One of the most appealing aspects of lowntown Renewal is the promise it ofers of recapturing a pleasant custom which used to be enjoyed in Manchester and elsewhere—the custom of shop-

Perhaps it would be extravagant to may that a whole generation has grown up without having been acquainted with his enjoyable and normally profitable pastime, but it is obvious that "shopping" in its old sense is unusual if not mpossible today in most places.

variety of distinctive characters. It needs, too, a psychology on the part of the shopper which permits him to realize that even if he has not succeeded in getting exactly what he wants, he has made an intelligent effort and has not bought in desperation. The practical advantage of shopping that the customer who does it makes merits of what he is buying before he buys it rather than afterward, as is often the case. His chances of buying right are increased greatly.

No doubt the changes in the buying sabits of Manchester residents and other people has a great many causes, but certainly one reason for the demise of shopping is the downgrading of "centers," the traditional community market

Such centers were once no less important in a growing village than in an stablished city. They had in each case the great advantages of compactness, accessibility and as much variety as the market area warranted.

Those centers served a social function as casual meeting places. Many old Manchester residents remark that they used to be able to walk down. Main Street and know everybody they met. It s probably an exaggeration even when applied to old times, but it does illustrate the fact that residents could identify themselves with the downtown area. Downtown was, in a sense, a common property. It was the single mafor focal point which gave a community Its distinctive character.

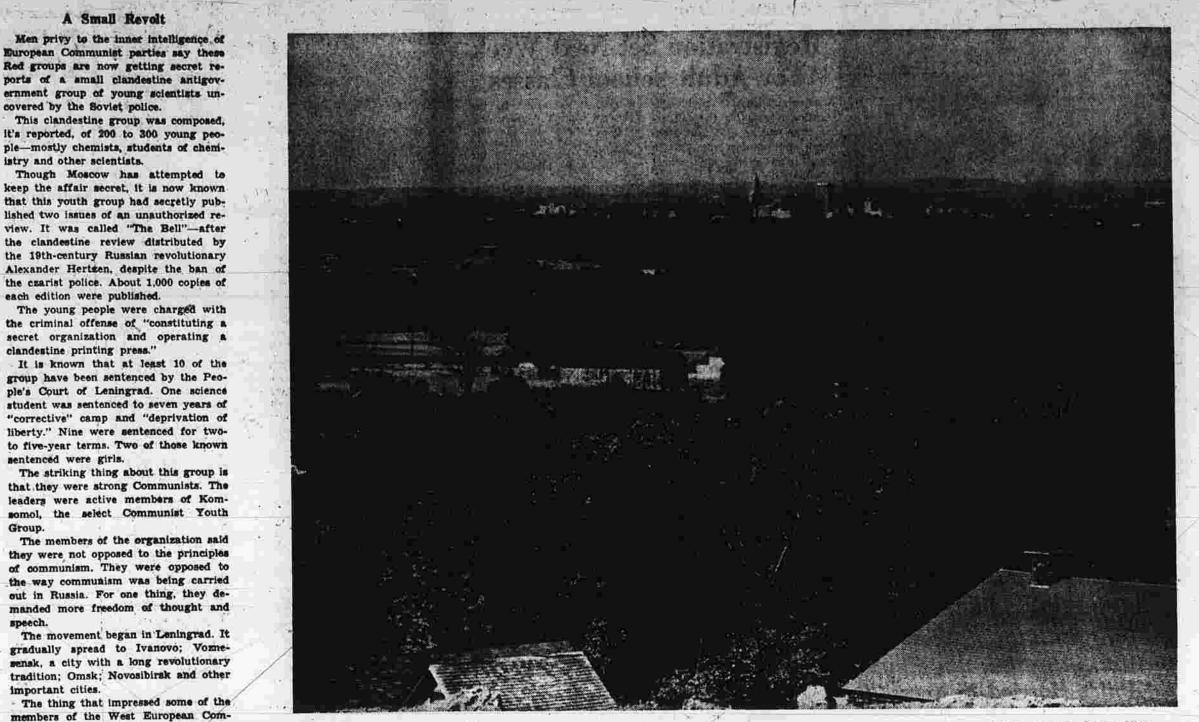

With the fantastic increase in the number of automobiles came the spread and sprawl, the big decentralization within regions and within towns. Downlowns cease to be regarded by most people as a common concern and, frozen into their situations by street and utility atterns, they began to deteriorate. The assumption was that outlying hopping centers would supplant them without producing any new community oblems of their own, an assumption hich has proved unfounded.

Until federal renewal came into existence as a means of halting the nation's growing blight there seemed to be no way a community could undertake the costly job of saving its downtown area. Renewal provides it. Manchester now has that opportunity.

A sentimental attachment to an older sabit of shopping, in itself, would hardseem a sufficient excuse for the efort and money involved. It might be, though, that there is a bigger market for that non-frustrating type of shopsing than is supposed. If so, a renewed owntown, with its leisurely mall and take note of them. plans for expansion, might prosper

This year, for instance, two candidates for Congress in Connecticut were professors long before they were politicians. Robert D. Cook, who holds a Ph.D. in sociology, teaches at Yale; Robert Minot, an author in his own right, teaches English at Trinity. Both men are running on the American Independent ticket. Cook in the Third district, which includes New Haven: Minot n the Sixth District, which includes Southington, Bristol, and most of Litchfield County to boot.

Both of these men are professors now and doubtless will go on being professors, for there is little likelihood that the voters will send them to Congress, principally because they are third party candidates in a two-party political sys-But both Cook and Minot have im-

Introducing two of the most radical changes in Volkswagen history. Can you spot them?

Did you notice that the headights are vertical now instead of leaning back a bit? That doesn't make the car look any better. But it makes the road look better by making the lights a little brighter. And that little hump in the back? We did that to hold the license plate up straight so the police can read it better. (Sorry) What you won't notice without driving the new model are the big improvements

The engine has been enlarged to a ferocious 53 horsepower. That only adds 3 m.p.h. to the top speed. Because we put most of the additional power where it would make the engine accelerate toster, turn slower and lost even longer.

Now that the VW is getting to be such a hot car, we put in a couple of things to slow it down. Dual

The front wheel brakes are completely independent of the rear wheel brakes. So if you ever lost the front wheel brakes, you could still stop the back of the car. (Which automatically stops the front of

The new VW also has seat belts, backup lights and recessed door handles as standard equipment. In fact, this year we made so many changes on the VW that we thought we'd better make one more. We wrote "Volkswagen" on the back of the car to be sure everybody would know what it was,
