Industrial Recruiters Fall Short of Needs

NEW YORK (AP) — The draft — and the threat of service in Viet Nam — has put a crimp in company recruiting of June college graduates.

An Associated Press survey of company officials and college placement directors found that the draft, the rush to graduate schools and the boom in jobs left recruiters far short of the men they needed.

"This has been one of the toughest years in recent history from the employer's standpoint," said Bill Herman, U.S. Steel Corp. college relations director in Pittsburgh.

Lewis Guthrie, International Business Machines district manager in Miami, said:

"There is a large increase in the number of boys who are going to graduate school to escape the war in Viet Nam. They are very frank about it."

Guthrie said it had cut the number of graduates available at a time when the competition between firms for new men was getting stiffer anyway.

"There are only about 30,000 undergraduate engineering degrees awarded this year, a figure that hasn't changed in recent years," said Robert Becker, manager of professional employment at the Aluminum Company of America, Pittsburgh. "There are fewer people available for more jobs."

Peter Frederickson, Boston University placement coordinator, said: "I have a drawer full of unfilled requests, and I understand the same situation prevails in practically all colleges in the country. There are more jobs than qualified youngsters."

He said he doesn't know of any company able to obtain its quota of new men.

"A spokesman for Carnegie Tech in Pittsburgh said: "One reason industry recruiters must compete with the Peace Corps and VISTA, as well as the military, said Mrs. Nansi Corson of the University of California at Berkeley.

Some colleges suggested students were offering a cold shoulder to business because their youthful idealism makes them want to do something.

L.I.-Bridgeport Link Mentioned In Bridge Study

HARTFORD (AP) — An interdepartmental committee studying the possibilities of a bridge connecting Long Island with Connecticut was ordered by Gov. John Dempsey today to consider a bridge that would link Port Jefferson and Bridgeport.

This is the second site to be considered by the committee which is headed by State Finance Commissioner George J. Conkling.

The committee is also considering a proposal to build a bridge between Long Island and Old Saybrook.

The proposed Old Saybrook bridge has met with opposition from town officials and Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn.

In directing the committee to study the Bridgeport bridge proposal, Dempsey said he was taking a position, but noted that a similar committee in New York is also considering such a project.

Visiting Central Asia 'Really' in the Country

STORIES AND PHOTOS
By RHEA STEWART

Here at Mazar-i-Sharif we were really aware, for the first time, that we were in Asia.

We were in the Northern part of Afghanistan, 100 kilometers from the Russian border, where we weren't sure of ever arriving because the planes must fly through the Salang Pass of the Hindu Kush mountains, first cousins of the Himalayas, and the erratic weather in that pass makes people plan, when they set out for Mazar, on probably arriving back in Kabul instead.

Kabul, the capital of Afghanistan, had taken us back into history, but here we felt that time had really congealed. These are the steppes of Asia, the flat land that stretches on and on into Russia. The province was called Bactria when Alexander the Great came through, and camels still plod past in caravans, hardly visible for the grasses they are bringing from the Oxus River to be burned for fuel. The mud villages, each enclosed in its walls, are notable in the dome that tops each room, an architectural fashion that preceded Alexander.

Mazar gives the impression not only that customs have not changed in centuries, but that these are the same people who have been sitting for centuries in their bazars, and that they will be sitting there in the same attitudes a century from now.

GOP War Chest In Good Shape

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republican war chest for the November congressional elections is accumulating at a record pace, the two top members of the GOP National Finance Committee reported today.

"We've never been better than this far ahead," said retired Gen. Lucius D. Clay, chairman of the committee.

"From a financial standpoint," added C. Leighton Washburn, the committee's executive director, "we're giving House members more than adequate tools to make gains."

Republicans attending the GOP National Committee were handed confidential reports Monday showing that as of last Friday they party had collected $1,720,686 toward its 1966 campaign goal of $2,025,000—about 85 per cent. The four-day GOP session ends Wednesday.

"What's significant about this," Clay said in an interview, "is the fact that we've gotten so far ahead on collections." He said funds now are being distributed earlier for key battleground races and, therefore, should have more over-all impact.

The finance chairman said the various fund-raising drives being put on by the Republican fringe groups "doesn't seem to have affected us."

Clay said the added funds should help the Republicans "make substantial gains in the House."

"But in the Senate," he said, "we'll be lucky to gain a seat or two there." All House seats are up for election as are 33 Senate seats.

Washburn said in a separate interview the successful 1966 fund-raising has spelled the end of national fund-raising dinners, such as those often staged with former President Dwight D. Eisenhower appearing on closed-circuit television at banquets held simultaneously in dozens of cities.

"We'll have separate Senate dinners instead," he said, "and more GOP galas." A Republican

Viet Revolt Collapses Rebel Leader Under Arrest

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Premier Nguyen Cao Ky emphasized the virtual collapse of the Buddhist revolt today by arresting the extremist Buddhist leader Tich Tri Quang in his Hue stronghold and flying the monk to Saigon on the 14th day of his hunger strike.

While the military junta pressed firmly ahead in the political struggle, U.S. paratroopers carried the backbone of the war by smashing into a Viet Cong jungle hideout where 800 guerrillas threw up a bitter defense.

Two thousand or more men of the 101st Airborne Division and the 1st Cavalry, Airmobile, Division battled the Communists in an action that began Monday north of Tuy Hoa, about 200 miles northeast of Saigon. The fighting continued through the night and today, and at least 60 Viet Cong were dead, a U.S. spokesman said.

Ky's soldiers seized Tri Quang in the Hue Municipal Hospital, where he had been conducting his antigovernment, anti-American hunger strike. A police officer said the monk, 42, had been put in protective custody to shield him from the Viet Cong.

His chief rival in the Buddhist hierarchy, Thich Tam Chau, simultaneously urged a settlement of the civil strife and asked Ky to "assure the life and liberty of the venerable Tri Quang and all other monks who led the struggle" against the regime. Tam Chau was reported to have met with Ky in the past few days on a solution.

Although reportedly weakened by his fast, Tri Quang walked unassisted from the hospital in Hue and again from the military plane that brought him to Saigon. A waiting car took him to Saigon's Day Tan Hospital, and he made no statement.

By arresting the chief of the Buddhist struggle movement, the government showed that it was confident it had all but smashed the militant Buddhist minority's campaign for an immediate restoration of civilian rule.

Troops and police kept several hundred monks and their followers penned inside Saigon's Buddhist Institute for the fourth day despite their plea to the International Red Cross that they faced epidemic and starvation.

The fighting north of Tuy Hoa was the second major action for the 101st Airborne this month. From June 7 to 14, they practically wiped out North Viet Nam's 24th Regiment in the battle of the ridges on the Kontum Plateau, 120 miles northwest of Tuy Hoa.

No other major ground action was reported, but U.S. Air Force F-4s rained bombs on a Viet Cong area 30 miles south of Da Nang, while other American planes directed heavy blows north and south of the 17th Parallel frontier. A U.S. Air Force F-105 Thunderchief and its pilot were reported lost to ground fire during a strike on a fuel

Ten Homes Wrecked When Plane Crashes

HARTFORD (AP)—The State Water Resources Commission, citing the need to preserve the beauty and the recreational value of Connecticut's waterways, has served notice on electric utilities.

No more unsightly overhead power lines across navigable rivers in five years' time.

Replacing overhead lines with underwater cables "carries out President Johnson's and Gov. (John) Dempsey's policy of preserving the esthetic values of the State of Connecticut and of the recreational and other public values of the Connecticut River and other rivers," said commission member Lewis E. Caplan of New Haven Monday.

"We hope we've done the right thing in the public interest and in the interest of the utilities," said Caplan.

"We've asked the utility companies to join with the water commission," he said, "to formulate a reasonable and practical program to remove overhead transmission."

WASHINGTON (AP) — The traditional 21-gun salute for a reigning monarch sounded today as King Faisal of Saudi Arabia arrived at the White House and pledged work for better understanding between the United States and the Arab world.

Faisal, ruler of an oil-rich desert kingdom, will spend three days here on a state visit with Johnson.

The President, in addition to welcoming Faisal, concluded his talk with the ancient Arab saying: "Our house is your house."

It was a hot summer day and the heat had three victims in the honor guard: An Air Force and an Army man collapsed. A sailor had to be led off the grounds.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara pictured the North Atlantic Treaty Organization today as still a strong and vital force despite French actions. He got promptly into a debate on the credibility of administrative assessments on military affairs.

McNamara told senators on a national security subcommittee that the effect of France's withdrawal from the NATO military structure "will be in no way disabling," and said categorically the United States is capable of maintaining its European combat capability while meeting "planned troop deployments" to Southeast Asia.

Then Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., reminded McNamara that various statements in the past on Viet Nam by McNamara as well as some other government officials "proved wrong."

McNamara Sees NATO Still Vital

WASHINGTON (AP) — Officials said today they were convinced there were no more dead or injured in the rubble of a suburban neighborhood devastated by the flaming crash of a Marine Corps attack bomber give results to anyone but the secretary of state.

The town clerk went to bed without adding up the totals, saying she wouldn't give results to anyone but the secretary of state.

Police said two persons — a 30-year-old mother, Mary Galant and her 18-month-old son Donald — died. Forty-four persons were treated for injuries — mainly burns. Ten remained hospitalized.

Sixty persons were left homeless in the total destruction of 10 houses and damage to 17 others.

Hampton Police Chief L. H. Nicholson said "we have gone through all the destroyed and damaged houses and found no additional bodies. I don't believe we will find any more. We have no reports of missing persons."

Nicholson and Fire Marshall F. F. Hopkins both used the same term to describe their feelings about the light loss of life in such a densely populated area—miraculous.

The two-seater A6 Intruder light bomber plowed into its development at 8:27 p.m. Monday night. Seconds earlier, it had collided at 400 miles an hour with another Intruder at 2,000 feet. The other plane fell into Chesapeake Bay.

The evidence of the plane's path was clearly marked. The jet swept in on a northeast heading, clipped a 60-foot oak tree at midpoint and sheared off a side of the Gallant's shingle cottage.

The bodies of Mrs. Gallant and her son were found in the kitchen.

All of the four Marines aboard the two aircraft ejected safely and landed near the second bomber in Chesapeake Bay off Norfolk. Three were picked up by a Coast Guard helicopter, the fourth by a private boat.

The crash occurred not far from the sprawling Foxhams shopping center and the homes of many Air Force and Army officers.

Two Dead, 40 Injured In Virginia Tragedy

PRINCETON, Maine (AP)—This town's vote in Monday's primary won't be known publicly until the official tabulation is made by the secretary of state.

Dodd Probers Mum On Klein Appearance

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Ethics Committee left Monday's committee session unanswered today whether Julius and Ethel Klein, Chicago public relations man, will be called to testify about his dealings with Sen. Thomas J. Dodd.

Chairman John Stennis, D-Miss., told newsmen that Klein is not under subpoena. And when asked if Klein would be a witness, Stennis said only that the committee will make that decision "when we get to it."

In an initial round of closed hearings, the committee set up to police senatorial ethics is inquiring into whether the Connecticut Democrat used his position as a senator to help Klein retain West German gifts and return for expensive clients and other favors.

This is one of the charges made by Dodd by column writer Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson.

Both Klein and Dodd have denied the charges, and Dodd has filed a $2-million libel suit against the columnist. Klein is reported to be in Germany and not expected to return until mid-July.

James P. Boyd Jr., 37, Dodd's former administrative assistant, was the only witness at Senate Ethics Committee last Monday's committee session. He was directed to return today for further questioning.

Boyd told newsmen the committee had completed its questioning but that John F. Sommet, Dodd's attorney, had not finished his cross-examination.

The chairman said in an opening statement to newsmen that more than 4,000 documents had been removed from Dodd's files but that the committee felt the copies it had were "sufficiently stigmatized" so as to preclude their use as evidence here.

However, at the end of the day he said this statement required "certain clarification."

"This is what we are doing," he said, "if the original documents obtained are at variance or do not include all documents taken from Sen. Dodd's office with respect to matters before the committee, the committee will inquire into such variance."

After screening the copies obtained, Stennis said, the committee requested Dodd to supply it with the originals of all the documents it felt were material to the investigation. He said this involved about 200 documents and Dodd had complied with the request.

Time Somebody Made A Move
 "His policy," writes the New York Times of President de Gaulle's trip to Moscow, "adds up to a complicated balancing act between East and West designed to contain Germany and achieve French primacy in Western Europe as the power equilibrium on the Continent evolves. It divides the West, stirs military rivalries, deepens Soviet intrigues, and frustrates the Germans, creating the very dangers it is supposed to counter. Its benefits for France are hard to discern, apart from the insight focused on its President."

This is a moderately harsh indictment of de Gaulle, as to his motivation, as to methods, and as to his aims.

But one could accept the indictment on all three counts and still not denounce de Gaulle and his position.

The trouble is, perhaps, that the motivation of others are no more creditable than his; that the methods of others are even more high-handed and dictatorial than his; and that his aims, at least have the much prestige over those of others—that they can at least be called aims and objectives rather than mere whims and positionments of responsibility.

President de Gaulle, in other words, has the comparative advantage of operating in a blind and foolish world which gives him the vision, warped and distorted though it may be in its turn, almost no competition.

The following are samples of some of the high-flown, but potentially tragedy-laden foolishness, President de Gaulle has set himself against:

The United States and Russia each think it is practical, workable for each to grab off half of Germany and to seem to intend to remain there permanently.

The United States thinks Europe can be defined as a continent which ends at the Berlin Wall.

The United States apparently thinks it is going to be keeping its troops in Europe forever. It likewise, apparently, considers NATO a thing full of wisdom for future ages.

These are impossibilities. Furthermore, no sensible person can undertake to argue, for a minute, that they ought ever to be made into real possibilities.

President de Gaulle, on the other hand, begins with a few sweet common sense positions—Europe comes up to the Paris—the most important European problem is the break up of the cold war pattern and the making of a peace for World War II—the United States obviously is not going to stay in Europe forever—and NATO is an anachronism which, to tell the truth, never even did the problem of the time in which it was originally created.

On realizations, aims and objectives, then, de Gaulle wins hands down over his critics. When it comes to implementation, on the other hand, he may prove to be as wild and irresponsible and dangerous as they allege. But it is hardly fair, or valid, to criticize the Moscow mission before it has begun. It is about time somebody made some kind of move on the chessboard.

An Honorable Decision
 Our somewhat distant commitment—distant both for the geography involved, and for the far flung from the political climate with which the same proposition seemed to find an original welcome in Connecticut—goes to the Senate of the state of New Jersey.

The other day, by a vote of 13 to 5, it defeated and refused to enact a special bill which had the aim of setting up a New Jersey promise to the New York Stock Exchange never to try to collect a tax on stock transactions if that organization should agree to move to New Jersey.

To their credit, senators of both parties joined in this declaration by which New Jersey preserved its dignity and its independence and refused to enter the cheap game of being willing to tailor the sovereign laws and sovereign rights as a state to the convenience of a New York institution which was probably really seeking nothing more than a lever against New York City's threatened imposition of a heavy stock transaction tax.

Whether or not the matter had ever come to a real rest here in Connecticut, sanity and decency would have prevailed in the Legislature here, too, but early in the game we seem to recall there was somebody in some position of authority making haste to assure the Stock Exchange that Connecticut would never, never think of such an iniquitous thing as a stock transaction tax, if only the Exchange would locate in this state. A sovereign state should not be bribable, nor should it offer bribes.

Worth Two Full Time Town Jobs?
 General Manager Weiss has evolved some proposals for changes in the conduct and operation of the so-called sanitary inspection of Manchester houses which has been going on since last winter.

The best thing about the General Manager's proposals is that they could mean that the town never would find any necessity to stick its inquisitive nose inside most Manchester individual owned homes to see whether they possess kitchen sinks, or hot running water, or if the latter were, indeed, some kind of enforceable legal requirement.

There are a number of Manchester home owners who have chosen to defy the town's new inspectors when they arrive, and it is difficult indeed to see any valid, important reasons why home owners who do choose to take that kind of attitude should be their traditional "enemies" should be compelled to admit anybody for the purposes described in the letter the town Health Department uses in announcing its approach.

If it should be established, by adoption of the General Manager's proposals, that there is nothing really urgent about having town representatives force their way into every individual home in Manchester, one key question remains to be asked.

Are the two fine gentlemen who have been going about doing this inspecting for the Town Health Department, seeing if all our homes are in good sanitary condition, guaranteed permanent places on the town payroll? In other words, is this new town activity, questioned and defied by some, resented by almost nobody, worth the full time effort of two able and conscientious gentlemen in such an era of manpower shortage everywhere?

Scapegoat In The Suburbs
 Mayors of the nation's big cities, beset by all sorts of trouble, appear to have decided that they can "solve" their problems by inflicting them on others.

The United States Conference of Mayors, meeting in Dallas, passed a resolution urging the Federal Government to force suburban communities to absorb a "reasonable share" of the burden of housing and schooling low-income residents of the cities. Whatever the proposal's chance of acceptance, the attitude it reflects helps explain why the cities are in such straits.

At almost every opportunity, some city official blames their problems on the alleged stinginess of state and Federal governments. Now the mayors appear to be exporting their blame of scapegoats; by inference at least, they're saying their suburbs are at fault.

The United States and Russia each think it is practical, workable for each to grab off half of Germany and to seem to intend to remain there permanently.

The United States thinks Europe can be defined as a continent which ends at the Berlin Wall.

The United States apparently thinks it is going to be keeping its troops in Europe forever. It likewise, apparently, considers NATO a thing full of wisdom for future ages.

These are impossibilities. Furthermore, no sensible person can undertake to argue, for a minute, that they ought ever to be made into real possibilities.

Effective actions are most interesting. Employees in each bank should be supplied with Robertson buttons and bumper stickers through the medium of department heads. Directors of each bank should be propagandized by the bank's officers and warned that Robertson's re-election is essential "to the welfare of your own bank's stockholders." And banks are told to "urge your directors to give and give generously, not token amounts."

Ewing's instructions skirt the edge of the Federal Corrupt Practices Act, which makes it illegal for corporations to "buy" or contribute money to political candidates or to engage in politics at all.

But a threat of retaliation against bank employees who might feel inclined to vote for Ewing's "effective actions," is to "urge your officers who have been labeled 'Bought and Paid For' by the Bankers of America."

Spong couldn't have done better if he'd written the label himself.

Zoning Board Clears Way For Firehouse at Green

The ultimate solution for the problem of selecting candidates for the new Connecticut House of Representatives from new districts which join two or more towns is going to have to be some fair system of rotation of the nomination.

And, in most instances, if this doesn't arrive out of the instances involved, those towns which feel aggrieved because they have been neglected are going to be able to enforce that drastic and ruthless enough about it. If, for instance, a new House district which includes two towns, one with five votes and the other only four in the district nominating convention, finds that the town with five votes insists, year after year, on grabbing the nomination, then there is going to come the day when the slightly smaller town just doesn't happen to have any valid, important candidates on election day, and a seat in the House is handed to the opposition party.

One way or another, then, the system will adjust itself into some kind of rotation of House seats in multi-town districts.

But right now, in this first year of nomination for the new 177 member House, the philosophical, sharing spirit has not had time to settle down on all the new districts. And, in this year's nominations, it is sometimes the candidate from the town with the bigger share of convention votes, in two-town districts, or the candidate who has been able to do the best advance wheeling and dealing with other towns, in districts of more than two towns, who has walked off with the first new order nomination.

David Wilcox, a variance to maintain an existing carport which is closer to the highway than regulations permit at 55 Hillside Rd. The carport was constructed one foot from the sidewalk. Regulations require 10 feet clearance from the sidewalk. The error was discovered last month by the Planning and Zoning Department in a routine check.

The carport, for which a building permit was never issued, was constructed by Valoco Inc. Building Products of Portland at an $800 cost. Robert Greiner, the company's salesman, last night blamed the ZBA on the variance request and if the building department ordered the carport torn down.

However, the ZBA granted the request and the carport remains.

Close to Perfect
 ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—When James Edward Westmoreland, graduated from Georgia Tech free-standing ground sign set of 1346 Tolland Ave., averaged 98.8 of entrance to his shopping center. The request was for a 450 Westmoreland, of Griffin, Ga., square foot sign, but there are no more than 200 square feet. A further at 3.97. The highest possible stipulation was that the sign score at the school is 4.00.

A well-chilled conference, with 28 persons attending, Volunteers assisting were Mrs. Theresa Klaber, PHNA senior nurse, and Mother's Club volunteers Mrs. Frank Saenell and Mrs. Herman "Jake" LeDoy.

The ZBA granted a second variance, to erect a free-standing, rotating ground sign, which will be close to the property line than regulations permit. The station operator will be required to darken the sign by 11 p.m.

Fuller Brush Gets Refunds On Income Tax

HARTFORD (AP)—The Fuller Brush Company's "Lavender Spray Satchet" is not taxable as a perfume, a federal judge ruled Monday, and he ordered the government to pay back $90,000 in excise taxes and interest.

"The product is actually used to scent undergarments," commented U.S. District Judge M. Joseph Blumenthal, "but without the effect of conveying that to the wearer—or to hearing Department in a routine check."

"It is not applied to the cloth," Blumenthal said. "The internal Revenue Service decided in 1907 that 'Lavender' the company's salesman, last night blamed the ZBA on the variance request and if the building department ordered the carport torn down."

However, the ZBA granted the request and the carport remains.

Visiting Central Asia 'Really' in the Country

(Continued from Page One) Mazar-i-Sharif is not actually as frozen in time as it seemed at first. Governor Masahid told us that a natural gas deposit he discovered by Russian and Afghan specialists, will provide Russia with gas for which it will pay Afghanistan and which will provide Mazar-i-Sharif with power for fertilizer factories and also ample power for the whole area.

At the time we learned that Mazar had 70 tractors, and that the farmers, having seen that they would be all we would see in the village, had planned a visit to the village people by refugees from Uzbekistan, the adjacent area of Russia, and an inspection of the carpet factory, and all sorts of photograph-taking we had not done previously.

As the group gazed at a stockpile of 8,000-pound bombs, a highway construction crew was working five miles away setting a dynamite blast. The startled Afghan guests, somewhat shaken, as long as he stays outside the United States.
