LONG

The Age Of The Tranquilizer This is the age of the tranquilizers, and even the competent professions who pioneer in their use must reserve some long-range worry over what the ultimate result may be.

There are perhaps two extreme posbilities of result.

One would be to have it proved that the tranquilisers have their own builtboomerangs, and that the heavy use of them which is now taking place is going to wind up with the exhaustion of the power of the drugs, leaving humanity back where it was before the ranquilizers came along, or else leaving t victim to new troubles the tranquilipers themselves have helped germinate.

A second extreme potential result would be even more dramatic, and it sould be immensely happier. Suppose it safely and indefinitely and that they do onstitute the answer to the great portion of our mental tragedy. Then it may be determined that the basic answer to the greatest torture of our times is, after all, a medical rather than a payshological or psychiatric matter.

The present uncertainty over which kind of answer the tranquilizers are going to give leads to some truly anguish-There was apparently a full and gen-mous round of such debate at a recent mposium on non-narcotic drug dependency and addiction sponsored, a few days ago, by the New York District Branch of the American Psychiatric As-

Dr. Carroll L. Witten of the University of Louisville led the viewing with

He said he thought the non-narcotic drugs used as "psychic energisers, stimulators, activators, deactivators, depressants, alleviators, levelers, elevators er in whatever imaginative category one might place them" are not only eing "used wrongly, to excess and without adequate indication, but that in many cases their indiscriminate use has led to dependency, habituation and addiction, with all of the consequent re-

Dr. Witten argued that "it would seem preferable that we use these drugs only when truly needed and that we stop trying to place the entire populace in a tranquil state."

And his argument seemed to derive additional force from a general agreement among the psychiatrists present This was that there is really no such thing as a non-habit-forming drug, since any kind of medicine that gratifies in some way can "hook" a person as its Such the trend of the talk at the symposium of psychiatrists.

At this point the layman asks: Why not place the entire populace in a tranquil, happy, well-adjusted state of mind providing there is an adequate supply of the kind of drugs it takes and providing there are no really untoward sympoms that go with the possible addiction that might be involved? What, in short, is wrong with an addiction when the addiction is an addiction to what is good for you? What if we humans do come to depend on some kind of pill every day in order to keep same? Is this really any worse than depending upon food for physical strength and well being? What is the real difference between leaning on a harmless drug, if there is such, and eaning on a psychiatrist?

We are at the beginning of the age of anquilizers. We do not yet have any ertain answers. But there is no doubt aat we are, meanwhile, the alarms of some psychiatrists notwithstanding, en-gaged in the greatest mass test in all dical history, with thousands of practitioners conducting millions of experi-ments. And because the alarm is still retical, as at the meeting in New York, and not armed with such case camples as might begin to drive the anquilisers out of their present mass use, the conclusion has to be that so far the tranquilizers have been working, and that the potential backhash has not yet made itself real in any dramatic

No Sleep For Critics?

Nell MacNell, chief Washington correspondent of Time Magazine, told a disconcerting and alarming little story in his weekly telecast from Washington

It was the story of the Washington orrespondent who had, in recent days been so uncooperative as to question the validity of some of the reassurances Defense Secretary Robert McNamara had been giving about the ability of the American military establishment to increase its strength in Vietnam without spreading itself thinner elsewhere.

respondent MacNeil, answered his doorbell at home one night to find two FBI agents standing on his doorstep, ing to MacNeil, the corresponden "threw them out" of his home and told them that if they wanted to talk to him they could find him at his office during the daytime. The correspondent

This is only one of a series of disquieting Washington anecdotes in the same vein, with nothing proved or documented about any one of the anecdotes, but with the same kind of suggestion

It is a suggestion that the Johnson idministration has a slight talent for trying to see to it that its critics do not sleep well of nights. It has been fairly well documented that one of Defense Secretary McNamara's sides actively engaged himself n attempting to discredit with his superiors at least one of the television reorters whose work in Vietnam was perhaps too realistic in depicting the face of war to please the military.

And such reports would all seem unerstandable to anybody who happened o watch the Secretary of Defense, in his last news conference before he flew over to Switzerland for a little relaxation on skis, try to bite the heads off some of the correspondents who were questioning him then.

The computer man was, on this day, suddenly becoming very human. But he should not allow himself to become too human—so human he allows himself or his subordinates to use the methods of the totalitarian state in an effort to control the news of a democracy.

The Westbrook Story

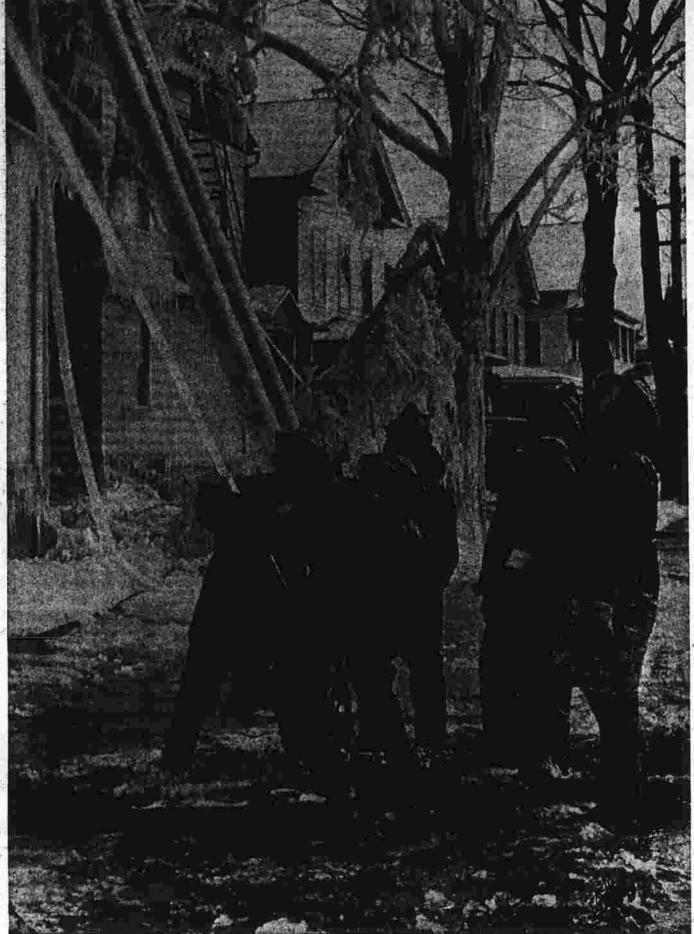

Populationwise, the Town of West brook is one of the smallest of all 169 cities and towns in Connecticut. It has about 3,000 residents.

Westbrook has achieved something n other town has been able to do. It has practically stabilized a low tax rate. For fifth year in a row it will have a tax rate of 23 mills. This is an "honest" ate. It has not accomplished its unique fiscal feat by raising assessments. The assessments have generally been as sta-ble as the tax rate. This year in fact,

The Democrats have for some cars followed a comfortable actic of allowing the Republicans to convene and nominate first. This, in the opinion of the lemocrats, gives them an advantage somewhat similar to that the home team enjoys with its last turns at bat in baseball, or that the debater enjoys who has the last rebuttal. They particularly enjoyed this privilege, the Democrats, in the year 1958, when it led them into a decision which has been reverberating around the world ever since. ### Willie Mays Not Slowing Down

Two Homers From MVF Sparks Club

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) -Willie Mays, the National League's Most Valuable Player of 1965, shows no signs of slowing down this spring.
In his first three exhibition games, playing only the first half of each, he has hit two posing base runners out at home plate. Despite the rigors of the winter banquet circuit, he re-ported to camp just four pounds over his usual playing weight of 186 and says he feels just great. Personally, he doesn't want much mention of his spring exploits, declaring:

"Every spring it's the sam old stuff. You mention how old I am. Let's just let it be fun. Just let me play." Mays, 34, who hit a career high of 52 homers last year to lead the major leagues, opened his spring campaign with a run-scoring double on the first pitch from Cleveland's Gary Bell and
