise native units on the other day, while the South Vietnamese were left in the field, powerless to take their weapons over to the Westinghouse, as they have no friendly zone.

Such use of airpower as a crucial in the actual fighting in Vietnam is a result of the political field back

Against Urban Renewal

A great many persons over the country have been sold a "bill of goods" in this urban redevelopment or renewal.

I recommend that the taxpayers of Manchester, already burdened with the highest mill-rate in the history of the town, get a copy of the Readers Digest for April 1965 and read the article on the subject in that issue. It is a real eye-opener!

Almost every day in our newspapers comes items that are both startling and disconcerting to the rank of urban redevelopment. There is a large and growing list of those who have been displaced or evicted in favor of costly high-rise apartments or new glass-block office buildings which are supposed to give prestige to a community, while expanding shopping parking areas away from the center of the town.

Local finances, in most cases already strained to the breaking point, are given added strain since people from all walks of life were included. The lists of evicted persons, farmers, porters, washermen, truck drivers, not to speak of people connected with the construction of the new buildings.

Suppression of religion was the fate of the Baltic states. The Soviet Union during the war of 1941-1945, arrested and deported to Russia, many churches, monasteries and synagogues. Many of the people who were deported to the gulags were the same people who were deported to the gulags.

The fate of the Baltic states has struck many of our people. There is a movement afoot to subsidize rural life in the north-east, come many stories of unemployment, bewilderment, frustration, higher and higher taxes, and much displacement and danger of persons who have been evicted from their homes before the redevelopment. Most of these folk cannot afford the new and higher rents in the new structures.

Player Puts Name with Immortals

Charity and Golf To Share Winnings

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Gary Player, a black-clad little South African with a flair for the dramatic, deftly etched his name among a select list of golf's immortals and said that was enough, he had all he wanted, the money wasn't important.

"The money is immaterial," Player said Monday, after winning the U.S. Open Golf Championship and immediately turned his $250,000 check over to the U.S. Golf Association.

His three-stroke victory over Australian Neil Nagle in the 18-hole playoff made him the first foreign winner in 45 years and only the third man ever to sweep the four big prizes of professional golf—the U.S. and British Opens, the PGA and the Masters.

He now stands with Gene Sarazen and Ben Hogan at the pinnacle of the game, joining the legendary figures of another era or the greatest of today.

"The forgotten man in golf's Big Three," Player reassured his fans in a press conference Monday, "I feel I own this country and I feel I own this country."

"I have made most of my money and won most of my golfing titles in this country," Player said in announcing his intention to turn the check over to the U.S. Open Golf Association. "I feel I own this country and I feel I own this country."

NFL Wins Atlanta, 15th Team in 1966

NEW YORK (AP)—Atlanta will become the 16th team in the expanded National Football League with a group headed by insurance man Rankin Smith Jr. of Atlanta as the likely owner.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle will screen the four or five applicants with the understanding that a lease on the new $15-million stadium in Atlanta is a must.

Atlanta's bid was the most impressive.

The biggest competition was from the Atlanta Braves, who gained all honors in the bidding and throwing of bids, but the NFL's Arthur Montgomery, chairman of the board, has no intention of awarding the franchise to Atlanta.

No Sentiment Shows as Mets Beat Bums

Bill Cowan's Homer Gives 1-0 Victory

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Mets aren't sentimental after all.

They were filled with sentiment for six innings Monday night. Then Joe Christopher went, and spoiled it with a home run.

Bill Cowan made it even worse in the ninth inning when he slammed his first homer of the season, giving the Mets a 1-0 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Cowan's homer was a 300-foot shot to left field, off the bat of pitcher Tom Seaver.
