The Voters Give, And Take

Yesterday, in Manchester, they took the town government away from the Democrats and handed it to the Republicans...

After democracy's performance in Manchester yesterday, there will be a lot of picking up to be done...

The Democrats, after yesterday, will have to pick up the pieces of their government they adored upon the four year span of power now ending for them...

The Republicans, after yesterday, will now begin to pick up the powers and responsibilities of Manchester government...

The subsequent, forward responsibility of the Republicans will be more difficult to discharge...

Perhaps the hardest working unit in the aftermath of yesterday, is that of the analysts...

Endoubtedly, as well, there was a "backlash" vote in Manchester yesterday...

Those are, in Manchester as everywhere, times of ferment and struggle...

334 A Head

"Condolence and aid." That, according to the news from Vietnam, is what was being offered...

The standard condolence, in such cases, consists of the payment of $54 to the nearest relatives of the dead victims...

For the wounded, of whom there were 17 in this particular instance, the amount of official condolence payment is somewhat less.

Relatives of the dead, and the wounded, in such instances, developed a very Americanized habit of suing the United States for additional compensation...

In addition to such official condolence, the United States, in such instances, also moves blankets, sleeping mats, and what into such a village, to help sleep and feed the survivors...

Does anyone mind if we also repeat that it is the kind of thing which has some slight weight to the opinion that it is high time mankind found, through giving real power and allegiance to the United Nations...

Let George Do It George is a great guy. He works hard at his job and he plays hard when he's not working...

Benjamin Franklin was a good citizen who works at it. True, he has no use for politicians...

Sometimes, if the weather is too bad for golf—if he has nothing else to do on Election Day—he'll go to the polls more often than not...

Suddenly, by some strange twist, a friend or acquaintance manages to interest him in a political dispute...

Actually, Lindsay's review board is a rather mild revision while he was playing golf, shuffling cards for a gin or just sitting out election campaigns...

All of a sudden, he wants to know why certain people happen to represent him on the town or city committee...

The subsequent, forward responsibility of the Republicans will be more difficult to discharge...

Perhaps the hardest working unit in the aftermath of yesterday, is that of the analysts...

Endoubtedly, as well, there was a "backlash" vote in Manchester yesterday...

Those are, in Manchester as everywhere, times of ferment and struggle...

Those were different. I had no personal interest in the candidates or what was going on in the party...

Well, mister, that's my attitude now—the attitude of a politically well-acquainted veteran, suffering disillusionment because so many guys like you couldn't be stirred into lending a hand to help pick and elect candidates...

Very often the Georges who have "discovered" politics, enjoy the excitement, stay with it and they sometimes help improve the party...

Three or four conversations with George can be an exercise in futility. Of such stuff are cynics made...

Technology With No Goal We are developing a technology that is changing our lives, yet we have no goal for it...

Just to add to the gaiety of the current state campaign, there is a dash of constitutional difficulty on both sides of the battle...

On the Democratic side, the difficulty is easily located and labeled and dramatized. It is a clash between the veteran statesman, John Bailey, and the hungry young lion, Arthur Barbieri of New Haven...

It is a clash which has about as much principle in it as the meeting of two bees on the same blossom. And, outside of providing something of a spectacle for those who like to watch the game of politics...

But beyond this, the far deeper significance of the referendum lies in its impact on the already overburdened city government. Rights movement, here and in every major city in the country...

If the voters of the nation's most liberal city throw out the review board, the signal to other cities and other politicians will be clear...

NEW YORK—Overriding in significance the race for governor is a Nov. 8 referendum in New York City that reveals the whip of the white backlash in this most liberal of all U.S. cities...

As of now, the city's voters, traditionally faithful to liberal causes, seem likely to decisively reject liberal Republican Mayor John V. Lindsay's new revision board...

And because the creation of such boards is an integral part of the civil rights program of urban Negro leaders, the vote will have profound anti-Negro implications...

And because the creation of such boards is an integral part of the civil rights program of urban Negro leaders, the vote will have profound anti-Negro implications...

Actually, Lindsay's review board is a rather mild revision while he was playing golf, shuffling cards for a gin or just sitting out election campaigns...

All of a sudden, he wants to know why certain people happen to represent him on the town or city committee...

The subsequent, forward responsibility of the Republicans will be more difficult to discharge...

Perhaps the hardest working unit in the aftermath of yesterday, is that of the analysts...

Endoubtedly, as well, there was a "backlash" vote in Manchester yesterday...

Those are, in Manchester as everywhere, times of ferment and struggle...

Those were different. I had no personal interest in the candidates or what was going on in the party...

Well, mister, that's my attitude now—the attitude of a politically well-acquainted veteran, suffering disillusionment because so many guys like you couldn't be stirred into lending a hand to help pick and elect candidates...

Very often the Georges who have "discovered" politics, enjoy the excitement, stay with it and they sometimes help improve the party...

Three or four conversations with George can be an exercise in futility. Of such stuff are cynics made...

Technology With No Goal We are developing a technology that is changing our lives, yet we have no goal for it...

NEW YORK—Overriding in significance the race for governor is a Nov. 8 referendum in New York City that reveals the whip of the white backlash in this most liberal of all U.S. cities...

As of now, the city's voters, traditionally faithful to liberal causes, seem likely to decisively reject liberal Republican Mayor John V. Lindsay's new revision board...
