Fulbright Suggests Attempt At U.S.-Chinese Agreement

STORRS (AP) — Sen. J. W. Fulbright, says that a workable settlement of the Viet Nam war must be part of a general settlement in southeast Asia. And the "central issue" in southeast Asia, the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said, is "the contest between Chinese and American power."

"The prospect for a lasting peace depends far more upon the resolution of that issue than it does on the matter of who is to participate in a South Viet-

Anti-U.S. Overtones Mark Viet Protests

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — New anti-government demonstrations erupted in Da Nang and Hue today, intensifying the political dispute between Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's military regime and the Buddhist leadership. For the first time there were anti-American overtones.

Several thousand persons milled about the city hall in Da Nang. Another 100 bodies were found today by U.S. Marines at the scene of their Monday battle with two Communist battalions, Ky's military rule.

However, one kind of demonstrators carried banners saying: "We thank our American friends for helping us fight the Viet Cong."

Keystone Cops Yarn Spun in GM Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Abraham Ribicoff listened to a private detective spin a yarn of auto safety, particularly the Keystone Cops yarn and then looked with some sympathy toward the president of General Motors.

"I can imagine Mr. Roche is wondering why General Motors spent $470,000," said Ribicoff, chairman of the Senate Government Operations subcommittee.

For the $470 General Motors bought an investigation of Ralph Nader, young attorney and critic of auto safety, particularly of GM's Corvair — and put GM President James M. Roche in the position of apologizing to Nader and Ribicoff's subcommittee.

Roche apologized once before private investigator Vincent Guilan testified and then did it again after Guilan, hired by GM, laid his say and crossed swords with Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y.

The aim of the investigation, Roche said, was to gather information about Nader's background as an attorney and expert on safety and to learn whether he had any connections with some hundred lawsuits involving about $60 million in damage claims relating to the design of 1960 through 1963 Corvairs.

But before the investigation came to a halt Nader's personal

NATO Loss Perilous, Johnson Warns Allies

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson warned the Atlantic allies today that French President Charles de Gaulle's efforts to reform their alliance could imperil the security of France and endanger the safety of the Western world.

While he expressed confidence that the United States and 13 allies will stick together to preserve the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, Johnson said: "If our collective effort should falter — and our common determination be eroded — the foundations of the Atlantic's present stability would be shaken."

"The mightiest arsenal in the world will deter no aggressor who knows his victims are too divided to decide and too unready to respond. That was the lesson of two world wars."

"Yet a nation — not by the action of her friends, but by her own decision to prepare and plan alone — could still imperil her own security by creating a situation in which responses would be too late and too dilatory to solve very much of the crisis in Southeast Asia."

He also noted that he entered the Senate the same day as did McMahon, and was assigned to the Foreign Relations Committee just after McMahon was re-elected.

Fulbright said that if the issue between Chinese and American power in southeast Asia can be resolved, the future of Viet Nam should not be too difficult to arrange.

"But if the issue of Chinese and American power is left unresolved," he said, "even a total victory in South Viet Nam is unlikely to solve very much of the crisis in Southeast Asia."

He said that would have to be "coupled with a political arrangement for the neutralization of the small countries of the southeast Asian mainland."

These countries, he said, "are the countries in which the United States and the Soviet Union are competing for influence."

Chinese Excoriate Russians, Refuse to Attend Congress

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China threw a book of bitter charges against the Soviet leadership today. It accused Moscow of dirty business, of trying to enslave China in cooperation with the United States, and of trying to sell out Viet Nam.

Then the Chinese Communist party rejected an invitation to attend next week's meeting of the Soviet Communist party.

The effect was to bring the two countries nearer the breaking point.

"You are pursuing U.S.-Soviet collaboration for the domination of the world," the Central Committee of the Chinese Communist party told the Soviet Committee.

"You have all along been acting in coordination with the United States in its plot for peace talks, vainly attempting to sell out the struggle of the Vietnamese people against U.S. aggression and for national independence."

"You clamor for 'united action,' especially on the Viet Nam question, but nothing but a trap for the purpose of deceiving the Soviet people and the revolutionary people of the world."

Close Study Planned for Fallen Bomb

WASHINGTON (AP) — The missing American hydrogen bomb will be dissected like a cadaver by the United States ever since it fell from the bottom of the sea off Spain.

Officials said today that once the bomb is recovered it will be dismantled and subjected to months — and some parts for years — of study.

"This is to find out in all detail possible how the thermonuclear device was affected by an in-flight collision and months in the salt water of the Mediterranean."

The bomb was loosed when a U.S. B52 jet and its refueling tanker collided six miles above the coast of Spain Jan. 17. It drifted by parachute into the sea.

Miniature submarines have been trying to maneuver the bomb into a favorable position for recovery the past several days. Officials say it might be days or weeks before the bomb is surfaced.

Once in hand, the gray, tubular device will be taken to an

Pope, Ramsey Voice Peace, Unity Hopes

VATICAN CITY (AP) — A Pope and an Archbishop took note of the great difference that separates their churches. They made clear they expect no great changes to come immediately.

"In the field of doctrinal and ecclesiastical law we are still respectively distinct and distant," said the Pope. "And for now it must be so, for the reference due to truth and to freedom, until such time as we may merit the supreme grace of the true and perfect unity in faith and communion."

The Pope called the meeting in the Vatican's Sixties Chapel "a great day" in history and said it had meaning "for peace among the nations of the world and for promotion of Christian brotherhood among men."

"I have come with the longing in my heart, which I know to be in your heart also, that we may by our meeting together help in the fulfillment of the prayer of our divine Lord that all His disciples may come to unity in the truth," Dr. Ramsey said.

He said he was joining his voice to Pope Paul's to appeal for an end to war in the world and for promotion of Christian brotherhood among men.

Stock Exchange Members Urge Study of New Site

NEW YORK (AP) — A membership meeting of the New York Stock Exchange has unanimously urged the exchange to consider "most seriously" moving to another site.

The members also endorsed the exchange officials' opposition to an increase in the stock transfer tax advocated by Mayor John V. Lindsay as part of his $60 million program for now and increased taxes.

The endorsement of the leadership was contained in a resolution adopted by nearly 600 members of the exchange's 1,262 members at a special meeting after the stock market had closed Tuesday.

Exchange President Keith Fungston and the Board of Governors were commended in the

The whole business and "sorry it happened" when it was responsible for all government investigative agencies.

"I'm delighted you brought me in," said Kennedy.

The New York senator asked if Gillen wasn't actually carrying out a lie when he conducted the investigation he used the pretext that it was a pre-employment probe.

"Didn't that ever happen to you as attorney general?" asked Gillen.

"No, it didn't," said Kennedy.

The private investigator denied the investigation was, as Elmscott contended, a gross harassment of Nader, and Gillen complained, "I don't think it appropriate for me to come here and be smeared myself."

He said the effort of the investigation was to uncover every aspect of Nader's life that might be of value to the client.

But he was charged with showing a preoccupation with matters of sex in questioning of a friend of Nader.

The reason for this, Gillen said, was that Nader was labeled in a high school yearbook as a "girl hater" and the private investigator said that the same had to be pursued out of "fairness to Ralph."

"What the hell's this fairness to Ralph?" demanded Kennedy.

"You have to keep running around the country proving he's not anti-semitic or queer?"

Ralph's doing all right.

But Gillen hastidly denied there was any effort to smear the young lawyer.

If he was smeared, the private investigator said, "he's been smeared by buying cookies and thinking women are trying to pick him up."

Among Nader's allegations of harassment after he wrote a book on auto safety and then appeared before the subcommittee last month was that two women had apparently tried to pick him up on two occasions when he was out shopping.

But Gillen said he had not "used any women during this investigation. I am sure fair-minded people will appreciate that it is as impossible for Mr. Nader to prove the alleged incidents occurred, as it is for me to disprove involvement if they did — the ladies are unknown."

Gillen pretty much pointed Roche back in the direction of the witness stand when he contended that a close reading of the GM president's apology was not really an apology at all.

"Let's get this clear," said Gillen, "Mr. Roche apologized for what happened, and they didn't happen."

Ribicoff and Kennedy said they didn't interpret Roche's remarks that way at all.

Diplomats' Milieu, The Cocktail Party

By KERRY SMITH

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gobs of champagne bubbled, waiters stand erect in stiff white collars. A combo plays under the Pizicco and an ambassador trips over a table in a candlelit room.

It's a Washington party on the diplomatic circuit, one of 200 a month, 1,000 a season.

It's an extension of office hours redone in dinner jacket. For many diplomats, it's the most profitable part of the working day.

Large, dining, exciting, intimate, elegant — regardless, it's an intrinsic link in the capital scene, a tableau enacted up to 20 times a night from the mansions on Foghorn Road to the embassies along Massachusetts Avenue.

Conversation in an atmosphere of hazy odors and rustling gowns is heard to be less restrained than that during the day.

Where else would one learn: — Vice President Humphrey ran out of money on his Asian tour; — Pizicco will be endorsed as Thailand Ambassador James Thompson to buy Muriel some shoes; — The Marquessa de Merry del Val, chic wife of the Spanish ambassador, thinks Truman, Ohio, is one of the "most beautiful places in the world."

The Romanian Ambassador Petr Balceanu considers cocktails "a business" and drinks milk every day.

Postmaster should be endorsed as "First Day Covers So Migratory Bird Stamp." Requests must be postmarked no later than March 16.

The latest George Washington regular stamp was released on the first President's birthday, Feb. 22, in the nation's capital as the third in the "Prominent Americans" series of 18 new regular stamps.

This new U.S. stamp is based on a portrait by Rembrandt Peale. It is an idealized portrait of Washington in military uniform, first painted in 1823 and duplicated by the artist many times. The original now hangs in the office of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

The Peale portrait replaces the Washington 5-cent stamp issued in 1957 by French sculptor Jean Antoine Houdon that has been in use since Nov. 18, 1952. It is interesting to note that Peale first painted Washington in 1785 when the cavalry charge look about it. The win was worth $2,750, then 17 years old.

The Republic of China (Formosa) has issued four new stamps dedicated to "The Day of the Dragon," reports the World Wide Philatelic Agency, London's Viking Society for Philatelic Research.

The society, at the University of London, recognized Houdon for "great services to stamps" over many years, covering many branches of the subject.

When the opponents hold five cards of a suit, the odds are better than 2 to 1 that one opponent holds two cards and the other opponent three cards of those five. These are attractive odds, but try for something better when it costs nothing to do so.

Opening lead — King of spades. South thought he had a piece of cake when he played today's hand. He took the ace of spades, drew three rounds of trumps and cashed the ace and then the queen of clubs.

The noise you just heard was South's contract, falling and tumbling to his. East was sure to get a club trick and the ace of diamonds.

It should occur to South that an opponent sometimes has a singleton in clubs. South must try to protect his contract by developing diamond tricks while he still has a way to reach dummy.

South can safely win the first spade and draw trumps. Then, however, he should take the first two clubs with the ace and king, leaving the queen in the dummy.

Time to Switch

When the clubs break badly, South can switch to diamonds. West plays low, and South must guess the right play from dummy. South should probably put up the ace of diamonds if he had it. If South plays East for the ace of diamonds, the best play from dummy is the ten of diamonds.

Just take the ace of diamonds, but then dummy's king of trumps is in time of emergency could call to dummy with the queen of trumps.

Answer: Bid two hearts (if your two-hands are forcing to game). You should expect to win six heart tricks and three or four clubs, so that you have game virtually in your own hand. Since you also have a Quick Trick, the hand is good enough for a forcing opening bid. The opening bid of one heart actually made when the hand was played was excessively cautious.

Police Charge Murder Attempt in Bridgeport

Sciorino, whose address was given by police as 1028 St. Brooklyn, N.Y., was arrested Tuesday at Mineola, N.Y. He was returned to Connecticut after waiting extradition. Bond of $20,000 was set for Sciorino when he was jailed Tuesday night.

The state now collects the tax and allocates the money to the city. Lindy's tax program has been presented to the legislature.

NEW YORK (AP) — If the New York Stock Exchange decides to move to Connecticut, Gov. John Dempsey says he'll try to see that there would never be a stock transfer tax in his state.

The governor offered Tuesday to seek an amendment to the Connecticut constitution that would permanently prohibit such a tax. There is no stock transfer tax at present.

"I'm not down here with any gimmicks or illusions," Dempsey told Keith Funston, president of the exchange at a meeting on Wall Street.

The exchange executives say they are thinking seriously of moving their stock market out of New York City if the city enacts an increase in the stock transfer tax.

Funston, who lives in Greenwich and is former president of Trinity College at Hartford, said of Dempsey's offer:

"Obviously, it's a very attractive proposition from our viewpoint and one that the board, as it proceeds with its deliberations, would weigh very seriously."

Dempsey said he presented Funston with a prospectus of the state, and was not favoring one possible Connecticut location over another. Several Connecticut communities are hoping that they will be considered.

Seventh Day Adventists Church Planned in Tolland

Ground will be broken Sunday for a new Seventh Day Adventist church, shown here in sketch form, on the tract near the intersection of Rts. 30 and 74 in Tolland. The structure is of colonial proportions and design, although the patello-like treatment of the windows and the split-level narthex (foyer) speak of a more modern era. A worshiper entering the building must ascend a short flight of steps to the sanctuary, which will seat 125. The pastor's study and other small rooms are also on the upper floor. The lower level will be divided into four large classrooms—children number more than half of the church's membership—and a welfare room and kitchen. The building was designed by Edmund Van Dyke Cox of Glastonbury, and design for the landscaping of the three-acre site and the sketch were prepared by Carl Hartung of Granby.

High School Play "The Importance of Being Earnest," directed by Miss Elizabeth Gogger, is to be presented by the high school drama club Friday and Saturday, starting at 8:15 p.m.

The town council has ultimate authority for setting the town budget; while the council cannot cut any specific appropriation from the school board request, it can reduce the total budget request, forcing the school board to make its own cuts.

In a letter to Mrs. Jane Tompkins, school board chairman, Atty. Ahearn said that, rather than answer the question as stated, he would prefer to discuss the relative rights of the board to implement what he understands is the aim of the Harvard plan.

Approval was given for the General Statutes provide that boards of education shall maintain in their several towns good public elementary and secondary schools and such other educational activities as in their judgment will best serve the interests of the town.

By implication, then, it would seem reasonable to conclude that if the board could contract with other towns to provide for the education of children that attend schools in adjacent towns, the letter said.

Under the statute, the council has the authority to reduce the estimate submitted by the board "only when that estimate exceeds the amount reasonably necessary for the accomplishment of the purpose, taking into consideration the town's financial condition and other expenditures it must make."

MISAC Will Survey Need For Open-Occupancy Units

The Manchester Interfaith Social Action Council (MISAC) voted last night to explore the possibility of constructing local housing units.

The proposal, introduced by Atty. Arnold Klein, would be similar to the 50-unit construction recently completed in the North End of Hartford.

Members of the MISAC committee were selected to look into the local need, and to determine the feasibility of local housing.

Atty. Klein, in explaining his proposal, said that the federal government, under its 221-103 program, lends a sponsoring agency the entire cost of construction, to be repaid in 40 years at three per cent interest.

Atty. Klein said that the main problem which he foresees is the designation of a willing sponsor. He said that only about $100 of actual local funds will be needed.

Ground Broken for Library Wing

Groundbreaking ceremonies were held yesterday for a new children's wing of the Rockville Public Library.

At her talk, Miss Ide said, "Americans have always had great dreams, but because we are a practical as well as an idealistic people, we work to make these dreams come true."

Three young library users turn the first shovel of earth at groundbreaking for a wing for Rockville Public Library. Sharon A. Sateris, 14 Mountain St. (left), placed first in the library's summer reading contest, and Christopher Puky, 84 Orchard St. and Andrea Novograd, 14 Franklin St., both contributed money to the fund for the new wing.

Members have worked hard to carry through final phases of the program. Clarence McCarty, newly elected president and one of the senior trustees in this day's groundbreaking ceremony, is grappling with the many problems involved, his devotion to the library despite great handicaps, inspired both the cooperation and admiration of the board and the librarians.

"Although the new wing and extensive alterations to the main building will necessitate closing during the summer months, we hope to provide better service in quarters that will preserve the best of the classic architecture with modern functional improvements."

change as Russia has changed toward a better understanding of the world and more moderate policies. Fulbright said that China is "profoundly fearful" of American bases on her periphery and of American military power in southeast Asia.

Such a neutralization agreement, he continued, "could and should be placed under the guarantee of the major powers with interest in southeast Asia, notably the United States, China, the Soviet Union, Great Britain, France, India and Japan."

discussing the ways in which the United States can react to Chinese policies, Fulbright said one option for this country was "to take the first good excuse that comes along to strike a devastating military blow against China while she is still relatively weak, especially by against her incipient nuclear capacity."

A Thought for Today

Who forgives all your iniquity? (Psalm 103:3)

Our conversation this week centering about this great Psalm 103, concerning the majesty of God and His activities among us, brings us now to His forgiveness. Like a wise earthly father whose readiness to discipline is matched by his eagerness to forgive, so God's "benefits" include His forgiving activity. In this holy season of Lent, Christians remind the world of that which God has done for humanity in Jesus Christ.

Jesus' death and resurrection, found in Christian hymns, speak graciously to the theme of the Psalmist. . . .

"When I survey the wondrous cross, On which the Prince of Glory died, My richest gain I count but loss, And pour contempt on all my pride." (Hymn)

Forbid it, Lord, that I should boast, Save in the death of Christ my God! All the vain things that charm me most, I sacrifice them to His blood.

See, from His head, His feet, His side, And from His hand, His heart, His side, He pours for us the blood of love, He sheds for us His life, He saves our souls, my life, my all." (Hymn)

Fischetti

It took her two weeks to find what she wanted—her nephew, Ralph, who lives by his wits. She has a great confidence in him. Ralph, once, Ralph dug up bookmaker's clerk who was a penitentiary away from complete illiteracy. Ralph and Aunt Marge swung in on him and won enough for new cars. Lately, however, things have been very slow for Ralph and he has been standing on street corners ready to do anything.

International Harmony

That was truly a united nations effort for the other evening at La Scala in Milan.

Virgil Novica, a Russian baritone, sang the role of Pinkerton in Puccini's "Madama Butterfly."

Here was a Russian portraying an American as he stars high school athlete, must have fallen under undue regrettable influences to be guilty of such a thing as appearing in court with a Bible under his arm and a refusal to believe in war.

"Other boys his age are being shot at," the judge in question said. It is perhaps true that one or two things should be made clear to judges.

Detecting The Pacifics

A few months ago, a judge of the Federal bench sitting in Connecticut addressed a draft refusal case in the most temperate terms, although he obviously spoke with great and righteous patriotic indignation. When, later on, a higher court upset the original verdict and ordered a new trial, on the basis of another aspect of the trial, the suspicion lingered that the non-judicial character of the remarks from the bench had also played a part in the reversal.

The other day, another member of the Federal bench, sitting for another draft refusal case, also employed the opportunity to demonstrate, beyond quibble or doubt, the great contrast between his own patriotism and that of the defendant before him. In fact, the color from the bench made no secret of his own belief that the defendant, once having been so fine and normal an American as to be a star high school athlete, must have fallen under undue regrettable influences to be guilty of such a thing as appearing in court with a Bible under his arm and a refusal to believe in war.

'Glowworm' Fashions Due for Gals, Jockeys

NEW YORK (AP)—Women who like to be first in what's new are clamoring for garments that can have them radiating like glowworms when the lights go out.

And very soon at the races, jockeys in the pitch of night will be streaking around their courses on horses in harnesses lit up like Times Square.

The new fashion brilliance of people and horses has nothing to do with that invention Edison once lost so much sleep over. Rather, it has to do with fluorescence, "a property" the dictionary says, "which gives off light."

Comark vinyl, a glossy plastic material which recently won several awards for its glowing technical achievement, is suddenly finding its way to all sorts of dark places.

At Roberto Capucci's collection in Paris last month, the black-out female was a spectacle of disembodied females in costumes made of the glowing plastic.

American coat, suit, hat, shoe and silksweater manufacturers have been pioneering these garments that will eventually let a girl look like a candle burning at all ends.

Some advocates tout the safety factors of these garments.

A woman so dressed can shed her own light down darkened stairwells. In luminous shoes, her feet have more than a fighting chance with clumsy dancing partners.

There are other advantages. A woman can always find such a coat in a dark closet. And her escort can always find her.

Phosphorescence should not be confused with fluorescence, a dye treatment for theatrical costumes which glow when spot lights are trained on them.

Fashion madcap Tiger Morse has borrowed this old vaudeville trick for her party clothes of intricate and efficient radiating state only when somebody turns an ultraviolet light on them.

The woman who chooses this kind of nightgown fashion also chooses an escort obliging enough to carry the lighting equipment with him.

Morse says. Otherwise she sits at home where she is in charge of the illumination.

A girl dressed to be seen in this light-ultraviolet spot may avoid the serious prospect of seeming to have lost her head in the dark by using theatrical makeup—luminous lips and eye shadow, as well as finger-painted but it only glows in ultraviolet light.

One more kind of fluorescent fabric depends on intensity of color for its glow. Because of their safety value, poloemen have been wearing orange and yellow rain coats that shine when headlights are trained on them. Also because they are easily seen, coats and jackets made of fabrics with this color property are now popular for children, hunters, and skiers.

These fabrics are for all but the meanest people.

Batman Called Risky Driver

BOSTON (AP)—The safety director of the Massachusetts Automobile Legal Association says television's Batman is setting "a pretty poor example for kids" in the way he drives his nuclear-powered, five-tailed Batmobile around Gotham City.

"His driving, it's terrible," says Philip C. Wallwork, "He straddles white lines, doesn't signal turns, makes U turns, speeds, knocks down barriers, goes along a busy road and lets out a parachute."

"If you look at it from the serious side," Wallwork says, "you see that a lot of the things he does are what we try to teach the youth of America not to do."

"It's a heck of a thing to be showing kids."

Ring Gone, Man Too

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—A well-groomed man, about 36, asked to look at a jeweler's tray of diamond rings.

Fifteen minutes later, a store official told police Monday.

Fifteen minutes later, a store ring with a glass setting had been placed in the tray.

They also found a $5,000 ring missing. So was the man who had been looking at it.

Vernon Church Gets Modern Steeple, Old Bell
The new steel-framed steeple (left) and the old bell tower of the Vernon Church Congregational Church by the White Corbin Division of U.S. Envelope in Rockville await the day that they will be hoisted to the top of the new church. US Stance On Bosch Questioned

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — A question Dominican frequently ask these days is: "What will the United States do if Juan Bosch wins the election?"
The way Bosch sympathizers ask it, the question sounds like a rhetorical effort to convey two thoughts: that a victory by ex-President Bosch is certain, and that this will highly displease Washington.

There seem to be many Dominicans who feel the U.S. government is against Bosch and determined to do almost anything to prevent his election next June, or his taking power. Ask how they got this impression, and you'll either get a shrug in response, or you'll hear that the American press and statements by congressmen reflect the position.
The seed for the belief are believed to have been sown immediately after Bosch was overthrown in 1963. Bosch and his influential members of his Dominican Revolutionary party—PRD—accused Washington of supporting the coup.

There are some indications the opposite was true. Dominican military leaders are known to have been warned against the coup, one of the worst kept secrets at the time, by U.S. Embassy officials. Almost three months passed before Washington recognized the government that succeeded Bosch.

U.S. intervention in last April's revolution has also been exploited, with some apparent success, as another example of anti-Bosch sentiment in Washington. Bosch claims the United States sought to thwart a revolutionary movement that would have restored him to power. Among the most convinced of such an official policy agreement.

Johnson Like Syrup, DeGaulle, Sandpaper

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP) — In the Western World there could hardly be two men more different than President Johnson and French President Charles de Gaulle. Each has a strong will. How they use it makes the difference.
Johnson is a symbol of soothing syrup. De Gaulle of sandpaper. Johnson's idea of getting people to go along with him is persuasion of one kind or another. De Gaulle's is to belt them with a mallet.
The President was the greatest Senate majority leader in this century because, in a chamber full of independent and temperamental spirits, he was able to accomplish so much.
He persisted, cajoled, did favors, persisted, kept his voice down. The Frenchman would have been a disaster in Johnson's Senate job since he would regard himself as the man on the mountain giving orders on stone tablets.

Hillary Denied Permission for Himalaya Climb

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP)— Explorer Sir Edmund Hillary representing the spirit of France, its refusal to be crushed, and perhaps a bridge between a golden age and a possible golden future.
Unlike so many other French leaders in World War II, he refused to yield to the Nazis and from England led the opposition to the Nazis. He would have been a ludicrous nothing if he hadn't had the allies on which to rely.
But in his dreams of grandeur about himself and France he seems to have lost touch with reality: not only in World War II but in World War I France would have perished if the Allies had not bailed her out.

As French president he has ignored that reality and, instead of cherishing a strong alliance has splintered it by acting as if a rearmad France could now stand alone against any enemy which it could not.
He kept his British ally out of the European Common Market he called the war in Viet Nam "stupid," thus ignoring the fact that France fought there to hold the country as a colony until defeated and forced to withdraw; he refused to join the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union in a limited, nuclear testban treaty; he suggested France could be leader of a third world; he recognized Red China over American protest.

His government warned Europe against trusting its security indefinitely to the United States and on March 9 France announced it would pull all its troops out of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, which has been Western

Despite Death, Climbers Try To Reach Peak

By ANDREW BOROWICZ
KELVINE SCHEIDT, Switzerland (AP) — A 10-man Alpine team pushed up the icy north wall of Mt. Eiger today in a final "John Harlin" effort to reach the 34,046-foot summit.
The Spirit of Harlin, 30, of Los Altos, Calif., who died in a fall Tuesday, became the spur for Leyton Kor of Boulder, Colo., Douglas Haston of Scotland and eight Germans on the climb.
A spokesman for the Germans, Harry Frey, said the climbers hoped to reach the summit Thursday night.
Kor and Haston decided at dawn to go on, saying, "John would have wanted it that way."

Two other members of the British-American team, of which Harlin was captain, withdrew from the climb. They are Chris Bonington and Don Whillans of Britain.
The party was moving up slowly on three ropes. None of the members expected to descend into the valley again before reaching the summit.
The British-American and German teams began climbing the Eiger north wall on March 3 in a race to make the first vertical ascent in history. On Sunday they decided to join forces after storms and more bad held them back.

Frey said Harlin plunged 4,000 feet to his death after a sharp rock out the rope that supported him.
Frey said that as far as could be determined, Harlin lost his foothold after the rope broke.
Harlin's body was recovered at the bottom of the triangular wall which has claimed the lives of 26 other men in previous attempts to scale it.
Harlin, a native of Kansas City and graduate of Stanford University, was the first American to conquer the Eiger's north wall by the conventional zig-zag route. He did it in August 1962. He also was the first American to scale the north wall of the Matterhorn.

GOP Man Wins In Dixie Race

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — Republicans have made another dent at the grassroots level in one Democratic Dixie. A GOP candidate won a Louisiana legislative seat in one of the state's parishes, carried by President Johnson in 1964.
Roderick Miller, 45-year-old father of eight, said of his razor-thin margin over a Democrat in Tuesday's special general election:
"The vote by the Lafayette Parish registered voters showed they wanted competition. If I showed they wanted a two-party system."
The voter, Democrat William J. (Hooks) Robichaux, was not expected to contest the result. Miller defeated him 50 to 48.

Miller, a lawyer, will become the third GOP member of the Louisiana House but the first from the southern section of the state since Reconstruction.
At Shreveport, Republican State Chairman Charlton Lyons hailed Miller's triumph.
"We consider this quite a victory in this Democratic stronghold," said Lyons. "It would be a good sign for the governor to Democrat John J. McKeithan's 400,000."
"It shows that good qualified Republicans can win everywhere."

President Johnson carried Lafayette Parish by a landslide in 1964 although Republican Barry Goldwater was statewide by 100,000.

Don't Cut Budget, School Board Plea

Eight of the nine board of education members turned out last night to plead with the town directors for restoration of the $300,000 cut in next year's budget being recommended by General Manager Robert Weiss.

Learning All About the Brass Family Instruments

At the first hearing March 16, the school board's arguments supporting its record $6 million request centered on a defense of the $309,000 hike in salaries already negotiated with the teachers.

A brass trio composed of members of the Hartford Symphony this morning performed for Illing Junior High School's 7th and 8th grade music classes at two assemblies.

Over and over, the various speakers hammered away at two key themes: "Keeping salaries competitive with the rest of the state in order to attract good new teachers — and keeping them attractive enough to retain the best experienced teachers."

The annual Manchester Philatelic Society Exhibition (MANPEX) will be held Sunday, April 7, from 1 to 6 p.m. at Illing Junior High School.

Speaking of last year's refusal of 220 teachers to sign their contracts, Schaffer said that matter has never been resolved. He implied that a cut in their contracts, Schaffer said, would have been no agreement.

At least 13 vitamins are known to be present in the Agricultural Research Service's new vitamin-enriched bread.

At this point the arguments became repetitive, and the meeting closed with neither side apparently having made substantial inroads on the position of the other.

Representatives of the United Appraisal Co., conducting a town-wide revaluation of all real property, are now working on the following streets:

Spring Is Here! And so are our famous Little Yankee CHILDREN'S SHOES

Shoes for Tots to Teens...

Expert Fittings!

Shown above are just two of our many attractive and sturdy "Little Yankee Shoes" for boys and girls. This weekend, bring the children in for a pair of their favorite shoes.

General Manager Weiss, backing Stone's position, noted that to attract industry and correspondingly broaden the tax base, the town, like the schools, must remain competitive with other towns.

LBJ Action Curbs Fear Of Inflation

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—Second thoughts on inflation are taking shape in the securities and money markets as the administration pushes hard its drive to control prices and wages by persuasion.

Bond prices have rallied, however temporarily. This could indicate that current yields and interest rates are considered about as high as the economic outlook justifies just now.

And government officials are urging banks and other lenders to turn more to avoiding marginal loans than to hiking interest rates as a curb on the inflation which many had seen either here or on the way.

Stock prices have rallied a bit, too. Some traders believe that yields—that is, the relation of dividend payments to market price of stocks—are getting into a more realistic range.

At the other end of the scale, production of needed materials such as steel is rising. This is reassuring some businessmen, but that industry can and will produce the goods to avoid the classic inflation of too many dollars chasing too few goods.

The administration apparently has opted another victory in its drive to hold down or turn back price rises. This time it's the matter of cigarette prices.

Bosch Holds Strong Edge In Domingo

By ROBERT BERRIETZ
SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP)—More than ever, Juan Bosch appears to be the man to beat in the June presidential elections.

The big question remains whether the deposed ex-president will run.

The answer will come April 9 when Bosch's Revolutionary Party—PRD—decides at its national convention whether to run or to abstain on the ground that conditions are unstable. If it votes to go ahead, as expected, the party then must select its candidates.

Although he privately has told newsmen he will not be a candidate, Bosch seems almost certain to be the presidential nominee—only because there is no suitable alternative. But what if the party decides to abstain?

The main condition that would cause the party to abstain, however, is believed to be the economic expansion and of stimulating production of industrial materials or of battling shortages, that the government is making moving.

At first, the markets, and many businessmen, felt that inflation would win out, and particularly that the boom would grow so fast as to get out of hand.

Now the expansion is beginning to look more orderly and the marketplace, as usual, is the first place to react.

Tolland Zanghi Says Office Records Will Remain in His Charge

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—Yes, nothing changes a girl like marriage.

She does so sweet, simple and direct as when she is courting her. But after they agree to test the theory that two can live as cheaply as one, a great change comes over her. Her moods vary swiftly. It is as if she were living with a stranger in the house, a stranger with a different personality and a whole new set of values.

For example: She used to hang on every word he utters in order to try to hang him.

Before marriage she looked like she had been poured into her clothes. After marriage, if he didn't tug and pull and she'd never be able to get dressed.

There was a time when she thought he looked dashing in a low tie. Now, if he dons one, she looks at it with a frown. "Do you think you are—Joe Col-lage?"

It was easy in the old days for her to lift her hands around her waist and lift her lightly over an old stone wall. Now she can barely budge her feet together on summer nights.

What do they catch now together on winter days? Only the common cold.

Before marriage she loved to comb his thick stubborn hair. After marriage, she thinks he got bald just to spite her.

Once she complimented him on how broad his shoulders were. Today all she can see is the deadnut on them.

When he used to take her out, she would say, "You'd better get to work early today or they'll probably fire you—not that I'd blame them."

Sanity Rule Is Applied In Hartford

HARTFORD (AP)—The first use in Connecticut of a new standard of legal sanity will come in the case of a man who shot his wife down two days before he was charged with the murder of a woman.

The 25-year-old Uxbridge resident and sometime mental patient was seized by police at a branch of the Chase Savings Bank in Norwich last Oct. 11.

He had handed a couple of notes, one of them a regular withdrawal slip which he had signed "robber of the bank," police said.

Hamilton was engaged in conversation by a bank official and the two had an amiable chat about landscaping before Hamilton was taken off to police headquarters.

Under the old "M'Naghten Rule," which regarded a suspect as sane if he could distinguish right from wrong, Hamilton was adjudged competent to stand trial after examination by a psychiatrist.

The same psychiatrist, Dr. Peter Spaulding of Portland, had been called in again by public defender Leo J. McManama of Norwich. This time, the test of sanity, as laid down three weeks ago by the U.S. Court of Appeals, had changed.

"A person is not responsible for criminal conduct if at the time of such conduct as a result of mental disease he lacks substantial capability either to appreciate the wrongfulness of his conduct or to conform his conduct to the requirements of law."

U.S. District Judge M. Joseph Blumenthal granted permission Tuesday for the re-examination of Hamilton.

The prosecutor is also planning to call another psychiatrist to re-examine Hamilton for the state.

Hamilton originally pleaded guilty to a charge of bank robbery, but when he appeared in federal court for sentencing March 7, he requested: "My actual plans were to get arrested for the crime."

Blumenthal said this indicated there may have been no intent to commit a robbery, and he allowed Hamilton to change his plea to innocent.

Hamilton is currently free in $2,500 bond.

Reporters Pay Tow Fee To Redeem Wheelchair

BOSTON (AP)—James Peppicelli, 43, of Newton was ready Monday morning to carry his paraplegic wife down two flights of stairs and then drive her to church.

But he looked out his window and discovered that his car—containing his wife's 23rd birthday wheel chair—had been stolen.

Peppicelli, an unemployed man, so that it would be found quickly," Peppicelli said.

He said he went to pick up the car at the Charlie and Christy Tire and Battery Service Garage but was told that before he could have it he would have to pay an $18 towing charge.

Peppicelli said he had no money but had to have the car.

He said the garage agreed to give it up but only if he turned over the wheel chair as security. This he did.

Police reporters of the Boston Herald "Traveler" and Boston Globe learned of the incident,

Janitor Held In Robbing of Rep. Cleveland

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. James C. Cleveland, R.-N.H., has identified a House office building janitor as the masked robber who attacked and robbed him in the congressman's Capitol Hill office.

Cleveland was preparing to quit work late Monday night when the robber entered through an open door and told him he was "desperate for money," police said.

After a brief tussle in which the 46-year-old congressman's left arm was cut with a letter opener, he was forced back into his inner office and robbed of from $30 to $40 from his wallet.

Cleveland, a Bronze Star winner in World War II, notified police and then went to a nearby hospital for an anti-tetanus shot for his cut.

Meanwhile, acting on a tip, two robbery squad detectives tracked down the janitor, who had called in sick Monday night but was later seen in the basement of the building.

Police identified the suspect as Raymond B. Hines, Jr., 21. After being charged with robbery, police said, Hines gave a statement to officers.

Hines was held in $2,500 bond and his case continued to March 23.

Atty. E. Gray Lewis of the Legal Aid agency said Hines was desperate for money to pay gambling debts and was under the influence of alcohol at the time of his encounter with the congressman. Hines apologized to Cleveland.

For Cleveland, a father of four, it was the second time in 13 months that he had tangled with an armed man.

In February last year, he was chased back inside a house here by a knife-wielding man after the congressman went to the aid of a screaming woman. Cleveland was not injured then but described the incident later as "a frightening experience."

Spanish Speaking Citizens May Gain Vote in New York

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—A court panel ordered the Monroe County Board of Elections to accept her and other Puerto Rican voters under provisions of the 1966 federal voting rights act.

The Supreme Court Monday refused to review an appeal of the lower court decision.

Miss Maria Lopez of Rochester was able to register last fall because three-judge federal law which requires that all

English. The federal law says he going to represent me in the American citizens with a sixth grade education in schools in Puerto Rico, in which the predominant language was Spanish, also have the right to vote.

Miss Lopez, who had nine years of schooling in Puerto Rico, came to Rochester in 1964 and to find employment. She said she hopes to continue her education here and learn to speak English.

"Why do I want to vote?" she said through an interpreter. "Every American should vote and I am an American citizen."

to hear appeals of another decision on the same federal law. A three-judge panel in Washington, D.C., ruled in another case that the section of the voting rights law is unconstitutional. The Justice department filed two appeals of the decision.

Coins from Sea Bring Trouble, Back They Go

HAVANT, England (AP)—Terence Davy hauled up a box while fishing off Hayling Island two months ago. In it were 77 silver coins from the 18th century, thought to be worth about $2,800.

Davy, 37, an unemployed laborer and the father of three children, took the coins to the police. An inquest was held and a coroner ruled the coins belonged to the finder.

"I had to wait a month for that decision," said Davy. "Then I spent a small fortune in traveling round museums, dealers and experts trying to get the coins accurately valued. One would get the rest."

"That was the last straw," Wrecks claimed them. The Rest of Wrecks would keep them for a year, then sell them. They were not claimed. "The finder would get a third of the net profit and the government would get the rest."

He took the box out to sea Tuesday and dumped it overboard. "I had no other choice," he said. "They can get out their troopers suits and go and get them."

Pretty Alice Is Awaiting New Keeper

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — The voters have decided that Alice, a pretty little thing and one of the town's most popular residents, definitely is in need of a keeper.

But the man who has been unofficially looking after her since she came to this community last fall has turned down the job.

So, the town fathers are going through channels to find someone else and have turned the matter over to a committee.

Alice is a weaver. At a recent town meeting, 600 voters created the office of "keeper of the weaver" and suggested Edward E. Forrest for the job.

Paul Wilson, who made the nomination, explained he "wanted to give some recognition to the man who has been taking care of our own." Forrest's care included feedings with bread, lettuce, spinach and a special chopped hay.

A few days later, however, Forrest told Henry Davis, chairman of the Board of Selectmen, that he had decided to reject the offer.

Davis said he had written to Oliver Wallace, chairman of the town's Parks and Recreation Committee, requesting a nomination for the post.

"We'll ask for volunteers," Wallace added. "This is not a paying job. The only pay is satisfaction."

Alice, called Orendark before her sex was determined, landed in a pond in Durham and decided to stay. She quickly became popular with the residents of the area.

In spite of public attention and governmental interest, some people figure Alice is lonely. So arrangements are being made to provide a mate for her. Wallace said the University of New Hampshire is seeking a male swan from the Federal Wildlife Service.

"It means we'll probably have to amend the keeper's official title and make swan plural," Wallace said.

Furcolo Calls For Check on Grand Juries

BOSTON (AP) — Former Gov. Foster Furcolo has called for a neutral attorney to sit as an observer on grand juries to safeguard the rights of individuals.

The Democratic former governor told a legislative committee that the grand jury is in the hands of the prosecution "and the prosecution is bound to be biased."

Furcolo said there can be no impartial indictment in which a prosecutor "wanted some headlines before an election."

Furcolo was in a city of 100,000 on charges of conspiracy to arrange a bribe shortly before the 1964 election. He was acquitted last year by a divided verdict.

The bill filed by Furcolo would require the judge of the Superior Court in which the grand jury is sitting to designate one or more members of the bar to act as observers of all proceedings except for deliberations and voting.

Robert J. DeChommo, a former assistant attorney general, said in a statement the Furcolo bill "would impair the investigative functions of a grand jury."

He said the proposal would set up an advisory system within the grand jury itself and "would usurp the duties of the prosecutor and make a basic and unwarranted change in our system."

DeChommo said the bill assumes that grand juries are conducted with no regard for the rights of individuals that appear before the grand jurors and that witnesses are threatened, intimidated and deceived.

Furcolo argued that the neutral observer could prevent abuses and give witnesses and the jury "guidance and advice."

NATO Loss Perilous, Johnson Tells Allies

salvation and their welfare must rest upon the progressive application of human solidarity.

The "Great French leader" quoted by Johnson was identified by officials as the late Robert Schuman, who served at various times as French premier and French foreign minister and who signed the Atlantic pact for France in April 1954.

He also recalled that a French foreign minister said in 1949 that Europe needed help in preventing, as well as restoring, attack. Johnson quoted the unidentified diplomat as stating "liberation is not enough."

Johnson said at the outset that "we do not believe there is any righteousness in standing pat" on NATO.

"If any organization is alive and vital if it is to have meaning for all time as well as for any particular time — it must grow and respond and yield to change," he said.

And, in what amounted to a rather mild phrase, he said that De Gaulle, Johnson added, "is not a man who is content to stand by the changing needs of the times. But we believe just as firmly that such change must be brought by the members working with one another within the alliance. Consultation, not isolation, is the route to reform."

Johnson said all 15 NATO nations share a common danger — division — and can share only one safety in unity.

Johnson at one point appealed to De Gaulle, to effect, to consider his independent posture.

"We are hopeful that no member of the treaty will long remain withdrawn from the mutual affairs and obligations of the alliance. A place of respect and responsibility will await any ally who decides to return to the common task."

Expressing a firm conviction that NATO offers the best assurance of avoiding war in the Atlantic world, Johnson said: "If our collective efforts should falter — and our common determination be eroded — the foundation of the Alliance, the deterrent strength of NATO."

He said "the mightiest arsenal in the world will not be as great as the will to defend, as too divided to decide, as too unsure to respond."

He said that was the lesson of two world wars.

In another indirect reference to De Gaulle, Johnson added that NATO nations "could still depend on their security by creating a situation in which response would be too late and too adjusted. He said he could be done "not by the action of our friends, but by her own decision to prepare and plan alone."

Johnson, who responded Tuesday to De Gaulle in a letter not made public, said the United States is determined to work with 15 other nations — France excluded by her own choice — "to preserve and to strengthen the deterrent strength of NATO."

Johnson noted the strength of the half-billion people in NATO nations "washed by the Atlantic," said they are unmatched in arms and industry and possess a "measurably storehouse of wealth" that can enrich the life of an entire planet.

"It is this strength — of ideas as well as arms, of peaceful purposes as well as power — that offers such hope for the reconciliation of Western Europe with the people of Eastern Europe."

Then, in a more pointed phrase, he continued: "To surrender that strength by isolation from one another would be to let the promise of that day when the men and women of all Europe shall again move freely among each other."

Johnson began by recalling the devastation and weakness that enveloped Western Europe after World War II, saying this has been replaced by abundance and power — "A new Europe."

There is a pattern, he said, which suggests at least part of the explanation for the change: "It is the design of common action — of interdependent institutions serving the good of European nations as though they were one. It is the design of collective security protecting the entire Atlantic world."

Stating his present view of NATO, Johnson said it is an alliance not to make war but to keep the peace, an alliance which he said rests on the reality that all must fight together should war come but that "war will not come at all if we act together during peace."

NATO's success can be measured by many yardsticks — notably by the fact that there has been no war in Europe — Johnson said.

Among the Atlantic nations, Johnson said, there is "a political integrity and identity of interests that transcends the personalities and issues of the moment."

Saying NATO must be shaped

The Hebron Town Crier

on the experience of the past, Johnson said "reliance on independent action by separate forces — only loosely coordinated with joint forces and plans tied to world wars before 1945." Collective action, he said, "has deterred war since then and we reject those experiences only at our own peril."

Johnson's message Tuesday constituted a detailed reply to a message which De Gaulle sent him March 7. He gave a preliminary response at that time saying that the problems which De Gaulle had raised would have to be dealt with not by the United States and France alone but by the entire Atlantic alliance.

Subsequently De Gaulle sent word of his decision to other allied governments and published in a form in which he said it must grow and respond and yield to change."

And, in what amounted to a rather mild phrase, he said that De Gaulle, Johnson added, "is not a man who is content to stand by the changing needs of the times. But we believe just as firmly that such change must be brought by the members working with one another within the alliance. Consultation, not isolation, is the route to reform."

Then, in a more pointed phrase, he continued: "To surrender that strength by isolation from one another would be to let the promise of that day when the men and women of all Europe shall again move freely among each other."

Johnson began by recalling the devastation and weakness that enveloped Western Europe after World War II, saying this has been replaced by abundance and power — "A new Europe."

There is a pattern, he said, which suggests at least part of the explanation for the change: "It is the design of common action — of interdependent institutions serving the good of European nations as though they were one. It is the design of collective security protecting the entire Atlantic world."

Stating his present view of NATO, Johnson said it is an alliance not to make war but to keep the peace, an alliance which he said rests on the reality that all must fight together should war come but that "war will not come at all if we act together during peace."

NATO's success can be measured by many yardsticks — notably by the fact that there has been no war in Europe — Johnson said.

Among the Atlantic nations, Johnson said, there is "a political integrity and identity of interests that transcends the personalities and issues of the moment."

ford failed to appear to answer to charges of reckless driving and abandoning a motor vehicle. An attorney representing Sullivan submitted a motion asking permission to withdraw from the case. The motion was granted, and an arrest warrant issued by Judge Searle Dourington.

Richard Faucher, 28, of West Hartford, had charges of intoxication, breaking and entering without permission, and two counts of breach of peace (not prosecuted).

The case was told that the charges stemmed from a domestic dispute, and the note was recommended by the family relations office.

Other dispositions: Daniel T. Conlon, 24, 57 Talcott Ave., Rockville, operating a motor vehicle without a license, $10, being a second offender; $30; Russell R. Gardner, 51 of 21 Spring St., Rockville, failure to drive to the left of a parked vehicle, $30; Paul Jakopko, RFD 2, Rockville, failure to yield the right of way, $25; Melmet J. Wentz, 21, of 11 Village St., Rockville, failure to issue a check, $10; William D. Shea, 20, Peterson Rd., Vermont branch of domestic violence, retaining arrest and being abusive to an officer, not present; Richard B. Jack Glass of the Sovereign Grace Baptist Church in Glasgow, Scotland; and James Adams St., who police said had been separated from his wife since Jan. 1, was arrested at his home. He was held in $5,000 bail for Circuit Court appearance on the incident. The three were men sat in the next to last row of the long church.

The three came on a jetliner from London with the archbishop on Tuesday. Two others in their group — the Rev. John Wylie and the Rev. Ian Paisley, both Free Presbyterians from Northern Ireland — were refused admission to Italy and went back to London aboard the plane.

Both bared identical protest signs on their cheeks as police led them away.

The Rev. Mr. Paisley had picked St. Peter's Basilica at the opening of the Vatican Ecumenical Council three years ago. All five shouted "traitor" as Dr. Ramsey boarded the plane in London, but during the flight British security men kept them from entering the first class compartment where the archbishop was seated.

At their second meeting late today, the Pope and the archbishop met alone for nearly two hours in the Pope's private study.

Thursday the two will pray together in the Basilica of St. Paul Outside the Walls, embrace with a symbolic kiss of peace and issue a joint statement.

Before the meeting, two Protestant clergymen and a layman from the Rev. Ramsey's church in downtown Rome, Italian police took the dissenters out of the church after they opened their coats to display white smocks bearing the words: "Archbishop Ramsey — traitor to Protestant Britain."

Powell Salary Set at $17,240

Dr. Theodore Powell of Manchester, executive officer of the state system of community colleges, after a delay of several months, has been given a pay hike to $17,240 annually.

Powell, who was the former director of public information for the State Education Department, had been voted a salary of $15,000 in his present position and had been designated president of the community college system.

However, members of the State Commission on Higher Education objected to both the title and the salary. His title was changed to that of executive officer and his salary, in the same range as that of the executive officer of the Board of Trustees for State Colleges.

Elizabeth Jones, 31, of West Willington, was given a suspended 180-day jail sentence and placed on one-year probation on a charge of shoplifting on April 12. The sentence was recommended by the family relations office.

John McCarthy, 25, of Grahbar Rd., Tolland, was charged with evading responsibility and reckless driving reduced to failure to drive in the established lane. He was fined $10. John Sullivan of East Haddam

Operative Heart Treatment Shows Promising Results

By Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D., Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—Two years ago my husband, then 42, had a heart attack. After 4 or 5 months he was allowed to return to work. Recently he had another more serious attack. Why didn't the operative and put in a pacemaker?

A—While the electronic pacemaker is a life-saver in persons with chronic heart block, heart block is not always present in persons with a coronary heart attack. When it is present it usually clears up in 10 to 14 days without treatment.

Although the treatment of heart attacks is still medical, operative procedures have been tried on a series of 250 persons with hardening of the coronary arteries. This operation is experimental. It consists of tying off the internal mammary artery, the artery that supplies the sac surrounding the heart and some of the ribs, thus allowing more of the blood to reach that region. In this series the results were promising. It is thought the operation is relatively simple, it has not yet been tried widely.

Even more recently a much more complicated operation has been devised for some persons with a heart attack whose coronary obstruction is in a favorable location. The obstruction is located, removed, and replaced with a graft from a vein. Although the reports are still that the chances of a recurrence are high, it must be emphasized that not all victims of a heart attack can be helped by these two operations.

Q—What are the symptoms of congestive heart failure? Is it serious? At what stage do they prescribe digitalis? Why is ACTH harmful if you have heart failure?

A—When there is a leak in one of the heart valves the heart must work harder to pump the blood to your tissues. When the point is reached that your heart can no longer do this effectively it is said to be decompensated and congestive (waterlogging) heart failure occurs. The victim becomes short of breath, has swelling in the legs and the liver is enlarged. This is a very serious condition but modern heart surgery is saving many victims.

Digitalis is prescribed at the first sign of decompensation. Persons with heart failure should not take ACTH or any of the corticosteroid drugs because retention of fluid in the tissues and this aggravates the waterlogging.

A home design study proved it takes 10 times as much energy to get something three inches from the floor than if it were placed at elbow level.
