In all the years this observer has been stationed on the fringe of the area of public service, no single change has been quite as sweeping and pronounced as the change in the estimate the professional public servant has of his own dollars and cents worth.

And this has been paralleled, believe it or not, by a comparable advance in the attitude of the public itself, which now tolerates, in honor of presumed competence and expertise, scales of retention which would once have produced howls from taxpayers.

The Board of Education of the city of Hartford, just the other day, hired a new superintendent of schools, one Rodell Bair of Carmel, Calif., at a starting salary of $32,000 a year. This compares with a salary of $25,000 being paid the man Bair will succeed in Hartford.

This is not an exceptional circumstance. It is attracting some attention only because it represents a degree of public generosity slightly beyond that already exhibited in other cases of high public salaries in both the municipal and the state government field.

For some time, relatively small municipal units have been developing bonanza holds with their salaries, particularly at the first in the educational administrative field. The holds have begun to spread out from school systems toward general administrative officers, in cities and towns where these are not elective. And it has recently reached up to administrative positions in state government.

First, again, to educational administrators — but spreading more, now, into other fields of executive competence, too.

Future Holds Promise For Faster Signals

By DR. L.M. LEVITT, DIRECTOR, The Fraunhofer Institute. On July 17, 1965, Mariner IV relayed to the earth 21 pictures of the Martian surface. What little known is that a vast volume of basic research in physics and electronics was necessary to acquire those crude, but highly significant pictures of the red planet. Following the Mariner IV breakthrough, there may be a look forward with reference to receiving increased data and high-resolution pictures.

Historically, the first deep-space probe was the 14-pound radio transmitter launched in 1959 with a transmitter power of about one-quarter watt. If performance is measured in terms of data rate at a distance of one astronomical unit (the earth-mars distance, or 93,000,000 miles), Pioneer IV could have transmitted one bit per second at a distance of one hour to a terrestrial ground station using an 85-foot receiving antenna.

In 1962, Mariner II, using a three-watt transmitter, could have transmitted 67 bits per second at a distance of one astronomical unit. By 1965 Mariner IV was capable of transmitting the second at a distance of one astronomical unit.

The question of increasing the efficiency of data transmission through the use of a parabolic antenna was posed to Dr. N.A. Renzetti, tracking and data systems manager for the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, and he indicates that the future holds promise in terms of increasing the efficiency of data transmission. New techniques, new concepts and new instrumentation are being developed which will greatly expand our data collection capabilities.

To visualize the difference in its proper frame of reference we might discuss the characteristics of the Mariner IV system in terms of power.

"Millions of a Trillion!" When Mariner IV was 14 million miles from the earth, its ten-watt transmitter required signals to be sent and received by the time the signals had traversed the 134 million miles to the 65-foot antenna at the Goddard Space Flight Center. However, less than a millionth of a trillionth of a watt! (For the mathematicians who would like to know, the received power at the receiver was 10-19 watts.) The slightly sophisticated antenna system had, in addition to the 85-foot antenna, a programmed antenna which was a factor of 100 times as sensitive as the 85-foot antenna, a programmed antenna which was a factor of 100 times as sensitive as the 85-foot antenna, a programmed antenna which was a factor of 100 times as sensitive as the 85-foot antenna.

Events In Capital

More Spending WASHINGTON (AP) — Government economists have raised slightly their estimate of how much U.S. businesses will spend for new plants and equipment this year.

The new estimate, $98.8 billion, would represent a 17 per cent increase over last year. This compares with the earlier estimate of a 15 per cent increase.

The one-point increase is not expected to change any of the administration's economic thinking. Officials said capital spending will increase at a slower pace for the rest of the year.

In another economic development, the Federal Reserve Board reported the expansion of credit slowed during April because of a slackening in automobile sales. The board said credit increased by $3.1 billion, seasonally adjusted, during April. This compares with a $460 million expansion during March and a $68 million gain in February.

Priests Protest Segregated Use Of Cathedral

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Living on liquids and crowded with white and black people, priests protested their segregated use of the cathedral here.

The priests, one white and one Negro, said they intend to fast until Sunday night to dramatize their dissatisfaction with use of the Cathedral of St. Philip for black service of a private school which is closed to Negroes.

The Rev. Robert Hunter, Atlanta's only Negro parish priest, and the Rev. Albert Deshaies, white priest of the cathedral, said they will fast Friday as pupils of the Lovett School rehearsed in the cathedral.

A cathedral spokesman said the priests will be allowed to remain under the same open door policy by which the school was permitted to hold services there.

The spokesman said the Episcopal Church some years ago, refusing to desegregate, but still maintaining its own school, the Rev. Hunter and the Rev. Mr. Deshaies entered the sanctuary Wednesday night for a two-day communion service. When they need something, they call to friends on their walk-talkie.

"Mother, Her Mother, Her, This is Chicken Little. Come in please."

Between May 5 And June 2

Connecticut's Senator Ribicoff some time ago reached that stage in his thinking in which he believes that the only way to bring about a settlement of the Vietnam situation is through the conduct of the war in Vietnam.

But when he came to the point when he has to think about the possibility of his own resignation, he has no particular future in questioning. To his credit, he turned to the possibility of his resignation to a search for some possible way of cracking the stalemate into which both sides in Vietnam have locked their prestige, their pride, and their blood.

Such suggestions are never, at first glance, welcome to those who are actually engaged in the war and thrust of it.

So when, on May 5th Senator Ribicoff suggested that the United Nations be requested to enter into the Vietnam situation in some capacity of supervising the national assembly elections or regime in South Vietnam had promised to hold the elections, he was met with the usual quick negative response from the Johnson administration. Neither White House nor State Department likes to have to begin thinking about better, more alternative staid proposals when they can't even solve the direct line problems they themselves have in hand.

But apparently, on May 5th and 6th, May 5 and 6, the Johnson administration took a second and longer look at what may have a sort of incidental main purpose with Ribicoff's proposal. Perhaps it began to realize that his real purpose was not so much to guarantee the quality of the elections but to get the United States to begin to be involved in Vietnam in some way in some degree.

For a long time the United States itself shouldered the United States flag from the situation in Southeast Asia. We ourselves preferred to be our own policeman there. Then, when President Johnson started his theatrical piece offensive at Christmas, one of the gestures made—but never since pushed—was to try to get the matter before the United Nations Security Council.

But to many observers it has seemed that the only real fast hope to carry and to the war in Vietnam—something short of the full tragedy steadily being done up there—lies in the possibility of some third party intervention to assume the mantle of jurisdiction. If we could get the old Geneva Conference sitting again, that would be one possible diplomatic route to a viable operation. Or if we could get the United Nations involved, that might give all that world diplomacy which would like to help make peace in Southeast Asia, but which has been stymied by warning looks from both the United States and China, an opportunity to exert its talents and its imagination.

Anyway, on June 2 the South Vietnamese observer representative at the United Nations made a request for the Security Council to observe the elections scheduled for September, and almost simultaneously the White House sent its ambassador Ribicoff in welcoming the proposal.

It may be—it may not prove to be—the small opening through which the small symbolic step toward a solution might be taken. But it is heartening that such an effort to get exploration of such vital possible opportunities is being made. This is the one way in which good Senators should be.

Fiery?

The trouble with some of us is we just don't accept what seems to be the constant pressure to do it.

Thus, the other day, the New York Times headlined a story of the White House Conference on Civil Rights this week.

"A Fiery Humphrey Demotes Society for Law on Civil Rights."

Thus television, covering the same subject, showed a Humphrey in his most swinging oratorical mood.

Thus the people attending the White House Conference, carried on with the session and gave Robert standing ovation after he had finished throwing out a few hundred roundabout catch phrases, like this one: "Freedom Now is not a credit, but a reality for all Americans. It is a moral imperative of our time."

There are some of us who, even after we have heard the words of Robert's freewheeling orator, or watch him emote on the platform, still don't have a judgment that what he has just seen or heard is of any value.

Some of us even toy with a sort of subversive reaction, in which we wonder whether what is supposed to be a reality is really something very limp and very damp.

There are some of us so very completely unworthy that, even when Humphrey has finished his oratorical performance, we don't like it, we can't stand it.

And this unworthy reaction of ours is rooted in an equally unworthy basic suspicion—the suspicion about whether we, the people, carry a personality, couldn't possibly be too deeply rooted to anything except to themselves and their own selfish interests.

We think that, as soon as Hubert McKinley Dirksen is able to function without crutch, and thus place of Dirksen's freewheeling orator, or watch him emote on the platform, still don't have a judgment that what he has just seen or heard is of any value.

Some of us even toy with a sort of subversive reaction, in which we wonder whether what is supposed to be a reality is really something very limp and very damp.

There are some of us so very completely unworthy that, even when Humphrey has finished his oratorical performance, we don't like it, we can't stand it.

And this unworthy reaction of ours is rooted in an equally unworthy basic suspicion—the suspicion about whether we, the people, carry a personality, couldn't possibly be too deeply rooted to anything except to themselves and their own selfish interests.

We think that, as soon as Hubert McKinley Dirksen is able to function without crutch, and thus place of Dirksen's freewheeling orator, or watch him emote on the platform, still don't have a judgment that what he has just seen or heard is of any value.

Tales of Connecticut

Capt. Kidd Was Here By Wesley Gryk Jr.

Adults are quick to cry fear. The kids set off on backyard treasure digging expeditions. The kids set off on backyard treasure digging expeditions. The kids set off on backyard treasure digging expeditions.

Records hold that the notorious seventeenth century pirate landed twice in Milford. He paraded brazenly through the streets of the town, and a factor of the bloody Kidd. When, at last, he departed, the tale of legend spread through the colony and visions of buried treasure entered many minds.

Charles Island, in Long Island Sound, was considered by many people to be a fruitful hunting ground for the search for buried treasure. Many expeditions met with failure. In the 1700s, however, a group of diggers, under the leadership of a man named Captain Kidd, embarked on an ill-fated expedition. Tension mounted as the rusty pick and shovel were used to unearth the treasure. The diggers looked up at the sky, and the treasure was taken over 10 per cent of the domestic market.

Wonders of the Universe

By DR. L.M. LEVITT, DIRECTOR, The Fraunhofer Institute. On July 17, 1965, Mariner IV relayed to the earth 21 pictures of the Martian surface. What little known is that a vast volume of basic research in physics and electronics was necessary to acquire those crude, but highly significant pictures of the red planet. Following the Mariner IV breakthrough, there may be a look forward with reference to receiving increased data and high-resolution pictures.

Historically, the first deep-space probe was the 14-pound radio transmitter launched in 1959 with a transmitter power of about one-quarter watt. If performance is measured in terms of data rate at a distance of one astronomical unit (the earth-mars distance, or 93,000,000 miles), Pioneer IV could have transmitted one bit per second at a distance of one hour to a terrestrial ground station using an 85-foot receiving antenna.

In 1962, Mariner II, using a three-watt transmitter, could have transmitted 67 bits per second at a distance of one astronomical unit. By 1965 Mariner IV was capable of transmitting the second at a distance of one astronomical unit.

The question of increasing the efficiency of data transmission through the use of a parabolic antenna was posed to Dr. N.A. Renzetti, tracking and data systems manager for the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, and he indicates that the future holds promise in terms of increasing the efficiency of data transmission. New techniques, new concepts and new instrumentation are being developed which will greatly expand our data collection capabilities.

To visualize the difference in its proper frame of reference we might discuss the characteristics of the Mariner IV system in terms of power.

"Millions of a Trillion!" When Mariner IV was 14 million miles from the earth, its ten-watt transmitter required signals to be sent and received by the time the signals had traversed the 134 million miles to the 65-foot antenna at the Goddard Space Flight Center. However, less than a millionth of a trillionth of a watt! (For the mathematicians who would like to know, the received power at the receiver was 10-19 watts.) The slightly sophisticated antenna system had, in addition to the 85-foot antenna, a programmed antenna which was a factor of 100 times as sensitive as the 85-foot antenna, a programmed antenna which was a factor of 100 times as sensitive as the 85-foot antenna, a programmed antenna which was a factor of 100 times as sensitive as the 85-foot antenna.

A Thought for Today

Sponsored by the Manchester Council of Churches

Hollow Day, Holiday or... Tomorrow is Sunday, the day when the Christian people of the world observe the Sabbath. Christians everywhere has the day for Public Worship.

For many it may be a Holy Day. Oh, it will be jammed with all kinds of activity, with many things being done. But it will be hollow because it will contain no time for God, no time for the spirit.

For many Sunday is just another holiday. For most it means just a day of relaxation and recreation. But it is a fact that God doesn't want us to be idle on His Day.

Tomorrow can be a Holy Day for you. It can be a time of fasting and prayer. It can be an opportunity of worshiping God who daily sends His love to us in His Word. It can be holy because you have let God speak to you! Holy because you have let Him speak to you! Holy because you have let Him speak to you!

What has happened to the truth in our lives? What has happened to the truth in our lives? What has happened to the truth in our lives?

There is a difference between a national affair which does seem to be influenced by individuals. There are struggles and wars which are perhaps not so much a result of the truth.

Both these statements—both risky—can nevertheless be risked, at the moment, as one considers the headlines which are being printed in the newspapers. There is a difference between a national affair which does seem to be influenced by individuals. There are struggles and wars which are perhaps not so much a result of the truth.

New Drum Corps to Play At Coventry Antique Fair

The Nathan Hale Ancient Fife and Drum Corps will perform an exhibition drill next weekend for the Coventry Historical Society's third annual Outdoor Antique Fair, at the Nathan Hale Homestead between 10 a.m. and 8 p.m. Saturday. The authentically dressed corpsmen made their first public appearance at Memorial Day services in Coventry this week. The corps' uniforms, which were modeled after those worn by Revolutionary regiments, were made—largely with volunteer labor—by Coventry area people. A color guard will carry a 1776 American flag, a regimental flag from the military unit to which Nathan Hale is said to have belonged, and a corps flag with the crest of the Hale family. The Nathan Hale Homestead has been loaned to the society for the fair by the Connecticut Antiquarian and Landmarks Society, as in previous years.

The hostesses for the tours are provided by the state group. Although the two previous fairs have been in September, June 11 was chosen for this year's because it is the Saturday of the week that Nathan Hale was born. His birthday was June 6. The September date commemorated Hale's death, Sept. 22, 1776, when he is reputed to have said, "I regret that I have but one life to lose for my country." The homestead is on South St. in Coventry; signs on Rts. 44A and 31 point the way. Proceeds from the fair's admission fee support the Historical Society.

NEW MAGAZINE

A new magazine, called "Nutmeg Business" will be published in June and will be mailed free to the attention of the purchasing agent in every manufacturing company in Connecticut. A total of 4,500 copies will be sent.

The industrial magazine is specifically designed for the small businesses and services in the state. IONA ADDITION OPENS

New additions to the Iona Manufacturing Co. plant have been completed and were officially opened this week. One of the new improvements at the plant is a new cafeteria, called "Iona Hall," which is air-conditioned, has a speaker system built in, and chairs and tables which can easily be moved out of the way to convert it into a hall for civic and organization meetings.

The cafeteria is equipped with the latest innovations in cafeteria equipment, and is opened on a 24-hour basis to serve the employees.

Construction was also recently completed on a new 30,000 square foot addition to the manufacturing area, which increases total manufacturing space to well over 100,000 square feet.

Underway at present is installation of a complete air-conditioning system for the entire factory and office areas. This will make Iona one of the few plants in the entire state to be completely air-conditioned. Company officials say that the new climate control equipment is being installed to provide more pleasant working conditions for the employees. Employment at Iona has reached the 700 level, making the company the town's largest employer.

GREEN BACKS REALTORS

A recent resolution by the Connecticut Association of Real Estate Boards, asking its 32 affiliate members to open the doors to more housing for minority groups is "a step in the right direction," according to Arthur L. Green, director of the Connecticut Commission on Civil Rights.

Green said that recognition by the association of the need for an open policy in showing homes to all prospective purchasers or renters has long been a goal of local fair housing and civil rights groups as well as of the state commission. The Connecticut Association of Real Estate Boards represents

CREDIT CARD PLAN

The Connecticut Bank and Trust Co. announced recently that it will institute a charge card credit service in the greater Hartford area and the Connecticut area served by the bank's 35 branch offices.

By using the charge card, the customer will have an immediate source of credit, one monthly bill for all his purchases at numerous retail establishments, and a widely recognized identification card. The retail merchant will receive immediate payment for all sales by a daily credit to his bank account. He will also have the opportunity of increasing sales because of the customer's expanded purchasing power, and will avoid the cost of running his own charge and credit service.

Pomeroy Day, bank president, said: "We are firmly convinced that the new charge card service will fill a real need among both merchants and customers." The decision to go ahead with the new credit plan was made after extensive study and the service is expected to be in full operation by late summer.

Picking Winners Computer-Style

NEW YORK (AP) — Selecting popular television shows, sometimes before they are much more developed than an idea, once was considered to be a special art, even a gift. But now picking winners is becoming a science, with computers able to toss out predictions of future hits and misses six months in advance of their premieres.

One of the large advertising agencies — Kenyon and Eckhardt — has been experimenting with computer predictions for the past two years, with an estimated 67 per cent of success. In its third run, predicting the popularity of next fall's new programs, the magic machine pronounced, among many other things, that "T. H. E. Cat," "Tarzan" and "Hey, Landlord" on NBC and "It's About Time" on CBS would be the biggest hits among three dozen new programs.

"But, remember," cautioned the agency's executive vice president, Stephens Dietz, "if the computer has been 67 per cent correct, it has also been 33 per cent wrong."

The electronic crystal ball is programmed with national Nielsen ratings taken during January and February, peak viewing months, to predict future popularity of programs already in existence. These are augmented by statistics of another ratings service, which attempts to measure, not audience size but the degree to which audiences enjoy certain programs. To measure future interest in new shows — some, like the forthcoming Milton Berle and Garry Moore shows, are not even in production yet — the agency uses a service specializing in what it calls "concept testing." An audience sample has a program idea described to them, and notes down whether it appeals or not.

In addition, the computer input includes information on a program's time period and its competition.

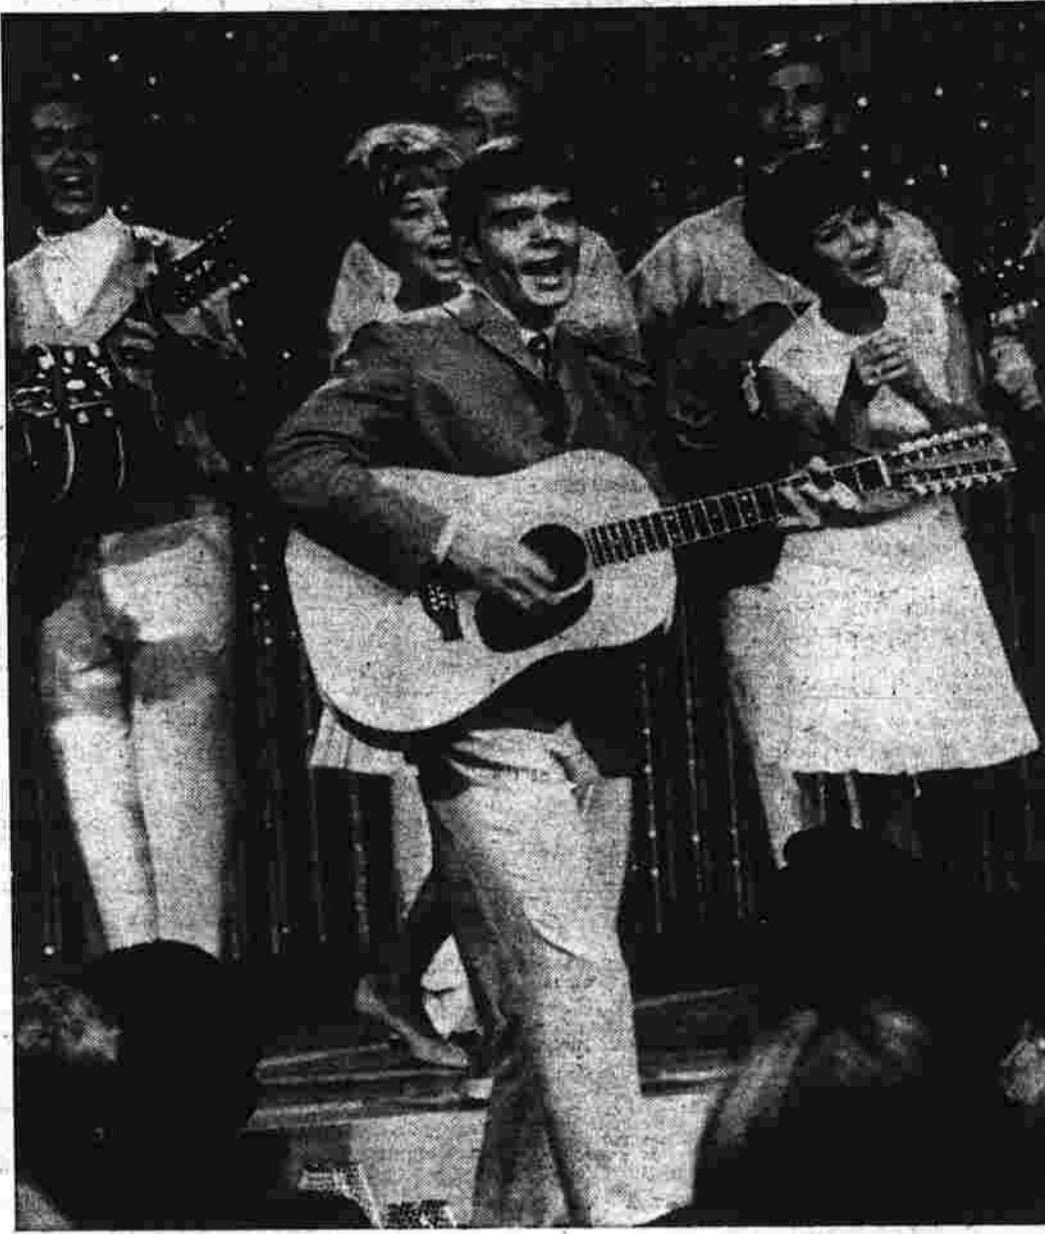

Dietz said that in past seasons the computer's predictions have been used as one of his agency's guides in buying advertising spots in assorted programs.

But while an advertising agency can very well use a computer to help find hit programs for its clients, it is not likely to be too useful to network programming executives. Popularity cannot be their sole guide. If it were, few documentaries and public service programs — often attracting small audiences — would find air time.

'SALESMAN' RETURNING
CBS hopes to re-run its acclaimed production of "Death of a Salesman" next March. It was so heartened by the show's reception that it is trying to follow up with a TV production of Tennessee Williams' "Glass Menagerie," which starred the late Laurette Taylor when first produced on Broadway years back.

In the Summer the Stars Moonlight

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Television's winter personalities turn into summer actors whenever possible as the rewards are great.

"Personalities" is a word covering performers with hard to define assignments such as host, master of ceremonies, panel or game show regular and, of course, variety stars who can sing, dance or do comedy monologues.

Long ago night club owners and summer stock producers learned the public turned out in droves to see in the flesh the people it had been watching daily or weekly on television.

It now is big business with a big money for established and popular stars. The going rate starts at $5,000 a week, sometimes with a guarantee of 30 to 50 per cent of gross receipts when the box office returns go over a predetermined amount. Some famous stars earn more than $15,000 a week in summer theaters.

It is easier for the regulars on panel and game shows to enjoy this summer moonlighting as their shows may be taped in advance or taping schedules can be set to match their convenience.

During the next few months three of the four panelists on only one show, "To Tell the Truth" will be making personal acting appearances.

Tom Poston will star in "The Well-Dressed Liar" in Miami. Orson Bean will take on "How To Succeed in Business Without Really Trying" in North Carolina. Kitty Carlisle has some singing engagements.

Betsy Palmer of "I've Got a Secret" will tour in "Peter Pan". Steven Allen has nightclub dates arranged on the West Coast.

Allen Ludden of "Password" and his wife, Betty White, will appear together in "Bells Are Ringing".

Gene Rayburn of "Match Game" will appear with his wife, Helen, and daughter, Lynn, in a production of "The Impossible Years."

Arlene Francis of "What's My Line?" takes time out for a Philadelphia production of "The Time of the Cuckoo."

Andy Williams arranges his variety show's shooting schedule so he can spend the summer months making a fortune playing state fairs from one end of the country to another. Western stars, like Lorne Green and Mike Landon, squeeze in lucrative fair and rodeo dates, often over weekends when "Bonanza" is building its next season's quota of shows.

Fanciest summer contract of them all was signed by Barbra Streisand after only one hit Broadway show and two well received TV specials. She was guaranteed $1 million for a series of six summer appearances. But the contract had to be cancelled because she is expecting her first child.

SIBERIA STUDY

An NBC-produced study of a Siberian city will be presented on July 20. The one-hour program, titled "Siberia: A Day in Irkutsk."

Channel 18 will also present an hour of wrestling on Saturdays at 5 p.m. following Mets baseball games.

The station is currently producing two local shows—"The Ralph Kanna Show" for children Monday, Wednesdays and Fridays and "The Blue Door," an hour of discussion Sunday nights.

In announcing the additional shows, station manager Keigler E. Flake said the station was fulfilling a responsibility "to serve the public interest as an independent station in a community of widely varying interests."

New Shows on 18

William F. Buckley Jr., the outspoken Republican conservative and editor of The National Review magazine, will be the host for a weekly hour of debate on Channel 18 starting tomorrow.

Buckley, known for his oratorical style and cutting wit, will take on opponents from politics and other fields.

The program is titled "Firing Line" and will be broadcast 6 to 7 p.m. on Sundays.

The hour of debate will be part of several new programs that are being added to the commercial or free portion of Channel 18 operation. Channel 18 also offers Subscription TV.

Other new programs:

"Surf's Up," filmed on location at favorite surfing spots, will be shown Tuesdays and Thursdays 6-8:30 p.m. starting Tuesday.

"Hollywood Backstage," off-camera with Hollywood stars and on location for new productions, will be shown from 6:30-7 p.m. starting Tuesday.

Angela Lansbury plays a movie star on NBC's "The Man from U.N.C.L.E." Friday night. A repeat.

An Armchair Guide THURSDAY TV PROGRAM To Spot a Series

NEW YORK AP — "Guilty or Not Guilty," the suspense tale on Wednesday night's NBC Bob Hope Theatre was one of those increasingly rare programs — a first broadcast, not a re-run.

But it was something more, too, apparently. It looked like a program made to demonstrate an idea for a series. The storyline itself was nothing more than a twist on a rather familiar TV theme. It centered on an apartment house mugging and a fiery tenant who was so impatient with the normal process of investigation and trial that he organized a band of vigilantes.

How can a viewer spot a pilot film when it is masquerading as a one-shot dramatic show? Simply by watching the way the principal characters are introduced and developed.

The key figures Wednesday night were Robert Ryan, playing a chief assistant district attorney in New York, and Richard Beymer as his young assistant. This matching of the mature and the young is standard casting for cops-and-robbers and courtroom series.

E. G. Marshall in "The Defenders," the senior lawyer, had Robert Reed playing his young son and partner. Efram Zimbalist Jr. in "The FBI" is the senior G-man, with Richard Brooks as his young asstant. It was made obvious at the beginning of "Guilty or Not Guilty" that Ryan's character was a widower with teenage children, quite irrelevant to the plot, but obviously a suggestion that there was story material in this set-up.

An even more significant clue about a series-to-come came when the show took several minutes out of the action to introduce the widower's steady girl, played by Pippa Scott. Miss Scott is an excellent actress and normally would not be wasted on a couple of unimportant scenes in which her most important job was to hand the hero a drink when he returned tired from a murder case. Obviously, if the show ever finds a network niche, Miss Scott will have more interesting things to do. After all, there was Barbara Hale's secretary part in "Perry Mason" and Joanna Barnes' role of the ex-wife in "The Trials of O'Brien."

A series, vaguely along the lines suggested by Wednesday night's show, was tried out briefly last year when CBS put on "For the Prosecution," with William Shatner playing a young assistant district attorney. That one had some of the feel of "The Defenders," however. Wednesday night's show looked like a slick, uninspired product off the Hollywood assembly line — in spite of the New York location shots.

Belgium Agrees to House NATO's Military Chiefs

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)—Belgium today agreed to house the military headquarters of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization but the future location of NATO's political council still is in doubt.

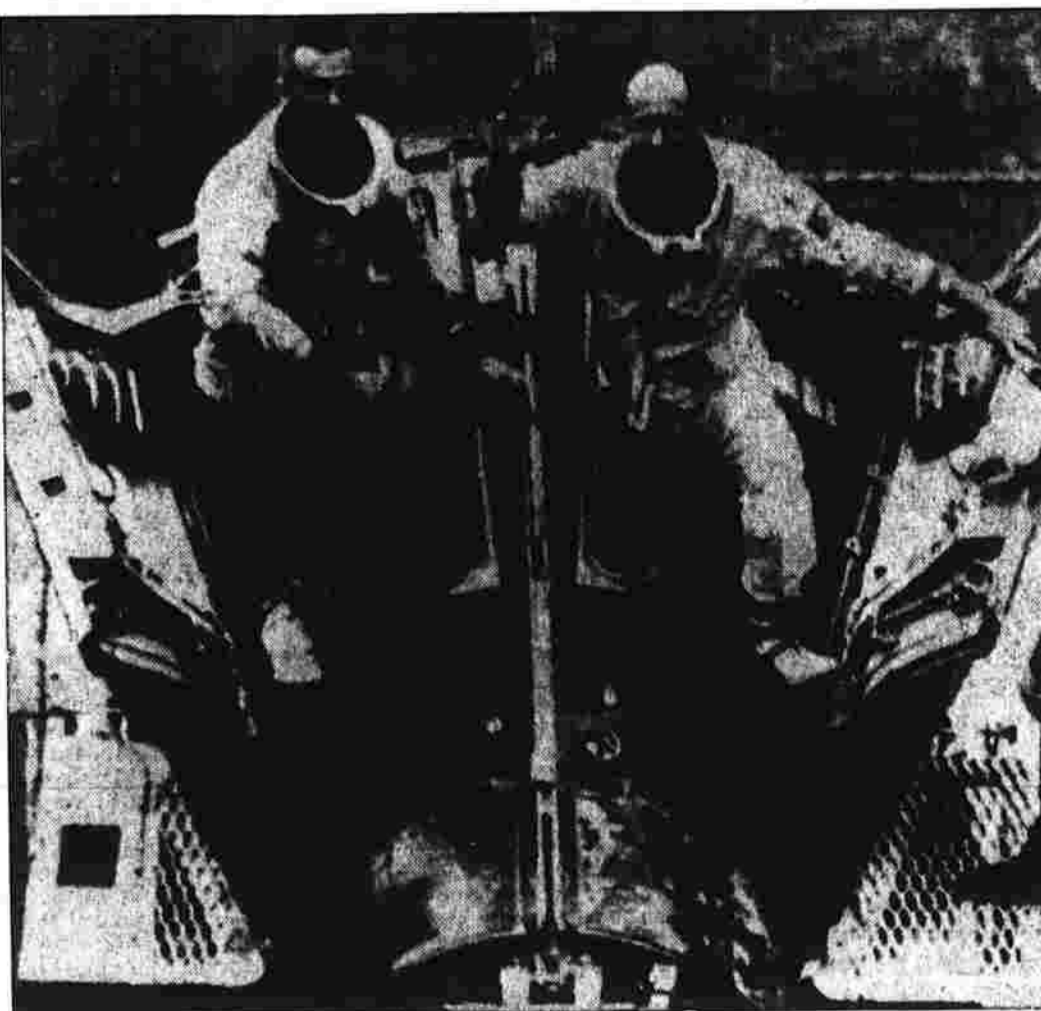

According to sources at the opening session of the NATO conference, Belgian Foreign Minister Pierre Harmel accepted the proposed transfer, but made it clear he was speaking on behalf of the Benelux countries — Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

The sources said this was because the Belgian government faces certain political problems in its relations with France, and in connection with its own internal political situation.

The foreign ministers of NATO's members met without France this morning to study problems raised by France's withdrawal on July 1 from the alliance's military structure.

Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville of France joins the annual spring talks Tuesday.

The conference sources said that there had been no vote taken at the morning session, but that the 14 ministers had reached a consensus on the military move. They also agreed on sev-

Stafford Puts Capsule 4 Miles from Target

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—The Gemini 9 astronauts, in a near-perfect climax to their sensational and often-troublesome orbital flight, splashed triumphantly to a safe landing in the Atlantic today and received the grateful congratulations of President Johnson.

Astronauts Thomas P. Stafford and Eugene A. Cernan — on his space walk, saying "That little stroll, Gene, was one of the finest chapters in our whole space story."

The President said he would nominate Cernan today for promotion to the grade of Navy commander. Stafford had been promoted to Air Force lieutenant colonel after his Gemini 6 flight in December.

Shortly afterward, President Johnson piloted the new space heroes from the LBJ Ranch in Texas and said, "we're proud of both of you. You have made us all aware of what performance under pressure is all about and that includes courage."

Johnson congratulated Cernan on his space walk, saying "That little stroll, Gene, was one of the finest chapters in our whole space story."

Happy Wives

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—"Was that beautiful or was that beautiful?" Barbara Cernan, beaming and obviously relieved, asked newsmen today just after her husband was safely recovered aboard Gemini 9.

Faye Stafford, wife of the Gemini 9 command pilot Thomas P. Stafford, labeled the splashdown and recovery as "wonderful."

"This is the loveliest part of the day," Mrs. Stafford said, smiling broadly as she met newsmen outside her home near the spacecraft center. "I'm just glad it's all over."

Mrs. Cernan, whose husband, Eugene A. Cernan, walked in space for more than two hours Sunday, exclaimed to newsmen at her home: "I thought yesterday was exciting, but today was more so."

Stafford and Cernan acknowledged the cheers with waves and "thumbs up" signals. Both appeared relaxed and in excellent physical condition.

Command pilot Stafford, whose cool, on-the-spot decisions played a key role in the mission, steered the space ship to a touchdown within sight of the carrier and on-deck television cameras, which relayed the dramatic picture via the Early Bird satellite.

"Pretty close for government work," commented a flight dynamics officer.

On the deck, the hatches were opened and the smiling space twins took up, waved at the sailors and the television cameras, and shook hands with Navy and space agency officials.

They then shook hands with one another and Stafford rubbed his three-day old beard and laughed.

Sheppard Trial Unfair Supreme Court Rules

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court held 8-1 today that a deluge of publicity amid "a carnival atmosphere" denied Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard a fair trial in the budgeon slaying of his first wife, Marilyn. It ordered the Cleveland osteopath freed unless the state wants to try him again.

At the same time the court, in the majority opinion written by Justice Tom C. Clark, suggested detailed rules for court control of news coverage in cases of great public interest.

To prevent the "bedlam that reigned at the courthouse," the majority said the trial judge could have limited the number of reporters in the courtroom.

It also said witnesses should have been instructed, and the judge should have tried to control the release of information and gossip to the press by policemen, witnesses, and counsel for both sides.

The judge, it said, might well have banned out-of-court statements by any attorney, witness or official "which divulged prejudicial matters."

The dissenter in today's decision was Justice Hugo L. Black, who did not write out his views.

On learning of the decision,

Kiss Causes Much Trouble For Motorist

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A kiss led to the brief jailing of Richard S. Wright, but an apology spared most of his troubles.

Police said Wright protested the ticket. Result: he was charged with disorderly conduct.

Then, according to police, Wright ripped the ticket in two and threw it on the street. Result: he was charged with violating the city's street littering ordinance.

Police said Wright, 23, a school teacher from Orange City, Iowa, later apologized and all but the reckless driving charge was withdrawn. He was released on $50 bond.

325 to Leave Newspaper Jobs In New York

NEW YORK (AP)—The Newspaper Guild of New York has submitted to the World Journal Tribune Inc. the names of 325 guild members who say they wish to leave their jobs voluntarily.

The 325 were among 1,800 guild members who were employed on the three newspapers whose merger created the new corporation.

It is hoped the voluntary terminations will help smooth the way for settlement of the guild's six-week strike against the World Journal Tribune, which has not yet been able to publish.

Economic Slowdown Seen

Unemployment Hike Greatest Since '64

WASHINGTON (AP)—Unemployment last month took its biggest jump in two years, the Labor Department reported today, and a spokesman said it indicated a slowdown in the rate of the nation's economic growth.

But, Commissioner Arthur

M. Ross of the Bureau of Labor Statistics said, there is "every reason to believe that the overall economic movement is still upward," despite the rise in unemployment from 3.7 to 4 per cent in the jobless rate.

The total number of unemployed rose 140,000 to 2.9 million.

Ross said the biggest part of the increase was among high school pupils and college students putting in bids for summer jobs, although they were still in school in May and not ready to work until June.

"It doesn't prove that they are not going to get work," Ross said.

The jobless rate among women also went up, but the unemployment situation among adult men continued at very low levels, Ross said.

Unemployment among men 26 and older declined by 150,000 and their jobless rate narrowly edged down to 2.1 per cent, the lowest in nearly 13 years.

The rate for married men held steady at 1.8 per cent.

The jobless rate for teen-agers rose sharply from 12 to 13.4 per cent in May, largely among the 14- to 17-year-old group.

"All this adds up to a picture of deceleration in the upward trend in economic activity in the last couple of months," Ross said.

Norwich Physician Wins Law Diploma

WEST HARTFORD (AP)—Dr. James A. Harkins, a 42-year-old Norwich physician, will soon be able to hang up another shingle. This one will say: "Attorney-at-Law."

Harkins, a father of four children, is scheduled to receive his law degree from the University of Connecticut Law School June 13.

The physician, a specialist in internal medicine for the past 13 years, is the top man in his law class of 70.

It has taken him five years to complete the law course while continuing to practice medicine.

He estimates that he has traveled 46,000 miles to and from classes during that period.

Harkins said he became interested in acquiring a law degree after reading scores of legal articles in medical journals over the years.

He thought a law background might help him serve as counsel in court cases involving medical problems. But he had other reasons.

"I've had a long-standing interest in law, but I believe that television drove me into studying it," he said.

Harkins said he was watching a dull program one night when he thought: "I could be doing something productive with my time."

The physician developed a study plan to fit into his busy schedule.

"I took only brief notes, jotting down a key word or phrase to remind me of the point made in class by the instructor," he explained. "Then I would use these notes to dictate what I wanted to remember on a recording device. Later I played back the record to keep the points fresh in my mind."

Harkins had recorders in his auto, his home and his office. He was able to listen to his recordings while driving to and from classes.

As for his medical practice, Harkins said he didn't have to

Ky Nominates Civil Junta, Buddhists Continue Protest

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's military regime nominated a slate of 10 civilians today to join the 10-man ruling junta but excluded Buddhist extremists opposing the government.

The list included some moderate Buddhists, Roman Catholics and representatives of the Cao Dai and Hoa Hao sects. But the absence of any militant Buddhistists pointed to the imminent danger of a collapse of the political truce between the regime and the united Buddhist Church.

Even before the government published the list, the Buddhist Institute said: "This cannot solve anything but only increase the opposition from the people." A spokesman said the Buddhists wouldn't join the government if asked.

The ruling generals drafted the list of civilians several hours before a deadline agreed last week in negotiations between moderate Buddhist elements and the Ky regime to end the political crisis.

The list submitted by the junta was revised this afternoon by the 34-man Armed Forces Council, part of the governing military apparatus, then sent back to the junta for approval.

The Buddhist Institute, a commune, repeated demands for the resignation of Ky and the chief of state, Nguyen Van Thieu.

"If the two generals still remain in power with only superficial changes in the junta, it cannot solve anything but only increase the opposition from the people," the commune said.

While the Ky regime attempted to live up to its political pact with the Buddhists, it appeared in for a surprise from the Electoral Commission it named to prepare the ground for the Sept. 11 elections for a Constitutional Assembly.

During a long debate Sunday night, 37 of the 53 commission-lets the assembly turn itself into a governing legislature after it drafts a constitution.

This would shorten the life of the military regime considerably and preclude the second round of voting for a legislature which Ky plans. The premier said last month that he probably wouldn't be able to step down until the middle of next year.

However, the junta could reject the commission's recommendations.

While the politicking went on in Saigon, there were these developments in the war:

—The U.S. 1st Cavalry, Airborne, Division, together with Vietnamese and South Korean units, ended Operation Crazy Haves after almost 21 days of off-and-on fighting against the Communists in the rugged central highlands 270 miles northwest of Saigon. The reported enemy toll was 618 Viet Cong killed, 21 captured, 128 suspects

Hurricane Alma Among Earliest Tropical Storms

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Hurricane Alma, the earliest of the big tropical storms in 15 years, boiled up today in the Caribbean and thrashed toward Cuba.

At 11 a.m., the National Hurricane Center said the winds of the storm had reached hurricane force at 76 miles an hour.

Just six days after the service put into effect its master plan for 1966 storm forecasts, Alma was churning up the waters of the Caribbean 340 miles southwest of Havana and 570 miles from Miami.

Not since May 1961, when a 100-mile storm threatened the Florida coast, has a hurricane sprung up so early in the season. That one looped to the northeast and fell apart in cold air off the Carolinas.
