Budget at $1,351,717; Would Need 52-Mill Tax

The board of selectmen met last night to settle on final figures for the town budget. The budget will be presented at the annual town meeting May 3. Approval of the budget will be held Thursday.

The budget, however, while the selectmen seek cuts in some department budgets.

The selectmen's budget stands at $240,000, as of the closing of last night's meeting, according to the board of selectmen.

If it is not changed, the budget will be $36,401.27 more than last year's $212,586.75.

The board of education has approved a $1,102,717.20 budget request at its meeting Wednesday. A $292,327.20 increase over last year's budget of $810,490. The increase is primarily needed to prepare the new high school for the sixth, seventh, and eighth grades to occupy in September, and for the addition of 15 teachers to the staff.

The combined budgets of the board of selectmen and education, as they now stand, total $1,351,717.20. The town expects to receive approximately $200,000 in grants from the state, leaving a total of $1,051,717.20 to be raised in taxes.

Based on the 1965 Grand List of $19,630,000, each mill the town levies in taxes will produce about $19,630. Thus, to finance the town's $1,051,717.20 share of the proposed budget will require a tax rate of about 52 mills—a 14 mill increase over last year's 38 mill tax rate.

The selectmen, however, are investigating various ways to reduce the budgeted amounts, and would like to keep the mill rate under 50 mills.

This is the first time in recent years that budget figures have been made public prior to the annual town meeting. Copies of the final budget will be made available to the public Thursday or Friday of next week.

Democratic Women Miss Mary McCann, president of the Connecticut Federation of Women's Clubs, will be the guest speaker at a Wednesday night's meeting of the Democratic Women's Club, at 5 p.m. in the Town Hall.

January to between 500,000 and 600,000 gallons a week, according to some reports.

The higher of these two figures will leave an indicated gap between supplies and consumption of about 240,000 gallons weekly.

Unless Rhodesia can step up its supplies the present drain on reserves could exhaust them in some 30 to 40 weeks between mid-July and the end of September. And if South Africa begins turning off the tap, the reserves of 200,000 gallons a week in could dry up much sooner.

McDonald's Chain Growing

Up to April of this year McDonald's had sold over two billion hamburgers throughout their 760 units all over the country! The figure is a staggering one and it surely must point up the fact that the "Golden Arches" is outgrowing not only the other fast food chains but also the population of many states.

McDonald's in Manchester is located at 45 W. Center St. and if you have not availed yourself of this good food served here, now is the time to try it. The food is of the highest quality, the place is spotlessly clean, and you can take home a meal for the entire family at cost and no work on your part.

Coventry Landmark Gutted by Fire

Fire gutted the home of Mrs. Ruth Beebe, a landmark on the hillside above the intersection of Rt. 31 and Lake St., last night. No estimate was available this morning of the damage. The fire brought volunteers from both Coventry departments, Eagleville and Columbia, and the Willimantic ladder truck. The alarm was turned in about 9:30 p.m. by Al LeRoque, an employe at Pelletier's Service Station, just below the house, and firemen were at the scene until early this morning. The Beebe family was away when the fire broke out, visiting in Massachusetts. (Photo by Guinan.)

Wittkofske Hopes No Need For Water Ban This Year

Town Water Superintendent Lawrence Wittkofske said yesterday, "I am hoping that we can get through this year without even the partial ban which we imposed last year." On June 11 of last year, because of the serious effects of an extended drought, the town had placed a 5 to 9 p.m. ban on the outdoor use of water; and on Aug. 20, the ban was extended to the hours 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. The ban was lifted on Oct. 27. Wittkofske said that, with the town's four reservoirs at almost peak level and with several instituted improvements, the water-supply picture looks much brighter this year than last, "provided, of course, that we get a fair share of precipitation." He said that a heavier pump has been installed for the Rockledge Storage Tank, to keep the supply constant at peak hours. The fall in that

SNET PAYS DIVIDEND

New England Telephone Company's 84,000 stockholders recently received increased dividend checks. The increase from 60 to 63 cents a share was voted last month.

The dividend was the company's 300th consecutive quarterly dividend, and Ellis C. Maxcy, president, said in his statement to the stockholders: "Our record of uninterrupted dividend payments dates back to 1891, and has continued despite wars, depressions and damages to facilities resulting from natural disasters."

He also said: "During this quarter, we added 22,000 telephones to those in service compared with 17,900 in the corresponding period of 1965. The volume of out-of-town calls increased more than fourteen per cent."

"Earnings for the first period came to 76 cents per share, compared with 73 cents per share in the first three months of 1965."

RETAIL SALES RISE

Joseph Garman of Corel Casuals, chairman of the Retail Division of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce, reports that Manchester had a 9.6 per cent increase in retail sales in 1965 as compared to 1964. The figures have been obtained from a report on total retail sales for 1965 which the Connecticut Development Commission recently released. Manchester retail sales for the year were slightly higher in increase than the per cent of increase for the state as a whole. The state average increase was 8.9 per cent. It is also reported that the town had an increase of 17.4 per cent in the fourth quarter of 1965 over the fourth quarter of 1964. The state average for this period was 10.8 per cent.

The Peabodies-- For Pope and War

NEW YORK (AP) — Television coverage of Pope Paul's historic visit to New York and the war in Viet Nam figured high today in the 26th annual presentation of the George Foster Peabody Awards for distinguished achievement by television and radio.

In television news, the winners were Frank McGee, of NBC; Morley Safer of CBS and Station KTLA, Los Angeles.

McGee was cited for his "superb descriptions" of the Pope's visit and as anchor man at the NBC news space center. Safer's reports from the Viet Nam battlefield were honored for their "journalistic integrity and honesty, sensitivity and forcefulness."

Station KTLA received an award for covering the Watts riots of 1965.

The winners in the television entertainment category were "The Julie Andrews Show," NBC; the Barbra Streisand special, "My Name Is Barbra," CBS, and "Frank Sinatra — A Man and His Music," NBC. All were special, one-hour shows.

"A Charlie Brown Christmas," CBS, was the winner among television youth and children's programs. It was taken from the Charles Schulz comic strip "Peanuts."

A special award was made for the ABC show, "A Visit to Washington With Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson — on Behalf of a More Beautiful America." Mrs. Johnson also was to present the awards at the luncheon meeting.

In the category of television public service, the CBS Reports show, "KKK — The Invisible Empire," was honored as a devastating light "on America's most shameful hate group."

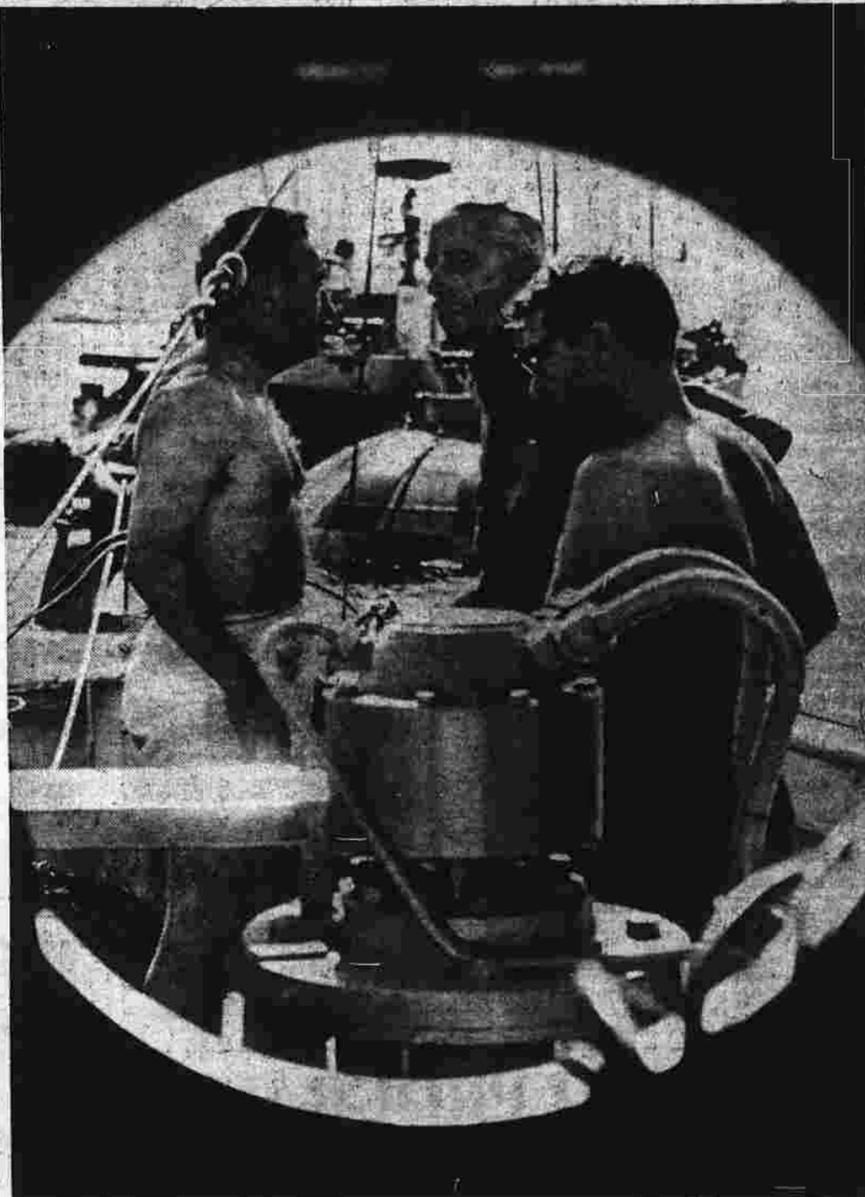

CBS' show "The National Driver's Test" was called the forerunner in television innovation in 1965. The program permitted millions of viewers to sit in their homes and check their driving judgment, knowledge and perception.

The National Educational Television network received the Peabody Award for the most distinguished performance in educational broadcasting. The network was cited for several social documentaries.

For television's most inventive art documentary, the award went to "The Mystery of Stonehenge," CBS. The show was called a "handsome blend of beautiful photography, ancient history and modern theory."

The Xerox Corp. was cited for making a television contribution to international understanding in its sponsorship of such programs as "The Making of The President — 1964," "Let My People Go," "The Louvre," and a series on the United Nations.

The CBS program "Music Till Dawn" was honored as "the first successful all-night program of sponsored (classical and semiclassical) music." An award was presented to CBS and American Airlines, the sponsor, for meritorious public service.

Visit to Cousteau's Underworld

By JOAN CROSBY

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Probably because les messieurs Cousteau (Jacques-Yves, pere, and Philippe, fils) are French, the conversation had turned to women.

"The most dangerous thing in my work," Captain Cousteau, the charming and famous undersea explorer and scientist, was saying, "is administration. The second is the wife of the men in my organization. The smallest danger we face is being under water."

"To be a diver, once must be dedicated. I don't know one woman who is consistently dedicated to diving. The dedication of the female does not last. And that is the trouble with women. The dedication doesn't last, but they stick to you like adhesive tape."

Captain Cousteau hastened to add that these words did not apply to his wife, the "best sailor I have ever met."

He and 24-year-old Philippe were in New York briefly to work on "The World of Jacques-Yves Cousteau," a color special in the National Geographic series, set for CBS Thursday. The show is devoted to experiments carried out by Cousteau's Conshelf III crew, which lived and worked on the floor of the Mediterranean for over three weeks. Philippe, a press agent said, was the show's cameraman.

"Cameraman?" he asked, then turned to his father. "Director?"

Jacques-Yves agreed his son

could be called the director. "Producer?" the handsome young man asked. "No, not on the credits," his father smiled.

Captain Cousteau has spent a great percentage of his life underwater, and you can't help wondering if he feels more at home there.

"It would be nice to tell you I was more at home underwater, and it would be partly right. It is true, I feel at home in the water, but it is also true we remain land, air-breathing animals. There is a tremendous atmosphere of peace under the sea. Even when it is dramatic, let's say it is also quiet. But to me, the jungle is the same."

Philippe broke in "There is one big difference between the land and the sea. Down there you lose hate. There is struggle and combat, but without any sense of hatred."

Always Handwritten

The Torah, a scroll of the Jewish Law, is never printed. A new Torah must be handwritten according to strict rules, and always on parchment. A worn Torah is repaired or put aside, never destroyed.

Julie Payne appears on CBS' "The Wild, Wild West" Friday, 7:30-8:30 p.m.

Dr. Kildare (ret.) Wears Tousled Hair and Beard

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Could it be? Impossible! Yet it was indeed Richard Chamberlain with tousled hair and a week's growth of beard.

"Very simple," he diagnosed. "I had to be neat for so long, I enjoy being unwashed and unshaven for a change."

You see, Richard Chamberlain is Dr. Kildare no more. You may still be seeing him Mondays and Tuesdays on the NBC soap opera, but his duties at Blair General Hospital ended with final shooting a month ago.

"At least I think it was final," he said. "We haven't officially been told that the show was being dropped and in theory the network still has another month or two to decide. But it doesn't appear likely that we'll be back."

The reason: poor ratings. This season the series, highly successful as an hour, was bifurcated into a twice-weekly show with disastrous results.

"The change was based on the assumption that the serial was on the upswing," observed Chamberlain. "It was a perfectly legitimate assumption. Unfortunately it turned out to be false."

The actor arrived for an interview not only with a beard, but with a case of the sniffles. "God gave me a cold for my birthday," he said.

And how old is he now? "Well, I'm really 32, but I'm supposed to say I'm 31," he admitted. "Oh, heck, you might as well say I'm 32." He sighed, "Well, there go the teen-agers!"

It's now likely that his teenage followers will desert him simply because he had reached the advanced age of 32. At any rate, Chamberlain is aiming for more mature audiences as well.

He appears to have hit the mark in his first engagement after hanging up his smock at Blair. He and close friend Joan Marshall starred in "The Philadelphia Story" in Palm Beach, Fla., appearing in the roles played on the screen by Cary Grant and Katherine Hepburn.

Palm Beach critics rewarded Chamberlain with such phrases as "Fine sense of timing," "Bounce and aplomb," "Handsome and winning."

Now he plans to play "Private Lives" in Ohio and Berkeley, Calif., this summer, provided a movie doesn't intervene. He's aiming for the movie money right now. Television?

"No, thanks," he said. "I have only a year and a half to go at MGM, so that would preclude another series. I hope to avoid another series, anyway. They're pure death for an actor."

It's T.H.E. Cat

Another slightly super human hero is scheduled to be introduced in an NBC series this fall called "T.H.E. Cat." Robert Loggia will portray T. Hewitt Edward Cat, who, according to NBC, is an "ultra-efficient bodyguard, ex-aerialist, and reputed ex-cat burglar, who thwarts crime."

After Films Run Out What Will TV Do?

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The two-hour feature for television has replaced the pay-TV as Hollywood's pie-in-the-sky.

For 15 years, the cry has been: "Wait until pay-television; then this town will really boom!" The theory had been that when first-run movies could be paid for and seen in the home, the Hollywood product would be in greater demand than ever before.

But pay-TV remains only a glimmering hope after years of experimentation. Now the studios are scouting another, more immediate prospect of future prosperity: the movie feature made expressly for television.

For 1966-67, the three networks have scheduled prime time movies on five nights — Tuesday and Saturday for NBC, Thursday and Friday for CBS, and Sunday for ABC. All three are scrambling for products.

"Within two or three years, the supply of feature movies should become critical," Grant Tinker, new head of NBC programming, remarked recently. Michael Dann, program head of CBS, agreed that the diminishing supply of features is the network's chief problem. "We are sizing up our needs and know the importance of films," he said.

All three networks have entered into deals to provide new features. CBS recently announced a contract with Warner Bros. for six two-hour films which would be released in theaters first, then on the network. CBS was also reported in negotiations for features by producers Ivan Tors and William Castle.

ABC concluded a deal with MGM for six features, which may or may not be released in theaters first.

NBC is the pioneer in the field of new features, having contracted with Universal for such films over the past two years. The network reported that ratings suffered no drop when brand new features were played, rather than the more publicized old ones.

Universal expects to make a dozen two-hour shows for television this year, most of them for NBC.

Studios generally reserve the right to release the films in theaters first, in case they turn out promisingly. That happened with "The Plainsman," which Universal made for CBS with Don Murray and Guy Stockwell. Additional revenue comes from the release of the films in foreign theaters.

All this bodes well for an industry that once feared television would destroy it. Now it appears that television may supply the movie industry a means of survival.

Difference Hard to Tell

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — It may save money for the producers. It may postpone summer reruns for a week. But it is debatable whether it is wise to broadcast a pilot show made only to convince network executives and advertising agencies that they should order up a whole series after seeing the sample.

One of those samples, "Assault," was shown Tuesday night during the hour that ABC normally devotes to "Combat," and except for the camouflaged helmets, it was hard to tell the difference. "Combat" is a long-playing series about the infantry's bitter battle across France two decades ago. "Assault" proposed to tell the same story about Marines in the South Pacific.

It did not find a sponsor, but it is hard to understand why it failed. It had everything that "Combat" has 8 including pretty much the same script. All that was necessary was to substitute Japanese for Nazis, add a bit of fake philodendron to Hollywood's backlot underbrush to simulate tropical jungle, and hold the final shootout on a beach instead of around a French cathedral.

Tuesday night's pilot program concerned the familiar assignment to knock out the enemy gun causing all the trouble. If the Marines wear helmets with different camouflage than Army infantrymen, the sound of their guns are familiar — and so is the dialogue.

The whole thing seemed a shabby copy of an established show.

'Carol Plus Two' Tops the Ratings

NEW YORK (AP) — The most popular program in the new Nielsen report is "Carol Plus Two," Carol Burnett's special on CBS last month that co-starred Lucille Ball and Zero Mostel. But the most interesting item in the report is that Red Skelton's CBS show passed the perennial champion, NBC's "Bonanza" in the ratings.

Top shows during the two week period ending April 3 were, in order of popularity, Carol Plus Two, The Red Skelton Show, Bonanza, CBS' Lucy Show and Gomer Pyle, ABC's Alice in Wonderland, CBS' Andy Griffith Show, ABC's Batman—Thursday night episode—CBS' Hogan's Heroes and the Thursday Night Movie.

CBS retained its lead in the average network ratings for evening shows with 20.3, with NBC following with 18.7 and ABC, 18.2.

Grammy Winners
Roger Miller, Petula Clark and Duke Ellington and his Band are among the performers who will appear on NBC's "The Best on Record," an hour-long show May 16 honoring the 1965 winners of the recording industry's Grammy Awards. Others appearing include Tony Bennett, Robert Goulet and Herb Alpert and the Tijuana Brass.
