North Korea Ends Pro-Peking Line

TOKYO (AP)—North Korea today declared its independence within the Communist movement, dramatically breaking with its old pro-Peking line.

There can be no superior party or inferior party nor a party that gives guidance and that party that receives guidance, said the official newspaper Rodong Shinmun.

One country of the North cannot serve as the center of the world revolution or the leading party.

But relations began to cool after Peking and Moscow became involved in a bitter struggle to be dominant in the Communist world and the Chinese branded the Soviets as traitors to the Communist movement.

Since the North Koreans, like the North Vietnamese, are apparently have decided that it is safer to adopt a neutral role in the Sino-Soviet-Chinese quarrel.

The North Korean statement accused Soviet Union of having enthusiastically helped the Vietnamese Communists but criticized more sharply China's role in the Sino-Soviet-Chinese quarrel.

It also aligned the North Koreans with the trend, demonstrated most importantly by Romania, toward independence and nationalism in the Communist world.

Manchfield has said that if the bill went to the Judiciary Committee, under normal procedure, he had grave doubts it would be reported at the end of two weeks or two months or two years.

Just before the Senate met, Southern opponents held a strategy session in Russell's office. It was reported the consensus was not to report the bill.

Russell said this was primarily because of the Communist Party's announcement that a move to take up the bill would not be made until after Labor Day.

Russell said that no decision has been made on whether to take up the bill on Sept. 8, say.

Chief Bonn's Mate Richard Patterson, 81, of Swanton, N.C., was climbing the wall of the U.S. Coast Guard cutter when he was struck by a British patrol boat on the first day of the exercise.

"Something blew me off the ladder," he said. "The whole deck went into the air."

Patterson thinks the concussion of an exploding shell knocked him off the ladder. He suffered burns.

"When they hit us the second time, I knew that the hell it was," he said. "The captain was there dead. I got the boat under way, but I was hurt."

"I was saying whatever I could say," he said. "I was told a news conference. I was sort of deploring the attitude toward Christianity."

He added: "From what I've read or observed, I (Christians) just seem to me to be shrinking to be losing contact."

Paul McCartney added: "I was told that the Beatles are more popular than Jesus" and that "Christianity will go."

Some U.S. radio stations have banned Beatles records since Lennon's remarks were published in an American Pean Magazine. Some former fans have built huge bonfires of Beatles records and pictures.

In England, Lennon said, his remarks caused hardly a ripple.

"They were just taken a bit of loudmouth thing," he said.

The long-haired singer arrived Thursday at O'Hare International Airport and were to give two concerts Friday. They were greeted by a relatively small, quiet group of fans.

When their limousine drove up to a hotel, however, there were more than 200 screaming, leaping, frantic teenagers swarming all over the car.

Although the news conference was taken up mostly by questions toward Lennon's attitude toward Christianity, several other topics also came up.

The quartet was asked if their popularity is slipping.

"We don't feel we're slipping," said McCartney. "Our music's better."

"If we do slip, so what? You're in the music business," McCartney said. "We'll just be where we were before — only a lot richer."

What do they think of Frank Sinatra?

"He's never met him," answered McCartney. "He comes to the radio to do his thing all night."

Rights Bill To Bypass Committee

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House-passed civil rights bill was placed on the Senate calendar in position for floor debate today through a procedure which bypassed the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Although the measure now is available to be called for a vote, Majority Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana has said this will not be done until Sept. 8.

Sen. Philip A. Hart of Michigan, acting Democratic leader, said the bill would be placed on the calendar today by a parliamentary device.

Ordinarily, it would have gone to the Judiciary Committee which is headed by Sen. James Eastland, D-Miss. That committee has a long record of refusing to act in civil rights matters.

But Hart objected to further proceedings after second reading of the bill and Sen. Fred C. Robert H. Humphrey, presiding at the time, ruled: "The bill will be placed on the calendar."

In the past, Southerners have objected to such a move and one did so immediately this morning. Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., chief Democratic strategist, had noted that his objections on previous occasions had been overruled.

Police Head Lauds System of 'No Bail'

HARTFORD (AP)—State Police Commissioner Leo J. Mulcahy termed a definite success today the "no-cash" bail program which took effect since January.

He said state police statistics early today went off a gun rampage shortly after noon, shooting two men and two women at a cafe.

The program's goal was to reduce the number of persons arrested, but those arrested are such that they are going to court.

It also was designed to prevent persons without financial means from being held in jail while awaiting trial.

Mulcahy said today he was impressed with the statistics, and that the program also has free state police from being otherwise delayed while cash bond is being arranged for persons arrested.

Stamps with Drinks? Bartenders Say No

Two o'clock in the morning," others did it, we'd all have to do it," said Gene Brandt, owner of two Atlantic, Conn., night spots.
The most enthusiastic support for the idea came from Joe Dama, a bartender in Kansas City, who thought trading stamps were "a helluva good idea. I think it would work swell and perhaps drum up some extra business."
Joe La Bruno, also of Kansas City, called the stamp plan "terrible. Obnoxious. Wouldn't work." He added, "However, it has to go."

Vernon Representatives to Receive Proposed Charter Changes

The charter revision commission (CRC) will present 60 proposed changes to the town's new charter to the board of representatives Monday night.
Atty. Herbert Hamannburg, CRC chairman, says that 29 of the proposed revisions are of a technical nature, changing a word or a sentence for greater clarity, and 26 are substantive and merit serious consideration.
The commission has been meeting for about a year.
One of the proposed changes is for the elimination of the annual town budget meeting; the recommendation is expected to meet heavy opposition.
Atty. Hamannburg and CRC members John Foley and Joseph E. Chaslow are expected to be present at Monday's board meeting to explain the proposals and answer questions.
Procedures that must be followed in considering revisions to the charter are:
—Representatives will study the proposed revisions and make recommendations.
—The charter revision commission members will study the recommendations of the representatives and decide whether to accept any changes the board suggests.
—Then the CRC will submit a final report to the board of representatives, which may accept all or some of the revisions, but may not make any changes of its own.
The charter became the "bible" of town government last summer. The product of a charter consolidation commission which worked on it for one year, it unified the three governments of the town—the city of Rockville, the Vernon Fire District and the town.
Zone Appeals
Controversy is expected at a hearing of the zoning board of appeals Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the administration building. An application which has been hotly opposed in the past will be re-submitted by Eldridge S. Mark and Oala D. Yost, to build an auto service station at the corner of Vernon Ave. and Rt. 80 in Vernon.
When the application for the gas station was presented earlier this year, residents appeared to oppose it.
In other action, James H. Madson, who holds the school bus contract for the Vernon School system, is seeking a renewal of the permit to park buses on his property on Bamforth Rd.
Eliada G. Goddard of 5 Bankford Dr. has asked for a variance to construct an accessory building there.
Carl A. Goehring of Ellington and Robert A. Ludwig of Rt. 80, Tolland, are asking permission to build a gas station on the northerly corner of Center Rd. and Rt. 80.
Barney T. Peterson of Manchester is requesting a variance for additional apartments at 27 Main St. in Talcottville.
John Farniak, 160 Vernon Ave., has applied for a use permit to lease land and a building at 180 Vernon Ave.
Rosario Altonello of Hartford Tpk., is seeking a used car license for property on Rt. 80 near Dobson Ave.
Emmanuel H. Kloter, owner of the Sivas Laundry, is seeking a variance for a patio and carport at 65 Orchard St. or at 10 Harlow St., in the vicinity of the laundry.

Tolland Deadline Is Set On All Requests For School Use

Superintendent of Schools Robert Bryanton has requested that all groups desiring to use the facilities of any of the three schools during the year contact him before Sept. 14.
Due to the lack of available facilities in town, many organizations use the schools as their meeting place. Bryanton will set up a schedule after Sept. 14. Many groups have already filed their requests which will be handled on a first come, first served basis.
The board of education maintains an approved list of organizations which can use the schools. The list is revised periodically.
The use of the Hicks Memorial School gym is subject to pre-emption for town meetings and public hearings.
Accidental Deaths
A tabulation of accidental deaths in Connecticut indicates four in Tolland, compared to two in the previous year. The fatalities were classified as one each for motor vehicle, home, public and unclassified.
The motor vehicle category accounted for more deaths than any other and was followed by home accidents.
Dumpy Arrests
A closer watch than usual at the town dump has resulted in the arrest of ten people for the improper use of the town dump. Although the watch was established because of reports that people from other towns are using the dump, the majority of those arrested were in town.
Nine of the second haul were 110 times to the violations bureau and one case was continued until next week in Circuit Court 13.
Voter Registration
A voter registration session will be held Tuesday, from 8 to 9 p.m. in the Town Hall. All residents of the town and state for six months who are at least 21 years of age and citizens are eligible to register.
Republican Caucus
The caucus of the Republican caucus scheduled for Tuesday, at 6 p.m. has been changed to the Town Hall. The caucus was originally scheduled for the Hicks Memorial School gym, but the change was necessitated because of a school policy not to allow use of the school buildings in the summer months. The Republicans will endorse a register of voters and twelve judges of the peace.

A "Contagion of Resistance"

The nightmare of modern medical science is being glimpsed again, this time in new tests at home and abroad which seem to establish more clearly than before that the over-use of antibiotics has begun the breeding of bacteria immune to all antibiotics.

The most graphic description of this nightmare is given in a sentence from an editorial in the New England Journal of Medicine, as follows: "It appears that unless drastic measures are taken very soon, physicians may find themselves back in the pre-antibiotic Middle Ages in the treatment of infectious diseases."

The trouble is that there is a new kind of contagion being developed and loosed in civilization. It is a contagion, among diseases, of resistance to drugs.

It is the contagion which continually seems to be developing new strains of disease for which new antibiotics, or new combinations of antibiotics, have to be found. It is the contagion which seems to limit hospitals to drastic antibiotic measures when it comes to fighting the dreaded staphylococci.

This is not a new nightmare. There have already been partial adjustments made and more selective use of the antibiotics. The laboratories have kept racing ahead to new strains of antibiotic, which may be able to take over as the older strains begin to lose their potency. The miracle drugs do not seem to have ended mankind's search for health security, but merely after an initial extravagant step, stepped up the speed of the race and rendered it more chaotic. Still, providing that full potential nightmare never arrives, all the editorial warned about, in which all our modern weapons should suddenly turn worthless—the blessing to mankind still stands so immense that we would be stupid to try to do it over again, even if we had to do it exactly the same way.

To fend off the nightmare, some drastic measures may be necessary. We may even have to suffer more of some diseases than we have come to consider necessary. In the case of microbes, some of the industries which have a relationship to the human body because they grow the food which enters it may have to be completely removed, to yield to their cherished antibiotic techniques for producing faster and more economical growth, for that may be another of the ways in which the bacteria of the human body learn to well how to live and flourish in the presence of their supposed enemy.

It is not the most, without doing any of the rough damage a sudden slitting can do to a totally dry landscape. And all the while, to the casual observer, it seems to be holding itself in reserve, to the west, with those heavy, or blessings for which its preliminary approaches had been preparing. Then it unaccountably neglected to do any pouring after all.

No matter: it was a beautiful performance as far as it went.

When the key vote came in the House last Tuesday (Aug. 9) to recommit the bill and delete the housing section, a majority of the Republicans on the Judiciary Committee actually voted against the motion—and...

Columbia Gerardo Adds Bright Touch To Rally for GOP Nominees

By VIRGINIA M. CARLSON
John Gerardo, Republican nominee for the post of lieutenant governor, and several candidates for other posts, came to Yeoman Hall Wednesday night to express their views on the election campaign in Connecticut.

Gerardo, like a breath of fresh air in the traditional "smoke-filled back room," was by turns, genial and serious. He praised E. Clayton Genaras, Republican nominee for governor, and called him "inspiring: a man who has all the attributes of leadership."

He added that Genaras had started campaigning in the afternoon the convention ended. Gerardo's speech was preceded by brief talks from each of the other candidates. When introduced, Gerardo said, "These other candidates are better than I am. I am not a candidate for anything but a bright touch."

On this date in 1876, King Philip, one of the greatest Indian warriors, who created the first real organized resistance to white rule, was trapped and shot to death at Turners Falls, Mass.

In 1881, American poet, editor and diplomat James Russell Lowell died.

In 1884, U.S. forces entered the Spanish-held Philippines city of Manila.

In 1941, President Franklin D. Roosevelt and British Prime Minister Winston Churchill met at sea to draft the Atlantic Charter.

In 1944, Allied forces liberated Florence, Italy.

President Dwight D. Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles announced in a meeting with congressional leaders their hope for a peaceful solution of the Suez Canal crisis.

Stamford in Uproar Over Housing Plans

Integrated housing from any discussion of so-called scattered site housing, he said, is, at best, ignorance and, at worst, a hypocritical whitewash.

He contended that "no claim that Negroes are the cause of the housing problem is anything less than the height of irresponsibility."

The objection of the protesters was best expressed by City Rep. Frederick E. Karl, a staunch supporter of Mayor Meyers on virtually every other issue.

Karl said, to a packed house at a protest meeting, "Many of you have lived in substandard homes or apartments—you have worked, scrimped and saved to better yourself. And you don't want to see any agency impose upon you the environment you worked so hard to escape."

Another Negro leader, Rev. Charles J. Sargent Jr., took a different approach, arguing over the scattered site housing proposal.

Some eight neighborhood associations have united to fight any downgrading or downgrading of their neighborhoods.

Perhaps E. Clayton Genaras, Republican candidate for governor, put his finger on it last week when he told a reporter: "It's quite a problem—I wish he'd waited till next year to bring it up."

He added that "the object of the protesters was best expressed by City Rep. Frederick E. Karl, a staunch supporter of Mayor Meyers on virtually every other issue."

Karl said, to a packed house at a protest meeting, "Many of you have lived in substandard homes or apartments—you have worked, scrimped and saved to better yourself. And you don't want to see any agency impose upon you the environment you worked so hard to escape."

To Punish Strikers

STAFFORD (AP)—A spokesman for Avco Corp.'s Lycoming Division says the company will take "the necessary disciplinary action" against 20 persons who struck a brief, unauthorized walkout.

It was not learned what action the company planned to take.

Officials at the United Auto Workers, AFL-CIO, urged the medical strikers to return to their jobs Thursday.

Almost 60 shift workers walked off during morning shift and some 150 second shift employees walked off to report for work. The strikers picketed nearby.

Four international and local diavos the unauthorized strikers, said Leonard Schiller, an international UAW representative, in a statement to officials of Local 1010.

UCConn Housing Short

STORRS (AP)—Strike-caused construction delays on a five-story dormitory on the University of Connecticut campus have caused a housing shortage which affects about 600 undergraduate students.

A total of 420 women and 135 men students were scheduled to live in the dormitory this fall. They will now have to be relocated, according to Robert Heves, director of student housing.

Heves said Thursday the university has no rooms to which it can assign the students.

He said he has been meeting with housing and admissions officers at the university and that they have been trying to find housing facilities for the undergraduates.

To Pipe Water

HARTFORD (AP)—The state Civil Defense agency was ordered by Gov. John Dempsey today to pipe water from Lake Candlewood to a Danbury reservoir.

The city has a critical water shortage. State and local officials held an emergency meeting in Hartford Thursday to plan ways to give relief to Danbury and also to Stamford.

Dempsey ordered Civil Defense Director William L. Schenata to secure piping, pumps and other equipment for moving water from Lake Candlewood to the Danbury reservoir. The distance is about a mile.

On Way to Viet

HARTFORD (AP)—An assortment of hospital equipment, including an incubator which the donors say will only be used in all of Viet Nam, is on its way by air to the war-torn nation.

Among other items in the shipment, which left Thursday, were a refrigerator, a microwave oven, a washing machine, electric fans, a sterilizer and a microscope.

The equipment was purchased by radio-television station WTCB of Hartford, which conducted an fund drive to construct a 60-bed civilian hospital at An Khe, nearly 300 miles north of Saigon.

His Merger Delay

Nelson A. Rockefeller wired President Johnson today to express concern that the merger of the Pennsylvania and New York Central railroads might be delayed.

Rockefeller said postponement of the merger beyond Oct. 1 target date "could have the most serious consequences not only to the state of New York but to the entire Northeastern section of the nation."

Unless the Penn-Central merger is pushed through quickly, Rockefeller said in a telegram, the bankrupt New Haven might not survive. The New Haven is to be taken over by the two merging railroads.

To Resume Talks

HARTFORD (AP)—The International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers has formally asked United Aircraft Corp. to resume collective bargaining talks for a new contract at its Pratt & Whitney and Hamilton Standard divisions.

The move—a letter to the company—comes seven days after UAC was ordered by U.S. District Court Judge T. Emmet Clark to recognize two Machinists locals as an exclusive bargaining agents for workers. Clark also stipulated that collective bargaining "in good faith" must commence within 30 days.

The company has not said whether it plans to appeal the ruling.

Pratt & Whitney is in East Hartford and Hamilton Standard is in Windsor Locks.

Fowler Expresses Concern Over Spread of Credit

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler has voiced the administration's concern that the spread of credit in the economy will be accompanied by inflation.

Fowler and other officials said the credit expansion that has been going on over the past few months is a cause for concern. He said the credit expansion is a cause for concern that the economy is being heated up too much.

Rights Bill To Bypass Committee

ing that will depend on developments.

He said the Dixie forces want to survey the situation to find out how much Senate support there is for the bill and particularly whether its opening hours are "likely to be strengthened, weakened or eliminated."

Russell said that Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, who is opposing even the watered-down open housing provision in the House version of the bill, is "the key" to the situation.

If he stands pat, I don't think they can pass a bill with the housing provision in it," Russell said.

He also said that the House version of the bill is "a good deal of opposition" to the section of the bill designed to eliminate discrimination in the making of federal loans through a system of random selection.

Russell said he assumes the Dixie forces will use the plan they have employed in the past in filibustering against civil rights bills. Under this, they divide into three teams which take turns making speeches.

Asked if it would be to the advantage of the opponents that the bill is being taken up so late in the session, Russell said it could be but not if the supporters can muster the two-thirds majority necessary to choke off a filibuster.

"They can gag the Senate if they have the votes," he said. Dirksen's position is likely to be crucial on this since without the support of his GOP forces it would appear to be impossible to get a two-thirds majority to start off debate.

Where Did Trains Go? Lunar Probe On Course

DALLAS (AP)—What happened to the old chair cars, diners and sleeping cars as passenger trains disappear from the American scene?

A few of the better cars may be retained by a railroad—either for use on runs that are still being made or for conversion into service cars for construction crews. The rest represent a tax liability which the railroads are eager to get rid of—either by direct sale or to brokers who specialize in railroad rolling stock.

Occasionally, some of the older model cars in good condition are sold to other railroads in the United States or foreign countries.

Every now and then a well-heeled individual will buy a chair car for a hunting or fishing lodge. Organizations of railroad buffs who yearn to preserve a bit of the Golden Age of railroading obtain representative passenger cars—along with the gigantic locomotives and power-occupied apartment buildings with four units or less.

Russell said the housing "sectors" in "a violation of property rights and life, liberty and property are the three great rights laid down in the Constitution."

He also said there is "a good deal of opposition" to the section of the bill designed to eliminate discrimination in the making of federal loans through a system of random selection.

yet," said Jim Martin Jr., assistant Lunar Orbiter project director, "but we found there is a lot of noise in the sensor's electronics system that seems to block out the Canopus signal."

"We've ordered orbital, in-orbit and ground-based tests to see if we can get it into orbit. The only uncertainty is the lack of accuracy for the photographic mission."

Martin added: "We will try to get Canopus again if we feel it's possible, because the moon will be out of the sensor's field of view by tomorrow. Later, we may be able to use the earth as a reference point, but we're too close now."

Scientists said the craft has to have a reference point, such as Canopus or the moon, so they can plot its exact position before ordering maneuvers.

If orbiter attains its planned moon orbit, it will be the first successful lunar orbit for American spacecraft after seven failures.

The Russian orbiter Luna 3 said it was believed their spacecraft carried no cameras.

Before orbiter begins its low sweep over the possible astrophotography sites, officials said, it will shoot a few pictures of the right limb, or edge, of the moon to check on camera settings and light angles. The pictures will be relayed back to earth the next day.

The pictures, developed in an automatic laboratory aboard the craft, will be stored until ready for transmission. A light beam will scan the finished negatives and transmit the pictures as radio beams.

The full set of pictures—after the 200-foot roll of 70mm film is exposed and developed—will be transmitted to earth in one batch, taking about 200 hours to download.

Cambria is to appear in Manchester Circuit Court 12 or 13 days.

Trailer Truck Rolls Down Bank

Tolland

A trailer truck went off a Wilbur Cross Highway early this morning and plunged down a 50-ft. embankment.

The driver, Paul Cambria, 51, of Dorchester, Mass., escaped with only minor injuries. He was treated at Johnson Memorial Hospital in Stafford Springs.

State police charged him with failure to drive in an established lane.

Police said the truck was headed west when it went off the road. At present, it is knocked down 11 highway posts and rolled down the embankment. A crane was needed to pull the truck back to the road.

Invested $200 million a year in trucks, Cambria is a well-known figure in the trucking industry.

Curtis Attends Conference On Economics at Portugal

Economics, the social action throughout the Atlantic community.

"It helped us to better understand and respect each other's economic systems. We Americans for example, came to realize that while capitalistic free enterprise is right for us, it may not be right in toto for other countries."

Each country must have the freedom to modify and practice economic principles as it sees fit, Curtis felt, and each must respect and try to understand the systems of others to aid rather than hinder—individual progress.

For example, Curtis said, if they do, U.S. teachers and students can, in part, thank William H. Curtis, Manchester's superintendent of schools.

Curtis, in his dual role as president-elect of the American Association of School Administrators (AASA), recently participated in a top-level economic conference in Lisbon, Portugal, attended by educators from 17 countries under the aegis of NATO, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Field July 29-30, the Institute of Tropical Medicine, the gathering was the 6th biennial Atlantic-Siberian conference on Education, with emphasis this year on economics, particularly as it applies to the secondary school level.

An eight-part statement of principles was prepared by the conference participants, after reacting to "position papers" by delegates representing a variety of philosophies on the place of economics in the educational systems of several countries.

One major recommendation to come out of the conference was that improved teacher education in training institutions and through continuing in-service programs in schools be done with more specialized courses in the discipline.

Another recommendation for exchange of teachers' guides, manuals, research reports, textbooks, and other materials was also made. The conference also recommended that the organization of the school system be re-examined.

A third, and perhaps the most far-reaching principle stated by the conference, declared, "Adequate education in economics" by delegates representing a variety of philosophies on the place of economics in the educational systems of several countries.

"The student must have a knowledge of different economic systems and of the roles played by public and private international organizations."

In this regard, it was the recommendation of the conference that such organizations as the OECD, the European Economic Community and others be requested to make available materials suitable for secondary students, describing their operations.

Curtis' major function at the conference was to "react" during discussions with participating and philosophies in the formal position paper.

UN-style, the various speakers had their talks translated from their native tongues into French and English as they went along.

Delegates in attendance, in addition to six from the U.S., included educators from 16 countries.

Represented were Austria, Belgium, Denmark, France, Germany, Greece, Iceland, Ireland, Italy, Luxembourg, Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Turkey and the United Kingdom (England and Scotland).

Curtis said the U.S. position on the teaching of economics was that it should be informally at the middle-elementary level and continue with increasing emphasis with courses formally designated as "economics" introduced at the senior high level.

Some countries, notably France, reflected the philosophy that the subject should be strictly post-secondary. The differences of opinion in U.S. views led to some "watering down" of the statement of principles developed, Curtis said.

Materials developed as a result of the conference will be disseminated through the AASA and the National Association of Secondary School Principals to regional and local education groups, Curtis said.

Locally, an organization which may benefit is the Greater Hartford Council on Economic Education, which he termed "one of the finest of its kind in the country."

The chief aim of the conference, Curtis felt, was that it helped "to refine the scope and direction" of economic education.

Humphrey Backs Nominees In Minnesota Party Rift

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—Minnesota Democrats are embroiled in a bitter intramural battle over the nomination for governor, much to the dismay of Humphrey, the "basement" candidate.

A key figure is Gov. Karl F. Roivas, an old party ally of Humphrey, who has been named as the state's foremost party member—Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

Humphrey stands with the party regulars, backing the party's endorsed candidate. It will be at least a minor embarrassment to him if the regulars lose in the Sept. 13 primary.

If the Democratic scuffling could win a second term, Humphrey stayed out of the convention fight but immediately afterward embraced Keith Paul, an area that casts more than 40 per cent of the Minnesota vote and has been a Republican stronghold for at least one public opinion poll.

Republicans, with few exceptions, have not campaigned. Humphrey says he won't campaign. He has, however, released a top aide, Ronald Stinson, to work for the endorsement of Republicans may well vote for Roivas to embrace the Democratic party, from Humphrey down.

The GOP danger is that Roivas will pile up enough momentum to carry him to victory over the Republican candidate, 58-year-old Harold LeVander, a South St. Paul attorney who will be making his first campaign by taking a record vote turnout of more than 700,000 voters.

Roivas appears to be riding a wave of sympathy following the slay by the party convention. He has picked up heavy support in Minneapolis-St. Paul, an area that casts more than 40 per cent of the Minnesota vote and has been a Republican stronghold for at least one public opinion poll.

Increase Noted In Idle Claims

An increase of more than nine per cent was recorded for unemployment compensation claims filed in Manchester last week compared to those filed the week before.

A total of 461 claims were filed last week, compared to 417 a week earlier.

Claims filed throughout the state last week increased 24 per cent from 16,586 to 20,545, Hartford led the state with 1,305, and was followed by Waterbury with 2,692 and New Haven with 2,654.

Manchester was in the 18th spot last week among the state's 20 offices. It had been 15th the week before.

Geese About Eliminated As Cotton Field Weeders

BAKERFIELD, Calif. (AP)—Chemicals are most widely used today, and the use of mechanical weeders is increasing.

Just about eliminated geese as well as in San Joaquin Valley cotton fields, says Kern County farm adviser John Hoyt.

A decade ago, geese were considered the most effective and cheapest means of controlling weeds, primarily Johnson and Bermuda grass.

Today, few farmers use them. They're still used, but in proportion to the total acreage, the percentage is quite small, Hoyt says.

He says the use of mechanical weeders has increased in California's largest cotton producing area.

Geese were a nuisance to growers, and farmers were glad to find something to replace them.

Alcohol, Pesticides Linked in State Deaths

NEW HAVEN (AP)—It's been proved that the combination of liquor with certain drugs, especially barbiturates, can be fatal.

Now the Alcohol and Tobacco Tax Division of the Internal Revenue Service, investigating five unexplained deaths in the New Haven area, has turned up another possibly fatal combination: liquor and insecticides.

What puzzled investigators was the presence of two kinds of alcohol, methyl and isopropyl, in the bodies of the five persons, who died in a span of six months last year.

Their symptoms were like those of persons poisoned by methyl and isopropyl alcohol. Yet there was no evidence that any of the five had swallowed any poisonous liquids.

Federal investigators began interviewing the friends and acquaintances of the victims, trying to find something in common.

There were heavy drinkers, one was at least a moderate drinker, and the fifth, although the seldom drank liquor, became fatally ill after apparently imbibing a quantity of scotch.

The pieces began to fit together: Francis Peavy, 29, of West Haven, described as a heavy beer drinker and a frequent visitor to a tavern in the morning soon after it was fumigated. The pesticide contained diastion.

Mrs. Margaret Taylor, 43, of New Haven, described as a heavy drinker of beer and wine, had a landlord who regularly sprayed her rooms with a pesticide containing malathion and pyrethrum.

Mrs. Blanche O'Boak, 71, of New Haven, lived in a rooming house where the common bathroom, the hallways and the common kitchen were regularly sprayed with diastion.

John Lauster, 61, of New Haven, was a heavy drinker of hard liquor, patronized a liquor store which was sprayed weekly with a roach killer containing Diastion.

Mrs. Eugene Wright, 36, of Pleasantville, N.Y., a live-in maid who was stricken on a visit to New Haven, died not long after having a halibut Scotch from a pharmacy that had just been sprayed with diastion.

What interested the alcohol and tobacco tax people in the first place was the similarity of the deaths to those of persons who drank poisonous bootleg liquor.

In the absence of any evidence of the presence and use of denatured or completely denatured alcohol, said the report to U.S. Atty. Gen. J. Edgar Hoover, "the following possibility is presented as a possible explanation for the presence of the toxic substance in the organs of the deceased: 'L. Kye disease, a heavy drinker of alcoholic beverages, is exposed to pesticides.'

375,000 Planes Seen

NEW YORK—In 1975, according to an aerospace research study, there will be 375,000 airplanes in use in the non-Communist countries compared with 208,000 last year. With scrapping of obsolete production, there will be a net increase of 260,000 aircraft in the decade, twice as many as were made in the previous 10 years.

DIES OF INJURIES

BRIDGEPORT (AP)—Mrs. Annie Burton, 71, of Philadelphia, died Thursday night in St. Vincent's Hospital of injuries received in an auto accident on the Connecticut Turnpike July 30.

Mrs. Burton was a passenger in a car that was parked on the side of the highway in Fairfield when it was struck from behind by a truck.

Dancer Gene Nelson Now Movie Director

BOLLEWOOD (AP) — When Gene Nelson was a dancer, he was a dancer. Now he is a movie director. Nelson, 30, has just completed his first feature film, "The Sandlot," which is being shown in theaters today.

He did dance again, in 1960. He found a new career, as a director. "It's an old wives' tale that dancers are short-lived professions," he said. "Most of the famous film dancers are still going today, and so am I."

The Omaha Pattern, Placid Before Riots

EDITOR'S NOTE—Racial director of "Operation Summer-time," said five adults joined violence in the summer. Before the riot, that those who came to Omaha, the placid metropolis of Nebraska spread and under. "There were no riots in Omaha," he said. "But it did, part of a spreading emergency job program pattern. Here's a report on what's behind Omaha's troubles."

By BOB GREENE and BILL W. DEAN
OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—"I'm not sure if the rioting that all but Negroes in this town have been discriminated against for too long. Maybe this will get some folks to get out of the ghetto of the deplorable conditions in this part of town."

"This part of town is near North Side, 800 acres jammed with rattlefinked tenements where the Negroes, about 30,000 Negroes, about 10 per cent of the city's population."

"The young woman didn't speak for all of the North Side residents. What, if anything was accomplished by two July weekends of destruction still is hotly debated."

"I think it's a damn shame what these kids are doing," said a 30-year-old cleaning woman, where the white man hires Negroes."

Omaha is typical of the big cities that rise from the plains of the Middle West."

From the green acres of Boy Town, the world's most famous orphanage, to the handsome university, from the rapidly expanding suburbs of the residential homes of the very rich from the fertile farmland that surrounds the city to the factories that dot its landscape, Omaha creates the impression of a barroom, prosperous, progressive city."

The facade is not entirely divorced from reality. The city's unemployment rate at the end of June, for example, was 3.6 per cent, lower than the national average. Average family income is $8,445 a year.

But deep in the core of town lies Omaha's common denominator with sinner cities: a slum, a racial ghetto in a deplorable fashion, the disenchanted and the disenchanted."

"The buildings are old, dirty and dilapidated. Some still show the scars of a tornado that hit the city in 1913."

Most of the residents are Negroes. Most of the landlords are white.

"Less than 100 Negro families live in otherwise white neighborhoods," said Louis R. Olsen, special assistant to Mayor A. W. Sorenson.

Run-down though the neighborhood in property values on the near North Side.

"When a Negro buys a house in the ghetto," said Olsen, "he can expect to pay $15,000 for one he could buy any place else in the city for $12,000 to $12,500."

The average Negro in Omaha has less to spend, too. According to the Bureau of Economic Service, the unemployment rate among Negroes is 19 to 18 per cent. Another 10 per cent of the families in the ghetto have incomes of less than $3,000 a year, he said.

This was the area, and those were the conditions, when on the hot, sultry night of July 3, rioting erupted without so much as a ripple of warning."

After order had been restored, Mayor Sorenson and Gov. Frank Morrison met with spokesmen for the Negroes for what they wanted? Summer jobs for young people, more recreational facilities, the Negroes said.

Sorenson and Morrison agreed these were reasonable grievances, and took steps to settle them. A hastily organized "Operation Summer-time" got jobs for 289 Negroes. Recreational programs were launched.

"We're not going to deal with these hoodlum elements of teenagers," snapped Mayor Sorenson. "But the bulk of the rioters, on both occasions, were teenagers. Both outbreaks began on a supermarket parking lot, a favorite after-dark gathering place for young Negroes with nothing but me on their hands."

Charles Hanabaw, a Negro, a university student and a summer railroad porter, witnessed the beginning of the first riot.

He described it this way: "Those kids were out for a good time. I was down there and I heard one say: 'Let's break a window.' Then someone said 'Let's get the drugstore.' 'That's all it was at first.'"

"A liquor store window was broken, someone reached inside and grabbed a bottle. That's what started the looting."

Homes Hit By Tornado In Holyoke

into South Hadley, Mass., before breaking up. The New Hampshire twister Thursday afternoon cut a path 200 feet wide, leveling acres of cornfields and uprooting hundreds of trees as it moved from Pike, N.H., across the Connecticut River valley to Newbury, Vt. Several barns lost roofs.

A severe thunderstorm hit communities south of Pike and Havertill, N.H., interrupting telephone service briefly.

Lightning damaged the steeple of the Penacook, N.H., Methodist Church and caused a fire that destroyed two large barns at a chicken farm on Route 4, Grafton, N.H.

The twister smashed into a large dairy farm at Pike, blowing roofs off three barns, blowing a garage and an adjoining milkhouse and overturning a trailer.

A spokesman for Granite State Electric Co. at Lebanon, N.H., said damage was general.

Witnesses said at least four homes in Holyoke's West Park section were heavily damaged—a roof torn off one, brick falling from another. Trees and debris blocked a number of streets, including Route 5.

Lightning struck the Mt. Holyoke chain of four buildings, a barn in Grafton, Vt., was destroyed by fire after lightning struck it.

The U.S. Weather Bureau said the storm moved westward from New England from the west today. It predicted cooler weather, tonight and many nights, mild temperatures and low humidity Saturday.

Cutter Crew Tells Of Attack on Them

I went on deck and we were off on the attack. I helped put out the fire. We thought we were recognized then. "We got the fire out and here it came again."

"I was blown heartedly that it was a honest mistake," said Seaman J.C. David O'Connor, 20 of Cambridge, Mass., said he tried to fire a machine gun back at the jets but couldn't get a shot at them.

"We thought that after the first couple of passes they would realize the mistake," O'Connor said.

The wheelhouse was the most heavily damaged area of the ship. The deck was blackened by the fire. The galley was turned into a sick bay for the wounded.

"I tried to raise somebody and get the planes called off," he said. "We got the Navy on the one radio still working, but they don't have any communication with the planes. They couldn't give us any assistance."

"The planes made a couple of passes while we were in the cabin. They must have knocked down the antenna because we couldn't transmit any more."

Wolf suffered a shrapnel wound in the right foot. An order was given to abandon the cutter. The wounded crew members had to be hoisted and an inflatable life raft was launched.

"We had to get away from the vessel," Wolf said. "We couldn't do much to defend ourselves."

Pope Orders More Degrees Into Effect

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul VI today ordered into effect most of the remaining decrees of the Vatican Ecumenical Council.

The Pope set Oct. 15 as the effective date of his document, which deals with decrees on bishops' powers, the priesthood, the religious orders, and the missions.

Pope Paul laid down rules of jurisdiction and authority for bishops in running their dioceses, directing the priests and religious communities in those dioceses, and in reorganizing the Church's entire missionary program.

The pontiff said new disciplinary rules would be experimental for the time being. He asked that the national bishops' conferences in countries around the world let him know their thoughts on the changes so that further alterations could be made eventually before the rules become permanent.

The document was dated Aug. 15, and was given an effective date of Oct. 15 to coincide with the fourth anniversary of the start of the Vatican Council's work in 1962 by Pope John XXIII. It ended Dec. 8, 1965.

Thief Abandons Stolen Vehicle

A burglar stole a 1966 car at Carter Chevrolet on Main St. early this morning, then abandoned it on the street after hitting a tree. He got into a car that was following him.

The thief entered Carter's by breaking an office window on the north side of the building. Police said he went to the second floor and broke through a door, probably by kicking it in, that leads to offices and a car parts room.

He returned downstairs and rolled out in the car, closing the garage door behind him. Police said the car went to left turn into Spruce St. too fast.

The car struck a tree, police said, and the driver jumped out and got into a green car that was following him.

A 1960 car was stolen overnight from the driveway of W. Center St. home. The owner, Eliza Becker of 96 W. Center St., found the car missing this morning. There were no keys inside, but the woman said she may have left the ignition on.

Jury Indictment First Degree Murder Charged to Vennard

A Hartford grand jury returned yesterday an indictment of first degree murder against Dennis Vennard of Manchester, who is accused of killing his mother with a hammer while she slept.

The Superior Court grand jury returned a "true bill" indictment at about 4 p.m. after about five hours of deliberations. Six witnesses testified before the jury.

Judge Leo Parky, who heard the indictment, appointed two psychiatrists to examine Vennard. The request for psychiatric tests was made by Vennard's attorney, Wesley C. Kelly, of Manchester. State's Atty. John D. LaBelle said he had no objections.

The psychiatrist, Dr. Harold A. Bancroft and Dr. Robert C. Deberry, will present their findings to the grand jury during its deliberations, heard the indictment without any show of emotion.

The 29-year-old Vennard was arrested on June 9, moments after his mother, Mrs. Mae Vennard, 184 Hollister St., was found unconscious on the living room sofa. She died a few hours later of head injuries.

Mrs. Vennard, who was 51, was employed in the town assessor's office and was prominent in Town Democratic politics. Vennard lived with his parents and was their only child.
