What they said, in their conduct vesterday, was that they have not gone berserk into a search for merely negative, destructive developments. What they say, at the moment, is that they are interested in having some elections held so that their country can have something better and more representative than the military government the United States has been propping up for so many years.

This is a rather heartening development, if it holds. For it means that there is at last somebody connected with the South Vietnamese situation besides the American servicemen fighting there who is putting the cause of democracy, not that of power politics, not that of one technique of war against another first. If there could have been more of that kind of interest a few years ago, there might never have been the present tragic chaos for the country and for all those outsiders oceans and continents away whose fates are now linked into developments there. Little Jackie Farrell of the New York Yankees sored his usual hit as a speaker last night as disappoint baseball. There is plenty of it this spring. Starting a week from today, through the month of May, at least of the eight area high school teams is playing every day, save Saturday and Sunday.

High School baseball is usually won on the mound, make no mistake about that.
