Francisco for a three-week tour, a trip Margaret has wanted to make for at least 17 years.

British correspondents in the United States reported that the West Coast seems gripped by "Meg manla," with socialites vying for invitations to meet the princess.

What she will wear at parties and such events as the World Adoption Fund Ball in Los Angeles Nov. 8 will be a top secret until the last minute.

Even the designers' names have not been revealed. But it is certain that Margaret's many bags include some dazaling creations. The British fashion industry is looking to the princess to give its exports a hig boost.

That the hill country and its past agrees with Johnson was made evident again Tugsday to reporters who tagged after him on a 4½-hour auto tour of surrounding presidential properties.

Rather proudly, Johnson sunnounced he was wearing a ten sport jacket made for him in 1905 "when I weighed 178 pounds."

The Texas Whits House, asked about his current weight, said it ranged between 195 and 250.

In that 1964 election, we found out, the hard way, what most Americans really knew all the time. We found out what kind of candidate and platform it took for the Republican party to become a certain loser. In this 1965 election in New York but an encouraging and inspirational way, what kind of Republican candidateand what kind of Republican platform it takes to win. There could not be, considering the way elections are scheduled, any quicker answer. This was the first time the two parties went to the polls again in any major kind of contest. There could not be any more conclusive answer. For where the election of 1964 proved that the Republicans, with the wrong kind of candidate and datform, could lose even in rock-ribbed blican districts, this election of 1965 proved that the Republicans, with even in the most lop-sided Democratic In short, there was never anything wrong with the Republican party that the right kind of candidate and platform could not cure. And the cure which has followed the 1964 collapse has been, thanks to the emergence of the right man in the right place, almost instanterritory imaginable.

This means that the Republican party has, within the short space of one political year, tried two formulas. One formula involved the nomination of a leader of the arch conservative right, and the promotion of sharply outfined principles also far to the right, all on the theory that such an appearance before the electorate would bring out of hiding a great reserve of true Republican voters who had been abstaining from elections in disgust over the factthat no "clear choice" had been offered

This was the formula of a year ago, and it succeeded not in bringing out Republican votes that had been missing, but in driving Republican votes by the millions into the Democratic fold. The second formula involved the semination of a Republican moderate, and the presentation of middle of the road principles, on the theory that any Republican seeking victory on any real political battleground in this country can do so only by reaching out for the support of most independent and many Democratic voters. This was the formula of 1952 and 1956, when Dwight Elsenhower, alhough he may now have forgotten it, was a moderate, middle of the road symoil. And it has been the formula of 1965 in New York City. Congressman Lindsay deserves credit his courage in making the run which ody else wanted to make or dared to se. The big footnote to this New York election is, of course, almost as fascinating as the main story. It focuses attention on the gnashing of teeth which must be taking place as William F. Buckley, Jr., who voted in Stamford yesterday as a legal resident of Connecticut while he ran for mayor in New York City in the effort to guarantee the defeat of Congressman Lindsay, realizes the irony of his actual accom-

Conservative Candidate Buckley re-served 339,127 votes of the 2,538,813 cast for the office of mayor. This represented 13.4 per cent of the total vote, a percentage somewhat lower than the otherwise highly accurate polls had been predicting for Buckley's share. But Mr. Buckley still obtained enough votes, in the right place, to take enough votes away from the Democratic candidate to make possible the election of Congressman Lindsay, the man whose defeat was supposed to prove the rightness of the Conservative cause and the Conservative political logic. Never before has any political ef fort attained an objective so completey opposite to its own intentions, as that of the erstwhile Goldwater braintruster whose famous wit, obviously, began to bore and repel votes almost as soon as it first attracted their attention.

But the Buckley effort to be the big national spoiler was something left by the wayside. The main result, in New York, was to reconstitute the two party system, in health and in hope.

It is, for the most part, moronic and automatic, based on no thought or logic deeper than some vague awareness that de Gaulle is a grandiose, imperial, conceited figure who has dared think for himself. The Harmonious 37,000,000 According to the American Music Conference, there are some 37,000,000 Americans who play some kind of musical instrument. To many of us, who have lived in crowded neighborhoods at one time or another, and who remember what the practice hour can sound like on a summer evening when all windows are open, this will seem an unduly conservative estimate. Perhaps, however, the Music Conference counts only those who stay with their art over some good solid part of their lifetimes, and discards those who merely fulfil, unhappily and under protest, some parental ambition for a few months, and then escape. The plane, regarded as an instrument of middle range playing difficulty, is the most popular single instrument among the 37,000,000, with the guitar next. The organ, a magnificent device which can enable anyone who really loves music to make the greatest volume of melody in proportion to one's natural talent, is fast growing in popularity, especially in the affluent society of the sixties.

Among the instruments more difficult to play than the outside novice might guess are the trombone, which is more complicated than just sliding one's arm up and down, since there are no designated positions for the notes, and the drum, which, despite all the easy notions of the millions of boys and girls who. are disappointed every Christmas when Santa Claus fails to deliver the one thing they wanted most, takes a rather special skill and technique to play well. The drum needs as good an ear as any instrument, and without very sharp reflexes one could remain a noisy nonentity, a drummer so different not even an eccentric could march to one, all

Free Speech

We believe, with Gen. Eisenhower and others, that protests against the Johnson administration for making war against the North Vietnamese, do not reveal something is rotten in the American public. We agree with Johnson's policies. It is unfortunate that, by exaggerating the number of these protestors, the Russians and the Chinese can represent the American people as more divided than we actually are. But while we agree with the Johnson administration's policies in making war on the North Vietnamese, the important thing is the preservation of free speech, and public debate over current issues and is the very basis of government by the people, of the people and for the people. — SPRINGFIELD RE-PUBLICAN

BAIGON, South Viet Nam changes and international maneuvers that loomed far over internal politics or remember which there can be no answer:
What would Viet Nam be like today if Diem and his brotheradviser Nhu had survived?
With the death of Diem and Mhu, Nov. 2, 1963, Vist Nam tried a series of military governments, a period of civilian government; and then, since last June, another military regime.

The present government is headed by a young air force officer, Gen. Nguyen Cao Ky. In a report to the nation this month he had this to say about the revolution of two years ago:

"The collapse of the Ngo Dinh Diem regime was the inevitable polem regime was the inevitable consequence of the long treason of a regime deeply engaged in the path of dictatorship, corruption and brutality. The whole people rose up to start the revolution in order to oust a reactionary regime, in the hope of building a new regime capable of preserving and developing the innate rights of human beings—The rights to live to be free and to enjoy happiness."

OLD SAYBROOK (AP)-The board of education has authorized participation in a project to establish a closed circuit television center in Old Saybrook that would pipe edu-cational programs to schools in Superintendent of Schools R. Douglas Dopp was authorized by the board Tuesday night to prepare an application to the Office of Education in Washington for an $86,900 grant for planning.

Before the application may be submitted, however, school boards in the other 16 towns have to vote formal endorse-ment of the project. The dead-line for the filing is Nov. 10. "Yery few areas have gone as deeply into the project as we have," Dopp said. "Hence, Washington is riding-herd on us to get our application in." Although the school boards in the other towns have not yet voted to join the project, the superintendents in these communities are in favor of it, Dopp present plans call for it to be housed in the Main Street School. It would serve an area bounded by Guilford on the west, East Lyme on the east, and Salem and Franklin on the north. The multi-town project would be the first in the Northeast and one of only four in the whole country, Dopp said.

It is anticipated that the federal government will be asked for operating funds of up to $1.4 million for the first three years of maration. of operation.
