Mr. Tameky Is Persuasive The Herald hesitates to try to exert o much choice or influence in the public debate now going on between a uperintendent of schools, who lives in Wallingford and a town planner who ives in West Hartford over the proper ocation of additional school facilities in the center of the town of Manchester. Perhaps any umpiring between the two should be left to the General Manaer, who lives in Windsor.

It could be said, in any case, that the problem being debated is not one susceptible to any ideal solution. No matter who is discussing it or analyzing it, the choice has trouble rising above the status of one seeking the lesser evil. At this stage of the debate, we are inclined to favor the lesser evil selected and championed by Town Planner Joseph Tamsky, of West Hartford, over that favored by Superintendent of Schools William Curtis of Wallingford. And we hope it may be possible to persuade General Manager Robert Weiss of Windsor to agree that Mr. Tamsky presents the proposition for Manchester which Manchester ought to consider most seriously. The Tamsky study proposes that Lincoln School ultimately be abandoned and that its future student population be distributed among Bentley, Nathan Hale he contends, will soon stand in need of expansion and modernization anyway. It is a powerful coefficient argument that the center of town area now served by Lincoln is now, and is likely to continue to be, an area of relative decline in schooli age. population. It is another great merit of the Tamsky proposal that it would be able to divide the school children of the area up among the three other schools in such a manner that none of them would have to cross main thoroughfares on their way to school, while there seems no possible relocation of a new Lincoln School building which would not entail a continuation of what are felt to be present traffic hazards. We share, as do many others, Mr Tamsky's reluctance to approve the use of established park or recreation land, either in Center Springs Park, or at Memorial Field, for the purpose of a new Lincoln School. And so far we conclude, as does just about everybody else, that no ideal alternative site has yet been spotted by anybody. If there were any such ideal site in existence, it might be worth while to inaugurate tentative negotiations with the private owners involved, to see if they would consent to sell. For the right kind of site, a high initial cost of land investment could be

We do not believe, however, that any such site has yet been discussed. Town Planner Tamsky has, we be-Heve, put forward the most persuasive analysis of the possibilities which have been offered, and pointed in the direction of what would seem to us to be the least objectionable solution.

It Did Happen, Didn't It? With one phase of the reversal by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals of the murder conviction of Jack Ruby there cannot be too much definite quarrel. It is part of the Texas criminal code-not the result of any new ruling by the United States Supreme Court—that any onfession used and admitted must be proved to have been voluntary and pontaneous—and that the prosecution was able to do this with the statement in which Luby admitted that he intended beforehand to go to the jail and kill Lee Harvey Oswald is dublous.

The second phase of the reversal aises, however, a question which seeems almost beyond answer. The higher court judges held that the judge presiding at the Luby trial should have ented defense motions for a change venue. The trial, they decree, should save been held in some other county of

We would raise the question of whether indeed there was any other ounty of Texas, or, indeed, any other ounty of any other state, where a trial of Puby free of emotional factors and ens could have been held.

All of Texas, in our opinion, felt as strongly in this drama as did Dallas. And we are not sure that all of America wasn't inevitably subject to the same emotional pressures.

This was, after all, the crime which was committed on television, before the eyes of millions of viewers, as the sequel to and attempted judgment upon ng the whole heart and mind of the whole nation for the preceding 48 hours. We would say that it would have been impossible then, and might remain impossible now, to try to find anywhere in the United States a location where the trial of Ruby could have been conducted in what might have been considered ideal circumstances of atmosphere and This could never have meant, and cannot mean now, that the trial should never be held. When we cannot eradicate those conditions which are legitimately involved in questions of a proper venue we have to turn from change of geography to an expectation for high level functioning on the part of human beings, and hope for juries which can elevate their deliberations and their decisions above the atmosphere which may be beating against their jury room door.

There is no real evidence the Dallas Ruby case jury didn't perform just that way. There does seem to be some considerable danger, on the other hand, that a murder committed in full view of millions of witnesses may be ultimately legalized around so much the final decision could be it never took place.

Hot Halves

When, the other day, some total stranger noticed a half dollar in a handful of change we happened to be displaying, and asked if he could have it, we took two quarters for it without much thought, and thereby, it seems, lost an opportunity to explore, at first hand, the great mystery of the half dol-

Why is hoarding half dollars the thing

Perhaps our particular hoarder didn't really know. Perhaps he merely t, and wanted to get into the act. Some people, supposedly, are hoarding half dollars for the sentimental value of the Kennedy connection. Others, it is said, are waiting for a rise in the price of silver. If silver should go up enough, it might, some day, be profitable to melt the half dollars down and sell the metal. Coin dealers and Las Vegas gambling houses are both willing to pay a premium Whatever the explanation, the half dollar is a hot item. If you have one, don't expose it in public. Not, of course, unless you deliberately insist on posing like some amiable square who doesn't know what's going on in the world.

Yale's Carillon The big sound of music these days is an old one—the chiming of great caril-lon bells. Yale University now has one of the world's major carillons. The number of fixed bells near the 257 foot top of Harkness Tower has been increased from 10 to 54. The public has heard and enjoyed carillon music since Harkness Tower was erected in 1921. Now it is able to see as well as hear the bells of the fully chromatic carillon. The Harkness carillon is the mos nodern in the world, a vast improvement over the oldest-a 24-bell set dating to 1554 and now in the Rijks Museum in Amsterdam, The Netherlands. New engineering techniques, including the application of electronics, re responsible for this change. The charm of Europe's carillons was ot discovered by Americans until after World War II. Then the idea caught on rapidly. Campaniles rose at churches, in parks and on college campuses like Yale. Foday more than 100 carillons ring out across the nation from Harkness Tower to the Hoover Bells at Stanford Univer-ity near San Francisco. A carillonneur must be both a musician and a muscleman. At Yale he must climb nearly 200 feet to reach the ceyboard. Considerable strength is need ed to operate the keys and pedals. The carillonneur wears gloves to protect his hands. The gloves are comfortable in cold weather in the unheated keyboard tier of the tower. Gloves add to the discomfort on hot summer days. The enlarged carillon at Yale is made ossible by a gift to the University by necticut historian. The 54 bronze bells made in England and weighing over 43 tons, sound when struck by tethered clappers. The clappers are tripped by wires connected to the carillonneur's teyboard, like a jumbo-size piano. The sourdon, or base bell, is as large as London's famous "Big Ben."

The first selection to be played Sunday afternoon after the formal dedication of the new carillon set represented one of Yale's mottoes-"For God. For country and for Yale." This was appropriate. And, it might be added, for the joyment of the entire downtown area. Yale and New Haven have another fasility in which both can take fresh pride THE NEW HAVEN REGISTER.

The Rockefeller battle plan took shape late last year, with one major object: To saturate the airwaves, the press and the highways with an unending barrage of soft-sell Rockefeller propaganda dramatizing alleged gains for the state of New York during the past eight

The television portion of this saturation campaign began in July, earlier than any similar TV campaign in the state's history. During one hour and half span one night this week, a single TV network carried no less than four one-minute spots singling out specific Rockefeller programs, such as roads and health, and singing their praises. The Underlying Cause

To the Editor, It remains to be seen how Monday's election results will be evaluated in the press, but there seems to be only one factor that could have defeated the most progressive administration Manchester has had in a number of years; one factor which could have siphoned off such a great number of votes from the emocratic column. That issue was the busing plan which aroused so much fear in so many people (many of whom, it appears, are registered Democrats). Surely, there was no other issue which was capable of weakening Democratic support in the so-called "workingman's districts." It is so unfortunate that an issue like busing, which the Democratic majority squarely faced and to which there was no alternative but a "yes" answer, was exploited by the Republicans and has been the underlying cause for a Republican victory. After this election, will any public official dare to sup port any program intended to en Manchester's society to non-Caucasians, to eradicate the silent bigotry of our suburh? Local Democrats should learn from the results, regardless of their statement that had they another chance they would not have done differently. They should learn that in politics it. must be difficult, it not impossible, to attempt to be moral, and be re-elected too. The histories of those members of the Democratic majority might indeed seem to be a local "cofiles in courage." The decisions concerning future policy of the party leaders have not been made as yet, but it seems that they shall have to take into consideration the power of reaction. It dishonors our town that relatively few people were troubled by their consciences Tuesday morning. Will the purpose of our new administration be to take posi tive action, to "do," or to undo This, too, remains to be seen but the indications provided b our most recent exercise of democracy are certainly not en-

Club began its year's activities with a meeting held recently at which officers were elected. The group's new president is Dave White, '67, Claudia Messier, '67, was elected vice-president, and Barry Sandals, '67,

Plans for the year were also entatively outlined at the meeting. Mr, Lewis who is again erving as adviser, pointed out Dr. Martin Duke, who in past ears has functioned as a liaison between the medical profession arranged lectures and tours of fanchester Memorial Hospital by other Manchester doctors, as vell as himself, which the members have always found very informative, as many of their inments include a trip to a drug company in Groton, visited last year, and to Hartford Hospital. The Pre-Med Club is designed to stimulate and satisfy student interest in the health professions. Through the tours and ectures conducted by local doctors, members can often get some very good ideas about the careers they propose to follow.
