so-called Honolulu declaration of February, instead of being limite to Vietnam, was in reality a "Johnson Doctrine" for Asia, implying enormous commitments to the entire area running into the indefinite future. It was di rected, in his view, toward "a modern Asia, an Asia at peace, an Asia with tremendous programs of social, economic betterment."

Now it is always possible that the result, guaranteed to be safe by the exis a case of using somewhat high-flown language to describe intentions that in fact are not as grandlose as they sound On balance, though, we think the Vice President's remarks as they appear in the transcript of the program deserve to be taken at face value, not only because of his high position but because is plain that the Administration anyone in South Vietnam who can view stendily moving in the direction of such an election, in prospect, as anyheavier involvement in Asia. . . . thing very closely related to democracy,

Perhaps the first comment is that such a plan is quite a chunk for even the U.S. to be tearing off. In innume able ways Asia is not the same as Europe and cannot be brought to flower as Europe was. Long before Asia pros-pered, the chances are that America would have exhausted itself in the ef-

We would suggest that almost the opposite is true. The responsible exer-cise of power emphatically should not mean economic or military involvement everywhere. Indeed, that policy is a pretty good prescription for ceasing to be a world power as some great nations before us have discovered.

The exercise of economic power properly should mean, as we see it, financial and other help for those nations that request and can effectively use it toward the development of free so-cieties—for that should be a paramount U.S. interest in the world and one which by its nature imposes selectivity in-stead of permitting indiscriminate com-

Vietnam further shows how easily a modest offer of economic aid, years ago, can develop into a huge military mmitment. Since by Mr. Humphrey's account the Administration isn't think ing small about its plans for Asia, the ohnson Doctrine could lead to endless entanglements in internal politics and

On one point everyone would have to agree with the Vice President: "We are going to be in Asia for a long, long time." That's the way it looks, all righ discouraging as some may find it. And f that is the way it is to be, it makes the Administration's evident lack of realism about Asia all the more disturbing. - WALL STREET JOURNAL
