State of Emergency

Marine Strike Jams London

LONDON (AP)—A state of emergency was proclaimed in Britain today, giving the government sweeping powers to keep essential supplies flowing during the national maritime strike.

The proclamation was signed at Buckingham Palace by Queen Elizabeth II and read shortly afterward in the House of Commons.

Prime Minister Harold Wilson told the House the first move by the government was to assume powers to put ceiling prices on food.

So far there has been no sense of emergency as a result of the week-old strike of 55,000-member National Union of Seamen. Food prices are only a few pennies higher. But the port of London now is almost choked with strike-bound shipping, and the government moved before the situation could degenerate into widespread shortages.

At the same time the government ended the week-long lull in efforts to reach a settlement by calling seamen and shipowners' representatives to separate meetings with Labor Minister Ray Gunter.

The emergency proclamation gives ministers power to commandeer private transport, put the armed forces to work un-

CAB Indicates Insistence on Fare Reduction

NEW YORK (AP)—The Civil Aeronautics Board indicated today it would insist that the airlines reduce fares early next year if they do not do so voluntarily.

CAB Chairman Charles S. Murphy said the fare reductions should apply both in the domestic and international areas.

In a talk prepared for delivery before the Federation of Financial Analysts, Murphy said he hoped it would be possible to bring about lower air fares on an informal basis, so that a general investigation of fares could be avoided.

"The formal procedures available to the board for bringing about changes in airlines

Speeches Reveal 'New' McNamara

WASHINGTON (AP)—Since he became secretary of defense, McNamara has given a series of speeches which have revealed a new McNamara as a kind of super-efficient man-machine with a computer brain and a soul to match. But in two speeches within five days McNamara displayed a side rarely seen in public.

Before the American Society of Newspaper Editors in Montreal Wednesday, he spoke in an idealistic and philosophic vein as he expounded the thesis that military hardware alone cannot assure security.

Sunday, before his daughter's graduating class in Pittsburgh, the defense secretary appeared as a defender of "freedom of dissent" — standing up for the right of campus protesters to

There was pathos when Paul Davis, art gallery owner, accepted an award for his wife Alice Pearce who played comic neighbor Gladys on the "Be-witched" series and died of cancer a few months ago.

Pounds of Bees

LOS ALTOS, Calif. (AP)—Instead of mowing his lawn, Joseph Grippo spent yesterday, shoveling thousands of dead bees out of his living room.

Grippo, his wife, and 18-month-old daughter, Diane, fled their suburban home after being greeted by a seething swarm of honey bees when they returned from a Saturday night out.

"They were in a mass five or six inches thick around the queen bee," said Mrs. Grippo. "They had started a hive right on the front window of our living room."

He killed them with fumes, powder, gas and smoke insecticides.

'Big Board' Not Bluffing About Move

TRENTON, N.J. (AP)—The president of the New York Stock Exchange told a legislative committee today the Big Board is not bluffing about the idea that it might move all or part of its operations to New Jersey.

"Present studies indicate that New Jersey is a leading area in which the exchange might well conclude that it should institute operations," said Keith Funston, exchange president.

He said the exchange has instituted several studies, including the possibility of establishing a pilot program under which sellers of large blocks of stock would be able to do business with the Big Board but not be subjected to the proposed New York City stock transfer tax.

"These actions should be regarded as evidence that we are serious and not engaged in any 'war of nerves' with the officials of New York City and State," Funston testified.

He appeared before a committee hearing on a bipartisan resolution designed to prohibit a stock transfer tax of its exchange moves all or part of its operations across the Hudson River to New Jersey.

Gov. Richard J. Hughes and New Jersey legislators called the hearing to test the sincerity

Mental Health Funds Available, Bloomberg Says

HARTFORD (AP)—Connecticut is now eligible for millions of dollars in federal funds to build and staff mental health centers, State Mental Health Commissioner Wilfred Bloomberg announced today.

Eligibility was granted by Surgeon General William Stewart, who approved Connecticut's Mental Health Facilities Construction Plan, Bloomberg said.

The plan surveys and analyzes the mental health needs of each region within Connecticut and offers recommendations for action.

It gave number one priority to the Greater Bridgeport Area. The General Assembly allocated $4 million last year for construction of a 160-bed mental health center in Bridgeport.

Bloomberg said his department is asking the federal government for $1.7 more, the maximum federal aid for a project of that size.

The Bridgeport center is to be built across the street from Bridgeport Hospital.

Congress Asked to Hike Temporary Debt Ceiling

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Treasury Department asked Congress today to raise the temporary debt ceiling to $332 billion for the fiscal year which begins July 1.

The ceiling — which was raised by Congress last year to a temporary $288 billion — would drop to the permanent level of $288 billion if Congress fails to act. In the past, Congress has always lifted the ceiling although it has sometimes declined to give the administration as much leeway as it requested. Treasury Department asked a closed-door meeting of the House Ways and Means Committee, Charles L. Schultze, director of the Budget Bureau, said the deficit for the current fiscal year which ends June 30 should total $3.9 billion instead of the $6.4 billion estimated in January.

And he said there's no reason at this time to change the estimate of spending for the next fiscal year which begins July 1.

Burke questioned Vincent J. Hayes, vice president and chief engineer of C.L.&P., on the progress of the construction. Hayes replied that it was "pretty nearly complete" at the time. (April 28) when the hearing was called.

"What I don't appreciate," Burke said, "is your coming in and asking approval for an accomplished fact... that is contemptuous of this commission."

C.L.&P. Atty. Walter F. Torrance Jr. said the PUC "docket requires permission prior to energization."

He said that recently the PUC was considering amendments to

Buddhists' Surrender Ends Days of Rioting

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—The last rebel headquarters in Da Nang surrendered today, giving Premier Nguyen Cao Ky virtually unchallenged control of South Viet Nam's second largest city after eight days of bloodshed.

Some 400 antigovernment soldiers poured out of Da Nang's Binh Hoi pagoda and gave up their large store of arms without firing a shot. An overwhelming force of marines and 13 armored cars ringed the Buddhist stronghold.

The capitulation came less than 12 hours before expiration of an ultimatum by the junta to declare the rebel soldiers deserters unless they ended the revolt by 6 p.m. About 400 rebels gave up Sunday.

Ky's success, despite sharp initial U.S. disapproval of his surprise troop movement north, gave the 35-year-old premier a considerable boost in his campaign to retain power and retain control of the army's 1st Corps area.

With the tide turned in his favor in Da Nang, Ky also moved his troops against anti-American rioters who set two U.S. military vehicles on fire outside the main Buddhist Institute in Saigon. The troops threw rows of barbed wire around the institute to contain further disorders.

One influential monk, Thien Minh, announced a mass Buddhist "march of peace" in Saigon Wednesday. He dissociated his Buddhist leadership from involvement in the rioting. Minh is a lieutenant of Tri Quang, the principal Buddhist leader in the north and reputed architect of the antigovernment campaign.

As a precaution, the U.S. Command extended the nightly curfew for American troops in Saigon from 8:30 p.m. to 7 a.m. Previously the curfew ran from midnight to 5 a.m. American billets near the Buddhist Institute also were evacuated.

The fast-breaking political developments came against a backdrop of increased U.S. and Vietnamese activity against the Viet Cong.

The U.S. 1st cavalry, airborne division reported killing 47 more Viet Cong Sunday in Operation Crazy Horse, bringing the reported enemy toll in seven days of fighting in the central highlands 250 miles northeast of Saigon to 207 Communists.

With somewhat improved weather, U.S. Air Force and Navy planes flew 49 missions against North Viet Nam Sunday. This was 10 more than the previous day and considerably more than last week when men-

NY Nurses Stay Home, Clinics Are Crippled

NEW YORK (AP)—Public health nurses crippled service in the city's health centers and clinics today with large numbers of them staying away from work, making good a resignation threat prompted by a pay dispute.

The Department of Health reported that only a few nurses had reported for work at the city's 28 health centers. School health services were shut down, as was service at 66 child health stations.

The department said 282 of 482 public health nurses it employed had turned in their resignations. J. Jerome Ollitt, counsel for "the Professional Public Health Nurses Association had put the resignation figure at 350. Some 1,600 doctors and dentists belonging to the Doctors Association of the Department of Health have made it plain they would do no nursing work and would perform only emergency duties.

The public health nurses get patients ready to see doctors, conduct interviews, prepare vaccines, work up medical charts, and visit patients in their homes. In addition, they supervise 900 other public health workers. The nurses are demanding pay parity with the municipal hospital senior nurses, whose threat of mass resignations resulted last week in a 20 per cent salary increase.

A Health Department spokesman said Sunday night that, in the emergency the child health clinics and the school health program would be shut down. Kept operating as fully as possible, he said, would be such "priority programs" as tuberculosis and venereal disease treatment, pediatrics, and care for the aged.

The public health nurses, generally considered on a par with head nurses in city hospitals, seek a $1,050 annual wage boost from $6,000 to $7,100.

The city hospital nurses won an increase from $5,150 to $6,400 next Jan. 1. They also got an immediate increase to $6,050, retroactive to last Jan. 1.

Public health nurses, in addition to winning certification as registered nurses, must have a college degree and, in addition, 31 graduate credits in public health nursing.

Court Rulings

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court refused today to hear a case that challenges the constitutionality of federal law prohibiting the mailing of obscene material. Joe Davis, a New York City phonograph dealer, asked the court to review his conviction on charges of mailing obscene records and mailing them in obscene wrappers. The U. S. Circuit Court in New York upheld the conviction in a 2-1 ruling last December. The Court also ruled a struck railroad may make "reasonably necessary" changes in work conditions to keep operating, provided the changes are strictly limited and under court supervision. The 7-1 decision, affirmed the ruling by the U. S. Circuit Court in New Orleans last July that the Florida East Coast Railway may, under the eye of a federal court in Jacksonville, make "reasonably necessary" changes to keep operating.

Coping with College Does Anybody Care About Your Grades?

By STANLEY J. DIZERDA
Dean of the College
Wesleyan University
Written for "Newspaper Enterprise" Assn.
(Last in a Series)

Among the most widespread and persistent myths shared by college students is that which, in the social sciences, and a record of campus activities will be more important to the first employer after college than any other single fact — especially, mere grades.

A closely related myth suggests there is a significant correlation between the specific courses we take in college and the employment for which we are qualified.

Facts explode both of these myths. The most concrete information we have relating to college achievement, and performance outside of college is the now famous Bell Telephone Study of 1962. Bell examined the careers of 17,000 of its employees who were college graduates. Success with the company was checked against the employee's academic performance, extra-curricular activities, self-support in college, as well as the quality of colleges they attended.

Academic excellence closely correlated to success with Bell Telephone. Those who had ranked high in their classes were found to be receiving the highest salaries in the Bell System. Achievement at Bell and the quality of the college also showed some correlation. In addition, some relationship was shown between extra-curricular achievement and salaries. No correlation was shown between achievement in business and those who worked to support themselves while students.

But, to repeat, the strongest correlation repeatedly appeared between grades and success in business. The unanimity and consistency of results would seem to show that grades do count in terms of post-college achievement. However, it is not surprising, many personnel directors have taken the Bell study into account. They now interview students in the top third of their classes before any other, sometimes to the exclusion of any others.

This does not mean that there is a direct, concrete, verifiable relationship between academic performance, extra-curricular activities, self-support in college, as well as the quality of colleges they attended. Academic excellence closely thermore, specialized training becomes dated, if not useless, within 10 years after the student is graduated.

This is not to say that any college "major" is equally important or equally well-suited to a student who is wise to follow his aptitudes and his interests and to excel in those areas. The habit of excelling is more important than the specific major field one takes in college.

Academic excellence presupposes skill and in-depth understanding of what I call the "major" of learning.

The first of these is literacy — English. Regardless of grades, major, or plans for the future, unless the student has a command of English, the student will be crippled. He will be at a loss to mold his personal and social life with other people and in progressing in a career.

Mastery of English is not something solely relegated to college. But this essential skill, along with the ability to use it, should mature at a very early age. Despite her own perfect technique, she made the statement, "My forte is in dealing with other people and in progressing in a career."

It is not necessary that the teacher be a greater performer than the student. He must be a thoroughly good and experienced teacher. Many times, great artists like Louis L'Amour, whose voices have gone beyond reach, continue to teach, not only technique but the musical and artistic values of operatic roles which are new to some younger singer now at the top.

Neither of these teachers is much of a singer at present. Grace Ramsey, who is in demand in opera houses all over the world, and whom you might think needs no teaching whatsoever, Gianna d'Angelo studies with Toti dal Monte, and so it goes.

Does it have to be a great artist who is poised to be a good instructor? Just about any good instrumentalist could give one lesson to any of the great artists. There is always one thing that some instrumentalists know that nobody else knows. It is the job of the vocal coach not to teach singing, but to teach notes, something the vocal teacher usually cannot do. The coach is not concerned with problems of voice production, etc. His job is to see that his pupil learns the role letter perfect from memory, to correct accents in languages with which the singer may be unfamiliar, to show how the role relates to the rest of the cast and to opera as a whole. He also teaches where, when and how the traditional entrances and exits are made, and so on.

The aspiring singer must know all these things when the chance comes for there will be little or no rehearsal. Gianna d'Angelo, for example, made her debut in Rome with only one rehearsal, and her debut at the Met with none at all. Supporting roles had to know everything about her role and the whole opera under such conditions.

But then she coached with Gigli and del Monte.

Some normal high and low temperatures for this time of year are: Hartford, 75 and 51; New Haven, 70 and 51; and Bridgeport, 71 and 53. Precipitation may total between one-quarter and one-half inch as showers Tuesday night or Wednesday and again at the end of the week.

GAME ENDS IN DEATH
LONDON (AP)—Police have charged a 15-year-old boy with murdering a 7-year-old school boy in a death-dare game called "the chicken run."

The body of Ian Lewis was found bound hand and foot in the River Thames Saturday. Other boys said the game consists of rival gangs daring each other to be bound and left on the Thames shore when the tide is out. The object is to get clear before the tide comes in again. Deliberate deaths have failed to make it and drowned.

"THE WAY I HEARD IT"

by John Gruber

Maia Piletskaya is probably the greatest ballerina of the world today. She rates the title of "Prima Ballerina Assoluta" or "absolutely the first ballerina" of the Bolshoi Ballet with a command of English, the student would seem to qualify her as the best in the world. If you've seen her (and she was to be seen here) her dancing is a masterpiece of technique, sense of theater, and temperament in almost unbelievable quantity.

However, he was a most thoroughly grounded technician, and over the years became a complete artist. On top of this, he was gifted as a teacher and could impart his knowledge of technique and temperament in almost unbelievable quantity.

South Windsor Fire Damages Farm Buildings

Several farm structures owned by William Sulzkinski of 200 Nevers Rd. were damaged by fire Saturday night.

Aroused by the barking of dogs, Sulzkinski first saw the flames at a tractor stored adjacent to a large, two-story barn on his property.

The alarm was called by Mr. George Charlton, next door neighbor, at 10:30 p.m. Engine Co. 2 responded to the call, and a second alarm was sounded at 10:42 p.m. by Fire Chief Philip Crombie.

A 250-gallon gas tank and propane gas tanks were nearby. Firemen kept hoses trained on them to prevent them from exploding. A 50 gallon drum of oil in the barn did ignite, causing additional heat and smoke.

Fire companies from Wilson, North Manchester and Broad Brook answered a mutual aid call and stood by at town firehouses while town apparatus fire near a tractor stored adjacent to a large, two-story barn on his property.

Damage was estimated at $20,000. The cause is being investigated by fire marshals George Cox and Roger Erickson.

Insurance was paid for the loss. The cause is being investigated by fire marshals George Cox and Roger Erickson.

State Girl Second In Beauty Pageant

MEAD BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Miss USA said today that good manners for men are a must in her book.

"Men who have bad manners could be called my pet peeve," said Maria Judith Remenyi, who was selected Saturday night.

"I like men to be masculine," Miss Remenyi said. "I hate femininity in men."

Miss Remenyi, a 5-foot-6 brunette was born in Denmark of Hungarian parents and came to this country 20 years ago. She speaks four languages and intends to add a fifth—French—soon.

Runover in the 1958 annual Miss USA Pageant were Pat Denne, Miss Connecticut; Elaine Richards, Miss Indiana; Judy Ann Stuyton, Miss North Dakota; and Randy Beard, Miss Florida.

Miss Denne, a West Hartford resident now, lived in Manchester in 1958, then moved to Boston.

She was first runner-up in the contest and many state viewers watched almost breathlessly as she and Miss Remenyi stood alone, waiting for the winner to be announced.

As snooty Jack Lindletter revealed the title was the California girl, Pat grabbed her and planted a congratulatory kiss on her cheek.

Miss Remenyi was born in Tvedestrand, Denmark 20 years ago. Her father, Edward A. Remenyi, was stationed there as an officer in the Hungarian army.

Eleven months later the family returned to Hungary. In 1954 the Remenyi family, including Maria and her four children, moved to the United States.

She said she will use the $5,000 prize money to continue her education and take her family to Hawaii.

In July she will return to Mt. Elizabeth, fled from Budapest to Austria, and then were brought to the United States aboard an Army plane.

South Windsor Status of Busing To Be Discussed By School Board

The status of town deliberations on the busing plan is one of the items on the agenda for the board of education meeting tomorrow night at 7:30 at the high school.

The physical education curriculum will be described by the school staff from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Other business to be considered is: An experimental project at the University of Connecticut; a report on the 1965 Federal Education Act; continuation of discussion of a teacher's aid, and reports from board committees.

Set Tax Rate The town council will hold a special meeting tomorrow night at 8 at the high school to set the tax rate for the coming fiscal year (July 1, 1966 to June 30, 1967).

Also on the agenda are discussion of an appropriation, to be financed from the 1966-67 tax levy, to cover a deficit in the 1966-67 board of education budget, and discussion of an appropriation also to be financed from the 1966-67 tax levy, for the capital goals and non-recurring expenses fund.

Wapping Grange The Wapping Grange will hold its "Neighbors Night" Tuesday at 8 p.m. at the Wapping Community House. Neighbors have been invited from Manchester, West Hartford, Glastonbury, East Hartford, Andover, Columbia, Tolland and Oxbow.

Granges. A "Hillbilly Community House Variety Show" has been planned. Members are asked to bring an article for a tea cup auction. Mr. and Mrs. John White are in charge of refreshments.

Valley Planters The Valley Planters Garden Club will meet tomorrow at 8 at the home of Mrs. Richard Evans, 3 Peach Tree Lane. Club members will compete in a flower arrangement contest, on the theme, "Let's Try Them (ature Arrangements)." Slides of wild flowers will also be shown. The hostesses of the evening will be Mrs. Theodore Rankin.

Carpenters End Strike in Area

Hartford area carpenters returned to work today after a five-week walkout.

Local 48 of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, representing 1,200 Hartford area workmen, voted Saturday to accept a contract offer by the Hartford General Contractors Association.

The carpenters will receive a 90-cent pay raise over three years, and will have an eventual 30-hour week.

The end of the strike will help the Manchester Housing Authority shortly stick to its timetable of a July 15 opening of its 100-unit addition to Westhill Gardens, housing for the elderly.

Monday, May 23

have now progressed out of their initial opposition to Premier Ky into open anti-Americanism. Once more, then, the use of force—even when it may have seemed, once again, at least no worse than the other evil threatening—has operated to throw away the solution of the situation further beyond anybody's reach, and to deepen the bloody hopelessness of it all. This, believe it or not, is what it is like to be the most "powerful" nation in the world, in the year 1966. The more powerful we are, the more helpless we are, too.

The Junk Car Roundup

There is hardly a section of town which does not find, in some pleasant recent disappearance, some reason to thank the Chamber of Commerce and its loyal volunteer cooperators for their clean up collection of junk cars in Manchester. Here and there, where some promoter of a parcel piece of junk didn't cooperate, there was a mis, but the general result has been magnificent. When the campaign began, many of us made bets on the number of junk cars that might be corralled and put out of their neighborhood miseries. Few of us guessed as high as the 251 collected. But all of us, from now on, will be enjoying the absence of the particular junk which happened to annoy us most.

The Helplessness Of Power

Premier Ky, using the planes, tanks and guns we have provided him in order to fight the Vietnamese, has succeeded in reducing the military part of the Buddhist movement in the city of Danang. That success in the use of force will undoubtedly encourage Premier Ky to finer tactics in the city of Saigon, and he may be able to regain control of the streets there. That would leave the northern city of Hue, always a Buddhist stronghold, and now controlled in all respects by Buddhist or anti-Ky troops, as the worst remaining physical and geographical challenge to the rule of Premier Ky's government. He has the military force to take Hue, too, should he so decide, and he may indeed have decided, now, really to rule.

There is no longer any room for illusions of any kind about the situation in Vietnam. It is almost impossible to see how anything good could have come from the development of military success for the Buddhists. Between disorder in South Vietnam of the kind represented by the civil war within the civil war and order established by Premier Ky's use of force there is not much of a choice. There was no valid reason for hoping for success for the Buddhists, once the civil war within the civil war had turned to gunnery.

Boating In Fun

It won't be long before cruising Long Island Sound will be just as nerve-racking as driving a car on the Connecticut Turnpike. Each year more and more people are discovering the joys of boating. Cities and towns are building more marinas and wherever there is a parcel of waterfront property, properly zoned, private marinas spring up like mushrooms. The marina is taking to the water and people are buying boats from the dingy to the luxurious yacht.

Actually, the people who derive the most enjoyment out of boating are the people who don't own a boat. These are the guys and gals who have friends who have a boat. They realize that few boaters enjoy going out by themselves. There's no point in owning a boat if you don't have guests aboard. Whether they happen to be kinkof, friends or business contacts. So they keep themselves available on many weekends, awaiting the invitation.

These are the "astors" who come aboard with nothing but the clothes they're wearing and a swim suit. They refer to going below as "going downstairs" and they refer to the galley as the "staircase." The galley is the "staircase" because it's "things" and navigation charts are maps.

A normal cruising weekend goes something like this: You get an invitation to be at the dock at 11 a.m. and when the boat owner says "don't bring anything," you take him at his word. You are a guy who never gets to the railroad station on time and is invariably late for work. But you are at the dock at the split second of 11.

You hop aboard and immediately plunk yourself into a deck chair. From that vantage point you notice that in the galley is a goodly supply of liquid refreshments. You know the small refrigerator is well stocked with food and ice. Now we are "building in" a means of "quick-spread" of sickness in an age group most vulnerable to "catching" diseases from others.

For four years, from 1949 to 1953, I served as a trustee on a school board in a large Central School District in upstate New York. This was a district that had, at that time, over 9,000 students. We maintained a fleet of 45 school buses and bused many of our children. Because of the population pattern of the area, some schools had all of their students required to school while others required the busing of practically all of the students.

'Possibility of Epidemic'

I have been watching and waiting for one question to be raised that should play a vital role in the decision whether or not to bus children to the outlying towns in the Hartford area. This question, to my knowledge, has not been raised. It is a question that local school health officials should be concerned with and yet they are strangely silent when it comes to asking it.

The question is this—Will the possibility of epidemic spread of communicable diseases be greatly increased through the communication network established by the use of "bused" children? In other words, are we establishing a central point of distribution of childhood communicable sickness and disease from one area to another through the children who disperse their night and weekends, together and then go out to the area schools to study and play with the children of those areas?

At first glance, this may seem an insignificant point, but we mustn't write it off as meaningless. We cannot school and sports events between area schools and those not so that the public may be made aware of possible far-reaching effects of the plan.

Sincerely yours,
Paul Albert

"Time To Communicate"

To the Editor,
It was disheartening to read the objections and proposals made by a man of Mr. Kallenberg's background, and reputation. He calls for "no busing between cities" and states that the busing plan "will bring only bitterness, resentment, and defeat to our town." The fact is that 45 students are presently being transported from Bol-

Field Days Set For Hale School

Pupils of Nathan Hale School this week are holding a series of field days under the direction of their physical education instructors. May is National Youth Physical Fitness Month. Parents have been invited to attend the events, which began today and will continue through Tuesday.

Kindergartners and pupils in Grades 1-3 will engage in rhythmic games, skill contests, building exercises, and tumbling on the playground. Many of them are peace candidates for various offices around the country—a "white belt" many of them are opposing Republicans and Southern Democrats. But also included are Democratic Congressmen whose only sin is supporting the President's firm stand against Communist aggression in Viet Nam.

and use it to provide apartments or homes for Negro families in Manchester. In this way the children will be under less pressure of time, will not be endangered by long bus rides, will be home more hours of the day and will be able to participate in neighborhood and school sponsored activities without great sacrifice of time. Under the busing plan, only the bus owners will prosper. Let the children not only enjoy the educational advantages of Manchester, but let them enjoy life here as a resident as well.

Experienced heating contractors choose gas heat for their own homes. That's why you find so many who are outspoken about the advantages of heating with gas. For instance...

Mr. P. STOLTZ says: "We like it so much we use it ourselves and recommend nothing but gas heating to our friends and customers. With 55 years in the plumbing and heating business behind us, we more fully can appreciate the clean, economical, trouble-free advantages of having 'gas heat' in our homes."

Mr. Stoltz heats his own home with gas—at 89 Dummer Ave., West Hartford.
