said right now is that, pending the arrival of that kind of submission of the nations to enough world law to control their violences, the United States should probably avoid, if it can, any policy which will throw Russia and China back together again in power politics unity against us. There probably lies, somewhere at some intersection of time and escalation in Vietnam, the point at which we could reunite China and Russia, the one piece of reuniting a world which has two Germanies, two Chinas, two Koreas, and two Vietnams seems to need least of all.

Space As A Disposall

Then, in addition to the poetry of a look down at Mother Earth, in addition to the wonder the sheer impossibility of it all creates for us, there is the giant disposall role of space. Each of these factors cited doubtless There are, as we see it, two problems involved. In the first place, we don't has something to do with the fact that longress seems in the process of doing want to clutter up space so much we set up hazards to future space navigathing rude and savage to our fortion. In the second place, we don't want those people who keep snooping around us, trying to reach some kind of decia our opinion, get the foreign aid prosion about whether they ever want to rum in trouble if it were not for the eaknesses, inconsistencies, and perassociate with us, to get an unnecessarily unfavorable impression of us. The Ubiquitous Opossum

A man we know almost had an automobile accident the other night because of an opossum. The animal trotted out from behind a parked car right in front of his own vehicle just when an oncoming car was passing him, He dodged the opossum, but in so doing, he almost hit the other car.

There have been all sorts of reasons for accidents, of course. Drivers have found themselves in trouble trying to dodge dogs or cats or boys or girls, or even grown-ups who wandered nonchalantly into the vehicle's right of way. But this is the first time we ever heard of an opossum being a party to what was almost a collision. This couldn't have happened in this area a few years ago. There wasn't any such critter in all New England outside of zoos - as an opossum. This furry fellow with a snout like a pig and a tail like a rat didn't exist much farther north than the Mason-Dixon line, But in recent years he has extended his range. Opossums are almost as common as woodchucks in some parts of Connecticut. # Connecticut Yankee Nonders of the Universe

There has been, in Connecticut public life since the 1965 session, a new kind of limit on expenditure. For the first time, bureaucracy's capacity to spend has been stretched to the limit. formist for reasons drawn from natural history, but rather by reason of one's philosophical opinions." Tournier then asks why the doctrine continues to be taught without restriction as scientific truth in schools and textbooks. He says the answer textbooks. He says the answer to this question is given by one of the most authoritative scientists in this field, Professor P. Lemoine, curator of the Paris Museum. "Evolution is a kind of dogma in which its priests no longer believe, but which they preserve for the people." (Adapted from article by Virgil Bentley, Oklahoma City).

Fans in Los Angeles and San Francisco may be frustrated by the fact that California's two National League pennant contenders have managed only a split of their first 20 games this season with the New York Mets-the team once considered to be the weakest in major league history. But it's a problem American League owners would gladly experience.
The Mets are in ninth place, but they've won seven games in

Her Hollywood existence is, according to Barbara, just that -an existence. She arises before the daws to be at the studio by six. "And this is beautiful," she says. "When I drive to work, I can still see the remains of the moon and some still-twinkling stars on one side of me and the rising dawn on the other." She doesn't return to her apartment on the Sunset Strip till after eight p.m. Then, she tosses together some vegetables, opens a can of tuna fish and calls it a dinner.

A Dolphin Takes His Cue Fast

Editor's Note - Ricou Browning is the man in charge of the underwater photography which is a speciality of NBC's "Flip-per" series. Here he describes per" series. Here he describes the way he directs his delphin star - and the stand-ins and doubles - during performances. Miami, Fla. (AP) -To ma, Fispper is a person.

He has the instincts, the responses, the behavior pattern, the emotions — notably affection - of a human being.

Flipper's head trainer, Ric O'-Feldman, contends that "Anybody who can train a child can train a dolphin," and I heartily agree. It takes as long for me to teach Flipper a trick as it takes me to get the idea across to him as to what I want him to do. And he never forgets. If he learns a trick, and uses it once, he" do it again on the proper signal six months later.

All the signals used to tell Flipper what to do are done with the hand, underwater and topside. For example, the signal for him to squirt water is to push water in his face. The signal to shake hands is - as with a human being - simply to hold out your hand.

The first step in training is to encourage the dolphin to eat while in captivity. This may take several days, and requires

Once the animal knows his source of food, the trainer gets into the tank with him, during and after the three-a-day meals, and establishes physical contact such as touching, rubbing, petting — so that the dolphin realizes there is no danger.

First, I have the dolphin retrieve various objects thrown into the water. Then I have him retrieve live fish - a rather difficult effort since he natural ly is tempted to eat the fish.

Transporting Flipper from Florida to Nassau for underwatfor shooting is a logistical problem, with one or more trainers in constant attendance upon the star. From his tank Flipper leaps upon a rubber mattress and is tifted into a large lined to prevent injury - box containing several inches of water, His body is kept wet constantly during the 3%-hour journey, and special care is taken that no gritty matter will injure his hich he loves to nibble. eyes. The trip is made via If life in the Feldon house chartered plane.

2:55 (30-40) Wemen's News bour through 11 European coun- follows a typical travel agency tour in which 35 Americans on their first trip abroad are sped in the comfort of an air-conditioned bus through England, the Netherlands, Belgium, the duchy of Luxembourg, West Germany, Switzerland, the principality of Liechtenstein, Austrie, Italy, Monaco and France.

As Trout notes, last year more than 250,000 Americans with "a lot of stamina" took such tours. Starting a normal day at 6:30 a.m., the tourists are subjected to a carefully chosen mixture of art galleries, beauty spots, historic sites and buildings, churches and "typi-cal" inns, with occasional time off from the fixed schedule for shopping and getting to know the people of the country. The travelers are seen visiting many of England's and the Continent's most famous sights, among them the Tower of Lon-don and Westminster Abbey, old Amsterdam, the Battle of the Bulge Memorial in Belgium, the castles on the Rhine and Heidel-Austrian Tyrol. St. 5:30 Mark's Square in Venice, the UMizi Gallery in Florence, the Trevi Fountain and the Sistine Chapel in Rome, the Riviera at Nice, the Casino at Monte Carlo, and the Paris of the Moulin Rouge and Montmartre. The broadcast also follows the transition of some members of the group from simple tourists to critics of the countries they are speeding through. One traveler restricts himself to taking 8:25 pictures of used oar lots, dumps, transmission lines and other evidence that Europe is not much different from home.

A highlight is a business transaction between a non-Italian speaking Oklahoman and a Roman tailor, who speaks only Italian, over the purchase of a silk suit.

The broadcast concludes with an assessment of the trip by the tourists on their return to the United States while they are passing through customs at Kennedy International Airport in New York City.

dining room, and served rather grandly," she says. "My dressing room is like my New York apartment. The set is always busy, even when I'm not. It's when I'm not that I work at my needlepoint. Recently, Don (series star, Don Adams) gave me a transistor and so I sit in my little canvas chair, needlepoint in hand, and transistor plugged into my ear and have marvelous time.

"Well, would you believe I have a good time?" asks Miss Feldon. "In that case, would you believe the needlepoint and the transistor have preserved my sanity? Forget the whole thing. I withdraw the question as the answer might tend to incriminate me."

FRANK MCGEE PICKED

Frank McGee has been named the reporter for "American White Paper: Organized Crime in the United States," a three-and-a-half hour produc-tion scheduled by NBC on Aug. 25. The examination will cover such illegal business as policy gambling, narcotics traffic, betting and loan sharking. Government and law enforcement officials will appear, and notorious figures of organized orime will be seen.
