A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

be, a crisis or confusion will always exist somewhere for some

A crisis and confusion is a part of living. Each of us must face some sort of crisis or confusion sooner or later. To face a crisis requires courage—and courage is a personal matter. Courage can not be leased, borrowed or bought. It must be drawn from one's self, for one's self. And when courage is shown, it often draws out the courage in others. When courage is shown, confusion can and often does disappear,

Ever since time began, the greatest source for courage has been traced to a foundation on a faith. Faith creates hope. Without faith and hope, courage is difficult to come by. In spite of dark clouds, faith, hope and courage will always be the means to let us see the rays of sunshine again . . . WAT-KINS-WEST FUNERAL SERVICE, 142 E. CENTER ST. 649-

A Touch Of Directional Sanity and then somebody does adfress attention to something that is really important and crucial for our

Now and then somebody does set up the target toward which all the signposts of past history and future hope have to point.

Now and then somebody tries to cut through to the key problem, even though it is always easier to spend attention and energy on the more futile fringe problems nobody can ever solve. All this happened again, the other day, in the House of Representatives at Washington, when a group of 50 Congressmen introduced House Concurrent Resolution 690. The text of Resolution 690 is as fol-

"Concurrent resolution to provide for a permanent United Nations peacekeep-

"Whereas Congress has urged that the United Nations should develop permanent organization and procedures to enable the United Nations promptly to employ suitable United Nations forces for such purposes as observation and patrol in situations that threaten international peace and security' and "Whereas the need for such a force appears likely to continue, and "Whereas a United Nations force, es tablished on a permanent basis, could be an important instrument for the maintenance of international peace and security: Therefore be it

"Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That the Congress reaffirms its support for a permanent United Nations peacekeeping force and urges the United States delegation to the United Nations to present a plan to the Twenty-first General Assembly for the establishment of such a United Nations 'World Peace Force' on a permanent basis and for rules to govern the proper and effective use of such a peacekeeping force and provisions to train, equip, and finance it." The 50 Congressmen introducing this esolution were a bi-partisan group, who included Congressman Daddario of this, the First District, and Congressman St. Onge of the Second District, in Congressman Conte of Massachusetts, speaking for the resolution, said "It has long been clear to me that our cold war confrontations around the world can only be solved successfully and satisfactorily through multilateral action. The intervention of a single country against the aggressions and invasions of the Communist world are not sufficient to bring an end to such aggressions, short of all-out war. "The United Nations must be supported in all its goals and capacities. And, as a forum for collective action by all the nations of the world, it can and will reduce the commitment and obligation of any one nation. Perhaps our problem in Vietnam would be considerably less critical if the United Nations could have taken a stronger hand." Congressman Cohelan of California, peaking for the resolution, reasoned as There can be little question that h

Its 21 years the United Nations has played an important role as a peacemaker and a peacekeeper. . . . But the UN's peacekeeping force has been much like a volunteer fire department. . . . For an organization charged with the momentous responsibility of maintaining international peace and security, a more permanent and dependable arrangement is urgently needed. . . . "A standby UN force would go a long way toward meeting this objective. It would be a far more effective means of insuring an international presence where and when it is required. "It should have appeal to large and small nations alike, for brushfires can spread, and peace in an interdependent world is indivisible.

'It is practicable, furthermore, as is made clear by the expressed willingness of 10 nations to date to earmark forces for the United Nations.

"Mr. Speaker, the financial structures of the United Nations also require urgent attention. It is not healthy for a world organization to depend repeatedly on one, or even a few of its members, for financial relief. I would hope that action to make the UN financially selfsufficient would be acted on in concert with efforts to strengthen its peacekeeping capacity."

Thus the Resolution, and thus some of the remarks, in the House at Washington on Thursday, June 9. Now and then, as we said, it does happen that somebody gets on target, and does discuss the number one problem of our times, and does urge a directional sanity in human affairs instead of the irresponsible anarchy our routine leadership sometimes seems to rush to join and compound.

The Worst Pollution Carrier A Senate subcommittee looking into the question of air pollution was told by the Public Health Service the other day that limits should probably be imposed on the amount of lead which can be used in this country's gasoline as an anti-knock element.

We do not yet know enough, the expert in question said, about how foreign substances get into the human body which they may endanger. But present guesses are that many things-incluing lead from the atmosphere-are absorbed primarily through the respira-

Meanwhile, there come reports from what once hoped to be a great antismoking crusade on the American college campus that the crusade has fizzled out, the smoking continues apace, and that it seems impossible to convince young people they don't want to flirt with whatever danger there may be in smoking. In one or two instances where the sale of cigarets has actually been banned at colleges, the rate of smoking has continued the same.

Now it may still be proved to be what some of us have always suspected it might be-that the cigaret by itself, although obviously never beneficial to health, has not been even the chief villain of the one disease for which the anti-smoking crusade fears it most. The chief villain could still be discovered to be the kind of atmosphere which has been given us to breathe in the great age of combustion heat and power and travel. And if this ever be proved so, it would make chronological sense, for the rise of cancer seems to date not so much from the spread of the habit of smoking as from the spread of mass traffic. The cancer graph would, in other words, follow the rise of the automobile much more closely than it follows that of the cigaret.

It would obviously make a great deal could be located. If it is in the cigaret the risk is then something each individual takes for himself, and that kind of risk-taking is hard to forbid by law or eliminate by education.

But if the risk is in the exhaust, commercial and industrial and traffic, which we allow into the atmosphere everybody breathless, then exposure to the risk is not voluntary, and it is possible, in the name of the common good to legislate against such loosing of peril against everybody. To smoke, even to smoke one's self to death, is the kind of individual liberty which is precious. But there's no particular emotional feeling or deathless civil right which seems to connect itself with the business of burning gasoline of one refinement or mother. So far, the one thing that gets dirtier year by year, no matter what progress we make with streams or umps or junkyards, is the air we all breathe. This is obviously going to get increased attention from now on, and sensibly, reasonably so, since it may be the greatest pollution-carrier of all.

Not-So-Limited War

"Limited" war is pretty generally inerpreted as any kind of military enragement that falls short of an exchange of nuclear blows-which certainly would flare into an all-destrucive global affair. Today's war in Viet Nam is well out of the category of "brush fire" missions such as the visit of U.S. Marines to Lebanon a few years back, and well short of all-out war. Yet in some respects the "limited" label is

The rate of U.S. aerial bombardmen n Viet Nam occasionally exceeds that by U.S. aircraft over Europe in World War II. And the total drop by our aircraft in Viet Nam may soon top that March, more than 50,000 tons of bombs were unloaded in Viet Nam, a month y figure seldom exceeded in World War I. For this year alone it is expected 600,000 tons will be dropped on North and South Viet Nam. In the entire European campaign, the U.S. drop was

Since Viet Nam has nowhere near the number of limited targets-railroads, industrial complexes, power plants, high-ways and the like—that Germany had, much of our bomb power has to be tearing up jungles and swamps. The big bomb load and the high-level capability of the B52 would have been very well suited to the targets in Nazi Germany, but in Viet Nam the giant "Superforts" seem to be used for scatter-

Shelton Trial WASHINGTON (AP)-The government brings Ku Klux Klan leader Robert M. Shelton to trial in U.S. District Court here today in the first round of an attempt to convict seven Congress charges. Chief U.S. Dist. Judge Matthew F. McGuire was to designate a trial judge for the trial of Shelton, named by the House Committee on Un-American A tivitis as imperial wizard the United Klans of America. If convicted, he faces a fine between $100 and $1,000 and prison sentence of from one month to one year. Lester V. Chalmers, Shelton' attorney, declined to say in ad vance whether he would ask for a delay in the trial. The Shelton trial, which expected to be short, is likely t serve as a test case for the trial of the six other Klan leaders scheduled this fall. All were cit ed for contempt by the House Feb. 2 and indicted a day later by a federal grand jury.

Pupils Put Small Auto In School

GREENWICH (AP) -

What about the chassis of the small foreign car that was found on the second floor of Greenwich High School? School officials have found out that it was the work of nine seniors who hauled the vehiclecomplete except for wheels and engine-into the building and used a block and tackle to get it

The seniors, all boys, have been charged with disorderly conduct and released in the custody of their parents. As school officials tell it, the seniors managed to bring in the chassis through the front door, hoisted it to the balcony of the girl's gymnasium by means of dragged it along the hall to the

Draft-Aged Protestors Under Arrest

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) - Government security forces, with orders to give no quarter, laid virtual siege to the Buddhist Institute today. With pistol shots and tear gas charges they choked off dozens of demonstrations after a mob burned three Jeeps and grabbed two submachine guns from American Military Police. Told to arrest draft-aged dem onstrators on the spot and send them off to military service, troops and riot police carted away scores. Some were clubbed, kicked and beaten.
