SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — U.S. and Vietnamese troops lifted the 70-day-old siege of Duc Co today.

Powerful units launched operations to wipe Viet Cong from the jungles flanking 40 miles of highway on which that special forces camp is near the Cambodian frontier.

In the air war, a U.S. Navy A4 Skyhawk was reported to have downed by a surface-to-air missile about 50 miles south-southwest of Hanoi.

A military spokesman said the downed craft was one in a series of four of the single seat light weight jet bombers. The pilot was presumed killed.

The spokesman said the area was outside the range of known aircraft missile sites in North Viet Nam. He would not elaborate, but it was believed this indicated the missile was fired from a mobile launcher.

State News

HARTFORD (AP) — The Connecticut Civil Rights Commission will make surveys in 10 towns to determine how informed Negroes and Puerto Ricans are about ways to protect their civil rights.

A survey conducted in New Britain last month disclosed that about 25 per cent of 500 persons interviewed had never heard of state anti-discrimination laws or of the civil rights commission.

The next surveys are scheduled in Norwalk and Waterbury. The 10 will be completed by June.

New Britain, the report said, appears "better able than most large Connecticut communities to effectively deal with the grievances of its citizens."

It characterized New Britain as a "rather prosperous city with a comparatively high Negro and Puerto Rican population."

No. 1 Farmer STORHANS (AP) — Louis P. Longo of Glanville has been designated Connecticut Dairyman of the Year.

Longo will join the top dairy men from the other New England States to appear at the Eastern States Exposition in West Springfield, Mass., in September.

He was born and raised on the 30-acre farm that helped win him his title.

Victim Dies STAMFORD (AP) — A 27-year-old man died in Stamford Hospital Wednesday night, about a month after he was shot in the back.

He was shot in the back of the head by a bullet which entered his back and exited through his chest.

Raids at Dawn Hit Providence Narcotics Ring

PROVIDENCE, R. I. (AP) — Police raided 10 homes at sunrise today, arresting nine persons in what the department called the biggest narcotics raid in the city's history.

About 60 officers split up into 20 raiding parties to make the arrests in the North End and South Providence sections after a month and a half investigation.

The suspects were indicted by the grand jury, sitting in a special session Wednesday.

Police said the nine arrested face a total of 13 charges of unlawful sale of narcotics and would be arraigned later today in superior court.

Those arrested included five men, three women and a 17-year-old juvenile girl whose name was not disclosed.

The other eight were identified as Bernard W. He, 27, Iona M. Marshall, 22, Peter Yermian, 37, Carl Fraser, 42, Blanche Brown, 30, Mary Perry, 26, Beverly Perry, 30, and Herman Brown, 27.

Police said they seized narcotics, needles and syringes and some of the homes.

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Most of the excitement and suspense of next week's Gemini 5 flight may be packed into the first six hours when Air Force Lt. Col. L. Gordon Cooper Jr. and Navy Lt. Cmdr. Charles Conrad Jr. will attempt the world's first space rendezvous with a satellite they call the "Little Rascal."

The flight is to last 191 hours, 35 minutes, just seven minutes less than the Gemini 6 orbit which the Gemini 5 will have with a landing in the western Atlantic about 500 miles south of Bermuda. Cooper and Conrad are to circle the globe 121 times.

The time would break the world record of 4 days 23 hours 56 minutes held by Soviet cosmonaut Yuri Gagarin in October, during which Navy Cmdr. Walter J. Schirra Jr. and Air Force Maj. Thomas P. Stafford are to try to link up

Expensive New Bank Caters to Select Few

FRANKLIN SQUARE, N. Y. (AP) — If you would feel safer putting your jewels in a safe deposit box, or if you just like being waited on and can maintain a balance of at least $25,000 in a bank scheduled to open in Manhattan this fall.

The Franklin National Bank plans to open a Branch in Manhattan, a private branch, at 47th Avenue and 60th St. in October.

Arthur T. Roth, board chairman and chief executive officer of the parent bank in this Long Island community, described the branch as being patterned after exclusive private clubs which charge high initiation fees and are limited to property owners and approved members.

Services for members—be it a deposit or a loan—will be provided by a staff of 100 employees, including a concierge, a butler, a valet, a chauffeur, a personal secretary and a travel agent.

The bank will have a minimum deposit of $25,000 in a personal checking account and $50,000 in a business account.

If a depositor forgets to replenish his account when it falls below the minimum, the bank will automatically make up the difference on a loan basis. The loan must be repaid with interest.

If a depositor needs cash, he can call and have it delivered anywhere in Manhattan.

"Why should members be inconvenienced by having to run down to the bank?" Roth asked.

A committee of five will screen all applicants. Besides a thorough financial investigation of applicants, a questionnaire will have to be filled out, Roth said.

LA Tense As Result Of Uproar

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A tense, uneasy calm settled today over a Negro neighborhood in Los Angeles after eight hours Wednesday night by wild rioting by a crowd of 1,500.

A crowd that began gathering when a white policeman arrested a Negro and accused him of drunken driving got out of hand after the man was jailed. Hooding, looting young people — inspired, according to one veteran officer, by general rebellion against authority rather than any specific cause — threw stones, bottles and bricks at policemen, passing cars and bystanders.

More than 100 police finally restored order before dawn. Sixteen officers and at least 15 civilians were injured, some seriously. Scores of cars and several buildings were damaged, and there was some looting. And 26 persons were booked on various charges, 11 of them juveniles.

This morning the scene, the most solemnly Negro community of Watts of Los Angeles' Southeast side, was littered with broken glass, stones, bricks and boards.

One teenager, who wouldn't give his name, told a newsmen: "Anyone with any sense will stay out of here tonight, because we're really going to show those cops."

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — A three-hour tank and artillery battle across the Syrian-Israeli border ended in midafternoon today after an intense supervision operation.

Syrian and Israeli planes flew over the battle area but did not make contact, a Syrian army spokesman said.

The spokesman reported Syrian losses in the clash as four soldiers and two civilian workers.

The clash occurred at the site of Syrian operations to divert the headwaters of the Jordan River tributaries by a canal across the Syrian border to Jordan. Israeli tanks and gun turrets were positioned in the area.

Draft's Rules to Tighten Around College Students

NEW YORK (AP) — Some Selective Service boards say they will tighten rules deferring college students from the draft in the Viet Nam crisis.

Draft boards that have been liberal in giving students deferments in the past say they are going to get tough to meet heavy draft calls beginning next month.

A sampling by The Associated Press of 20 states showed 13 planning to review the status of deferring students. At least two others in the survey are considering such action.

"If we need men to draft, one place we'll look is the college classroom," said Lt. Col. Wayne Rhodes, deputy state director of the Indiana Selective Service System.

"We hate to pull a man out of school," he said, "but if the national welfare demands it, we'll do it."

The look to the campus came after President Johnson ordered the monthly draft jumped from 17,000 to 35,000 men by November.

The Pentagon said the September draft will be 27,000 and the October draft will be 30,000. The Navy will get 4,000 of the October draftees — the first time in nine years enlistments have failed to produce enough new men.

The quotas are the highest since the Korean War, when 80,000 men were called to arms.

The clash highlighted growing tension between the two countries over an Arab plan to divert the Jordan River tributaries by a canal across the Syrian border to Jordan.

Israel tanks and gun turrets were positioned in the area.

Vernon Bank Plans Second New Town Office

The Vernon National Bank at Vernon Center has announced plans to open a branch in a new shopping center planned on Rt. 20. The branch would be located across from the Northeast Shopping Center.

The bank recently received permission from a federal banking agency to open a branch on West Main St., in the Rockville Shopping Plaza.

The Rockville branch, according to Edward Parker, vice president and cashier of the bank, has no bearing on the newly applied for branch.

Plans for the Rockville office have been ordered although no work has begun on the site.

"The Rockville branch will be located between the F. Woodworth and the town administrative building (formerly Rockville city hall)."

Parker said, "The outlook for the future, especially in the northeast area, is good. The section is growing in terms of residential, commercial and industrial development."

Parker said that the bank wants to better serve its customers.

Parker noted that the Bank's main office, at Vernon Circle, in its fourth year, has assets of $5 million and that last month, usually a dull one, 270 new accounts were opened. Bank assets increased by $1.5 million since the first year.

Blind Mountain Climber Also Skis, Sails, Knits

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — When Susan Matly reached the top of a 9,000-foot Broken Top Mountain she signed her name in the summit book, then added two explanations: "I was blind." She wasn't the only one who was surprised. Susan, 17, has been blind since birth. She has many other surprising skills. She skis, both on snow and water, likes sailing and knitting a little. When she graduated from South Salem High School last spring she was chosen girl of the year. She attended classes for eight years before entering high school. Last spring, she was one of the presidential scholars honored at the White House.

Next month, she begins classes at Lewis and Clark College in Portland. Susan likes languages and she likes to write poetry. She plans to pursue both interests at Lewis and Clark.

After college, she's not sure. "I haven't really decided what kind of job I want to go into," she said. "I have thought, not real seriously yet, about the Peace Corps."

"I'm grateful to my parents for the opportunity to be more normal," Susan said of the climbing group. "Because it's really great to be able to do many things that everybody else does."

"I'm glad they let me have the satisfaction of doing this, because I've always wanted to."

She made the weekend ascent with the Chemeketes, a Salem climbing group. For one of the more dangerous sections she was tied close to her brother Peter, 20, and another climber. "The other climbers helped a lot," she said. "But they didn't try to get this information to me. It also says the new department of urban affairs there will do much better, coordination with the mayor."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey reported Wednesday after meeting with mayors of some 100 smaller cities that they are most concerned with roads, water, sewage and shortage of capital. He also says the plan of the meeting was the fourth in a series the vice president has been holding since President Johnson designated him as the administration's liaison with local government.

Humphrey said the mayors, whose cities have populations ranging from 20,000 to 80,000, had "very few gripes." He said he had promised to furnish them with information about federal aid programs available to them.

"We welcome the new state of Singapore to the community of nations and wish it success in carrying forward its program of economic and social development and its announced policy of cooperation with Malaysia," Robert J. McCloskey, press officer, said at a news conference Wednesday.

The U.S. Consul General in Singapore will be this nation's diplomatic representative to the new nation. McCloskey said elevation of the consulate to an embassy is "under consideration."

Imbibing Chileans Cause of Concern

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Among the laboring class is reported as an important step. Neither the government nor the private groups interested in the problem believe that the situation will change rapidly. Red and white wines are served with both lunch and dinner in every class of restaurant. The National Health Service is more conservative, but even so it says 250,000 people in this nation of eight million have serious drinking problems and that 80,000 others drink excessively.

"Excessively" is defined as getting drunk more than once a month. The service says 40 percent of its hospital beds are occupied by persons suffering the effects of alcohol.

In the Santiago area, the service estimates, one death in 10 is caused by cirrhosis of the liver. The government is committed to reducing alcohol consumption, particularly with an eye toward boosting exports.

The government also has promised a massive social improvement program aimed at bringing the Chilean peasants up to somewhere near the standard of living of the middle-class urban dwellers. Controlling alcoholism

Hell on Earth for Cats Maine Annually Breeds Million 'Oddball' Mice

BAR HARBOR, Maine (AP) — If there is a hell on earth for the world's cats when they die, it must be located here at the northeast outpost of the nation. More than one million normal and oddball mice are bred yearly at a laboratory to supply researchers in 20 countries with rodents that might help throw new light on human hereditary diseases.

And cats are barred from the premises.

Indeed, few human visitors are allowed inside this world's foremost fortress of mousehood, lest they contaminate the mice. The word came out in a film shown at a special course on medical genetics conducted by the Jackson Laboratory for Hereditary Research at Bar Harbor and the Johns Hopkins University.

The course is sponsored by the National Foundation-March of Dimes organization. And scientists of the Jackson Laboratory, which houses the mouse reared samples of the oddball cut, all of whom have defected by special breeding techniques or by artificial womb.

Malaysian Official Quits Over Singapore's Action

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — The secretary general of the key faction in Malaysia's ruling coalition party resigned today to express his disapproval of the separation of Singapore from the Malaysian federation.

Dato Syed Ja'afar Albar, executive of the 200,000-member United Malay national organization of Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman, told a news conference.

"Malaysia without Singapore is illogical," Albar said. He is one of the chief foes of the Chinese-led Singapore government, said "My own solution was for a merger with us. We are not fighting with bullets but a verbal war."

Rahman had said that the political battle between the two governments, if not halted, would have led to racial bloodshed.

"I don't think this would have happened," Albar said. "People here are very disturbed. A verbal war is better than separation."

"I am afraid now Singapore will become a center of subversion."

In Singapore, the new island nation's foreign minister, S. Rajaratnam, said his government would try to convince Indonesia it should live in peace and friendship with Malaysia, its arch foe.

"But there is no question of Singapore playing the role of mediator between the two countries," Rajaratnam said in an interview reviewing Singapore's prospective foreign policy.

"As we are now out of Malaysia, perhaps Indonesia may be prepared to listen to us in regard to the necessity for living in peace and friendliness with Malaysia."

In Jakarta, however, Indonesian President Sukarno was reported as determined as ever to crush the Malaysian federation.

Sukarno conferred in Jakarta Tuesday night with government and military leaders. He said the federation, Foreign Minister Subandrio said the break was a "victory for our confrontation, but we should be alert against efforts of Neocolonialism (Neocolonialism and imperialism) to create a new misleading device in order to frustrate our crush Malaysia."

Subandrio said his government finds it difficult to recognize Singapore in view of the presence of British military bases there.

"If Singapore is a military base which is hostile toward us, it would be difficult for us to recognize it," he told newsmen.

British Prime Minister Harold Wilson said he would continue to support Malaysia against Indonesia despite Singapore's accession.

Wilson, vacationing in the Bally Islands, told newsmen the government began re-examining Britain's Southeast Asia defense policy two months ago. He said mounting signs that the federation might split.

Under the separation agreement with Malaysia, Singapore promised to honor Britain's right to use the island's big navy and air bases. British officials have expressed apprehension, however, that the Singapore government might junk the agreement in exchange for diplomatic recognition by Indonesia.

Referring to the British bases, Singapore Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew told news conference today: "We have the right to help from anybody we like — including the British."

Lee also said his government would resume negotiations of trade with Indonesia, the port's chief trading partner before Sukarno's campaign against Malaysia.

Lee warned Malays in Singapore not to stage riots in the predominantly Chinese city. His bold warning he would "slap into jail" any Malays or Communists trying to stir up trouble.

The prime minister again accused Malay extremists of forcing the break between Singapore and Malaysia. He said Malaysia's prime minister, Tunku Abdul Rahman, should be "snatched down" on extremist islands "a year ago when I told him to."

In New Delhi, a foreign government has extended recognition to Singapore.

Husband Picks Way, Couple Are Lost Four Days

MOUNT POCONO, Pa. (AP) — I said we should go in one direction, which would have brought us back to the car, but my husband insisted that he was wrong and we should go the other way. So naturally we went his way and got lost."

That was 48-year-old Mamie Green's explanation of how she and her husband, Erastus, 82, got lost for four days in the woods of the Pocono Mountains near here.

Hundreds had been looking for them since early Monday, when one of the hikers reported they hadn't returned from a berry-picking expedition. They were treated briefly at a hospital for exposure and dehydration.

"They're in wonderful condition," said a hiker. "They were treated briefly at a hospital for exposure and dehydration."

Calvin T. Pryor and Bob Horne, Spanglers Mountain Club air patrol pilot, spotted a wildly waving Mrs. Green 15 minutes after taking off on a search mission. They radioed her and she was seen on a section to the searching party.

Green was carried out on an improvised stretcher, but Mrs. Green walked out unaided.

"I've been enough blueberry to last me for weeks," said Mrs. Green.

presumably, has even been willing to pay something in the way of initial odds and losses in order to pin the Vietcong down somewhere.

The Vietcong would not be averse to such a showdown if it could select the spot and conditions for it—as the generalship which now directs its operations was able to select, with the cooperation of the French, the site of Dien Bien Phu in 1954.

As one has read of the recent developments at and around the relatively small outpost of Duc Co, one could wonder if the Vietcong had not selected this base, surrounded by convenient hills for themselves, as a spot to which they would like to try to lure increasing numbers of American troops and forces. In order to try to keep surrounding them and harassing them after they got there. And one could also wonder whether our American generalship was not toying with the idea of beginning to feed troops into the Vietcong trap, hoping to so attract and engage the Vietcong that the Vietcong could in turn be pinned down and brought to a direct engagement by us.

It could be that there is now building that hitherto very rare thing in the history of the present war—a battle which somebody may win or lose, with some resultant effect on the future course of the whole war.

A Bill Instead Of A Park
 When New York City advanced the money for the initial construction of the World's Fair, it was supposed to wind up after the Fair was all over, with a wonderful new park system on the grounds where the Fair had been located.

After one year's operation, that idea, apparently, will be the one which will have to pay for tearing much of the Fair down.

And now that the end of the Fair is approaching, the dream has disappeared.

Something quite different appears to be the city's prospective legacy from the genius of Mr. Robert Moses, impresario of the Fair. It now appears that the city, in addition to providing the money that started the Fair, will have to provide the money to finish it.

That will be because some of the contractors at the Fair will resort to bankruptcy the moment the doors close, and thus escape their obligation to destroy the buildings they erected there. As the money to tear down the park system will have to pay for tearing much of the Fair down.

The Agony Of The Trap
 The agony of our position in Vietnam is that none of the situations we would like to keep in place, fronting for us, so to speak, stays in place very long.

The mask, which represents what we tell the world we are doing, and which also represents what we ourselves would really like to be doing, keeps falling off and revealing the truth which is just as shocking to us as it may be to the outside world.

The mask fell down the other day, when it was reported that Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge told members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that we would keep our military forces in South Vietnam even if the South Vietnamese government officially asked us to take them out.

Reading such a statement, our first instinct, from White House on down to newspaper editors, must be to cry out in protest that no, this isn't the way we operate in the world, and that naturally, since we are in South Vietnam at the request of the government there, we would also leave at its request.

But this is only what we would like to believe.

Almost instantly, we would know that Ambassador Lodge was speaking the truth.

We would know that the only way we would leave if the government of South Vietnam asked us to would be if we had previously told South Vietnam to ask us—just as we told South Vietnam to ask us to come in in the first place.

We would know that, in the hot realm of actual decision, our concerns would not be for the people of Vietnam, or their wishes, or their peace, but for our own great power struggle with the Communists.

We would know that, although nothing could be more distant from our intentions, or our wishes, or our desire to receive the approval of our own democratic process two minutes before or two minutes after the decision, we would, in the exact moment of our decision about a request from the South Vietnamese for our withdrawal, decide that the South Vietnamese didn't know what was best for themselves and that we had better stay on, for their own good.

None of this forms any part of our conscious intentions, or our own idea of what our policy in Vietnam should be. And doubtless there will be all kinds of denial that Ambassador Lodge said that he is reported to have said, or that he was authorized to say it, or that we could ever mean such a thing.

Only, if the moment should ever arrive, that would be the way it would be.

And that is the cruel despotism of our involvement over us—that it makes it progressively certain that we will keep on doing things we would never have any conscious intention of doing.

That is the trap we are in. Some think President Johnson snapped it shut on us when, last February, he did the first thing we were never going to do—order the bombing north of the border. Almost everybody, except a few military theorists and a few ideological desperados who seem to dream fondly of immediate war with China and Russia, hopes there can be some kind of forcing the situation open again so that the United States can regain its freedom to not only as it intends to act.

 "Bring In A Body"

SAIGON — Ron Beckett, a chunky 26-year-old captain, sat in a mess tent at a table made out of wooden racks for 700-pound bombs. He drank coffee from a brown plastic cup.

"I had to send a boy over for a court martial today," he said.

"Tried to shoot a noncom. Got in an argument with him, and the noncom hit him on the head with the butt of his rifle. He put one in the chamber and came out again. He was looking to shoot. The chaplain had to get the gun away from him."

"Where's the boy from?"

"I don't know where he's from, but I can sure as hell tell you where he's going."

"How is everything otherwise?"

"Real good, considering the way we have things here. This mud is never going to go away, but the men are adjusted to it. They get a shower every third day, and nobody gets sick. That's the way the medics can't figure out, all this mud and nobody gets sick. Well, they're growing up. We lost a lieutenant in the first night we were here. Got shot in the head. That made them believe it in a hurry."

"Have the VC been on you since then?"

"Here and there all the time, and we have these rules of engagement. You know, we just can't fire at anybody. The old man here put down the order that if a man shoots a round he better bring in a body. The other day I'm going in a jeep into Saigon, and right on the highway out here we pass a field. Way back in the field, right at the rear, the sergeant driving and myself both see this farmer raise a rifle and fire at us. The bullet went right into a post that we were driving past. If the post wasn't there, he would have hit our jeep. Now if we were to go in the field after him, he'd bury the gun in the water and stand there pointing to the woods to show us where the VC were."

"Five W's," he said quietly, "five wounded in action, and one went down there into the bushes and his rifle got tangled and went off and killed him. It could be worse. Some of those other companies around here, they really lost. We were hit hard, the first night we were here. He went into his tent. There was a message on the desk saying his company was to be ready to move out for another trip through the bushes and bogs. Trying to find an enemy that exists only when it wants to. And all over this area, 10 miles out from Saigon, there was field after field under barbed wire, and tents and mortars and trucks and American soldiers trained to fight a war that is not here, sleeping or standing shirtless in the mud and waiting for something to happen.

He stood up. "Let me show you something," he said. He went around to the back of the tent. The company area was out in half by a single railroad track. A green and yellow diesel with flat cars in front of it and a caboose behind it moved past slowly.

The cab of the diesel and the caboose were crowded with faces looking out at the camp. The guy sat down and Willie took a filthy piece of canvas, draped it over the guy, then began working at the hair with a pair of hand clippers. A 1965 Publishers Newspaper syndicates

Connecticut Yankee
 By A.H.O.

Of all the people in Connecticut who ought to know something about the classic difficulties of trying to weave one's way from the organizational side of the political arena to the candidatorial side, none should have a sharper or more objective appraisal of these difficulties than Searle Pinney, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee and director of the party's strategy and patronage in the Long Legislature.

The able organizational head of the Republican party can read the text, if he wishes, in the record of two of his contemporaries. He can take a peek into the one unfulfilled aspiration of his counterpart political boss, Democratic State Chairman John Bailey, with whom he has held an exercised condominium over the state for the past four years, and notice how some unwritten law has seemed to bar Bailey from switching careers.

Or State Chairman Pinney can spend a reflective evening with Willie Moore, who is a genuine one customer off his chair, a hand grenade boss, and he had another ready to go on.

Diagnosis By Computer
 The latest news from the industrial front, which may cast its shadow toward the human front, is that computers have made it possible to create and automatic diagnosis of whatever illness may be afflicting a jet engine.

Just set the device in front of a jet, and it'll listen to the motor's roar, as if with an infallible stethoscope, and it will be able to tell, in a calculation, just how sound is the state of health of every component in the structure of the motor. The whole thing, we imagine, might take about 30 seconds for the audition, and another minute or two for the production of the diagnosis.

It is not as far a cry as it may sound from being able to tell so much about a motor, merely by listening to its roar for a few seconds, to be able to create some kind of automatic diagnosis machine which could report on everything really important about the inner condition of human beings just by auditioning the kind of roar we make when we are really wound up.

How does all this sound to the prospective patient?

It sounds as if it would take every last shred of pleasure and comfort out of being sick.

A Thought for Today
 "O wretched man that I am! who shall deliver me from the body of this death?" Read Romans 7:24

One can never be careless when it comes to avoiding sin. The death of his body upon us can hardly be realized. How is it that we are not aware of the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Our real joy is that He has accepted all the things we do and to be for us, we are free of all the misery that sin brings us.

 In considering Abe Fortas as a Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, you can list a number of qualifications.

He has been an able Government lawyer in a career that reaches back to the Roosevelt era. In private practice he has won renown as a skilled practitioner of the law and a forceful advocate. He has lectured in law at Yale, and has written articles for scholarly legal journals.

Outside of the courtroom he has served himself a negotiator of no mean attainments, a satiate political adviser, a loyal Democrat, and a steadfast confidant in council. In his person, he is the extremely intelligent and very personable.

But the qualification that counts most, and the only one that has caused him to be chosen from among so many for the highest judicial bench in the land, is the fact that he is a CROXY Lyndon Johnson. — WALL STREET JOURNAL

Settle Down to Business, Britain Tells Disarmers

GENEVA (AP) — Britain made an urgent appeal to the 15-nation disarmament conference today to end "potentials and propaganda" and get down to serious consideration of disarmament where there is some hope, however faint, of agreement.

Lord Chalfont of Britain told the meeting: "I believe that people outside this conference are beginning to lose faith in our present inability to communicate with each other on this subject."

He repeated the British view that a treaty to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons is the most urgent issue. He said it would never sign a treaty while the West goes ahead for a multilateral nuclear force including West Germany.

Chalfont claimed that the veto "prevents, not authorizes, the firing of a nuclear weapon."

He said the force would be a measure of non-discrimination by placing more fingers on the nuclear safety catch.

He added that as far as the British government is concerned, it could only repeat "with all the vigor at my command, that we shall continue to take part in any nuclear disarmament arrangement within the Western alliance that will involve placing control of nuclear weapons in the hands of non-nuclear countries, including that of West Germany."

Chalfont defended West Germany against Soviet allegations and said "no other state has gone so far as to renounce the manufacture of atomic, biological or chemical weapons in its territory."

He added that "no other state is subject to the same military threat that is posed by the numerous Warsaw Pact divisions in its territory."

Indian delegate V. C. Trivedi accused the nuclear powers of trying to put the onus for a treaty to halt the spread of nuclear weapons on the non-nuclear states.

U.S. reconnaissance planes have located five other missile sites encircling Hanoi, but military spokesmen are raising the possibility that North Vietnam also has mobile launching units.

The missile launchers are assumed to have been installed by Soviet technicians in the ground war, U.S. and Vietnamese forces in the central Highlands mobilized for big operations against the Viet Cong around the embattled special forces camp at Duc Co.

Troops of the 11th Airborne Brigade and the 2nd Brigade of the U.S. 1st Infantry Division were flown to Duc Co. Wednesday and Wednesday to back up a 100-man relief column which reached Duc Co. Wednesday night. The camp had been under siege since June 2.

The main mission of the Americans was to be a reserve force. But U.S. authorities made plain they would be ordered into action if the Viet Cong tried a major counterattack.

U.S. paratroopers made their first landing with the Communists in the area today, American sources in Pleiku reported. A reconnaissance patrol clashed with guerrillas between Pleiku and Duc Co. 30 miles to the southwest. No casualties were reported.

There was no indication whether the Viet Cong would try to attack or follow their usual tactic of meeting away in the face of a formidable enemy.

John K. Galbraith, U.S. Economic-diplomat John Kenneth Galbraith has suggested the United States stop helping countries where the aid perpetuates control by small groups.

Galbraith, a Harvard professor and former ambassador to India, said the United States "must come out categorically on the side of the liberal change against reactionary groups in power."

He spoke at a conference on fiscal and monetary problems in developing states. Delegates from 60 nations attended.

Plane Downed; Siege Lifted

It reported it was hit by a missile from the ground.

He added that no enemy aircraft were sighted in the area and no other roundfire was reported except that which hit the plane. The weather was reported clear.

No parachute was seen, the spokesman said, and the missing pilot was presumed killed.

The plane was shot down by a surface-to-air missile. A U.S. Air Force F-4C Phantom jet was shot down by a missile on the night of August 11, 1965, near Hanoi on July 25, and the Pentagon attributed this to a surface-to-air missile.

Two days later the Pentagon announced that Air Force jets had bombed the missile site from which the Phantom had been downed as well as another site. It said one site was destroyed, the other damaged and planes were shot down by convention ground fire.

'Pirates' Only Anarche British Queen

Somewhat different from earlier monarchs, Great Britain's Queen Elizabeth II showed no fear, only amusement over the "pirates" lined up before her. The men were part of the crew of the frigate Dido taking part in ceremonies marking the queen's visit to the home fleet on the Firth of Clyde, off Greenock, Scotland. (AP Photofax.)

Dodgers Playing Like Mets But Win One for Drysdale

The Mets began to rub off on the Los Angeles Dodgers in the eighth inning Wednesday night and Don Drysdale had to survive three errors and an RBI lead-off homer from Willie Mays to get out of the inning.

Drysdale was working on a four-hitter and protecting a 1-0 lead for the National League leaders when the Dodgers started to fall into the Mets' pattern.

Mays eighth with a runner on first base and two outs. Chuck Hiller, however, came through with a double and a home run. Drysdale was only one out from a shutout.

This time, Ron Swoboda grounded one to second base and Jim O'Rourke let the ball roll through his legs for an error. Drysdale had to survive three errors and an RBI lead-off homer from Willie Mays to get out of the inning.

Larry Jackson, tagged for a second out, scored for the victory for an 11-4 record.

The Orioles had a chance to tie the Housters, but Herb's 2-0 in the first place of the league.

Yankees Snap Twin Streak Old Form for Pizarro, One-Hits Washington

NEW YORK (AP)—Al Lopez may have solved the enigma of Juan Pizarro's on-again, off-again fast ball but the Washington Senators don't have a clue.

Pizarro, mystery man of Lopez' Chicago White Sox pitching staff, baffled the Senators with a one-hitter Wednesday night as the Sox won the second game of a doubleheader 7-0.

The Puerto Rican southpaw, a 19-year-old rookie, had failed to finish in nine previous starts and had won only one game—exactly two months ago against Washington—before his one-hitter.

Dreams of a Bleacher Fan
Sitting in Fenway Park's bleachers is an experience in itself. Somehow, it's a different breed of baseball fan that sits out there and watches the game.

It's a different game viewed from over 400-feet away from the plate. Fundamentals seem unnecessary. A nice hit, a bunt, a slide, all appear to be just that to most of the dollar-seat fans. The scoreboard in leftfield tells the story they're interested in.

Could Be A.L.'s Only Member Likely 20-Tilt Winner Yankees' Stottlemire

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Yankees are not going to win any pennants this year but they could win with the American League's only 20-game winner.

Stottlemire has a better chance than Mel Stottlemyre, who regrettably lost his first game of the season Wednesday night when he pitched the Yankees to a 5-4 victory over the league-leading Minnesota Twins.

From Your Neighbor's Kitchen

By DORIS BELDING Mrs. John B. Spring Jr. of 223 Kelly Rd., Wapping, writes the following anecdote about her recipe for Cream Cheese Pie.

"When my husband and I went to Los Angeles we often dined with my aunt, whom I had never met until our move there. She was a wonderful cook and developed many original recipes. She served cream cheese pie often and my husband thought it was the best he had ever eaten, and my aunt's husband agreed with mine. My aunt finally gave me the recipe and I made it when she and her husband were in a home developed between the men to use who could eat the pie the fastest. After a while the competition became so great that my aunt and I refused to bake the pie when the men were to eat. The recipe was too easy. Court Rules For Builder

A Circuit Court ruling that denied a Manchester couple the right to recover a $1,000 deposit in a real estate contract has been upheld by the appellate division of the court.

The action was brought by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Agnew of 40 Tower Rd. who sought to recover the deposit under a contract for the purchase of a lot and construction of a house on Bryan Dr.

The Agnews sought return of the deposit from Rich after the couple were unable to sell their Tower Rd. property, according to the court ruling.

The couple claimed that the agreement for purchase of the Bryan Dr. property, dated Sept. 15, 1963, the date by which a $14,000 mortgage had to be obtained or the contract was made null and void. They had not obtained a mortgage by that date.

The couple also claimed that even if the agreement provided for extensions, and these having been mutually agreed upon, the agreement was in effect at the time the plaintiffs demanded the return of their deposit. That was Jan. 24, 1964.

A total of 983 claims were filed in Manchester during the week ending July 31, compared to 695 claims filed during the week ending July 24.

Guns, Flames and Rocks Rip L.A. Again

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police fought more than 7,000 Negroes for several hours Thursday night and today during wild rioting in which more than 200 persons were hurt, including comedian Dick Gregory.

Gregory, hit in the left leg by a bullet fired by someone in the rioting mob, was treated at a hospital and returned to the scene on Los Angeles' southeast side.

Officers jailed 80 rioters in the second straight night of violence in the Los Angeles area.

An army of 700 police officers entered a brief calm at midnight in the riot-ridden area. Then, before dawn, mobs fired the streets again in an outbreak of burning, shooting and looting.

Toward daylight the mobs began to drift away but police warned all Caucasians to stay out of the city's Negro district.

As temperatures rose toward a predicted high of 95 on the fourth day of a heat wave, police laid plans for a wily renewed reversal of violence in several sections of the city tonight.

Several policemen and more than 100 civilians were injured during the night. The National Guard was alerted but not called out.

Gregory, a Negro, was shot just after he had begun a three-hour demonstration in front of a home.

The crowd dispersed. There was no more shooting. Outbreaks of violence continued elsewhere in the city.

Police said rioters set a liquor store, a drive-in restaurant, and a small clinic afire at the corner of Central Avenue and Imperial Highway.

Hampson told the boys that when Dallas visited this north-central Indian community in the mid-1950s to supervise a series of "appeals to the Great Spirit," he advised it should never be cleaned of the dripping patina.

The Indian chief, with head raised to the sky and arms held out in a replica of a statue which stands before the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, A memorial to Edmund Burke Ball, Muncie industrialist, it was placed just north of downtown Muncie and 300 yards from the Indian village, Muncietown.

When Mayor Hampton explained the damage was minor, the pair for their interest in behalf of the city but cautioned this patting approach was in error. He had the boys taken home in a patrol car.

The crowd gathered shortly after 10 p.m. in front of a street corner where a fire truck was standing on a corner.

More than 100 policemen were called into the area. A police officer suffered minor injuries when he was hit by a flying object. He was treated at a hospital.

The California National Guard was alerted for a possible riot. The night's situation is an undetermined number of civil liberties.
