New England Vignettes Women's Daytime Duties Cover Variety of Jobs

BOSTON (AP)—New England women have a wide variety of jobs, ranging from first graders to a high school senior, they were told in a series of vignettes.
The vignettes, which were prepared by the National Women's Daytime Duties Committee, announced last month that the Peace Prize will not be awarded this year. As usual no reason was given.
Several possibilities have been suggested: never-ending war against the wax buildup, strewn toys to the supermarket in search of bargains, mopping up behind baby.
"Also, it has been suggested (by men) that women go back to bed at 9:00 a.m. and get up at 4:30 p.m. in time to go to a bed of bones for dinner."
"Ridiculous," snorted a panel of women in the Boston area when asked for comments.
"I haven't been back to bed at 9:00 a.m. since I was a child," said Mrs. Eleanor Smyly of Winchester.
Women without children or with grown children claim a wide variety of chores from social work to art to part-time jobs.
The most indignation to the back-to-bed criticism came from mothers with children.
"I'm in the center of a continuing crisis," explained Mrs. Mary Crozier of Boston. "This can cover the whole range of the sofa, fixing a broken zipper, painting a picture frame or a chair—up to 19 when the coastal fishing season opens this year to Oct. 29."
Bollard averaged 15 strips a day, most of the time working in the home.
"On the last day, he booked 111 coats in three hours. And that was in spite of the competition of an enemy gray-faced seal which spent the day splashing around his boat chasing fish and being obnoxious."
FAITHFUL FELINE
JEWEL, Ariz. (AP)—Gary Jewett, 10, reluctantly gave his long-haired cat, Thomas, for adoption six months ago at Sunnyslope, Ariz., nearly 20 miles away.
The 2-year-old cat returned recently and Gary's mother has agreed to take him home.
"I hate to throw him out a second time," she said.

TRULY GREAT PLAYER MUST SHOW EMPATHY
BY ALFRED SHEINWOLD
A great player is sympathetic to his partner's good ideas at a cold contract. Rather than chuckle or laugh out loud, he says, "I'm looking out the window right now and you can't see more than 400 or 500 yards." Stauffer said, "I've called the state highway patrol and the Highway Department a couple of times already and there's no one who can tell us when we'll get out."
Civil Defense officials spent six hours bringing coats and blankets 10 miles to the school Wednesday night. Until the supplies arrived, the children talked, played games or watched the television.
Long-time village resident and veterinarian Dr. Louis Harrod said his wife voluntarily spent the night in the school. He and Mrs. Jack Goldsmith of Harrod. They helped watch over the children and run the school cafeteria.
The Allen County Sheriff's Department battled through the snow to bring insulin to a diabetic pupil.
"Except for a couple of youngsters who got homesick, most of the kids seem to be taking it as an adventure," Stauffer said. "I've never seen a group of kids so happy except another nature."
As Wednesday's first snow of the year blanketed the entire western half of the state, other schools reported other problems.
At tiny Maria Stein, near Columbus, 30 Marion local high school pupils split into groups of eight to 10 and spent the night with nearby residents after snow halted school buses.
Parents and authorities searched six hours before finding a club truck; and at West leads anything else, dummy cuts while South discards a club. Either way the contract is unplayable.

Hebron O'Neill Answers Fellows On Issue of Experience

William O'Neill, Democratic candidate for state representative from the 82nd district, told a Marlborough audience Tuesday night, "The claims of life, fellowships of 'lack of experience' in State Government sound like the death throes of his campaign that never got off the ground."
"I am the first to admit that my experience comes through local government work. If experience is all that is necessary for public office, I would not expect Mr. Fellows to endorse Governor Dempsey, as he is a candidate with an enormous amount of State Government experience," said O'Neill. His opponent is the Republican Douglas Feltus.
He continued, "I believe Mr. Fellows' idea of sub-representatives in each town is his attempt to associate himself with well thought of people in the respective towns. In hopes that this will gain him votes from the voters in the 82nd District will see through this form of political hackney."
O'Neill said, "I believe that voters should have the privilege of contacting their representatives anytime through a third party. I also believe that town and state problems should be handled through the elected body of the State in each town, as they are the governing body of the town and are legally and morally responsible to the citizens."
Baseball Meeting
The officers and coaches of the Hebron Baseball (Association) met at the home of George Smith, president of the association on last Friday.
The group expressed their thanks to all who helped make the season a success. Any boys who have not returned their uniforms are requested to do so immediately to their respective coaches or leave them at Calio's store on Rt. 6A.
The association will hold an organizational meeting in January. The meeting will be open to anyone interested in helping with the three leagues which are the Little League, Pony and Colt leagues.
FHA Host to Gobling
Hebron PTA hosted 225 children at the annual Halloween parties Monday night. Judges for the elementary school party were Mrs. Bart Minter, Mrs. Bruce Lippincott and George Temple. Costume prizes were awarded to the following: Pretzel, Karen Robinson; funniest, Tracy McHugh and Halloween theme, Michelle Merber. Judge at Phelps Hall were Mrs.

A 1966 white Chevrolet containing a suit valued at $100 and two trench coats, were stolen from a Park St. man some time between 11 p.m. yesterday and 6:10 a.m. today.

Christmas Truce in Viet Seen in Pope's Goal Again

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Vatican circles think Pope Paul VI will appeal for a Christmas truce in Viet Nam again this year.
Roving U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman, after a 46-minute meeting with the Pope Wednesday, said he did not rule out the possibility of such a appeal.
"Vatican circles said they would issue a appeal call for another cease-fire likely," they said. "The Pope was disappointed that Christmas did not become permanent, the pontiff was deeply satisfied that even a temporary pause in the bloodshed had taken place."
U.S. and South Vietnamese military leaders responded to the Pope's appeal last Christmas and, subsequently, a 37-day pause in American bombing of North Viet Nam while Washington pressed a campaign to get Hanoi to the conference table.
U.S. commanders charged that the Communists, who said they observed a 12-hour cease-fire, committed 84 violations during the holiday period.
Both sides ordered a cease-fire last January during Tet, the four-day lunar New Year holiday observed throughout Viet Nam. U.S. military men again listed a series of Communist violations.
Harriman told newsmen again that there is no concrete evidence of any forthcoming negotiations on Viet Nam.
Harriman also spent 30 minutes with the Foreign Minister Amintore Fanfani before seeing the Pope and later

Vietnam Is Not Korea

President Johnson, in his speeches in Korea, was at least factual enough to note that the answer to aggression in Korea in 1950 was one in which the United States had the association of the United Nations.
 But his inclusion of the fact that the United Nations voted to oppose the aggression in Korea was the end of his candor on the subject. He did not go on to discuss some of the other distinguishing features of the war in Korea—such as the fact that the United States itself fought, under the United Nations flag and under a United Nations supreme commander—such as the fact that a healthy variety of United Nations members voluntarily contributed help and troops to the United Nations police effort in Korea—such as the fact that the United Nations sat in on the negotiations for truce—and now participates in the supervision of that truce.
 The President was, in his speeches in Korea, trying to equate what happened there in 1950 with what has been happening in Vietnam since 1964.
 But the one biggest difference is obvious. In 1950, the United States itself went to the United Nations for action. In 1964, the United States kept the United Nations to one side while it acted itself.
 To be fair to the President, both with regard to his action and his argument, there were other vital differences between Korea and Vietnam.
 In Korea, there was an organized, viable, professional military attack across a recognized border, occurring at a specific time at specific places. In Vietnam, by contrast, there were merely suspicious and inferences of noisings across frontier and the overt crossing of any frontier by organized armed force took place only after the United States itself had entered the conflict and openly and deliberately crossed the frontier in question itself, with its bombing missions.
 These contrasting circumstances, in themselves, made United Nations action possible in the one situation, but much more difficult in the other.
 The most serious single question raised about American foreign policy since World War II has been, nevertheless, that of why the United States did not seek United Nations action on Vietnam before it took action itself, and furthermore, took actions which in themselves could be subject to United Nations disapproval, or censure, or be considered against both the spirit and the letter of the United Nations Charter.
 If the United States had gone to the United Nations first, and had failed to obtain any assumption of jurisdiction there, it might at least have had a little more world understanding if it then moved to do something unilaterally. The United States made no such effort. To the contrary, it continually and repeatedly shouldered aside any United Nations efforts to begin to deal with the problem of Vietnam. Instead, we seemed to be feeling our responsibilities, our destinies, our opportunities as a "Pacific-Asian power," which is the role which has given us the greatest respect in the past few months.
 When we finally conceded the existence of the United Nations in relationship to the war in Vietnam, we went to it not to offer to submit our own acts and policies to judgment, but with an offer to receive, through its auspices, the capitulation of our enemy.
 That is the vital difference. And it is the difference which explains why the war in Korea could be fought and brought to a conclusion without running the danger of becoming World War III, while the war in Vietnam has been steadily escalating toward that terrible danger, and seems likely, by all sense of the net results of the President's present Asian policy, to be the verge of new and "firmer" steps in that same direction.

Bone and Goldberg For Congress

The Republican nominees for Congress in the two Congressional Districts which concern this newspaper are, this year, two of the best.
 In the First District, which includes Manchester as well as the other Hartford County towns east of the river, the candidacy of John Bone on the Republican ticket offers the voters, for the first time in many years, a real choice of individuals and principles. Candidate Bone has been campaigning with refreshing honesty, vigor, and intelligence. He doesn't like much of what he sees going on in Washington, and he says so, and he gives intelligent reasons for his own judgments, and balanced, reasonable promises about what he will try to accomplish if he himself is elected.
 In the Second District, the great sprawling district which includes all the rest of Connecticut east of the river, Joseph Goldberg has also proved himself a strong, persuasive, and independent-thinking nominee.
 It is a pleasure to be able to recommend Republican nominees for Congress in their own right, and it is an especially healthy and fortunate thing that the Republican Party has, this year, taken pains to select such positive, creditable candidates.
 For this could be—and ought to be, in our opinion—one of the most important mid-term Congressional elections in a very long time.
 A mid-term election for Congress gives the voters a chance to send a tactful message down to Washington, demonstrating what they think of the conduct of the American Presidency in the preceding two years.
 If they approve the way the President has been running himself and the country, the voters normally make their own party, sometimes with increased voting support.
 If they find themselves dissatisfied with the President's conduct of the Presidency, they express that by decreasing the number of votes for Congressmen of his party, and even by replacing them in districts where change is politically possible, with new members of Congress from the other party.
 The President himself is straining every nerve, every gesture, every gimmick within reach of the vast powers of his office to turn this election into a referendum which he himself is going to be certain to win.
 The voters should take the challenge of his tactics and demonstrate, in the only language he understands, which is that of votes, either their satisfaction or their uneasiness with his conduct.
 We do not believe many voters who have been students of President Johnson's leadership and conduct during the past two years would choose to run the risk of letting him think he is getting a pat on the back. One can imagine the heavy kind of mandate he would construct for himself out of election returns which seemed to show the country in a complacent mood.
 What concerns the country is not merely such specific crisis problems as Vietnam, or inflation, as much as it is a crisis of leadership.
 The President does not seem to understand how far he has removed himself from the instinct and will of the people, on the one hand, and how transparent and obvious, on the other hand, are the devices and explanations by which he seeks to justify his own conduct to the very people whose interests he seems to forget.
 There is an awful stranger in the White House, who has forgotten how he got there and who put him there.
 Our Democratic candidates for Congress, if they are elected, will go down to Washington carrying the message to the President that the people of the First and Second Districts in Connecticut think he is doing so well they want more of the same.
 The two highly able Republican candidates, John Bone in the First District, and Joseph Goldberg in the Second, will, if they are elected, go down to Washington with constructive criticism, with a warning to a headstrong White House not to take the American people for granted, with a plea for an end to recklessness either at home or abroad.
 The vote for Congress offers people a chance to express the concern they really feel about the life and death issues of our time.

Points for LaBonne
 To the Editor:
 I have worked on a day to day, week to week basis for almost a decade with Ted LaBonne, the Republican candidate for senator from this district. It is easy to understand why so many of the business and professional men in the area will vote for him. They know him and respect his ability.
 But why should the man who works in industry or the office worker vote for him? What does he have that makes him a candidate of the people? There are dozens of answers to this but let me point out a few.
 1. He is deeply concerned with the rapid rise of living costs which not only affects the housewives and their budgets, but perhaps even more, the elderly who are living on fixed incomes. He would do everything he could to make our state expenditures realistic and our dollar sound.
 2. The gross mishandling of speeding violations by our present administration will be one of the most important issues to be considered at the polls in Manchester is the new school for our South End—(Globe Hollow School).
 3. There is absolutely no reason for any controversy whatsoever in this matter. The school is needed and is a must—and now, to wait or to make debate at this time will only hurt our children and the high standards that we are continually trying to maintain in Manchester education.
 The sincere questions that have been asked I am convinced have been answered. Let us now get on with the business of voting in the school and get started on the construction before perspective is lost and goals missed.

25 Years Ago
 As far as any observer can tell, Governor Dempsey and his Democratic strategists have not weakened their own case at any time during the campaign.
 The Governor personally has not become anything less than what he was before the campaign began; neither, we should judge, has he graduated into any dimensions greater than those which were his before his campaign.
 He is still an earnest, pleasant, totally well-meaning individual who would never make any conscious choice for anything wrong, who believes his own sincere platitudes, who is something of an everyman in Governor's office, against whom no personal slur of any kind can conceivably be made, and whose only limitation is one of caliber: He is not a big gun in his official executive capacity; he does not boom very convincingly when he is campaigning.
 So he has, for the campaign, held pretty much the even tenor of his ways. If he has scored no great dramatic triumphs, neither has he stumbled into any very deep pits or traps along the campaign jungle trail. He emerges from the campaign pretty much as he entered it.
 The Governor has not, by any doing or saying of his own, been losing the election. As for the Democratic campaign and campaign strategy, aside from the personal performance of his chief candidate, it has also revealed no essential variation from that competent use of its available assets for which we credited it in our first assessment early last month.
 "It hasn't been losing the election for itself, either. Perhaps the chief thing it has had to do to avoid throwing anything away is to keep its hand, post-

 "All Things for Good?"
 One of the most frequently quoted verses in the Bible claims "boldly and emphatically that all things work together for good." Not long ago a mother explained her son's death to me with these words. So to use the Bible is to lead one down the garden path into both unfaith as well as untruth. The newer translations make the facts much clearer and closer to the mind of Christ. "In all situations God is at work for good with those who love him. Even in grief I sought to correct her misunderstanding of this verse. Finally she exclaimed, "Thank you very much. I never did really believe that text anyway."
 Prayer: O God help me to be more honest in my faith and in all situations work with me for good for I do love Thee. Through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

"No Reason For Controversy"
 To the Editor:
 On the 8th of November one of the most important issues to be considered at the polls in Manchester is the new school for our South End—(Globe Hollow School).
 There is absolutely no reason for any controversy whatsoever in this matter. The school is needed and is a must—and now, to wait or to make debate at this time will only hurt our children and the high standards that we are continually trying to maintain in Manchester education.

Mrs. Williams' Two-Way Gift

One can recognize, in the decision of Mrs. Frank V. Williams of Tolland Turnpike, to deed 62 acres of land for eventual addition to Wickham Park, a do-something-for-the-people-for-the-people, and no less understandable, a wish to be kind to the community.
 This is land which has been fruitful under the tillage of four generations of Williamses; how, in these days, can the proprietors of such good land show their gratitude and affection for it? By allowing it to take its natural economic course under the blades of the bulldozers, after which it might come out as a close-packed housing development, or a flat-paved shopping center?
 Mrs. Williams has been able to find and choose an alternative which can be guaranteed to leave the land her family worked and loved open to the enjoyment and the affection of other human beings down into the future. It will not have to be denied its place in the wind and the sun and the rain. It will not have to be denied the passage of human footsteps. It will still be able to change with the seasons, to wake and sleep, to bloom and brown, and to preserve its own shimmering memories, in a kind of gentle, but useful retirement good land deserves to have when its partnership with its men has to be dissolved.
 We hope Mrs. Williams feels as happy in her gift as future generations are going to be in using it, as happy as the land itself must be, to know how well it has been loved. We thank her for her gift to us, and to the land.

Events in the World

Danes May Elect Copenhagen

(AP) — Political sources say Prime Minister Jens Otto Krag will call national elections Nov. 22 to test the country's opinion on his proposal for pay-as-you-earn income taxes.

The sources said the 52-year-old leader of Denmark's minority Socialist government has given up trying to push his tax change through Parliament in the face of mounting attacks from the Conservative and Venstre parties.

He was reported completing the necessary constitutional formalities before announcing his intentions to Princess Margrethe, the heiress to the throne who is acting as regent during the Italian vacation of her father, King Frederik IX.

Under the present system, Danes are taxed on their previous year's earnings.

Script Ignored

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — The script called for a pledge of loyalty to Prince Norodom Sihanouk, the Cambodian chief of state, but instead Cambodia's new premier announced today that his government is resigning.

The premier, Gen. Lon Nol, was among several hundred persons who met at the palace to pledge their loyalty. Leaders of the demonstration read out resolutions supporting Sihanouk, but when the premier's turn came he announced the government's resignation and called on the prime minister to designate a new Cabinet.

The resignation is not likely to cause any great difficulty for Sihanouk, who is the country's undisputed ruler.

Yemen Shakeup

SANA, Yemen (AP) — President Abdullah Al-Salali continued the shakeup of his government Wednesday night with an announcement that a number of "unproductive" employees had been dismissed from the ministries of information, agriculture, justice and foreign affairs.

The cabinet met and issued a list of the employees. Officials said a second list will be announced next week.

Hill 'Walking'

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — A 150-foot hill started moving Wednesday near Krakow, the Polish press agency reported. There were no earth tremors, but the hill just moved and began "walking." A road nearby was buried and authorities had to switch off electric power in the vicinity.

Italian Costs Hold

ROME (AP) — The Italian government announced today that for the first time in five years the quarterly cost of living scale that determines bonuses for millions of Italian workers did not rise.

The August-October scale showed 147.9 points, the same as the previous quarter. The base is 100 points in 1956. Each added point on the scale means an automatic salary increase of between two and six cents.

Alcohol Tests Set

LONDON (AP) — British coroners have been ordered to have alcohol tests made on drivers who within 12 hours of a road accident.

Town History Goes on Sale

Copies of Manchester Historical Society's 46-page history, "This Is Manchester," are now available to townspeople and may be purchased at the Junior Museum during museum hours at slightly over cost. The museum hours are daily except Monday from 2 to 5 p.m. "This Is Manchester" is the first formal history of the town's body of school children. It was produced last year by a group of 12 retired teachers for use in the town's third grade history classes.

North Korean Ambush Seen Move to Embarrass Johnson

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — today, occurred three hours after the North Korean attack in the past two weeks, U.S. officials said today they do not think the Communists are building up to major hostilities along the armistice line between North and South Korea.

South Korea officials said they believe the ambush of an American patrol early Wednesday, in which six American soldiers and a South Korean were killed and a seventh American was wounded, was timed to embarrass the South government during Johnson's visit.

The South Koreans pointed out that the attack eight hours before the closing hours of the President's visit, belatedly disclosed.

'Didn't Have a Chance,' Says Survivor of Ambush

121ST EVACUATION HOSPITAL, South Korea (AP) — "I just didn't have a chance," said a shaken 17-year-old American soldier who played dead during the Communist ambush which killed the other seven members of his patrol south of the Korean demilitarized zone Wednesday.

"After it was over," said Pfc. David E. Bibee, of Ringgold, Va., "I crawled over to my buddy, there was nothing I could do for him. He was sucking blood. I started praying for him but there was nothing I could do for him. We just didn't have a chance. They seemed to come from behind. The only thing I could make out was that there were at least six of them."

Still suffering from shock but not seriously wounded, the black-haired youth told the story of the pitched battle — the first of two near the demarcation line in the last hours of President Johnson's visit to Korea — from a wheelchair in the 121st Evacuation Hospital 10 miles west of Seoul.

It was a terrible ordeal for a boy who had been in Korea just three weeks. The attack came at 3:10 a.m., under a full moon, and a South Korean soldier accompanying the Americans was also killed. Bibee was the only survivor.

"They caught us off guard," he said. "He had a brave guy," he said. "He could have run away but he stuck with us."

One of Bibee's doctors said he arrived at the hospital with numerous small punctures in his right leg and shoulder and upper leg, apparently from grenade fragments.

He appeared "slightly confused," the doctor said. After minor surgery to remove some of the fragments he now is in "very good condition" though "slightly upset."

When William Kreger extended his hand to shake Dellenbach's hand, the candidate's dog bit Kreger's right arm.

Low Income Shoppers Take Bus to Suburbia

BOSTON (AP) — Housewives from low income areas in Boston have begun chartering buses to do their shopping at independent markets in the suburbs where they say prices are lower and quality higher.

The women each contribute $1 toward the cost of the bus. One woman said Wednesday she can save $10 by doing two weeks' shopping.

"For me it's simply a matter of survival," said Mrs. Joan Barrow, a widow who lives in the Roxbury section of Boston. "I get $125 every two weeks, and I have to spend half of that for food," she said. "If I have to spend $10 on my bus, I can save $10 on my food."

Ground beef, selling for 60 cents in Roxbury, cost 40 cents in Waltham. Prices in Roxbury proved 50 cents higher in Roxbury for shoulder lamb chops, $2.50 while last year's were $2.00. Two bus loads left Roxbury Wednesday. Other trips are scheduled this week from 404.412.

SOVIET INCOME UP

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union's national income for the year through September 30 was reported Wednesday as $9,344,412 compared to $8,219,287 in the first nine months of 1965.

The "brass and copper" products firm announced that earnings per share for the period were $1.96 while last year's were $1.96. The firm's earnings for the same period were $22,727. During the same period last year they totaled $183,404.412.

Youth, 17, Convicted In Hartford Murder

HARTFORD (AP)—Aristotle Benites, 17, of Hartford, one of three youths arrested in robbery-slaying of a grocer, was convicted of first degree murder by a Superior Court jury Wednesday night.

Benites was the first of the three to be tried in the death of 72-year-old Ralph Rothchild, on Oct. 31, 1965.

The jury deliberated for six hours before returning with the guilty verdict about 10:30 p.m.

At that point State's Atty. John D. LaBelle said: "The state's position is not to ask for the death penalty." Connecticut law provides that when someone is convicted of first degree murder, the jury begins deliberations as to whether the sentence, with only two options—death or life imprisonment.

Still to go on trial on first degree murder charges are two alleged accomplices of Benites, Julio Perez and Robert F. Mayne, both of Manchester. A trial date has not been set for the two 21-year-olds.

Rothchild was fatally beaten when he stepped out of his car at his home, carrying the other two who conspired with Perez and Mayne to rob Rothchild. Police said in a written confession, saying he was a victim of a home robbery, Rothchild's, and that when someone came out of the house the trio became frightened and fled.

Benites' confession said he fled to a car, and the other two went to the rear of the house. Benites said that the next thing he knew, the other two youths jumped into the car and said they had assaulted the grocer.

Public defender James Conroy urged acquittal of Benites, saying he had "absconded" the robbery plan when he ran to the car.

The jury halted deliberations for a short time to ask Judge Douglas B. Wright for a clarification on "abscondment" of a crime. The judge said that once a person embarks on a crime, there can be no abandonment unless it is indicated by "some word or deed."

The jury foreman then asked if abandonment can be indicated by a person's conduct, even if he does not speak.

Wright also read to the jury the precedent cases involving abandonment which had been decided by the State Supreme Court. In one case the court said that all who join in a common design to commit a crime are responsible if a life is taken by one of them.

Some opposition was expressed to the motion by councilwoman Barbara Murray. Mrs. Murray said she would not vote in favor of the allocation of funds since some $15,000 had already been spent on the total project this year. This sum was used primarily for site work such as grading, earth-moving and landscaping of the field itself.

South Windsor Recreation Building Okayed by Council

The expenditure of $5,000 was while she was not opposed to the town council the project itself, she was not last night for construction of a recreation building on town-owned property. She noted that "it would not hurt to wait a year or two."

Mrs. Murray commented that the town such as the proposed town hall, school construction and other projects, this could be delayed.

Councilman Daniel P. Cavanaugh said he has noted with concern in a recent publication that South Windsor has one of the highest tax rates in the ten to twenty thousand population bracket in the state.

Noting that some towns' tax rate is higher, Cavanaugh noted that these are based on a 60 per cent assessment basis while South Windsor's is 80 per cent.

Cavanaugh likened the situation to "being nibbled to death by a rabbit or lamped by an elephant" and added that the town has on previous occasions purchased tracts of land for recreational purposes but more pressing needs such as grading, earth-moving and landscaping of the field itself.

Commenting that he was in agreement with the council, Cavanaugh called for the co-operation of the council with the planning and zoning commission, Mrs. Adams said one of the basic tenants of the league is the development of political interests in the town. "The planning and zoning commission has stressed many times the importance of citizen interest in this project."

Baker is informed on what is cooking in the political pot. He will work to reduce the State Bonded Debt the third highest bonded obligation per person in the entire United States. $480 for each man, woman and child.

If we add the Local Government obligations it now amounts to $766 or $3064 for the family of four.

This huge debt which stands at over two billion dollars is robbing the people in the lowest income bracket and practically steals the wallet out of the pockets of the poor.

I will investigate why our politicians insist on giving away the use of the credit of our state to Banking Institutions and then borrowing the same credit back at a high interest rate in order to place the tax burden upon the backs of our citizens.

This is nothing short of treason by the elected officials of our Two Political Parties.

Japan Still Relying On U.S. Protection

TOKYO (AP) — Prime Minister Masuhiro's speech to the Diet today, despite Communist China's expansion of a missile-borne nuclear warhead, Japan will continue to rely on the United States for its security from nuclear attacks.

"We have the capacity to develop nuclear weapons, but we are not doing so," Masuhiro said. "Our policy is adherence to the nonproliferation of nuclear weapons. We depend on the United States for protection."

He said that Japan's security is closely tied to that of the United States. He said that Japan's security is closely tied to that of the United States. He said that Japan's security is closely tied to that of the United States.

He declared that Japan, as the greatest industrial power in Asia, but a power which has "abandoned expansion and militarism," is ready to play a major role in trying to bring social and economic stability to the region.

Johnson emphasized repeatedly in his Far Eastern speech that the United States would back Asian nations in establishing a new international system in this part of the world — meaning a system of non-Communist countries controlled by the growing power of Red China. U.S. officials hope that Japan will take the lead in this enterprise, perhaps developing a kind of Marshall Plan for Asia.

The most urgent problems facing Japan today are the economic and social problems of the Far East. Japan is still recovering from the devastation of World War II. The country is still rebuilding its infrastructure and its economy. Japan is still recovering from the devastation of World War II. The country is still rebuilding its infrastructure and its economy.

What has turned out to be a long and laborious task was tackled again last night by the 13-member Technical Advisory Committee (TAC), established on April 11 to assist the Town Planning Commission in re-vamping Manchester's zoning regulations.

The consensus was that conversions are linked to building codes and to area-density and floor-space regulations. The TAC is reviewing a study and report on proposed zoning regulations, prepared for the town in February 1962 by Planning and Renewal Associates of Cambridge, Mass.

"Estate Plan Reconsideration"

To the Editor: Inasmuch as the editor has chosen to refer to me as one of the "sane" members who sought so hard to save Manchester's white children from the experience of sharing... and further... to determine whether or not the children of Manchester by voting against the additional construction of school space in Manchester unless some kind of Berlin wall be built around Manchester? I feel entitled to relate my true position. It is purely economic. There is absolutely no way anyone could resist my letter two weeks ago and draw the inferences so inflammatory achieved by this article. The entire tenor of my plan was one which sounded in economics, and we poor taxpayers had to give thoughtful consideration to large expenditures which may not be intended for our benefit before we approve of a huge bond issue.

In talking with Dr. Sanders, chairman of the State Education Commission, this morning, I had him corroborate my earlier statement that the Harvard Report strongly recommended that Hartford contribute by directing to capital output "directly" through the use of the current bond issue.

Now, it is true that the current bond issue is not specifically embodied in the Harvard Report. It is a pilot program to study the feasibility of such a more grandiose plan, however. What we voters must keep in mind is that we are unwittingly may mortgage ourselves for 20 years to pay for buildings which will ultimately be used for the 600 pupils to be bused from Hartford by 1974. (Excerpt from Harvard Report.)

Why should not we wait and see just how many Hartford children will be bused in a few years before committing ourselves to many years of higher taxes? Why not Hartford or the Hartford Chamber of Commerce (a private business organization) problem out in support of a portion of the Harvard Report calling for Hartford contribution to capital expenses as liberally as it has for that self-profitable part which rides it of enormous costs which are expected to bear alone?

The final problem with which we voters must struggle is what are the probabilities that the busing program will expand after two years of trial? For that answer I contribute two principal facts which may be readily checked.

First, the State Commission on Civil Rights has initiated a proposal that the Governor should establish a commission to the State Board of Education to exert its control directly over the individual town boards of education for the specifically stated purpose of effectuating an artificial balancing of races.

Dr. Sanders has been asked by that commission to issue a policy statement regarding the proposed Globe Hollow School, and so early in December, you will please note that these men conveniently wait until after the elections to pronounce their positions to the electorate. I say let us vote against the bond issue on Nov. 8 and always remember what the state intends to do with schools which we lag. If Connecticut intends to direct the use of our schools, let Connecticut purchase our schools. I know that the state does contribute a part (about 28 percent) is expected toward the proposed Globe Hollow School, but this is to glean the benefit.

Does the above proposal sound as though the state powers intend to surrender their toe-hold on busing? Second, we presently are able to adequately handle the Manchester students in Manchester schools, although the present problem because of geographic concentration of students does require some attention. The answer to this problem may or may not be new school construction. It could conceivably be as simple as redistributing schools in much the same manner as we recently redistributed political areas. It is certain; if we presently house all our students along with 63 interlopers who represent the first wave of our migration, we now erect a new building; we must be left with a space surplusage. If that void were to be available solely for any Manchester expansion, it might be a reasonable investment.

Second, fellow voters, and ask reasonable measures be taken prior to your vote for a new school to assure the use of that school to those who pay for it. How can we gain this assurance? Simply vote "No" on the school bond issue on Nov. 8. Then the town governing body will realize that we voters are

"Gentle and Kind"

To the Editor: Every Manchester resident was pleased when the efforts of the Board of Education to town another seat in the legislature and an added vote to the Nov. 8 election. I feel especially happy when I learned that Henry Becker is to represent the newly formed twentieth district in the house.

Anyone who knows Henry Becker knows that he is a dedicated champion of the rights of the people, that he sets about each year with unflagging enthusiasm, and that he is a man who delivers on promises.

We who vote in the West Side Rec or the Varplanck School do not do better than to elect Henry Becker. He is a gentleman and a kind man, a man who listens well and acts wisely.

It is now possible, my friends, to treat yourselves to the vote just you ignorantly denied last spring. Take advantage of your last opportunity to elect a citizen instead of a sheep.

Norman Whitney
"You Must Wake Up"
To the Editor: I am going to vote for Ted LaBonne for State Senator and I urge anyone who loves his town to do the same.

I believe that Ted LaBonne is a strong man, dedicated to our interests. He has the ability to lead and the courage to preserve it. He believes in free, voluntary co-operation between towns to solve mutual problems and that is a far cry from having a regional government forced down our throats.

It is closer than you know, I have asked many, many people from all walks of life, "Do you know how close you are to losing your town?" and I am looked at with utter disbelief or when I discuss the fact that I am in a position to know, "Do you think people realize how close they are to losing their towns?" they answer simply and quietly, "No, I don't think so."

Well, somehow you must be made to realize! You must wake up! You must read Article 10, Section 1 of the State Constitution. I will tell you the part that really matters. It says that the State of Connecticut shall be a union of free, equal, sovereign, self-governing towns, cities or boroughs.

Section 2, the General Assembly may prescribe the boundaries by which towns, cities and boroughs may establish regional governments and methods by which towns, cities, boroughs and regional governments may enter into compact areas such as pollution, conservation, disposal and mass transportation, I know that Ted LaBonne feels that the state could and must make a most valuable contribution in providing technical assistance to start a college in the community.

Mr. Groobert helped to add a third assembly seat for Manchester as a member of the 1965 Constitutional Convention. He is seeking re-election to the General Assembly from the newly created 20th district. The ballot of every voter in the District should be cast for Paul Groobert, on Tuesday Nov. 8.

"Intelligent and Considerate"

To the Editor: The outstanding dedication to service of Paul Groobert found new expression in his work at the Constitutional Convention. His qualities of leadership, his dedication to the people of Connecticut and his tact at hand were his in the House of Representatives.

Mr. Groobert is an intelligent and considerate person who would undoubtedly be well-respected in the House of Representatives. He is a citizen of high moral character and competent; he has a knowledge of both local and state problems, and, I believe, the ability to help solve them.

The work of this committee led to the inclusion of the new guarantee of the right to vote for individual candidates in the Constitution without first putting a party lever. The work of the Convention, of which he was a part, provided our State with a new Constitution to serve all the people.

"South End Growing"
To the Editor: The South End of Manchester is growing just as the North End and the other developed town areas. Where there is growth there are basic needs, including adequate educational facilities and a MISC moderate income housing program. I feel obliged to comment on the remarks of Mr. Philip Woodrow (Open Forum, moving to that school region.

In response to the "Editor's Note" re Mr. Bishop's letter in the Open Forum on Oct. 29, I don't believe it's a question of "not being heard" of the busing program at present.

In response to Dr. Schardt's letter in the Open Forum on Oct. 1, I don't believe it's a question of "not being heard" of the busing program at present.

However, although I don't believe the Board of Education is being fair in the way it has been indicated, but I do believe they are partly of gross neglect. It was not because of lack of proper concern for their fellow citizens, but because of their feeling that the Church should not be involved in commercial enterprises. The following points were made at the meeting:

1. The Church will jeopardize its autonomy by borrowing money from the Federal Government.

2. The Church should not compete with private enterprise in constructing and leasing apartment units.

3. The plight of middle income families (earning $6,000 to $8,000) in finding suitable rents does not constitute the type of social problem that calls for action by the Church.

There are many other pressing problems to which it is difficult to see any financial resources.

4. The Church, although well-meaning, is not equipped to address the social problems which require the close attention of experts in the field.

5. Although much was said about the lack of legal liability, the Church cannot be held liable for the actions of its members.

6. The Church cannot be held liable for the actions of its members.

Erhard's Promise to Quit Starts Political Strategy

BOHN, Germany (AP) — Political maneuvering stepped up in the West German capital today in the wake of Chancellor Ludwig Erhard's promise to quit if he fails to put together a majority in Parliament to back a new pro-American government.

Former Defense Minister Franz-Josef Strauss, one of Erhard's strongest opponents within his own Christian Democratic party, met with the 48 Bundestag members from Bavaria he controls to consider their next step.

Strauss, 51, is a leader with ex-Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of the Christian Democratic faction which favors a swing in West German policies toward those of President Charles de Gaulle. Strauss is considered almost certain to be a member of the new cabinet and a good bet to become chancellor some day, but not yet.

Beset by rising opposition in his party and a 1967 budget deficit of about $1 billion, Erhard said Wednesday he would quit if necessary to resolve the weak cabinet crisis. He is believed to want Foreign Minister Gerhard Schröder to succeed him, considering him the man most likely to carry on his pro-American policies, but the Adenauer-Strauss faction is sure to fight Schröder's selection all the way.

Erhard reports Tuesday to his party's members in the Bundestag, the lower house of Parliament. Until then, leaders of the Christian Democrats, Socialists

If you want an experience to really test your patience — try driving across the Oakland Street bridge at 5 P.M. some night. Chalk it up to a "stroke of luck" if you get across without a scraped fender and don't think you're unusual if your heart beats a little faster when a truck tries to cross at the same time as you.

With the big push on the creation of Route 6 (in the south end of town), the completion of Route 84, of which a new Oakland bridge is a part, has been hidden under the drafting board.

Vin Genovesi will push for an early start on a new bridge at the Oakland St. - Tolland Tpke. intersection and for the completion of Route 84 through this section of the town.

No Cause for Alarm Salmonella Is Discovered, 'Starlac' Stock Recalled

WASHINGTON (AP) — Medical experts say discovery of salmonella bacteria in samples of Borden's "Starlac" dry milk is no cause for alarm.

The infection of the digestive tract caused by the organism is seldom serious, said Dr. Albert Martin, chief of the salmonella unit at the communicable disease unit in Atlanta, Ga.

Martin commented Wednesday night after the Food and Drug Administration announced all stocks of the Borden Food Co. nonfat dry milk product were being recalled from distributors and stores across the nation.

The company notified all distribution points to request return of all stocks of Starlac, officials said, and has arranged to make reimbursements for packages returned to stores by customers.

An FDA spokesman, asked to pinpoint where samples containing the organism had been found, said persons anywhere in the nation who have Starlac in their homes "might well be advised to return it."

The most common medical effect of salmonella is an infection which results in stomach pains, diarrhea, vomiting and often fever. Although the victim is quite uncomfortable for two or three days, the communicable disease expert said, the case usually is relatively mild and is treated at home.

Occasionally, Martin said, "among people very susceptible — such as children and older adults — it can become serious." Deaths have been caused by it, he added, but they are contributed to by the infection of the product by the organism.

Martin said the organism is found commonly in food products. "The problem is not unique to Borden's," he said. "We've known for a number of months that powdered milk could be contaminated with salmonella."

In New York, a Borden spokesman said, "We have no idea how many cases of the 160,000 kilowatt supercritical product have gone out." He said Borden has marketed the product since 1953.

The plant where it now is for a nuclear steam supply system announced a $73 million contract. The plant, which has been produced, in Dixon, Ill., has been "closed," he said. But he

WINDSOR LOCKS (AP) — The U.S. Weather Bureau says rain of moderate to heavy intensity enveloped the Connecticut area during the night.

The rain will taper off to showers before ending completely later this morning. Temperatures will remain in the 60s during a good portion of the morning hours and then start to fall sharply as cold air moves into the area. By late afternoon readings will drop into the upper 40s.

Cloudiness will prevail through a major portion of the day with some sunshine also in the 20 years they likely this afternoon. The cold have ruled the state parliament weather will continue through Friday, with high temperatures Friday only in the 40s.

HARD ROCKING (AP) — GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — The burglars came to Brien's radio and television store recently—for the 12th time in 18 months. They didn't get anything.

When the burglars got to be an almost monthly occurrence, O'Brien chained all the merchandise in the floor.

Voting Curbs Rec Programs

Due to the election Nov. 8, the recreation and park department announced that the community "Y" gym will be closed on Friday, Saturday, Monday and Tuesday - all other activities will be carried on as usual.

The churches of Manchester and the synagogue have joined to declare this month a Month of Concern. The message will go forth for every pupil that each person should dedicate or rededicate himself to being concerned about the world in which he lives.

Our lines are troubled. Our soldiers fight and die in a foreign land. Murders and robberies are part of our scene. People grow up in slums. Families are separated. The morals of the past seem to be disappearing.

But no age has been golden for man. Every day poses a challenge and offers a hope in the religious institutions of Manchester will point out the challenges and offer the people of this town the opportunity to respond.

This small child has always been the symbol of the hope of mankind. Our fresh new generations have always embodied the dreams of mankind. Yet, every criminal, every bigot, every failure as an adult was once a child with a limitless future. When did this child fall? Did he have the love of kind parents? Did he have a home in a decent neighborhood? Did he have a chance to learn how to use himself?

Every child should be born healthy, and have the chance to grow up strong, and to find happiness.
