How Long A Peace Offensive? lest Feb. 7 when he gave the order which began the great escalation of the war in Vietnam, the main pressure upon President Johnson has been from the direction of the so-called doves-the people in this country and in the world who do not believe that military escalation can ever produce peace in Vietnam, and who want the world somehow to be rescued from the dead end no choice situation in which the Feb. 7 decision placed us all. In the current "peace offensive" President Johnson is staging the most rnate and spectacular answer to the critic doves he could organize and direct. The peace offensive itself has been welcome to all those who, whether they care doves or not, think the common sense politics of survival requires a clear willingness on the part of the United States to cease firing and begin negotiating in Vietnam.

As the peace offensive has been interpreted by many observers, it is somehing deeper than a propaganda maneuver, and something that would consider itself to be worth while if it could obtain merely some unlabeled signs behind the scenes, or underneath the surface frama of the battle, which would indieate that the other side was willing to play the game of de-escalation with us hing like the willingness and gest with which, during the past year, It has played the game of escalation

. The moment steadily approaches, however, when President Johnson must make some new fundamental decisions about just how many miles he thinks he and his country can carry the peace offensive forward. If he has escaped, momentarily, from the pressure and criticism of the doves, se is now beginning to see build around him the pressure of the so-called hawks. They are the professional soldiers, and the hard-boiled diplomats, and the salfstyled realists who look upon the peace offensive as a rather foolish and immature whim on the part of the President. but who are willing to go along with it for a little while because they think they can anticipate that, at the end of the failure of the peace offensive, this same President will give them full scale and full speed and full tactics orders ahead to prosecute the war in Vietnam the way they think it should be waged.

It seems quite obvious from the trend of the news that the hawks have begun to make their representations to the President, either in his councils, or through the press, and that they are trying to emphasize all the dangers of softness and truce foolishness, like giving the enemy more time to prepare for new battles, like the misinterpretation enemy propaganda can put on what the hawks themselves consider American "irresolution "

As for the highest hope possible in this situation, as the President is being pressured both to continue and to halt his peace offensive, it seems to us that that hope would have to be for an extension and variation and amplification of the peace offensive itself which not merely sustains the actions and words already associated with it, but adds new strokes of policy to it. We would hope to mee, for a short and fleeting instant before we resume our journey toward the end of civilization, an ambitious, stubborn, resourceful determination to try as many weapons for peace as we have been willing, during the past year of escalation in Vietnam, to try for war. To the present stage of his peace offengive, we would like to see President Johnson try to bring to bear additional peace weapons as dramatic as those big combers flying from Guam to pinpoint guerrilla hideouts a few miles from aigon, or as symbolic of his serious intention as the despatch of wave on wave of new troops to Vietnam has

If that is the highest hope possible the present situation, the greatest deepest tragedy is easily defined. would be for President Johnson to andon the search for peace before he as, through new action, or some new -action, given it more actual subice to match its words. We believe but a nation which really dares ac as if it is choosing peace can get peace, without surrender, without dishonor, without weakness. We ought to be big enough and powerful enough for such a

That this is indeed the age of unbelief in which even the obvious is met with the stony denial, and no amount of evidence suffices to prove a pointis substantiated, once more, by the aftermath to what happened fust the other night, with regard to the flying saucer situation.

The other night, hundreds, perhaps thousands of people-not just lone pilots, or weather watchers, or observatory technicians such as have been responsible for the more routine reports of flying saucers thousands of people saw one take its progress over a whole group of states.

Officialdom continues to ignore the situation. Our professors who reproach us all for not looking at some of the other realities of our time, continue to withhold their blessing from the saucers. we would like to express our gratitude to the families we have served and to all who have in any way contributed to our success.

JOHN F. TIERNEY FUNERAL HOME

219 WEST CENTER ST. 643-1222

TEN YEARS AGO today we opened our doors to the people of this community. The way in which we have been accepted, the approving comments received concerning the thoughtfulness and ability of all our staff, is greatly appreciated. Our aim has always been to be of genuine service to families that call us . . . to serve in a manner that will give the greatest measure of comfort and help to those in sorrow.

We believe that personal attention is one of the most important features of any funeral director's service. We offer a dignified, courteous and sympathetic service, keeping in mind that the needs and wants of the family are of utmost importance and are carried out until all desires have been fulfilled.

During the ten years we have been of service to the community, we have found it necessary to enlarge our facilities. We are proud of our funeral home with its spacious and homelike atmosphere, the Cathedral-type ceilings and special lighting, folding partitions that provide flexibility of room usage and many other features found only in modern construction and our "off street" amesited parking area which allows parking for 85 cars.

Our gratitude can best be expressed in humble appreciation to all who have been a part in our progress.
