Sheinwold on Bridge

THROW AWAY A LOSER INSTEAD OF BUZZING. By ALFRED SHEINWOLD. One thing that makes bridge a better game than pinocle and similar card games of the trick-taking family is that you are allowed to use your judgment when you cannot follow suit.

Opening lead — Nine of diamonds. East won the first two tricks with high diamonds and then led a third diamond. South, an unformed pinocle player, ruffed the third diamond.

South ruffs in his own hand, and West throws a second heart since dummy's trumps would beat him if he over-ruffed.

The Platoon That Held

By TOM TEEDE
It was hot in the rice paddy.
They and unaccountable. The platoon was buzzed in a foot of
and, one by frightened one,
the men were being picked off by heavy enemy fire from the brush.

No one wanted to stay there,
of course.
But there they would stay, in a job, all 28 of them.
Lt. Jack Price, Oklahoma City, did what he could. He instructed his sergeants to move forward when possible. He led his radio-man keep touch with command. He requested all kinds of support fire.
He could do little else.

And slowly his platoon was being murdered.
Bombers were on the way,
however. There's God for that.
The enemy's front and open their defenses to penetration.
"Lord," he muttered, "if they'd only hurry."
He felt he could hear every man who was being hit. Sometimes there was a scream,
sometimes a muffled gasp, sometimes only the silence of a life that before had been noted by at least one other man.

Former Boxer Held in Holdup at Southington

SOUTHINGTON (AP)—The bank has its $10,000 back and police have a suspect in the Wednesday holdup of a shopping center branch office.
Police arrested Tony Grasso,
34, of Waterbury about 30 minutes after the robbery of the Parkside branch of the Southington Savings Bank.
Grasso, a former boxer who gave his address as the Waterbury YMCA, was arraigned in District Court at Bristol on a charge of robbery with violence and was held in bond of $25,000.
The holdup itself followed the usual script, except that the man apparently was unarmed.
He entered the bank carrying a paper bag and a note. The note said "this is a stickup. Give me $10 and $20."
Mrs. Shirley Weir of Southington, a teller, complied and put the cash in the bag. Three customers and another teller were in the bank.
The man fled in a maroon convertible, which was spotted in nearby New Britain by motorcycle policeman Gregory Ca-panzaro.
New Britain police headed off the car and took Grasso into custody. They said he handed over the loot.
Grasso was described as a former boxer who once made an unsuccessful bid for the New England Bantamweight title.
The holdup was the fourth in Connecticut this year of a bank or savings and loan association.

Smoking on Rise in State Again

HARTFORD (AP)—Cigarette smoking, which declined in 1964
after the U.S. Surgeon General reported it was a health hazard, went back up again last year, in Connecticut.
James A. Swomley, director of the Connecticut Tuberculosis and Health Association, said average consumption per person was 14 packs in 1965 compared to 13.7 packs in 1964. The highest ever in Connecticut was 196.8
packs per person in 1961.
"Connecticut's public and private health and education agencies will need to intensify their educational efforts if we are going to have any impact on the cigarette problem," Swomley said Wednesday.

Hebron Plan Board Considering Changes in Regulations

The planning and zoning commission is considering a number of changes to the town zoning regulations.

One of the proposals being discussed is the possibility of requiring narrower roads in new subdivisions. Roads must now be 26 feet wide, with four-foot shoulders, and have a 10-foot curb on the traveled portion and the shoulders.

For several years, the commission has been getting suggestions from developers, and the road width requirement should be reduced to 20 feet, with a 10-foot curb on each side.

H-Bomb Secrecy Spain's Scheme

The commission is at work on a resolution, perhaps 1,000 words long. Radioactive gauging devices can penetrate any thickness of masonry.

While there was no bomb threat, the negotiating was held in a room in the Belmont Hotel, where the commission is holding its regular meetings.

The Spanish minister of defense demanded an end to the disclosure of Spanish territory by the United States.

Viet Cong Bomb Wrecks Tanker

On the ground, U.S. forces combed the jungle and rice paddies for the Communists but stirred up little action. The 101st Airborne Division's 1st Brigade killed six Viet Cong in operations around Tay Hoa, a coastal town 20 miles northeast of Saigon.

The paratroopers came upon two Viet Cong depots, one a weapons cache and a bird, which they promptly identified as the first enemy carrier pigeon captured in the war.

Communist gunners hidden in mangrove swamps on the west bank of a ship channel 15 miles southeast of Saigon raked the self-propelled oil barge Paloma with a barrage of machine rifles and 50-caliber machine guns in the second unsuccessful attempt in five days to block the inland oil pipeline.

Ten crewmen were reported wounded. At least one Vietnamese sailor was said to have been hit in a tank gunfight between the guerrillas and government mineweepers.

A U.S. Navy LTJG turned about and came upriver with five hoses spraying and his four gunners blasting American officers at the scene credited the LEFT with saving the oil barge from destruction.

Within three hours, the raging fire in the ship's center hold was nearly out and it was being towed to the docks at The Be.

More than 400 miles to the northeast, the Communists staged an ambush against a Vietnamese police unit in the demilitarized zone created by the 1954 Geneva agreements to divide North and South Viet Nam.

A government spokesman said the Communists laid the first ambush against an squad on a river boundary near the village of An Xe, 14 miles from the zone.

The three government workers slain in Saigon, aged 20 to 24, were youth and self-defense assistants in the cluster of "new life" hamlets around an area outside of Saigon where the government has been reducing its pacification efforts.

Near their bodies was a death warrant dated Feb. 25 signed by the Viet Cong organization for Cia. Dist. Province surrounding Saigon. They were kidnaped on their way home last night, informants said.

Ever better service, lower electricity prices seen as New England utilities push 1.5 billion-dollar building program

New England electric companies join forces to build "Big 11 Powerloop" to serve all six Northeast states. Savings realized will help reduce average New England electric prices.

WORK HAS ALREADY STARTED ON THE "Big 11 Powerloop," a giant complex of 11 new electric generating plants, linked together by 700 miles of new extra-high voltage lines to serve the six New England states.

These price reductions (resulting in great part from the "Big 11's" efficiencies) will continue a trend clearly shown in the chart at the right: The average price of electricity in New England has gone steadily down, while the cost of living has gone up. And we predict this spread will widen.

The average price of electricity in New England has dropped steadily, with price reductions in the last three years totalling $22,000,000 on an annual basis. And we foresee New England electric prices dropping at an accelerated pace in the next seven years.

By 1973, these big plants and lines will be producing and transmitting about 65% of the electric energy our customers will be using. The remainder will come from the most efficient of our present facilities, while older equipment will be retired.

Then, as now, you'll have all the power you need. Lower prices and better service, now and in the future; are two reasons why so many forward-looking people are cooking, heating water and drying clothes electrically.

THE BILLION AND A HALF DOLLARS we are investing in the "Big 11 Powerloop" is, we believe, tangible evidence of our confidence in a growing, prosperous New England.

Always power a-plenty coming your way—the very best bargain in your budget today

M'Naghten Law Father Loses Son Change Attacked By States Atty.

HARTFORD (AP) — Scrapping the old M'Naghten rule as a test of legal sanity will "allow psychiatrists to speak as a physician and not a moralist."

According to the M'Naghten rule, the crucial test of whether a suspect was sane when he committed a crime was whether he knew right from wrong at the time.

The rule was discarded Monday by the U.S. Court of Appeals, 2nd Circuit, which includes Connecticut.

Newman said the new test put forward by the court — of a judicial kidnapping in which a defendant is taken into custody before he can be tried — will put more responsibility on psychiatrists who give professional opinions on the sanity of the accused.

Drop Continues In Idle Claims

Unemployment compensation claims filed in Manchester last week dropped 4.3 per cent below the total of the previous week.

Denials Hint China Leader Really Is Ill

HONG KONG (AP)—Peking's vehemence in denying reports that Mao Tse-tung is ill has convinced some Western experts the reports are true.

Adding to their conviction was the publication today of a picture of Mao in the Hong Kong Communist paper Wen Wei Po.

A one-line caption says the picture was published March 28 in a Chinese paper, but it does not say when the picture was taken. There is no accompanying story.

Additionally, Western experts who maintain picture files say Chou En-lai looks 5-10 years too young. Three Chinese, who have full time jobs studying China developments, date the picture as "at least three years old" to "probably five years old."

One Western government report said "reports that Mao is ill apparently struck one of Peking's raw nerves. Normally we would expect no quick response and, when a response did come, we would expect a more or less contemptuous brush-off."

Instead, a Chinese government spokesman in Peking denounced "vicious fabrications by American sources and American newsmen" who reported that rumors of Mao's illness were sweeping the mainland.

Coincidental with the rumors has been a greatly increased press-radio campaign to keep Mao's name before the Chinese public since the Red leader dropped from public view four months ago.

Some Western experts believe Peking is trying to camouflage Mao's public disappearance with a barrage of publicity about him. They think other Peking leaders fear that public awareness of Mao's absence could lead to increasing unrest among the Chinese people.

While they believe, Mao is ill or recuperating from a illness, most of these responsible Western sources discount wider rumors.

"If Mao was near death or mentally incapacitated," said one man who has spent more than 25 years assessing China, "it would be almost unthinkable that Liu Shao-chi—Communist Chinese president and generally accepted here as Mao's successor—would take this time to leave China for an official visit to Pakistan even for a few days."

US Health Care For All the Poor Cited by Shapiro

CHESHIRE (AP)—Most of the publicity about Medicare has focused on health care for the elderly, but another part of the program may turn out to be even more important, says State Welfare Commissioner Bernard Shapiro.

Shapiro, speaking before the Connecticut Social Welfare Conference, Tuesday, emphasized Title 19 of the 1965 Social Security legislation, which provides health care for poor people of all ages.

"Title 19," said Shapiro, "authorizes federal aid to states in three categories and is designed to bring benefits of modern health and medical care to needy people."

"Category One allows for the payment of such deductible as patient contributions to hospital care for persons who cannot afford the cost of the Medicare deductible item."

"Category Two makes it possible for a state to start a new medical assistance program that would include most of the medically needy in the state."

"The compulsory and voluntary social insurance programs under title 19 have already received considerable public attention," said Shapiro. "However, relatively little public attention has been directed to Title 19, the provisions of which may very easily become the most important of the two titles."

"Title 19 not only requires state initiative to make federal assistance funds available for health care of needy people, but it will require some changes in state health and welfare laws before the full potential of these new federal provisions can be realized."

Sheinwold on Bridge

ALFRED SHEINWOLD, the right way to play a suit doesn't depend merely on what you hold in that suit. You must also consider the hand as a whole.

Opening lead—Four of spades.

Today's hand, illustrating the point, is used by Mrs. Evelyn Seville, well-known Wilmington, Del., expert, in her lectures at the Dupont Country Club. The principle is worth knowing even if you're nowhere near Wilmington.

East takes the ace of spades and returns a club. Now South must decide how to play the trump.

It would be correct to lead the ace of trumps first if you separated the hearts from the rest of the hand. In this case, given for best of show, first, second and third for each category. The "Maurice Armstrong Award" will be given for printed album pages.

Stamps will be given free to children under 12 years of age accompanied by parents. Owners Appeal Apartment Tax

The out-of-town owners of the 108-unit Marilyn Court's apartments, at S. Adams and Olcott St., have taken an appeal to the Hartford County Court of Common Pleas, asking that the October 1965 assessment on their holdings be reduced to its true and actual value.

The owners, Harold Rothstein of West Hartford and Alexander M. Werner of Hartford, claim that the $62,814 value placed on the land and the $77,877 value placed on the three-story building is "not the fair market value as of Oct. 1, 1965."

The apartment building, covering 13,500 sq. ft. on 5.02 acres, was erected on land purchased in May 1964 from Alexander Jarvis for $112,000. Ground was broken in April, 1964 and late that year the apartment complex was ready for occupancy.

The Iowa assessor's office follows a formula of assessing Manchester property at 72 percent of its appraised value. The owners of the Marilyn Courts had appealed the assessment to the Board of Tax Review, but had been turned down. The deadline for court appeals from the board's actions is April 28.

Firehouse Sale Shelved Pending Results of Study

Upon the recommendation of directors to authorize him to advertise for the sale, Director Frank Stambler, a few weeks previous, had also recommended sale of the property.

Stambler in addition had suggested that the town should survey all its holdings, and that it should sell whatever parcels are not needed for town use.

Weiss, in his 1966-67 Tentative Budget, has included a $100,000 item under "Revenue," for sale of town-owned land.

This proposal includes study of a north-south highway, coupled with traffic relief for expected increased travel to the Manchester Community College, at the former Nike Site.

General Manager Robert Weiss, on April 12, will ask the board of directors to appropriate $7,500 for a traffic study, to be conducted by Wilbur Smith Associates of New Haven. The study, proposed for the Broad St., Middle Tpk., and Tolland Tpk. sections of town, may be expanded to take in more areas.

When Hous Co. 1 of the Town Fire Department moved into its new quarters on McKee St. March 15, Fire Chief William C. Mason had recommended that the Pine St. facility, if approved by the 1966 General Assembly, the commission is designed to facilitate the receipt of federal aid to higher education that he would ask the board of town.

Low Appointed To State Board

Dr. Frederick Lowe, president of the Manchester Community College, is among three education appointed yesterday by Gov. John Dempsey to the State Commission on Cooperation with Federal Authorities in Matters Pertaining to Higher Education.

The others appointed were Mrs. Ruth Hest, president of the Danbury State College; and Dr. Warren Hill, director of the State Commission on Higher Education.

The appointees will represent the three major divisions of the state's higher education facilities under the commission. Created by act of the 1965 General Assembly, the commission is designed to facilitate the receipt of federal aid to higher education that he would ask the board of town.

United Nations to Get Copy Of Ancient Peace Treaty

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP)—The United Nations will receive a copy of what is believed to be the world's oldest known peace treaty, negotiated almost 3,000 years ago.

The reproduction will be presented by the Turkish government to be hung at the U.N. headquarters because the treaty follows to a great extent the principles of the U.N. charter.

The original pact, now in Istanbul's Museum of Oriental Antiquities, was concluded about 1280 B.C. between Ramses II, Pharaoh of Egypt, and Hittite ruler of the Hittite empire in what is now modern Turkey.

The treaty, in effect, recognizes Egyptian dominance in the international Palestine and southern Phoenicia and northern Paphlagonia modern Turkey.

It is believed that the text, carried to Egypt, was engraved on two silver tablets—both of which presumably are lost.

The treaty includes provisions of mutual renunciation of aggression and reciprocal assistance in case of a threat or challenge directed by a third power—much like modern non-aggression and friendship pacts between states.

The rectangular slab of clay measures only 7 by 6 inches but it contains all provisions of the treaty. Only form's wedge-shaped characters represent words by letters, similar to modern shorthand.

A Turkish artist will copy the treaty on copper.

After years of enmity, the Hittite and Egyptian decided to make peace and set up what has been described as an "offensive and defensive alliance."

The treaty, in effect, recognizes Egyptian dominance in the international Palestine and southern Phoenicia and northern Paphlagonia modern Turkey.

Brides in the Nineteen-Thirties did not enjoy the wonderful advantages of our Bridal Registry as today's brides do. Unfortunately they received silver in patterns not of their choice, dozens of duplicates, sometimes dozens of forks and not a single knife! But the decade following brought our Bridal Registry into existence. Now brides come in and choose what they want for gifts. We record it in our Registry under their names. Wedding guests can see exactly what the bride wishes and we see to it that she receives no duplicates. Don't you wish we'd had our Bridal Registry when you were married?

Gifted Dropouts Find Fitting School

By SEYMOUR HERBER
 WASHINGTON (AP)—Class-eyed intellectuals who once sought psychology at Georgetown University, "They're invincible because they know how to find food."
 The 15 pupils sprawl across a makeshift classroom on the third floor of a Civil War era building on Washington's north-west side, on a street of seedy homes.
 The pupils are wearing sweatsuits, blue jeans and some sport beards with his wife, Meredith, an artist who also teaches at Walden. But one pupil has de-Some have used dope. Others have police records. Most have been kicked out of high school. All are bright, attractive and highly artistic. They want to learn.
 Enter the teacher. He's wearing black boots, black chinos, a sweatshirt and a red, white and dirty plastic motorcycle helmet.
 Today's subject: a seminar in human relations. The technique: Role playing, a classroom play aimed at showing the pupils different ways of relating to others.
 The teacher, William H. Jackson, has served a nine-year Navy hitch, worked as a truck driver, boiler inspector, deep-sea diver and taught grammar school for four years. He also writes poetry.
 His part in the classroom drama: "Bright now the great concern is for the Negroes, other minority groups, the poor and the out-caste diver and taught grammar school for four years. He also writes poetry."
 Most of Walden's pupils come from the poverty program. The drama unfolds. The pupils clash with each other and voice or alcoholism. "These are the kids who were 'A' students in elementary school," said Rode. "By the time they get to high school, they've lost their selves and life."
 Tomorrow, Jackson, may teach a seminar in poetry. And maybe the pupils will again learn something.
 It's all part of the school's experimental approach to one of the nation's tragedies: the high school dropout.
 "We're doing some pioneering here," Alex Rode, 31, the founder and headmaster of Walden School, said in an interview. "These kids are not the kind of poor the poverty program is concerned with." The emphasis is on self-expression and self-understanding.
 Heavy doses of academics are mingled with gentle doses of personal counseling.
 School psychologist Dr. Joseph G. Slavin, 30, is consulted frequently. He is impressed by the school's ability to redirect its pupils. "This is a useful experiment," he says. "A number of youngsters who have graduated have been able to go to college or engage in a kind of work that you would not have been able to predict before."
 Others are still walking the same streets and doing the same things they did before going to Walden. But one pupil has developed a reputation as a folk singer. Another is a folk artist. And most are rarely found without a thick paperback book jammed in a pocket.
 Walden's approach excites Prof. Harold L. Cohen of the Income Tax Rise Urged on Congress

Henry H. Fowler, only last week's class treasurer for the Treasury's budget on contingency tax planning.

This means that no change in tax structure—favoring one income group over another—should be made for an anti-inflation tax boost. Stanley S. Surrey, assistant secretary of the Treasury for tax matters, has said changes in structure require much more study and debate than there was for this if a tax increase is needed to dampen inflationary trends.

The new tax measure signed by President Johnson earlier this month would raise the total rate of 49 percent.

Raising only the surtax would exempt small corporations from the 49 percent rate.

These percentages could be varied up and down depending on how much money the administration decided it wanted to remove from the economy—if it made that decision at all.

Treasury officials are working on contingency plans for a tax increase—or a reduction if it should ever be needed to stimulate the economy—without reaching no firm decisions on a package of laws that would be administered under the new law will be felt in their April 15 payment.

Police Seek Child Lost A Year Ago

By DAVID WALLACE
TYRON, Pa. (AP) — Six-year-old Kathy Shea stopped to talk to a neighbor on her way to school one sunny afternoon just over a year ago. It was the last time anyone reported seeing her.

Now, while authorities search for Kathy, her parents pray and hope she is somewhere home for their two young sons.

Have the parents given up hope?
"If we didn't have that, what would we have?" asks Mrs. James R. Shea.

They try to spare their sons, Kevin, 5, and Todd, 3, some of their grief.

"They have to lead a normal life," says Mrs. Shea. "The boys don't remember his sister, but the older boy still wonders."

Are they doing anything to find the blonde girl?
"We're doing a lot of praying," says Mrs. Shea.

With the praying goes a continuing police search which has produced two large folders of information on Kathy's case.

Kathy left her family's yellow frame house after lunch and began walking to kindergarten at a school four blocks away.

A block and a half away, she stopped to talk to a neighbor, Betty Foster.

Kathy never got to school. What happened?
"It could be a dozen things," says Capt. Edward J. Swain, commander of state police headquarters at Middletown.

He says it is unlikely that Kathy wandered off on her own.

"We searched the entire area thoroughly," he said. "How far could a small child go in a short period of time?"

At one time, thousands of volunteers joined in a week-long search.

Police sent descriptions to schools and law enforcement agencies in 50 states. The FBI was called in.

The search still brings tips but none are productive.

"It's a big case," said Lt. Edward P. Mitzarowski of the Hollisburgh headquarters, "but there's no little to it."

75 Guns Stolen From Warehouse

NORTH HAVEN (AP) — Federal and local authorities were searching today for a $4,000 shipment of 75 guns stolen from a trucking company warehouse.

Police said Monday the shipment of 80 M16 44-caliber assault rifles, 20 Winchester 243-caliber shotguns and 50 Winchester 22-caliber magnum rifles was taken over the weekend from a building owned by the National Car Loading Co.

An FBI spokesman said the guns could be distributed on the black market, or, if the thieves were amateurs, they might sell the guns to individuals.

Area Weather

WINDSOR LOCKS (AP) — The U.S. Weather Bureau says clouds are moving in to Connecticut to stay until Thursday afternoon, and precipitation should accompany them part of the time.

A zone of heavier clouds with snow or rain extends from Lake Ontario through western New York and Pennsylvania to Kentucky. The associated weak cold front is advancing toward Connecticut and should arrive early tonight. However, it should slow down as it will be reinforced by some colder Canadian air.

The precipitation will extend into part of tonight, with heavy rain and cool breezes to begin Thursday.

Today's precipitation is forecast to be in the form of intermittent light snow except probably snow mixed with rain near the Connecticut coast.

Thursday there will be quite cool temperatures, with the high in the 40s as some sunshine appears Thursday afternoon.

Friday Forecast
Temperatures in Connecticut Thursday through Monday are expected to average below normal. Cool throughout the period.

Smaller States Lead Compact In Education

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — Dr. James B. Conant, secretary of Harvard University, envisioned two years ago that the big states of the nation would lead the way in forming an interstate compact to plan a nationwide educational policy.

His plans today that the smaller states took the initiative in carrying out the program. The interstate steering committee of the compact today opens its first meeting at the compact became functional. Dr. Conant will be among those present.

The compact became operational Feb. 18 when the smallest state in geographical size — Rhode Island — and one of the smaller in population — New Mexico — became the ninth and 10th states to ratify membership in the compact. The by-laws provided the compact would become operational as soon as 10 states or territories ratified it.

Secret Agents Won't Get Pay

MANILA (AP) — Three hundred secret agents will be out of work on Thursday.

Col. Felisardo Tanabe, new chief of the Criminal Investigation Service, said today the agents will be laid off because there is no money to pay them.

Pay will stop for another 200 agents because their appointments were kept so secret that even the Civil Service Commission, which controls the purse strings, did not know who was on the payroll.

The actions are the result of a scandal which broke 10 days ago. Five senior officers and six girl agents were fired by President Ferdinand S. Marcos.

The officers were accused by Sen. Alejandro Almendras of appointing the 200 to the payroll at large salaries for secret work and not for secret sleuthing.

Critics of the senator claim he had set previous appointments of secret agents but got angry when told there were no more secret agent jobs available.

A Senate inquiry is currently hearing evidence from the dismissed spy chiefs and the six women, who all claim they are innocent.

Telephone Times in Vietnam: A dispatch to the Herald Tribune this morning from Douglas Kiker in Washington begins this way:

"The Johnson administration has concluded that, for the moment, it has decided that it is to avoid displaying any great alarm over South Vietnam's domestic political crisis."

"The fact is, however, this unmitigated appearance something resembles a brave heroine, who—in an effort to prevent anyone—keeps singing his aria after everyone in the house has begun to snore."

"The news from South Vietnam also suggests, today, the ultimate in concern coupled with an effort to move as quietly as possible. We read, for instance, of the behind-the-scenes efforts of Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge to tone down the stand being taken by the Catholic leadership in South Vietnam, as that leadership begins to join the Buddhists in calling for a return to civilian government of the country."

"The whole show may be about to blow up, and there isn't anything clearly right or equitable or decisive that we can do about it, any more than there is about any other angle of our situation in South Vietnam."

"At the moment, the situation and the problem has to be outlined this way: The Buddhists are gradually, day by day, stepping up their opposition to the Ky Government, which was recently warmly and personally embraced by President Johnson at Honolulu."

"The Catholic leadership, in rivalry with the Buddhists, is nevertheless joining the demand that the Ky Government be supplanted by a civilian regime. Some Catholic elements have for some time been going beyond this particular objective, and have been calling for peace in Vietnam. Back in January one Catholic group called South Vietnam's political scene a 'hellish desert.'"

"An open letter from 11 Vietnamese priests, asking a halt to the bloodshed, included such statements as this: 'The survival of the country, the interests of the people and of peace have nothing to do with the diversities of ideologies and beliefs. On the contrary, truly to be feared are those who, in the name of one side or the other, go so far as to no longer respect free choice and its exercise on the part of their fellow-citizens. Also to be feared are those who in actuality have no other ideology or religion than themselves, their money, their passions, and their own interests.'"

"While the domestic opposition to the Ky Government thus continues to flex its argument, and show its street muscles, two much-to-be-dreaded additional factors have begun to enter the situation."

"Premier Ky has begun to talk tough about what he is going to do to the street demonstrators if they don't stop. And the latest word is that the most inevitable eruption of actual incident between the native demonstrators and the Americans in South Vietnam has now begun to take place."

"That situation—always probable because it is actually an almost logical, inevitable result of the way American policy has conducted itself in Vietnam—is more threatening than usual at the moment. It is the nightmare in which the people of Vietnam are united, at least, against the particular government we support, against our own presence."

"Free Enterprise: The gasoline station proprietor on the corner, all four of him, likes to pose as an independent businessman. He represents the American way of making a living. Going into business for yourself. Of course, not everyone is capable of being the Boss. It takes certain qualifications which are not common to all men. The result is that according to the Connecticut Gasoline Retailers Association two out of five station runners go out of business each year."

"The fact is, as anyone who has bought gasoline outside of Stamford knows, the station runners show great ability to bring their prices into line with those about them. Gasoline prices in Stamford, for some strange reason, are always a few cents higher than in Fort Chester or Norwalk. Of course, no one suggests that this is a violation of anti-trust laws. It is just competition finding a common ground."

"The retailers' association proposal would destroy what 'competition' there is but it would not save the inept station runner. He will fall anyway because regardless of price the well-run station will get the business. The Legislative Council has rejected this socialistic scheme before. It should be rejected again. — STAMFORD ADVOCATE"

"Good News Paradox: There is a point beyond which property headlines cease to be good news and become a cause for concern."

"Normally, the concern will exist primarily in old-fashioned minds which still have the ancient idea that two and two will still have to make four, set out on the line soon day."

"Occasionally, however, even the modern priests of the great society show signs of responding to an old-fashioned alarm."

"This is the way it is proving to be with the $50 billion dollar giant expansion forecast the Department of Com-

WASHINGTON — The fact that an obscure New York City politician named John Olivero is now on the staff of Frank O'Connor, President of the City Council, is being studied by prominent Democrats for implications that could extend to Presidential politics."

Olivero was a New York advance man for Vice President Hubert Humphrey in the 1964 campaign. And no matter how much O'Connor tries to disguise it, his association with Olivero indicates that a Humphrey-O'Connor alliance may be budding. That's considerably less than good news for Sen. Robert F. Kennedy of New York."

O'Connor is front-runner for the Democratic nomination for Governor with a fair chance of beating Republican Gov. Nelson Rockefeller in November. That would put the New York state delegation in O'Connor's hands at the 1968 Democratic National Convention and, if he is elected, again in 1972. If O'Connor really is forming a partnership with Humphrey, this could seriously damage Kennedy's Presidential hopes."

So much of the internal scuffling inside the Democratic party today, the New York situation is obviously related to a possible future battle most likely in 1972. Thus, Kennedy's own future could be influenced by who wins the Democratic nomination for Governor of New York."

In brief, Kennedy must control the New York delegation at the future Democratic National Conventions. And that may not be possible if Frank O'Connor is Governor."

The fact that a Humphrey man is on his staff is not the only sign that O'Connor is less than thoroughly committed to Kennedy's cause."

School Music Program Described by Teachers

"Music is every man's hereditary right... The objective for the primary grades is to enjoy singing and to sing often. Older elementary school children must learn notes and the vocabulary of music, but, in the first few grades, an aptitude for music must be developed."

Students are taught to distinguish simple elements of music such as mood, rhythm and dynamics... The school board learned when the curriculum was reviewed at a meeting earlier this month.

Ben Thomas, elementary school music director, noted in presenting the lower level music curriculum that the hope of all music teachers is to make the subject "something personal to each student that can be used to enrich his life."

In basic education, Thomas said, the aim is to make the student aware of the world around him through many experiences.

"The objective for the primary grades is to enjoy singing and to sing often. Older elementary school children must learn notes and the vocabulary of music, but, in the first few grades, an aptitude for music must be developed."

Thomas noted that, in teaching rhythm, the response of the child to any rhythm and his ability to recognize a rhythmic pattern is essential in creating the child's awareness of the vocabulary of music, but, in the first few grades, an aptitude for music must be developed.

Parents are urged to take an interest in the child's progress and encourage the student to maintain a practice schedule of 30 minutes a day.

He noted that, at the beginning of the year, an effort is made to meet students at their own level of interest and stage of development, by including such areas as popular songs, folk music and dance music in the study plan.

Each of the two middle schools has a chorus with about 40 students participating. The chorus meets for one hour each week, and presents a Christmas concert and a Spring Festival.

Projected goals of the middle school music department are modernization of the program, by extending the stereo record and film strip libraries, and obtaining additional equipment, such as tape recorders and overhead screens to be used with projectors.

In the new middle school curriculum, music will be offered twice a week rather than once a week. Music entering high school from the middle school will be expanded and chorus groups enlarged.

The teachers noted that in the high school, all music courses are elective, and more specialized instruction in instrumental music is available throughout the school.

Band is offered as a regular course, along with classes in music theory, harmony and music appreciation.

In music appreciation classes, students are encouraged to listen to more classical music, and an effort is made to correlate music with other subjects, such as history and art.

Arthur Wood of the high school music department noted that the department would like to expand the chorus to two groups, one for anyone who would like to sing, and to form boys and girls' glee clubs.

Wood said he hopes that the new curriculum can be expanded to include a training band for students who are just entering high school from the middle school.

Nine Stone Truck Driver In Strike

PUTNAM (AP) - A truck from a company hit by a strike in Worcester, Mass., was pursued by Connecticut police as it fled from the state.

The driver, identified as Gerson Gurwitz, 20, of Worcester, suffered cuts when rocks were thrown through the windshield of the truck Tuesday night.

The truck is owned by the New England Grocer Supply Co., Inc., in Worcester.

State police said the nine men in the two vehicles that pursued the truck were chased by a Connecticut trooper into Rhode Island.

The nine men, all from Massachusetts, were scheduled to appear today in the eighth district court in Cranston, R.I., on the fugitive charge.

They were identified as Elias Wagner, 36, and Francis Hasset, 34, both of Worcester; Alfred Danna, 39, of East Millbury; Kenneth Healy, 36, and Edward Spring, 28, both of Clinton.

Union Contracts Adopted, Charter Change Proposed

Contracts between the town and unions representing its police and public works departments were approved by the board of representatives at a special meeting last night.

All town employees are subject to the same penalties if they strike, and are fired for the second time.

Following the meeting, Blawie said he is concerned that the contracts will prove too expensive.

Both said they did not vote against the contract because of the time and effort that went into creating them.

Negotiations over the public works union contract bogged down several weeks ago, and a state arbitrator was called in.

The town charter, adopted last year, has any person holding a position in the classified service of the town from making any contribution to the campaign funds of any political party or candidate for public office or taking any part in the management, affairs or campaign of any political party.

The item is similar to the federal Hatch Act, which forbids public employees from taking part in the college's liberal arts program.

The approved contract will run for two years, but all matters, except salaries, may be reconsidered after one year.

Other differences in personnel rules for the public works employees, Councilman Richard McCarthy presented a motion for the board of representatives to recommend to the charter revision committee reconsideration of the political activities section. The motion was approved.

College Gets Two Grants

Manchester Community College has received two federal grants of $26,425 and $6,540. President Frederick Lowe announced today.

The larger amount is the award of funds under the National Education Act to support the college's current operation of its vocational program. The funds, allocated through the State Division of Vocational Education, will provide $4,000 in laboratory equipment for the medical secretarial program, $1,800 for library books related to the vocational curriculum, and $800 for travel expenses of personnel. The remainder will provide for the salaries of vocational instructors' support.

The grant is the second received under the federal act, the college having been awarded $35,000 last year for new equipment.

The $6,540 award, provided under the Higher Education Act of 1965, is to be allocated in half tuition scholarships to students of the college. Maximum tuition is $100 per year.

Awarding of the scholarships will be based primarily on need and amount of previous income. Dr. Lowe said. The students are eligible for additional help through tuition reduction and are viewed by the state to a maximum of 10 percent of the student body through private endowment of the college, administered by the Manchester Scholarship Foundation and the provisions of the National Defense Loan Fund.

12th Circuit Court Cases

ROCKVILLE SESSION
Mrs. Odessa Edwards of 13 Chamberlain St., Rockville, accused of wounding her husband, was bound over to the next criminal session of Tolland County Superior Court following a hearing in the circuit court yesterday.

Mrs. Edwards' husband was shot in the stomach on March 18 about 1 a.m. She is charged with assault with intent to murder.

Atty. Robert Pigeon, representing Mrs. Edwards, presented testimony from witnesses received in the week of recent Michigan sightings.

Some replies by the Air Force are practically a form letter which says that the Air Force has no pictures or flying saucers, that it does not censor or keep secret reports about UFO's and that Congress has not yet seen fit to conduct an investigation in the matter.

Other replies give specific explanations to people who report seeing strange lights or mysterious objects.

Virtually all are accompanied by an annual report of Project Blue Book.

This project, started in 1947, has produced explanations for 8,500 of a total 10,147 sightings reported through 1965.

Project Blue Book has been unable to explain the 666 other UFO incidents and these merely says: "The description of the object or its motion cannot be correlated with any known object or phenomenon."

Based on the bulk of its findings, the Air Force has decided that most people do not see interplanetary space ships but bright stars, balloons, satellites, comets, fireballs, aircraft, moving clouds, vapor trails, missiles, reflections, mirages, searchlights, birds, kites, power line radar indicators, fireworks or flares.

In the case of the Michigan incidents marsh gas was pinpointed as the source of colored lights observed by a number of people.

The answers the Air Force has been able to turn up have led it to these conclusions:

1. No UFO has ever given any indication of threat to the national security.

2. There is no evidence that year from inquisitive persons—among them, school children, corporate officials, housewives, flying saucer club members and foreigners.

Last year it turned out 5,777 replies to letters about UFO's. The count for January and February already has run over 800 requests for information or UFO's in flight. The Air Force has received in Michigan and across roads in Oklahoma.

"They could be peep-a-lookers," says the Air Force, "or they could be something else. The astronomer said he felt the planet Venus is mistaken for a flying saucer by many persons." He then recalled Orson Welles' fictional radio broadcast of a Martian invasion of Camden, N.J.

"Now, why would men from Mars be interested in Camden?" he asked.

UFO's represent technological developments or principles being present day scientific knowledge.

There is no evidence that any UFO's are "extra-terrestrial" objects.

Gulf Stream Section in 'Free' Spin

ly with the Gulf Stream; it left behind a warm water eddy or meander, for the first time, so far as is known, in at least 10 years.

When last spotted, the eddy was at latitude 41 north, longitude 60 west. The temperature at its center is about 44 degrees compared to about 45 degrees for the surrounding water. It is spaced about a distance of at least three light years, would have that "spacehip" hover over swamps in Michigan or cross roads in Oklahoma.

The eddy is too small to have any appreciable effect, in itself, on the weather. But scientists hope to learn more from it about how warm and cold water mix in the ocean, which largely control the temperature and moisture content of the air.

"Knowledge of the interactions between ocean and air is largely in its infancy," Moses said. "As we show, we hope to gather data that could some day lead to long-range weather forecasts and possibly to a measure of weather control."

Four Groups Searching For Kindergarten Rooms

Representatives of four House, 705 New Britain Ave., Hartford, Conn., are searching for kindergarten rooms for the city's four kindergartens.

The delegation is an outgrowth of a meeting of the educational committees of the Tolland Junior Women's Club with representatives of the Tolland Juniors, the PTA officers of the present kindergarten and St. Matthew's Women's Guild.

When appropriate facilities are located, the present co-operative kindergarten will run additional classes under its license, but with a second set of officers. The facilities would have to be inspected by the State Board of Health, which would ascertain whether they meet state standards.

Mrs. Harry Stone, present president of the club, has outlined the state requirements for child day-care centers, the cost of maintaining a private kindergarten program and the form of the present program being sought in the kindergarten.

The primary expenses of running a co-operative kindergarten are for teachers' salaries, equipment and working materials. The co-op uses facilities in the United Congregational Church for its classes, which meet on double sessions three days a week.

Only 44 children can be accommodated in the present facilities, however, causing an annual registration scramble. This year's registration session, which will be held at the church on Saturday, April 15, at 4:30 a.m. Some parents had been waiting from as early as 3 a.m. to register.

The present co-operative kindergarten appears to be the most realistic approach to the problem for the next few years, most observers conclude.

The state does not require kindergartens to be licensed and the local elementary schools are filled to capacity with children in grades one through six. The town's bonding limit has been exhausted financing schools to Suburban Homes.

The additional cost of kindergartens on the new high school is necessary next year, so the school can be scheduled to open following year, it will most likely become necessary to build a third elementary school to serve rapidly-increasing population.

Tolland is one of only three towns in the state with more than 20 percent of its population under six years of age. The high proportion of preschoolers complicates the problem of providing kindergarten facilities for five-year-olds.

Easter Egg Hunt
The annual Easter egg hunt sponsored by the board of recreation will be held April 8 on the Meadowbrook School grounds.

The hunt will be divided into two categories. Preschool children will search for prize winning golden eggs at 10 a.m., and the children in grades 1, 2, and 3 will have their opportunity at 1 p.m.

Candy will be given to all participants and coffee and donuts will be provided for the parents. In the event of rain, the egg hunt will be April 9 at the same time.

The board of recreation is adding the co-operative kindergartens in providing hard-hatted, colored eggs for the hunt. The eggs will be left at the Tolland State Jail, April 6 and 7, no later than 4 p.m.

ROME (AP)—Italians consume too much pasta and not enough food rich in proteins and vitamins, the Health Ministry says.

The ministry said a nationwide survey showed "an important lack of the population doesn't eat enough meat, cheese, eggs, fruits and vegetables."

In the outlying areas of Milan, according to the survey, only 29 percent of the children examined were found to be developing satisfactorily. Sixty-two percent had an imbalance in weight as a result of malnutrition.

The ministry said people had generally well balanced diets in such big northern industrial cities as Milan, Turin and Genoa and in Rome and some other districts of the central region.

The protein and vitamin consumption was "moderate" in the north central region of Tuscany and in the Po Valley in the north. There was a low consumption of meat in Sicily and other regions of the south, and in Sardinia, the Alpine valleys, the Apennines and in suburban areas of large cities.

The survey showed that in these areas food intake and malnutrition is particularly grave, especially in individuals between 2 and 11 years of age.

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Ideas are continuing on a proposal to build a bridge crossing Long Island Sound between Rocky Point, L.I. and Old Saybrook, Conn., but Gov. Nelson Rockefeller said he has rejected the plan for an 84-mile highway to link the proposed bridge with New York City.

Rockefeller said Tuesday his transportation aides are still studying the project and he is not ready to support the proposal for the Eastern Long Island Sound bridge.

The governor met Monday night with Long Island lawmakers who reported considerable opposition to the highway proposal, the so-called "Atlantic Expressway", because it would force condemnation of thousands of private homes and businesses.

As a result, Rockefeller said Tuesday, "No consideration has been or is being given by me or my administration to the so-called Atlantic Expressway."

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—"Treats have been established that illnesses in humans, especially children, originated from baby chicks and other Easter pets kept as playthings in the home," State Commissioner of Health, Dr. Francis Frassinelli said.

The Commissioner noted Tuesday that the U.S. Public Health Service has established a "definition link between salmonella infections and pets sold in the East."

Salmonella symptoms include diarrhea, nausea, abdominal cramps and fever.

Frassinelli said that "the only way to guard against" cases of infection in the infection this Easter season is "to not purchase these anti-biotic for children as household pets."

College Gets Two Grants

Manchester Community College has received two federal grants of $26,425 and $6,540. President Frederick Lowe announced today.

The larger amount is the award of funds under the National Education Act to support the college's current operation of its vocational program. The funds, allocated through the State Division of Vocational Education, will provide $4,000 in laboratory equipment for the medical secretarial program, $1,800 for library books related to the vocational curriculum, and $800 for travel expenses of personnel. The remainder will provide for the salaries of vocational instructors' support.

The grant is the second received under the federal act, the college having been awarded $35,000 last year for new equipment.

The $6,540 award, provided under the Higher Education Act of 1965, is to be allocated in half tuition scholarships to students of the college. Maximum tuition is $100 per year.

Awarding of the scholarships will be based primarily on need and amount of previous income. Dr. Lowe said. The students are eligible for additional help through tuition reduction and are viewed by the state to a maximum of 10 percent of the student body through private endowment of the college, administered by the Manchester Scholarship Foundation and the provisions of the National Defense Loan Fund.

12th Circuit Court Cases

ROCKVILLE SESSION
Mrs. Odessa Edwards of 13 Chamberlain St., Rockville, accused of wounding her husband, was bound over to the next criminal session of Tolland County Superior Court following a hearing in the circuit court yesterday.

Mrs. Edwards' husband was shot in the stomach on March 18 about 1 a.m. She is charged with assault with intent to murder.

Atty. Robert Pigeon, representing Mrs. Edwards, presented testimony from witnesses received in the week of recent Michigan sightings.

Some replies by the Air Force are practically a form letter which says that the Air Force has no pictures or flying saucers, that it does not censor or keep secret reports about UFO's and that Congress has not yet seen fit to conduct an investigation in the matter.

Other replies give specific explanations to people who report seeing strange lights or mysterious objects.

Virtually all are accompanied by an annual report of Project Blue Book.

This project, started in 1947, has produced explanations for 8,500 of a total 10,147 sightings reported through 1965.

Project Blue Book has been unable to explain the 666 other UFO incidents and these merely says: "The description of the object or its motion cannot be correlated with any known object or phenomenon."

Based on the bulk of its findings, the Air Force has decided that most people do not see interplanetary space ships but bright stars, balloons, satellites, comets, fireballs, aircraft, moving clouds, vapor trails, missiles, reflections, mirages, searchlights, birds, kites, power line radar indicators, fireworks or flares.

In the case of the Michigan incidents marsh gas was pinpointed as the source of colored lights observed by a number of people.

The answers the Air Force has been able to turn up have led it to these conclusions:

1. No UFO has ever given any indication of threat to the national security.

2. There is no evidence that

"Now, why would men from Mars be interested in Camden?" he asked.

UFO's represent technological developments or principles being present day scientific knowledge.

There is no evidence that any UFO's are "extra-terrestrial" objects.

Four Groups Searching For Kindergarten Rooms

Representatives of four House, 705 New Britain Ave., Hartford, Conn., are searching for kindergarten rooms for the city's four kindergartens.

The delegation is an outgrowth of a meeting of the educational committees of the Tolland Junior Women's Club with representatives of the Tolland Juniors, the PTA officers of the present kindergarten and St. Matthew's Women's Guild.

When appropriate facilities are located, the present co-operative kindergarten will run additional classes under its license, but with a second set of officers. The facilities would have to be inspected by the State Board of Health, which would ascertain whether they meet state standards.

Mrs. Harry Stone, present president of the club, has outlined the state requirements for child day-care centers, the cost of maintaining a private kindergarten program and the form of the present program being sought in the kindergarten.

The primary expenses of running a co-operative kindergarten are for teachers' salaries, equipment and working materials. The co-op uses facilities in the United Congregational Church for its classes, which meet on double sessions three days a week.

Only 44 children can be accommodated in the present facilities, however, causing an annual registration scramble. This year's registration session, which will be held at the church on Saturday, April 15, at 4:30 a.m. Some parents had been waiting from as early as 3 a.m. to register.

State's Turnpike Is Hit, Praised By Congressmen

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Connecticut Turnpike was criticized as a "toll trap" for travelers and defended as an example of a state's "national leadership in highway traffic safety" as a House public works subcommittee looked into its alleged "incompatibility" with the system of free interstate highways.

testimony Tuesday from Connecticut's deputy highway commissioner, Ralph L. Hager, and from the State Highway Department's assistant director of staff services, Arthur C. England. Rep. Richard D. McCarthy, N.Y., commented that the toll questions that the Connecticut Turnpike differs from other toll roads in that travelers may fair advantage to local traffic points, without having to pay a "family" with navigation around toll stations. But McCarthy also commented Connecticut for doing "an outstanding job" in taking "national leadership in highway traffic safety."

Lone Marine Stops Gun

YINH LOK, South Viet Nam (AP)—A 15-year-old U.S. Marine staged a one-man raid on an enemy bunker, killed two Communists and captured a 20mm cannon that had pinned down his entire company. Pfc. Alvin E. Lapointe of the 1st Marine Division, attached to the 3rd Battalion, 5th Marine Regiment, was on duty at the bunker during a three-hour fight with North Vietnamese army regulars in this hamlet outside of Quang Ngai City, 3500 miles northeast of Saigon. The Marine estimated they killed 150 Reds. South Vietnamese troops said they accounted for another 67. Lapointe crawled to within five feet of the bunker while a buddy kept up covering fire. Then, to the amazement of other Marines, Lapointe dived in, landing on top of the cannon. One Red gunner froze. Lapointe said, and he killed him with his bayonet. The other tried to flee but Lapointe got him with a grenade. Said Lapointe's squad leader, Sgt. Mack Ferrick of San Clemente, Calif.: "I was surprised when Lapointe jumped into the bunker. That cannon would have taken many more casualties."

Tolland County Summer Drought Warning: More Parched Wells Likely

BY PHINEAS FISKE

If you had trouble with your well during last summer's drought, take care—you'll probably be having trouble again this year.

And, even if your well held out last year when your neighbor's wells failed, you may not be so lucky this time.

This hint of what summer holds in store came from talks presented last night to the Tolland County Soil and Water Conservation District by a climatologist, reviewing drought conditions in Connecticut in recent years, and a geologist concerned with charging the water table in the state.

The talks, followed the district's annual business meeting at the Tolland Agricultural Center on Rt. 30 in Rockville. The climatologist, Joseph T. Brumbach, who is working with the U.S. Weather Bureau at the University of Connecticut in Storrs, said that the seven-year drought which is affecting Connecticut and the Northeast.

In the 140 or so years that state weather records have been kept, he said, there has never been a period of drought that has lasted so long.

Usually a two or three year drought will be followed by an unusually wet year or two.

Nor has there been recorded, despite late summer rains last fall over several years has dropped so far below the amount that would have fallen if the years had all been "average."

Since 1961, Brumbach said, this area of the state has suffered a deficit of about 46 inches of precipitation, compared to the total that would normally have been expected during that period.

Not only is the drought long, but it is severe. The dry spell during 1964 was affected not only crop yields, Brumbach said, but also contributed to a drop in the water table in Connecticut—despite late summer rains last year.

John A. Baker of the U. S. Geological Survey in Middle-boroughs noted that the water table, as measured at many of the test wells the government's Water Resources Division maintains throughout the state, is at its lowest point on record for this time of year.

Normally, he said, the water table reaches its highest place in any year in March or April. Then drops off steeply during the summer and begins to come back in October and November.

This year, however, at the time when the water table can be expected to be reaching its highest level, it is still considerably lower in many locations than in any of the past seven years.

The lowering water table may not only result in empty wells, but will also probably affect the amount of water flowing in streams and brooks. Streams in this area are supplied mostly from groundwater. The first to be affected by a drop in the water table will be wells in high land — in the northeastern highlands of the state, for example, from which the groundwater will drop away first.

Moderate rainfall could bring small reservoirs up to the top, but would not substantially affect the ground water level or fill larger reservoirs.

Baker said that President Johnson asked last year that the Water Resources Division of the Geological Survey prepare a report on water supply in the Northeast, and predict what this year will bring.

Based on observations of the water table in its wells, the division said in January that it would take rainfall 10 inches above average to bring the water table in Connecticut back to normal.

Yet precipitation has continued below normal so far this year.

As a result, Baker said, the division is predicting "another year of drought, as far as the water table and stream flow is concerned, for the rest of 1966."

At its annual meeting, the county conservation district re-

Washington Is Rat Race For Ambassadors' Wives

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's "All this charitable business called the two-or-one tech-down" on any place else in the United States, then use the ambassador's wife here. Apparently his wife to snip stars ribbons, they expect it to improve our charities, promote country. Ireland gets along very well without it."

It's a rat race, widest in Washington. Physically, it's exhausting, intellectually, it's a marsh-mallow. Columnists promote it and the local society expects it. Points out that her country sent a new ambassador to her husband here and sent her to the mire before she's off at his wife, not expecting her to the plane. Getting out gracefully, if she wants to, is all but impossible.

"The only way for an ambassador's wife to have a family life of her own," says one prominent woman, "is to have had breath and speak no English. A wife expects responsibilities, but popular opinion here demands she make a full time job of it."

An English-speaking wife of an ambassador can expect to attend a luncheon a day, several cocktail parties and a dinner every night, plus various appointments in between.

Women who have accompanied their husband to other foreign posts say no other city in the world demands so much from the wife of a diplomat.

Added to this is the exuberant American chit-chat, always ready to draft a new face into her favorite charity and assuming the ambassador's wife will feel neglected if she isn't included in everything in Washington.

No ambassador's wife complains of her official duties, which are manifold, she expects them. But what gets many of them down is the extra-diplomatic duties imposed on them by Washington existence.

"It's the limit," says Lillian Fay, vivacious blue-eyed wife of the Irish lawyer-ambassador, William F. Fay, married 25 years and a veteran of the diplomatic world, Mrs. Fay says:

To Recover Cylinders
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy has sent two officers to western Ireland to get a three-foot long cylindrical metal object found there which had markings indicating it may have come from the sunken submarine Thresher.

The object was found at Killeen and is marked "Thresher" and "radioactive." The Navy said it "cannot confirm that the USS Thresher was found off the coast of Ireland."

The object is to be taken to the U.S. Polaris submarine base at Holy Loch, Scotland, for further study, the Navy said, adding that a statement will be made when the item is positively identified.

CAPITAL FOOTNOTES
The Senate approves a pay raise of about 10 per cent for teachers in overseas schools connected with U.S. installations.

Rep. Paul G. Rogers, D-Mich., says there should be a congressional review of television ratings services.

Vice Adm. John B. Colwell says "complete control of the sea and the supporting sea lanes" has enabled the Navy to play successfully a key role in Viet Nam.

The Treasury denies published reports that it has a new analysis of the balance of payments problem indicating the deficit will rise this year.

Urbanites Back Farms
WASHINGTON (AP) — Urban workers, realizing the interdependence of farm and city property, have invested more than $150 million worth of retirement and welfare funds in Farmers Home Administration loan programs. The money was advanced by 30 labor-unions agencies and state, county and municipal workers' trust funds. They comprise more than 20 per cent of the $585.3 million total of Farmers Home-insured loans now outstanding.

LBJ Seeks Grain Gift For India

In a discussion of his message to Congress and in response to a question, said he has no timetable in mind for congressional action. He said he wanted to see ample time for debate provided and would welcome any congressional suggestions.

The President said he already has legal authority to carry out the aid program. What he needs is a congressional endorsement of the project. Freeman said that further increases in American grain shipments to India might be authorized in the future if other countries fail to respond to India's plea for help.

In addition to the grain, the President also proposed to send to India 150 million pounds of vegetable oil, up to 10 million pounds of powdered milk, 200,000 to 700,000 bales of cotton and from two million to four million pounds of fertilizer and food.

Freeman explained that since India otherwise would have to use hard currencies to obtain such commodities as cotton and tobacco, they were included to help India's hard currency available for purchases of fertilizer and food.

In addition to the food shipments, Johnson proposed a program to provide U.S. instruction for Indian farmers in more efficient methods. He described this as "an effort to provide farm know-how at the acre level" and said he hoped it would bring hundreds of Indians short courses in better production methods.

He said he felt certain that American farm experts would respond to an appeal to serve in India as part of an agriculture training corps or through an expanded Peace Corps.

Johnson asked in his message for "the strong and warmhearted and generous support of this program by the American people."

India is a good and deserving friend," he said. "Let it never be said that 'bread should be so dear' and that 'blood and blood' are so cheap" that we turned in indifference from her bitter need."

Johnson said he was putting the facts of India's needs before Congress and seeking its endorsement because widespread famine must not and cannot be allowed.

Swing Areas Hold Key to British Vote

The election that hangs on the so-called marginal seats, where the two big parties are closely balanced. The nation's closest race in the 1964 election was in Brighton, which Labor won by seven votes in a district of 62,000 voters.

The voting habits of the British electorate are traditionally stable. Seventy to 80 per cent of the voters never vary. But seats won by a 10 per cent margin are generally labeled marginal, because only one voter in 20 needs to switch allegiance for the seat to change hands.

In the close election of 1964, it only about 2,700 voters in 21 marginal seats led voters to a Conservative victory.

About two dozen marginal seats are in London and its suburbs. They were won by margin ranges from 11 votes in Epsom to 1,689 in Wexley, which Tory leader Edward Heath represented.

Opinion polls have shown middle-class voters in the area swing slightly toward Labor. They also show some working-class voters everywhere are becoming disenchanted with the Labor government, but many live in areas where Labor has working-class voters.

Another half-dozen marginal seats are in the farming country of the United Kingdom. The Conservative party in this area because they feel the government has had a chance to prove itself.

"These people like to handle the goods before they buy," said a Labor campaign agent.

Other marginal areas are in Scotland and the west of England, where regional feelings are strong, and in Birmingham, where racial issues and industrial property control for the Conservatives in 1964.

The role of the tiny Liberal party in the margins is one of the election's biggest unknowns. The Liberals have put up 211 candidates in 24 less than last time. They have withdrawn from a score of marginal seats, and political commentators have filled columns of print speculating on which of the two major parties will be the victor.

Revelation of the United Appraisal Co.

The revelation, required by state law to be held at least once every 10 years, will be the basis of next October's Grand List.

Don tons of food grain to India in the last fiscal year and has allocated $5 million tons for the present fiscal year which closes June 30.

Mrs. Gandhi, before leaving for New York and home, said the talks with Johnson brought closer understanding and renewed friendship.

The final in the series of London services will be held on Palm Sunday evening in Epsom, the sanctuary of Union Congregational Church, Rockville at 7:30 p.m.

Opinion polls have shown middle-class voters in the area swing slightly toward Labor. They also show some working-class voters everywhere are becoming disenchanted with the Labor government, but many live in areas where Labor has working-class voters.

Another half-dozen marginal seats are in the farming country of the United Kingdom. The Conservative party in this area because they feel the government has had a chance to prove itself.

"These people like to handle the goods before they buy," said a Labor campaign agent.

Other marginal areas are in Scotland and the west of England, where regional feelings are strong, and in Birmingham, where racial issues and industrial property control for the Conservatives in 1964.

The role of the tiny Liberal party in the margins is one of the election's biggest unknowns. The Liberals have put up 211 candidates in 24 less than last time. They have withdrawn from a score of marginal seats, and political commentators have filled columns of print speculating on which of the two major parties will be the victor.

Peking Unlikely to Accept Russians Lay Down Final Unity Terms

To many ears, the Chinese have been abusive and insulting in their criticism of the Soviet new agency. The Chinese have not confined themselves to blaming Soviet Communism and foreign policy. They have also made scorching attacks on the Soviet internal system. They have ridiculed Soviet attempts to raise living standards and increase consumer production as capitalism in disguise.

At the same time Yegorychev began a process of re-examining Soviet history in the period that followed the Russian revolution. Yegorychev said the Communist sources have indicated that this re-examination will result in the softening of some criticisms of Lenin's leadership. He said that the changes in terminology might be an attempt to restore Lenin's reputation.

Police are hunting for a hit-run driver, the result of an accident at 12:15 this morning on a car parked on the west side of Summit St., owned by Norman R. Williams of 46 Hilltop Ave., Vernon, was damaged on the left rear side, police say.

Two detectives talked to Phil Switzer, the youth who heard Daniel's calls for help as he was being forced into his car before dawn Monday.

The change in title from President to Poliburo was one of the most discussed aspects of Brezhnev's speech in Moscow. Some observers suggested that the changes in terminology might be an attempt to restore Lenin's reputation.

Marines Test Very Light Machine Gun

The machine gun is a member of the Stoner 63 small weapons family. This is a novel system in which six different guns can be fashioned from one basic component by interchanging parts.

Eight of the bell-fitted Stoner light machine guns were being evaluated by the Marines in the Viet Nam war. Marine sources said today the testing began last month and will continue for an indefinite period.

None of the five forms of the Stoner system are being tried out at this time. The five are an assault rifle, a carbine, a light machine gun, a medium machine gun and a heavy tripod-mounted machine gun.

The Stoner machine gun, like its other five cousins in the system, fires the 5.56 millimeter (22 caliber) bullet which also is used by the M16 assault rifle. This rifle now being introduced into Viet Nam in considerable numbers for U.S. ground troops as well as for South Vietnamese and South Korean soldiers.

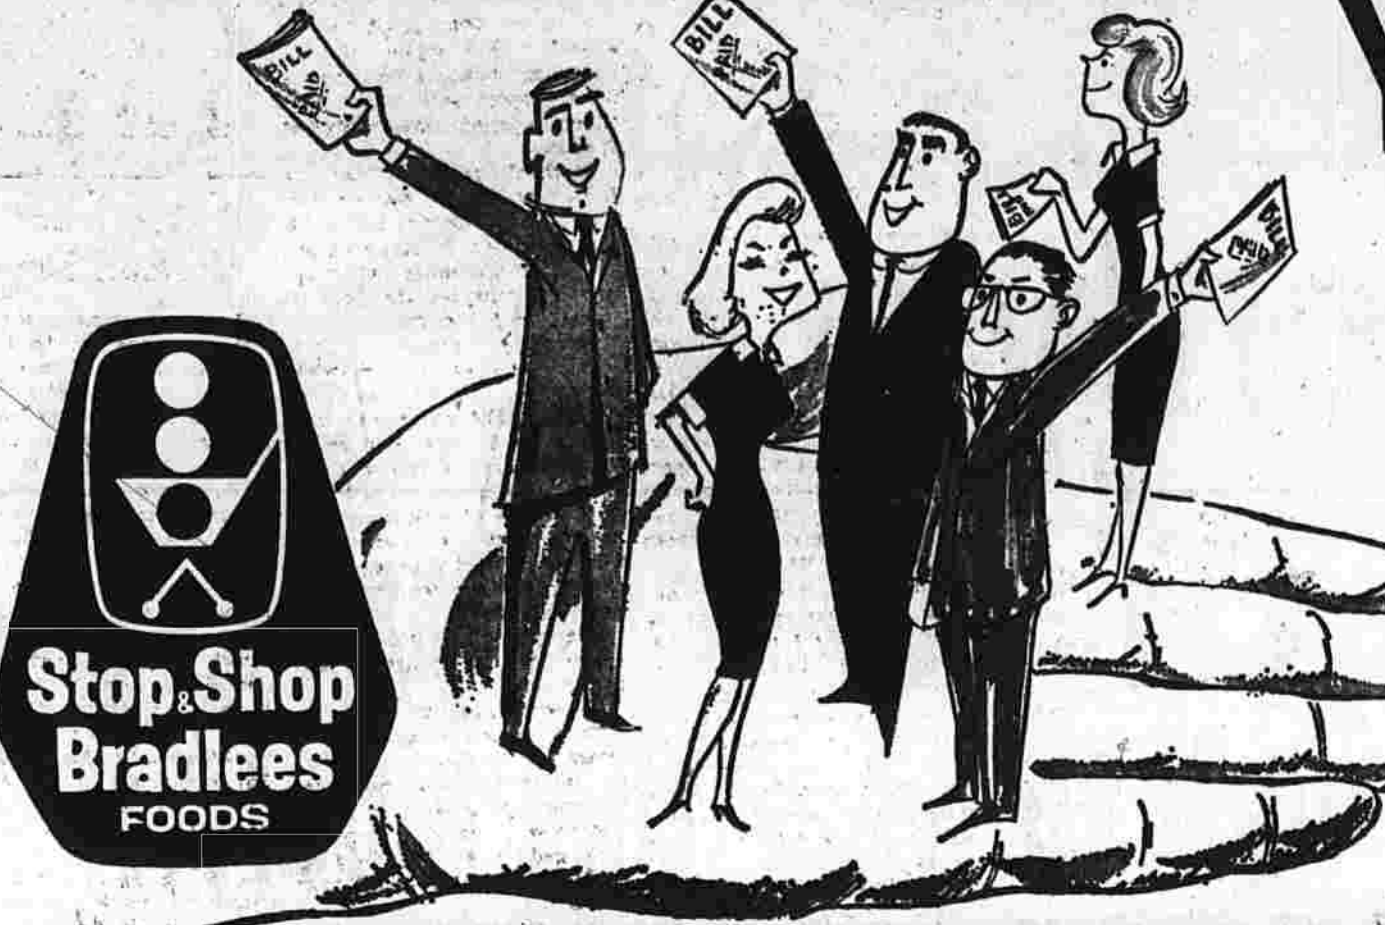

Like the M16, the Stoner features high muzzle velocity which heightens its killing power at short range.

The Stoner's features, its backers say, are accuracy, reliability, ruggedness and ease of maintenance in the field — all together with light weight, desirable in the kind of fighting being waged in Viet Nam.

Rep. Allan McCann, D-Greenwich, said the oath taken by teachers is so different from the one taken by legislators and all constitutional officers. He said that legislators should wait until the courts act on the issue.

The teachers oath, enacted in 1958, is being challenged by Joseph Podlosky, a mathematics professor at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He contends the oath is unconstitutional.

Mrs. Gandhi A Veteran In Politics

WASHINGTON (AP) — A handsome dark-eyed teenager moves up behind Indira Gandhi and whispers, "Mother..."

She turns and talks quietly a moment, then urges him away as a busy mother would.

Chill, gusting wind ruffles her black short-cropped hair and she lifts her silk scarf to preserve a collar, as a woman does.

President Johnson leads her across the White House lawn in a ceremonial review of the troops. Her steps are long, manly strides — taken with the confident air of a prime minister, which she is.

Indira Gandhi, 34, head of the Indian government, widow, mother-of-two sons, is a veteran politician who remembers that in her father's home "childhood games were political ones."

"She's a pro, hard as steel," says a close associate. "She believes in India, defends it and fights for it. She's tough and can't be waddy fooled."

After her welcome at the White House Monday, the trim and tiny Mrs. Gandhi smiled, almost shyly — then after the President spoke, waited nervously for the platform to be raised six inches for her to speak.

She stepped to the lectern, slipped a folded paper from an inside coat pocket, and with her gloves in one hand, her orange scarf flapping in the wind, she said firmly:

"India and the United States cannot and should not have each other for granted or allow their relations to drift."

Later, in Arlington National Cemetery, she placed an orange, green and white wreath — colors of the Indian flag — at President John F. Kennedy's grave, then silently stood a moment alone looking beyond it, across the Potomac River, to the Lincoln Memorial.

She had known, been entertained by, and greatly admired Kennedy.

Mrs. Gandhi's two-day schedule, in her words, "is very very busy, but wonderful. I enjoy it." She has been here half a dozen times before and is seeing many old friends.

At a reception for 1,400 at the Indian Embassy, Mrs. Gandhi had returned to a private room to rest when Secretary of State Dean Rusk showed up late. Somehow she got up.

Within minutes the prime minister was bounding down a small staircase with the grace of a glistening sparrow of "Cherchez le Bon," she said, greeting Rusk.

Her son Rajiv, 21, and Sanjay, 16, saw visiting Washington for the first time and she has taken some white robes in their official limousine, to point out tourist attractions.

Rajiv let his coat at one function and was properly scolded. Rajiv looks after his mother from a distance, waiting for a hint that she needs something.

Meanwhile, she changed cars several times during the day, because of her strenuous walking, she brought along several pairs of shoes: sandals, pumps, heels and low-block heels of various colors.

Between functions, a hairdresser meets the party at Blair House, where Mrs. Gandhi is staying. Hot tea, coffee, and tea snacks are handy.

Walking into the White House Monday, she hesitated a moment and looked up.

"She's looking at the honor guard," whispered a lady. "No," corrected an Indian friend. "She's watching a bird. The prime minister is a big bird watcher."

Moderate Winds Are 13-18 MPH

WASHINGTON—Over wester what "light" "gentle" or "strong" winds in weather forecasts mean? Winds of 1 to 3 miles an hour are "light". Smoke drifts but weather-vanes are unmoved. Small ripples form on water. Also "light" are breezes from 4 to 7 m.p.h. Leaves rustle; waves move; waves can build up to a foot in height.

A "gentle" wind is one of 8 to 12 m.p.h.; leaves are in constant motion. Taps extended; waves can reach 2 feet or more. Winds of 13 to 18 m.p.h. are "moderate" and 19 to 24 are "fresh". They're "strong" between 25 and 40.

New Vine Beautifies

GREEN DALE, Md. — U.S. Department of Agriculture researchers have released for propagation to plant breeders a vigorously growing hardy ornamental evergreen vine that may prove an asset to national beautification. Known as Longwood, it is scientifically called Thunbergia fortunei. It is well adapted as a low ground cover, particularly in shady or partly shady areas, or as a cover on low masonry walls.

Even though our meat buyer is a fanatic about beef quality... you don't pay any more!

It's not enough our meat buyers choose the finest steers they can find. It's not enough the government stamps their approval on it. Our man at the warehouse just won't be happy till he prys, peeks at and ponders over every piece of meat... before it goes to a Stop & Shop. And is he a stickler! He makes sure the meat is marbled enough to be juicy clear through. He confirms the shape.

He determines whether the meat is young and really tender. If something isn't just right... out it goes. Thanks to him, we pay only for the kind of meat we're proud to show in Stop & Shop meat counters... and you pay only for the kind of meat you're proud to serve. Koufax and Drysdale Reject 'Final Offer'

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Baseball's costliest holdout continued into its 32nd day today after pitchers Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale rejected what the Los Angeles Dodgers said was their final offer.

General Manager E. J. (Bud) Bavasi flew in from Florida via New York to reopen negotiations with his disident star and offered them an one-year combined offer of $50,000.

It amounted to a $12,500 increase from his previous offer—$12,500 to 25-game-winner Koufax and $37,500 to 28-game-winner Drysdale.

The players, through their attorney, J. William Hayes, turned it down and were quoted by Bavasi as saying:

"It was simply a matter of economics—not enough money."

The Gold Nigger Twins, who had originally asked for $60,000 apiece on three-year contracts, remained out of touch with the press, which has been polite to a great extent since they became official holdouts Feb. 27.

"I came to negotiate. That's what they said they wanted. But this was the end," said Bavasi.

"I think the boys have decided not to play ball this year. This is their privilege and we wish them luck."

Bavasi at first said he would insist on dictating with the players as a twosome, as they had demanded from the outset. But later he said he would talk business with either.

"But my thinking about the offer we have just made would have to be revised—meaning they've won no money."

Bavasi, after his rather brief talk with the attorney, called club President Walter O'Malley at the Vero Beach, Fla., training camp. They agreed, he said, that the $50,000 was the highest the club would go.

What do Sandy and Don now want?

"Frankly, I have no idea. All I know is that they wouldn't take what we offered."

The pitchers have signed to play future roles in a movie which is slated to start filming April 11, the day before the Dodgers open the National League season here.

Manager Walt Alston, trying to fashion another winner in Florida, said: "I'm disappointed. I can't lie about that, but it's no great surprise. I started to give up on them signing two weeks ago."

"I can't be mad at either one of them after all the games they've won for me."

HERALD SPORTS EDITOR

Today's Team—Boston Red Sox

Behind the plate, in the pitching department and on defense, the Red Sox have a lot of holes to plug.

Earl York is ready to go and Dick Radatz has been suspended for the manager offered.

One wonders who comes after Wilson among the starters? Dave Moorehead has been hot and cold. Dennis Bennett has a sore arm again. Jim Longberg is no mystery to opposing batters and Jerry Robinson has to deliver.

The Red Sox need pitching to stave off the Yankees. It is hard to find a pitcher who can look good, if they fall, we can look at the other side of the coin. We just want to see what's going to happen when you go with young, inexperienced players.

"We're the youngest team in the major leagues today," says the former National League second baseman told. Now in his second managerial year with Boston, Fenwick said, "The average age of the squad is less than 24 years."

The first question, is the start of another youth movement in the Boston organization.

The first was 13 years ago. Remember when owner Tom Yawkey replaced Lou Budenz, then managing, to play the young phenoms, and "built a winner?" That was back in 1953.

Some of the youngsters at that time were Marty Fought, Gene Stephens, Jimmy Piersall, Tom Umpshier and Ted Lepcio. Fought and Stephens were the stars of the aforementioned team. Fought was a Senator favorite in 1958.

The husky infielder walked 16 home runs last year, second on the club only to Howard's 21 and drove in 54 runs in 1959 games.

Hodges, who had batted him in the No. 2 spot most of last year, dropped him to No. 3 on Tuesday, hoping to capitalize on his RBI potential, and the move paid off handsomely.

McMullen connected with one man on in the fourth and then with two on in the eighth as the Senators whipped Kansas City 6-4 in a game called after eight innings because of rain.

1st inning: Minnesota blanked Los Angeles 2-0 in a rain-shortened, five-inning game. Pittsburgh stashed the Chicago White Sox 6-5. San Francisco downed California 2-1 and Chicago outlasted Cleveland 12-10.

WINTER HAVEN, Fla.—Seventh in the final American League standings in 1965, eighth in 1964 and ninth in 1965, will the Boston Red Sox sink to the basement in 1966 or will the club start the move up toward respectability again?

"We have no goal," Manager Billy Herman reported as we talked at Chain O Lakes Park, new training headquarters of the Sox. "We just want to improve. We can't tell at this time what we will do because we have so many inexperienced players. Our young players could have good years and we can look good, if they fall, we can look at the other side of the coin. We just want to see what's going to happen when you go with young, inexperienced players."

Good Hitters

The Red Sox will score runs with fine hitters like Carl Yastrzemski, handymen Felix Mantilla and Tony Horton, and the lineup, plus lows like Eby and Scott. But unless the catchers are available, including Ernie Terrell, Terrell, the defense is straightened out, plus the pitching, the Red Sox could very easily drop all the way to 10th place.

These kids may blossom overnight. Then again, they may need a year or two. Herman pointed out to this long-time sufferer when the Sox did not win a flag in 1965.

The Red Sox youth plan was a flop and in the process shortcircuited in the minors. He's 22, Foy 26. The former may wind up at first base if he can hit major league pitching.

The Red Sox failed to impress, except in hitting. But the defense did even better offensively. The defense and shut-out pitching was head and shoulders above the rest.

It looks like another long season in Beantown, for Herman and the loyal Red Sox supporters.

Outfield Best

"The outfield is the best part of the club. All three could pitch, centered, which gives us some fellows who can go and get the ball," Herman said of Carl Yastrzemski, Tony Conigliaro and George Thomas.

Not Worried

"I'm not worried about the spring games don't mean a thing. I don't care what kind of a record we have down here. I want to play as many games as I can. I've got to experiment down here."

"When the season starts, we'll be 0 and 0 again, just like the nine other clubs. If we lose then, then I'll start worrying, not until we win."

What's the biggest problem? "Strengthening our defense is the most important job we have. We are trying to put together a good defense ball club. It wasn't good last year."

Two future stars in the Red Sox book, whom the front office and Herman hope will blossom out and earn major league status this season, are, oddly, both third basemen.

Joe Foy is the most highly touted, and the most impressive. Foy was with Toronto in the last year with Toronto in the International League. The big talk foot, 216-pounder, infielder hit .292 last season, the Rookie of the Year, the league's Most Valuable Player.
