LBJ Asks For Aids To Buyers

WASHINGTON (AP)-President Johnson recommended to Congress today a far-reaching program he said is needed to protect the American consumer in the market place.

Specifically, he renewed his request of two years ago for what he described as effective laws on lending and packaging. "We can protect both the consumer and the overwhelming majority of businessmen from the minority of producers who would compete unfairly and infringe the rights of the consumer and their fellow businessmen," Johnson said.

"We need reform in the credit area and we should encourage states to enact legislation to correct abuses.

"We need such legislation urgently. We can act wisely without further delay."

Both proposals are already before Congress with sponsors describing them as "truth in packaging" and "truth in ending" measures.

Under legislation urged by Johnson, money lenders, including those who finance consumer purchases on time, would have to state the full cost of credit, simply and clearly, and state it before any contract is signed.

The proposal for packaging and labeling legislation would require that each package provide simple information as be the nature and quantity of contents, including ingredients where this is important, Johnson also recommended other steps to reinforce consum er protection. One proposal would bring hazardous substances, regardless of their wrapping, under the safeguards of the federal hazardous substances labeling law and would: - Ban from commerce house hold substances that are so hazardous that warning labels are not adequate safeguards. Ban the sale of toys and other children's articles containing hazardous substances, regardless of their packaging.

— Require labels to warn consumers against possible injury from drugs and cosmetics.

— Limit the amount of chil-dren's aspirin available in veter packages. - Require certain patent drugs attractive to children to have safety closure caps. Saying the task of protecting the consumer cannot and should not be left fully to the federal government, Johnson recommended legislation authorizing expansion of the Food and Drug Administration training programs for nonfederal officials. He described this as the first in a series of measures to broaden state-federal cooperation in In addition to his legislative

Are you over-heating the rest of the house to warm one hard-to-heat room?

On these cold days, if you have one room that's always drafty and uncomfortable no matter how high you turn up the heat in the rest of the house, you will want to look into SUPPLE-MENTAL ELECTRIC HEAT.

Maybe it's a playroom, or recreation room, or just a favorite room on the north side of the house . . . but you can't live in it these cold days. SUPPLEMENTAL ELECTRIC HEAT can be easily installed no matter what heating system you now have. You'll have perfect, draftfree warmth just where you want it, controlled by its own thermostat.

Breezeway or sunporch you can't use It's easy to convert to year-round use with SUPPLEMENTAL ELECTRIC HEAT. A variety of units adaptable to any type of room are available (even with floor to ceiling glass windows). You'll have comfortable warmth even on the coldest days.

Need more space? Why not add a room?

Your contractor will be glad to work out an estimate for you. A breezeway or attic space can be converted at low cost and you'll be surprised at how much more livable your home becomes . . . and how much more comfortable with SUPPLEMENTAL ELECTRIC HEAT.

Telephone your electric heating contractor or The Hartford Electric Light Company and ask how easily (and comfortably) your heating problems can be solved by SUPPLEMENTAL ELECTRIC HEAT.

fr. Harsch's Fantastic Theory tator Joseph C. Harach, writ in the Christian Science Monitor has come up with a theory which sounds so fantastic, at first, that one wonders he dares appear with it in print. But, as he expounds it, and it begins working its own way through one's thoughts, the final verdict is not so cerbain. It just could be. What could be respectable, after all, is the Harsch theory that there is something more than a surface coincidence ween the surface facts that in Wietnam, where we intervened, the Commitnists are still strong and contesting for the country, and that in Indonesia where, instead of intervening, we got out, the anti-Communists are taking charge of the country.

These things are, on the surface, true mough, as four facts. We got out of one country; we have gone into the other; one country is still in danger of going Communist; the other country has just gone anti-Communist, although, when e got out the Communists seemed alost in clear-cut control of everything Underneath these four surface facts there is the consideration on which Commentator Harsch bases his thesis. It is not a thesis he attempts to apdis-that our ambitious presence in Indonesis, when we were playing that that way, was a thing that operated to embarrass the non-Comnists there and tis their hands in dealing with the Communists.

larsch writes this way about it: "Anti-Communism was a losing movement in Indonesia as long as America was actively pressing its arguments and its causes in Indonesia. American support had become a millstone around the secks of the native local anti-Commudist forces. The more presence of large American missions was not only an emrrassment, but a misery to those who wanted to save their country from Peking. No one in the Indonesia of a year ago wanted to be known as a riend of any American. It opened him up to the charge of being a 'neo-colo-

American war in a military sense, the greater the eventual difficulty we are joing to have in winning the political struggle. It could end up, unspeakably, with Communism and authentic native nationalism allied against the outside white Americans.

But in Indonesia, where we got out, the native nationalists have been killing the Communists by the hundreds of thousands, as compared to the few thousands for us in Vietnam, which is one way we seem to measure successful policy these days, and seem to be comng out on top politically too.

It may be a fantastic theory Commentator Harsch has advanced. But it is also a fantastic world.

What aved them, and gave their own cooldness a chance to fight back to control of the spacecraft, was the fact that the thruster which was blasting their ship into its tumble soon ran out of fuel, and therefore stopped operating. But if there had happened to be a consciousness, and might have become as the corner gas station. The Times looks forward to the day when there will be an international space rescue service, which will be able to launch a space tow ship up to latch on to any disabled or inoperative craft, or even to take spare rocket parts or a can of rocket fuel up to the astronauts in trouble; and, if repair out in space proves difficult, at least bring the stalled astronauts safely back to earth.

At the moment, space travel is about where automobile travel was at its beginning, with all the patrols and gas stations and garages still to come. And, although the urge of many of us to take a ride in space may be well a practical idea to wait until space service has at least begun to operate.

Support - But . . .

We wish that it were possible to share fully Secretary of State Dear Rusk's confidence that "a great majority of non-Communist governments derstand and support what we are do ng (in Vietnam), even though some for various reasons, have not yet said o publicly." We agree that many govrnments in Africa, Asia, and Europe, which may appear to be fence-sitter over Vietnam, do indeed agree that ommunist expansionism must be curb ed. We equally believe that many such governments if forced to choose beween a clear-cut American victory or defeat in Southeast Asia, would choose

But we hope that the Secretary's statement does not indicate a lack of sensitivity on Washington's part over the extent to which much of the world eals that the United States has somehow fumbled its handling of Vietnam. It is felt that America has not worked hard enough for the social and politica reforms which alone can guarantee las ing micross. The view is widely voiced that the United States, for all its own revolutionary and liberal past, has not adequately grasped the whirlwind toward reform and change now sweep-

This criticism and these doubts do not indicate an over-all general opposition to American policy from the non-Com-munist world. But they do show—and strongly so—that grave doubts as to America's methods, and to some extent to its aims, are widespread,

So long, as these doubts remain, we wonder how sound is the Secretary's additional statement that "I think you will see more and more governments of the Free World offering, or increasing, tangible assistance to South Vietnam." We should like to see such an increase in help. Militarily, it would be deeply welcome. Diplomatically, it would helturn the struggle into what it should have been all along—a world effort to support orderly political progress within a state and orderly political relations etween states.

Undoubtedly some such increase i aid will come. Australia has already anounced its intention to triple its fighting force in Vietnam. The new Philippine Government is seeking to send some 2,000 men there. Other nations have upped and will up various types of help. Yet, in the last resort, and except for the strong South Korean and Australian contingents, South Vietnam and the United States continue to fight

Heating Contractors Speak

Many heating contractors choose gas heat for their own homes. That's why you find so many who are outspoken about the advantages of heating with gas. For instance...

Mr. GERALD KURTZMAN* says: 66 We like gas heating in our new home because it is clean, quiet, and very economical. We don't have to worry about fuel deliveries during the coldest part of the winter. We had the choice of any fuel and heating system, but we chose a warm air gas heating system for total comfort. With gas for the finest home heating, my family enjoys filtered and humidified air with summer cooling. Gas heating is tops! We recommend it to all of our customers and friends. 99

HARTFORD GAS is so sure that you, too, will like gas heat, that we make this unconditional guarantee: if you are not COMPLETELY SATISFIED with it in every respect, we'll remove the equipment and refund every penny you've paid on it.

See for yourself why 75,000 people in Greater Hartford enjoy automatic gas heating. It's the clean, economical, quiet and dependable way to heat your home. Start now to save on fuel costs, furnace cleaning, and repair bills.
