KEEPING' HEATING COSTS DOWN

We have our own servicemen. Not everyone does. Our men are interested in making your furnace perform at its highest efficiency and lowest cost because then you'll keep buying oil from us. Remember, three out of four furnaces waste fuel. Thanks to Mobil Technical Research our men have the latest facts on how to make your furnace the one-in-four that keeps heating costs at a minimum. There's a big difference in distributors. Let one of our servicemen earn another gold star by showing you how big that difference can be.

No Compromise For Taylor neral Maxwell Taylor's testimony fore the Senate Foreign Relations Committee yesterday was a mixture of official Johnson administration position and General Taylor's own personal and professional outlooks. There is no reason to believe that the mixture was not he spoke for the White House in almost all particulars. Assuming this to be so, General Taylor forecast a longer war and a harder war for more unlikely objectives than the administration has ever forecast perfectly harmonious, or to doubt that quite as clearly before. The witness expressed the usual hope that our physical commitments to this war can remain limited. But he refrained from taking various invitations to try to specify how limited it could remain, or what ceiling could be predicted for the number of men, for instance, we might eventually have to

This hesitancy about trying to predict the ceiling for the war was a rational part of General Taylor's testimony, for the goal of accomplishment his testimony did set for us in Vietnam was, in actuality, unlimited.

As General Taylor defined our aims n Vietnam, they include no room for negotiation or compromise of any kind. They propose nothing but an uncondifor the Victoong movement in South Vietnam, and rule out any settlement of the war which might reflect the fact that the Vietcong now controls and governs more than half the country. By the Taylor testimony, we will not stop fighting in Vietnam until we have broken the will of the enemy so that it agrees to disband and disappear from the scene, peacefully surrendering all it now controls to us, or to the Salgon

If General Taylor does speak for the Johnson Administration, then, there is nothing that administration is really willing to negotiate except a Vietcong surrender, and any aspects of all the great peace offensives which have seemed to suggest otherwise have been

Whether or not General Taylor did yesterday, give the total and final word for the Johnson administration, there need be little doubt that the outside world will see in his testimony a rather total hardening of the American posttion, and that, as far as the enemy is concerned, it will see less reason than ever why it should edge toward the conference table.

Perhaps we overestimate the degree to which General Taylor did speak for the administration. Perhaps Secretary Rusk, today, will be found restoring some of the plumage on the dove side of the Johnsonian strategy. Perhaps there is, somewhere on the civilian side of our policy making, some slight capacity to think of war in less heroic and absolute terms.

General Taylor, being questioned yesterday as to whether the Chinese Communists might be feeling "very nervous about a war," replied as follows: "They should feel nervous about it. If they ever got in a war with us, it would be disastrous for them."

So it would, but not only for them. The President has moments when he seems to see war as a two-way affair. not a one-way punitive expedition. General Taylor yesterday made the possisility of some last-ditch sense of balsuce and judgment on the part of the President himself seem very precious nd necessary.

All This Did Pass "I'm going to vote for it but I hate every word of it."

"This is a stupid method of bailing ut a situation caused by an unenforceable law." "I never dreamed when I entered this House eight years ago that I would ever hear responsible legislators get up and say, 'Yes, we have before us an unonstitutional piece of legislation, but I

"This is the worst kind of special in rest legislation."

arge you to vote for it."

The foregoing were some of the com-ments made in the New York State Legislature the other day, most of them coming from members who ended up voting for the bill they were talk-ing about in such horrified terms. It was the special bill exempting New York City's transit workers from the terms of the law they violated with their recent strike against the city. That strike violated the law. The other day an enterprising lawyer got a Justhority to pay any of the increased wages won by the illegal strike would also be illegal. And because nobody wants to take responsibility for having the transit workers go out on strike again, the leadership of both parties at Albany cooperated in passing this special law which says that the transit workers-just the transit workers car violate the law and get away with it. There was, as this bill passed the

New York State Legislature, even more hypocrisy than appeared on the surface. For some of the legislators had in mind the situation of some 6,000 New York City welfare workers who went on strike a year ago and are still in danger of being legally penalized for their action, as the Legislature has now ruled the transit workers cannot be

In other words, by the judgment of the Legislature the other day, it is all right to violate the law if you are 25 000 and rough and strong and run something like subways, but not if you are only 6,000, and perhaps a little meek, and merely engaged in providing social service to the needy. Perhaps the law is ridiculous, an should be repealed. Or perhaps it is a good law, and should be enforced.

That may be debatable. But one thing ought not to be debatable. It ought to be the same law-or the same non-law-for everybody.

Sen. Ribicoff's Proposal Since being elected as the junior senator from Connecticut Abraham Ribicoff has shown increasingly how correct the voters were in their choice. His current position on Viet Nam is a contribution to that debate, and the views he has now expressed took courage to state. The question is not so much whether he is right or wrong, although this is a matter of grave pertinency, but rather whether his constituents will benefit from the dialogue which he has opened up. We would hope this s the case; we think it will be points but one of the most salient was his view that any negotiations have to include the Viet Cong. This is a precondition to peace, and it always will be one. The reluctance by President Johnson to negotiate with the Viet Cong. despite an offer of "unconditional" discussions, has not prolonged the war by itself, but it has added to the thicket of

Although there is considerable evidence that the Viet Cong North Viet Nam, and Red China do not now wish to negotiate, the Ribicoff proposal to invite all involved to a conference at Geneva holds considerable merit. However difficult it is to prosecute both peace and war at the same time as the rhetorical perambulations of the President have established in the last week, the position of the United States should be kept in focus. Our dedication to peace is not and should not be a bow to world opinion, it must be a constantly clear

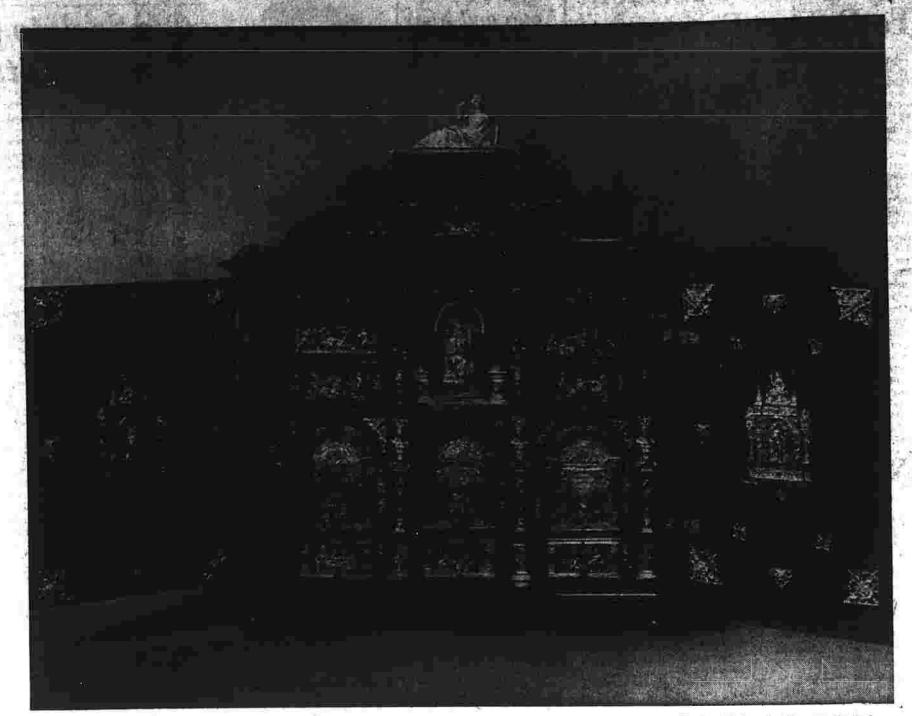

There is reason to doubt the real position of the United States—as the world sees us. In an effort to soothe Congress. the President has again contributed to the confusion by noting that "I gather from what General Gavin said in summary there is not a great deal of difference between what he and Kennan are saying and what the Government is Now of course, there is considerable difference between the Kennan testimony and the Johnson action-a difference of almost 200,000 troops, perhaps, certainly a difference in strategy. Ambassador Kennan urged that we "dig in and wait" for a political solution to emerge. General Gavin although apparently modifying his enclave position slightly was advocating a similar i slightly different policy. Many administration officials feel that either strategy would allow the Viet Cong undisturbed political control of the country. There the argument now rests.

The President adheres to his view that no one has put forth a better suggestion on how to fight the war in Viet Nam; an increasing number of congressmen are asking what point there is in arriving at a stalemate at a higher level of engagement. It may be said that each retort begs the question; the mestion must still be asked.

Senator Ribicoff has not been so much involved in the strategy of war as he tactics of peace. His suggestion cannot of itself end the war but the spirit of his view tends to advance the possi-bilities of peaceful solutions. He has presented a fresh initiative and this is ust as helpful, perhaps more so, than he declarations of Honolulu, if neither one can guarantee the objective of the United States, which is to prevent the seizure of South Viet Nam by force, the country should not go further down the road to war without the kind of real debate we have at last come to. -MIDDLETOWN PRESS

Dangers Of Talking Peace "It is a sad, and worse than that, langerous fact that anyone who talk about peace today is in danger of being labeled an extremist, a fellow traveler or a dreamy-eyed liberal with no knowledge of the realities of life. Those who work for peace are usually thought to be a bit soft in the head, whereas, in fact, they are often speaking in terms of plain common sense, and of the basic human realities which tend to get lost in the complexities of competing ideolo-gies and half-understood technicali-ties." — CARDINAL LEGER, ARCH-

$10 Billion Investment ATLANTIC CRTY, N.J. (AP) — Four short years ago the nation's school administrators urged the government to invest an astronomical 15 billion in education and were roundly criticized for their presumption and their naivete. Wednesday night President Johnson told the same group that his budget this year proposed a $10-billion investment in education and one was even surprised. And that's the way it is in education — To enlarge each one of the group and their naivete. And that's the way it is in education Atlant's the way it is in education and to make them run through on the dream. It never quite and so make them run through on the dream. ## ... A BIG REASON WHY THEY'RE LIKED BEST!

Smooth ride is one big reason why Chevy is America's most popular pickup. You get true independent front suspension; front wheels that step lightly over bumps. And most models provide big coll springs at all four wheels to soak up the jolts. You get a ride that's ideal for camper duty as well as work . . . a tough suspension CHEVROLET proved over the past 5 years on rugged jobs. Try a smooth-riding 1966 pickup at your Chevrolet dealer's. NO. 1 WAY TO WORK changed.

At the annual convention of the Connecticut Association of Real Estate Boards this past year, the Manchester Board of Realtors was one of five Realtor Boards throughout the ENTIRE STATE honored for a significant increase in membership.

and what it means

The Manchester Board, naturally, is proud of this achievement. We are gratified too, at the tangible things that this award symbolizes. For instance, more and more people entering the real estate field full-time are making early—sometimes immediate—inquiries about Board membership qualifications. Increasing also, are membership applications from firms outside Manchester proper—a sure sign of efficient and effective operation.

One of the prime factors behind this membership increase is the unqualified success of the Manchester Multiple Listing Service. More and more clients are asking for their property to be Multiple Listed. (This is something only a Realtor firm can do for you.) They realize that the Multiple Listing Service is by far the best, most efficient method yet devised to sell property. The year just ended has seen another sizeable gain in total sales volume of Multiple Listed properties.

The aforementioned award is a result of wise leadership, both past and present, plus a broad spectrum of member participation in Board activities. This augurs well for the future. The future in real estate will undoubtedly see many changes—but these changes will be anchored on the solid bedrock of the Realtor Code of Ethics. We think this is good.
