Saturday, Ocvtober 2 Proper And Welcome Five years ago it would have been considered an impossibility, and the mere proposal would have created a storm of controversy. as And yet today, looking forward to Monday, the fourth day of October, 1965, it is as if there had been, in so short a span of years, as complete a change from night to day. Many factors and events have conspired to create a situation in which Pope Paul VI could schedule his historic visit to the United States and a situation in which the United States could look forward to such a visit without religious factionalism. Five years ago, the United States elected a member of the Roman Catholic faith as its President. In that election, a substantial number of Catho-Hea voted for John F. Kennedy because he was a Catholic; there were great Protestant districts in the central and Kennedy ran poorly for no other reason than that of his faith. But he was elected, and his conduct and the country's experience were such that had he lived to run again, the religious is-

And, along with these two changes, there has been a somber deepening of the crisis which involves all humanitythe crisis which involves the elemental question of a survival which can continue for human beings their opportunity to seek for spiritual realizations. Pope Paul VI comes to the United States primarily to come to the United Nations, and he comes to the United Nations primarily to speak and pray for peace, and he must be doing this because he senses and believes that the time has come for no one to hold back any longer, but for everyone to bring forward as many battalions and regiments as he can and put them on the side of mercy and love and life. What the creeds of total victory and hatred and force can do to the world and to humanity as they are practiced by the factions and coalitions of the world is already being proved and demenstrated, in too many places.

It is a time for Popes and for commoners to come to the same kind of resolve—to do the utmost that can be done to symbolize and build and strengthen the oneness of mankind, and to generate, from a true realization of that oneness, some beginning of a bew and sweeter humanity to man. What a shining world it could be! This, we think, is the kind of vision Pope Paul wants to ask us to share. It is the final reason why his coming s proper and welcome.

Thou Shalt Not Legislate Liberty The "right to work" law is admittedmore of an anti-union weapon than at is any proclamation or establishment of individual liberty.

The element of individual liberty is present, however, and should be considered and svaluated from two points an accident in a hotel parking lot.

the individual, of his individual rights, privileges, and whims. Owning and optrating a car, for instance, can involve as much imposition on private rights and instincts as getting a job in a union shop. We beat the individual down, more and more, even while we proclaim him to be a member of the privileged great society.

And in many ways, not limited to the regulations controlling the seeking of jobs, the American way of life today keeps driving against variety, against variability, against disorganized standards and procedures, so that it can become almost a matter of principle to want to fight to preserve any stray lack of standarization which has somehow happened still to survive among us. At present, a state which wants to do so can still pass a right to work law if it wants to deliberately choosing not to put all its workers into a union

Art Need Not Earn Its Living The latest great society occasion in the White House rose garden would those cultivated and sophisticated sneers with which the elite among the cultured like to view Lyndon and the atmosphere around him.

For here was Old Cornpone himself, flourishing the pen with which he proposed to buy for his great society a grand total of $63,000,000 worth of artistic and cultural accomplishment. The National Foundation for the Arts being established with such a fund at its disposal would, the President proclaimed, help "make fresher the winds of art in our land." And Gregory Peck, adding the proper Hollywood taste and touch, could speak for the some 400 representatives of the arts present when he said: "It's been a great day for the creative arts of the country." The formula for the sophisticated sneer at this sort of thing is easily pronounced. You can't buy creative talent; you can't commandeer masterpleces; mere dollars can't produce culture. Pampered, subsidized art will never be

NEW YORK (AP) — Television always has liked the words
"specials," "speciaculars" and
"lastant news shows."

This senson two more phrases have come along — "sequel drama" and "continuing drama." These are just other ways of saying that the show is a seria saying that the show is a seriof saying that the show is a seri-el. The word serial has an un-fortunate connection with scap opers. Nobody, for some reason, wants his show tagged as some — not even when the program is "Payton Place."

Right now there are quite a few "sequel dramas" on night time television, including NBC's "Dr. Kildare" which is now involved in so many plots and subplots it could easily use the whole season to untangle some of the situations.

Dedicated Dr. Jim, who look even more antiseptic and hand-some in color than in black and white, has a number of student doctors under his wing right now. Tuesday night it was evident that one, a young woman, is revolted by the more unpleas-ent aspects of illness and is also being discriminated against because she is a woman in medicine. Another student has wife troubles that are giving him the hakes. Still another is a beatnik sort all mixed up in protests inst the bomb, punishment and Viet Nam. Then there is a orehead who is furious about hospital politics.

As if that wasn't enough, Dr. Milespie seems a little hurt that Dr. Kildare is trying to solve their problems with no help from his senior.

With all this exposition in progress, there wasn't much ime for drama in the half-hour. Presumably that will come in other installments.

Across the channel, ABC's Combat" is still in France aftmore than three years of ighting an enemy called 'kreuts.'' It is a workmanlike if Armits." It is a workmanlike it holsy war series. Tuesday night lorgeant Satinders and his un-diayon, dirty-faced men were planed down by enemy snipers in a shattered building, but their roal interest was a replacement he appeared to have self-inlioted wounds but told an unconvincing story about an en-

But "combat" at least orries a complete, self-contained story wait a week to find out that the suspected coward was really a good guy. That, in this season of equel drames, is a big plus.

"The Nurses," popped up on ABC in soap opera form in the early afternoon, and you'd hard-ly recognize the old nightime CBS show. Head nurse Liz Thorpe no longer is played by Shirl Conway but by Mary Fickett. She is no longer a widow woman but a spinster who looks wistful every time marriage is mentioned.

Student nurse Gail Lucas also is played by another actress, but the old hospital atmosphere is about the same. The story got off to a roaring start with an 18 year-old girl dying after an illegal operation.

After school hours came ABC's "Never too Young," a soap opera aimed squarely at the young audience. It was dedi-cated to rock music and the proposition that nervous parents are squares while the important things in life are the beach and going steady with the grooviest guy who hangs out there,

Can Love in a Marriage Survive on TV Comedy?

This provocative question is being tested this season by "The Farmer's Daughter." It may be an uphill struggle for the ABC comedy. After all, television audiences have grown accus omed to the pace of domestic life in which no more affection is shown than a quick kine before hubby leaves for the office. The average television couple comprise a churlish chucklehead and his patient, aproved wife. They have been married since heaven knows when, and only concerns are children, bills and how to entertain the boss for dinner.

But in "The Farmer's Daughter," Inger Stevens, is a saga-cious Swede, and William Windom plays a Minnesota congressman. And after two years as his housekeeper, she comes his wife.

"I hope we will be able to show that a married couple can be sophisticated — yes, and even sexy," said Inger. "After all, he found her attractive and appealing enough to marry her. Why should we try to hide their love just because they're mar-

She admitted the hazards involved. One of them is network censorship. A script portrayed the honeymoon congressman escorting his bride to a hotel room with twin beds. His comment: "But I asked for a double NBC's "Wisdom" tomorrow 2bed!"

"The use of the word 'bed' was absolutely forbidden," Inger reported. "It looked as if show would have to be aban-

Instead of adopting housewifey trappings, Inger is becoming more glamorous, "Katle wears more sophitisosted clothes now," she said, "and her hair is shorter and more stylish. I think that's only natural. It shows that he has an effect on her."

Hatte will also be losing her accept this season. "I lost mine after six months in this country," Inger reasoned, "so why shouldn't Katie? She has matured in every way."

But can television marriage do the same? It seems doubtful in a season featuring a husband who takes directions from the disembodied voice of "My Mother, the Car."

Happy Prisoners

Don Rickies has been signed by NBC for a new series that seems to follow in the same vein as CBS' "Hogan's Heroes." On that show, a new series, a group of happy American soldiers are in a happy Nam prisoner-of-war camp.

In the planned show, titled "Stone Walls Do Not," Rickles plays the ringleader of a group of prison inmates who, NBC says, "enjoy their enforced stay in prison."
