2 Requests Before ZBA

A short agenda—two items—will be considered tonight by the Manchester Zoning Board of Appeals. Public hearings on the two items will be held at 8 in the Municipal Building Hearing Room.

The Town of Manchester is seeking a temporary variance for about 1 1/2 acres of Rural Residence zoned land off the south side of Pollard Type. The two-lot parcel would be leased to the Allied Casting Co., to be used for the open storage of manufactured building sections. Allied, which manufactured many of the precast concrete slabs at Constitution Plaza, has a multi-million dollar contract to furnish facings for the addition to New York's Bellevue Hospital. It needs the town land for about two years to store the facing forms.

The Ro-Jac Construction Co. is seeking a variance to erect an attached garage at 27 Francis Dr. for John W. Klein. The garage would be about 41 feet from the street line and would be even with the house, which was constructed before the existing zoning rules were effected. Present regulations in Rural Residence Zone require a 50-foot setback.

Pruitt of 9 Gracia St. was charged with operating a motor vehicle without a license, after he was stopped on Hartford Rd. early Sunday morning. Police say they stopped the car he was driving after they observed the head lights of the car shining up in the air.

All three are scheduled to appear in court Jan. 30.

Bombers Deal Double Blow To Rail Center Near Hanoi

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP)—U.S. fighter-bombers, returning to the heavily defended Hanoi area, struck twice today at a railway yard 40 miles north of Hanoi, though the loss of two Viet Cong gunners shot down a U.S. Army UH1H helicopter 23 miles northwest of Saigon and American authorities announced that eight men aboard were killed. JOSEPH P. MOTT

I BELIEVE: The time has come to stop talking about the high cost of feeding your family and do something about it.

Let's do it together. As long as we've been in business we've never ceased to marvel at the wisdom and foresight of the homemakers who shop in our supermarkets. If we, as a company, have made any progress over the years, it's because we've listened to these computer-smart women and not tried to lead them.

Do you remember when a small group of you formed the Connecticut Milk Consumers Association to fight for lower milk costs before the State Legislature? We were the first to listen and sell milk in half-gallon and gallon containers at far lower costs.

Do you remember the struggle to lower the everyday price of bread not so long ago? We were in the forefront of this fight from the very beginning.

Do you remember our two appearances before the State Supreme Court to argue against the so-called 6% law, a statute which literally strangled free enterprise by setting, what we felt, were exorbitantly high prices on the products we had to sell? Can you go back to January, 1965 when we announced to a startled public that we were dropping trading stamps and immediately lowering 7,412 prices?

Even today, the fight continues. Menly & James Laboratories, Inc., of Philadelphia, manufacturers of Contac cold remedy tablets, are suing us because of our refusal to sell their product at the Fair Traded price of $1.49. Our price is 89c.

Lurlene's Inaugural

Governor Lurlene took office in Alabama yesterday, and there were two striking things about her inaugural address.

One of them was her designation of the outside sources of possible peril to Alabama.

"The principles of self-government," she said, "will not be suppressed by force—force from Russia, from Cuba, or from Washington, D. C."

Mrs. Wallace's directional sense of danger is, one might say, something of a little bit special, in that it manages to classify together three Communist countries and the capital of the United States.

It likewise seems apparent that, in her charting of perils, she is content with that relatively short list, and has no instinct to cite additional examples of peril to the principles of self-government, either from the contemporary scene at home or abroad, or from the historical past.

It may be, of course, that she regards something like a sheet-wearing order of night riders as a fine example of self-government. It may be that she would classify such a regime as that of the late Huey Long as a noble and classic demonstration of state's rights and state's sovereignty.

It might be that like so many who fear one brand of totalitarianism exclusively, she has considerable historical tolerance for such dogmatically totalitarian opponents of Communist totalitarianism as Hitler or Mussolini.

Let us, however, depart from Governor Lurlene's oratory, and hope that, in her administration, and in the national candidacy her husband George is now undertaking, there will never really develop that kind of threat to self-government in Alabama, or in America, which has sometimes shown an instinct to rise up out of the South itself, with no need for importation of anything from outside totalitarianism.

So much, then, for Governor Lurlene's striking oratory.

There was something else attention-getting about her inaugural.

There were—as there were not in the inaugural of Governor George Wallace in January of 1963, or in the inaugural of his predecessor in 1959—Negro bands participating in the day's line of march.

And one of the features of the parade was the appearance of two drill teams from the high school in Huntsville, Alabama.

Both teams, one of girls, the other boys, were racially integrated, and not even Governor Lurlene herself seemed to have any instinct to clap the integrated children into jail as subversive agents from China, Russia, Cuba, or Washington.

This would move even when it comes to stand still.

The Small State Senators

Eight Democratic Senators representing eight of our smaller states held a little meeting of mutual understanding down at Washington the other day.

One understanding they had little trouble arriving at was their objection to any change in the electoral college system of electing presidents.

Putting the election of presidents on a one man one vote basis would rob the small states of a great portion of their political power.

Another mutual understanding among the Democratic Senators from these small states was that they objected strenuously to the current Republican proposal for having a set portion of the money the federal government collects in the states remain in the states.

The small states wouldn't care for a dollar for dollar system any more than they relish the one man one vote system for the election of presidents.

And the small state Senators involved had another mutual agreement so implicit they never needed to state it.

Naturally, understandably, and, in our opinion, quite rightly, they would object to any imposition of the one man one vote theory on the composition of the United States Senate.

That would mean, for one thing, that they themselves would be out of jobs, just like former representatives from many of the small towns of Connecticut are now out of jobs.

It would also mean that the smaller states of the union would be deprived of both voice and power in the upper house at Washington, just as, in Connecticut, the small towns have now been deprived of the voice and power they used to possess in the lower house here.

Neither thing would be desirable, precisely because, when this federal nation was founded, it was able to get itself going only by recognizing the principle that there had to be structural checks and balances which could protect the small, the poor, and few in number.

The fact that this principle has now been denied, by Court rulings, in the election of their own legislatures, to the states, including the very same Connecticut which gave the federal system to the new nation back in 1787, is no justification for trying to make the whole federal system conform to the same principle too.

We are for the abolition of the Electoral College, unless it is made representative of percentages of votes cast in the individual states. We are in doubt about the automatic return of revenue to the states, but tend to favor it as at least a step toward bureaucratic economy. But the Senate, which gives a Senator representing 225,000 population the same vote as one representing 17,000,000, should never be tampered with.

Live Words From Dead Languages

If those who specialize in debating the value of ancient languages would only pause long enough to notice, they would see evidence of unique service and usefulness extending all through our most modern living.

Nothing is ever so appropriate for the latest thing as a word culled from some ancient language which had a word for it.

Usually the word the ancient language had for it is much better than any word we could make up out of our own combination of scientific Webster and bestial slang.

Take, to be precise, the very latest thing in the medical profession. Do you want to make a fabulous income setting up practice as a counselor on certain problems of avoidance? Yes? Then the lingo and the pills are available. But what shall you call your- self? A "weight man"? An "obstetrician"? A "rats clinic"? How crude and unattractive! How lacking in scientific atmosphere and polite camouflage for patients who may not want the world to know just what kind of doctor they're consulting.

But go back to the people who had a word for everything. The Greek word for weight is "baros."

Why, if it can't come in lunch today, to have some of your mashed potatoes. I have an appointment with my bariatrician.

How swank! How nicely and delicately sophisticated! How contemporary, thanks to the Greeks!

Those Bombing Stories

The furor over dispatches by an American newsmen inside Hanoi has generated some resentment against the State Department for allowing U.S. reporters to visit North Vietnam in the first place.

It's an understandable resentment. The dispatches have seemingly made the American Government's statements about Vietnam less believable around the world. The stories of civilian deaths from U.S. bombings have emphasized the ugliest results of American strategy, while stories of civilian deaths from Viet Cong bombs are now old stuff.

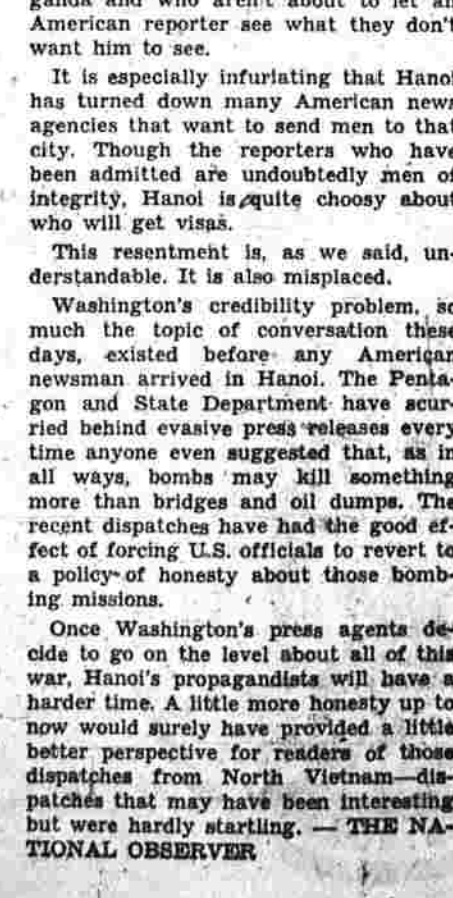

Much of the newsmen's information admittedly comes from North Vietnamese officials, who know the art of propaganda and who aren't what you'd call an American reporter's type who they don't want him to see.

It is especially infuriating that Hanoi has turned down many American news agencies that want to send men to that city. Though the reporters who have been admitted are undoubtedly men of integrity, Hanoi is quite choosy about who will get visas.

This resentment is, as we said, understandable. It is also misplaced. Washington's credibility problem, so much the topic of conversation these days, existed before any American newsmen arrived in Hanoi. The Pentagon and State Department have scurried behind evasive press releases every time anyone even suggested that, in all ways, bombs may kill something more than bridges and oil dumps. The recent dispatches have had the good effect of forcing U.S. officials to revert to a policy of honesty about those bombing results.

Once Washington's press agents decide to go on the level about all of this war, Hanoi's propagandists will have a harder time. A little more honesty up to now would surely have provided a little better perspective for readers of those dispatches from North Vietnam—dispatches that may have been interesting but were hardly startling. —THE NATIONAL OBSERVER

Grand Entrance, Inaugural Ball: First Company, Governor's Foot Guard

Inside Report

Rowland Evans Jr. and Robert D. Novak

WASHINGTON—One reason why President Johnson's proposed 4 per cent surcharge on income taxes is getting so chilly a reception even among Democrats in Congress is seen in the experience of one veteran and influential Democratic senator.

On two occasions within the 48 hours preceding the President's annual State of the Union message, this senator had occasion to chat with Mr. Johnson privately about the economy. The President talked hopefully of easing the credit squeeze but expressed deep concern at the flattening out of the economy activity. The senator, a shrewd politician and an old friend of Mr. Johnson, inferred from this that there was no immediate tax increase.

Thus, it was with a mixture of amazement and anger that this senator last Tuesday night (Jan. 10) sat in the House chamber to hear the State of the Union message and heard Mr. Johnson's call for the 6 per cent surtax.

"I choose to believe that the President wasn't deliberately trying to mislead me," the senator told us "but whether he was or wasn't, it would have helped him if he had taken a few of us into his confidence. He didn't."

This was no isolated case. That very afternoon the consensus among congressmen had been that Mr. Johnson would delay his tax decision a bit more. Under the extraordinary conditions of secrecy imposed by the President, there wasn't even long-range advance notice to the chairman of the two tax-writing committees that will consider the bill: Rep. Wilbur Mills of Louisiana and Sen. Russell Long of Louisiana.

Mills was informed about three hours before the speech was delivered; word was relayed to Long about an hour in advance. What makes this particularly inexplicable is that both—certainly Long and probably Mills—were anti-tax increase and needed advance conditioning.

It was scarcely a pleasant surprise for others either. Without being prepared for the unpleasant proposal, members of Mills' ways and means committee and Long's finance committee are far more hostile to the package than might have necessarily been the case—or, to be sure, then might be the case, when the proposal comes up for consideration in the spring.

The Congress instead of conditioning it for the tax increase, what might have been considered an act of political courage becomes thought of as just another exercise in political expediency.

The television commercial goes: "Mother gives you aspirin because she knows it will make you feel better, and when you feel better, she feels better, too." The little boy answers: "Mothers are like that—yeah, they are."

"Because evil was rampant, most men's heart had grown cold." Evil is like that—yeah, it is. Evil is only selfishness, carried away by fear, or greed, or hostility. The selfish child, in congress for his share and his turn, will alienate his playmates, the selfish adult, determined to live his own life will have to live with loneliness, and the selfish group, whether in power or out, whether minority or majority, will cause man's heart to grow cold.

With the wrong kind of leadership, selfishness will turn to evil, and evil cannot help but destroy.

A little farther around the Senate circle, where Waterbury sits, the 1967 session exhibits another presence whom we remember most vividly in a moment when he was being warned that he would never come back to Hartford.

Senator James E. Tansley was being warned, in the moment we recall, that he had just sacrificed his total political career by daring to vote in favor of permitting the use of the party lever on Connecticut voting machines to be optional.

The name of the Waterbury mayor and party boss who was pronouncing Tansley's political obituary to his face seems to be eluding our memory momentarily; perhaps that is a kindness which relieves us of the responsibility for outlining precisely what Marcus-style rivalry he would become lieutenant in his revival of his personal political destiny.

Anyway, there he is, in the seat he was never supposed to hold again.

On our way around the circle toward Tansley we passed Seat No. 12. This is a dangerous thing to do, as certain Republican operatives in the district involved discovered last summer when they thought they were denying renomination to Senator Lucy Hammer, the lady who, pound for pound, is more Senator than anybody who ever sat in the famous circle.

And if we now resume our path around the circle, we come, in Seat 26, to a handsomely familiar character named John M. Lupton, who was supposedly finished after the Goldwater debacle, and who has been read out of the party by sundry characters of supposed importance.

But there is Lupton, back again, a little dour and sober from his 20 year chase after greatness, but obviously fully possessed of at least a reality and durability.

Meanwhile, presiding brightly and gently over all, president pro tempore, and therefore now the distinguished individual who would become lieutenant governor should vacancy ever arise, and governor if double vacancies should ever occur, is our old friend Senator Charles Alfano of Suffield.

He, we think, would be the first to admit, after session after session in which the power brokers of the Senate managed to keep finding somebody else more brokerable, that he had just about given up hope of such nice preferment as this.

All in all, the 1967 General Assembly represents a rather consistent philosophy in which the political order has been suddenly quite kind to people it had previously preferred to snub.

Hebron Damarjian Offers 3 Plans On Arrangement of Grades

Three alternate proposals for grade organization and plan and implementation for the school year beginning in September have been presented to the school board by Supt. of Schools Aram Damarjian.

The plans are based on educational considerations, distribution of pupils by grades and geographic location, economy and efficiency in operation of schools and rooms to be available in each school in September. The plans call for use of the present 17 rooms at the Hebron Center School for all Grades 1 through 6 under the other two plans.

The new school to be built in Hebron would be used for kindergarten through fourth grade under one plan and kindergarten through 6 under the other two plans.

The estimated enrollment for September, based on enumeration figures for kindergarten and the projection of classes presently enrolled in the school, totals 177 pupils, including the class of educable mentally retarded.

Plan A which Damarjian terms as the "ideal" plan calls for the use of 16 rooms at the center school and 10 rooms at the north of Connecticut, the U.S. Weather Bureau said today.

The storm system was located over the Great Lakes this morning, and was moving east-northwesterly at a rapid rate. Connecticut will be in the fringe area of light snow or sleet.

The storm's major feature over Southern Connecticut will be wind rather than rain or snow.

As the storm moves into Quaker tonight, arctic air behind the system will flow into a large area in the nation's midsection. A new storm system forming over Texas will be the next weather concern. Present forecasts are that the Texas disturbance should be carried well to the south of Connecticut Wednesday.

It was also mentioned that the administration should have authorization as to the number of teachers to be employed early enough to facilitate teaching.

A petition from residents of Bloomer Rd. was read to the board at Thursday's meeting by Henry Wirth. The residents cited concern for the children when the afternoon bus started to discharge passengers.

Area Weather

WINDSOR LOCKS (AP)—A vigorous storm which brought blizzard conditions to the upper Midwest has taken a path well to the north of Connecticut, the U.S. Weather Bureau said today.

Trucking Demands
WASHINGTON (AP)—Teamsters Union President James R. Hoffa testified before a Senate subcommittee on the trucking industry today, asking for 7 percent wage increases for 1967.

Hoffa, who could be in prison before negotiations are completed, has said Teamsters' demands will range up to 7 percent for trucking employees now earning from $3.10 to $4.20 an hour.

This does not include fringe benefits, which Hoffa estimates run about $1.10 per hour on the average now. The Teamsters are expected to demand improvements in this area also.

Hoffa was to exchange conferees with a group of negotiators for some 12,000 trucking firms, headed by Trucking Employers Inc.

"Hoffa adds and some trucking firms have expressed concern that the negotiations could bog down if Hoffa is imprisoned on his jury-tampering conviction before a contract agreement is reached.

Auto Theft Drive
WASHINGTON (AP)—The government is planning a national campaign against car theft and is seeking thorough persuasion of legislation to have automobile manufacturers make their cars harder to steal.

Asst. Gen. Fred H. Vinson, said steering wheel, transmission and hood locks and more secure ignition systems are devices which would help reverse the rising trend of automobile theft.

Vinson said the Justice Department has conferred with industry representatives with a view to installation of feasible and effective devices at the earliest practicable date.

"We are following with interest the automobile industry's activity in this regard and we are considering legislation, if necessary, to require installation of anti-theft devices at the point of manufacture or assembly," he said in testimony prepared for the Senate subcommittee on Juvenile Delinquency.

The funeral will be held tomorrow at 8:45 a.m. from the DeLoe Funeral Chapel, 235 Westfield Ave., Hartford, with a Mass of Requiem at the Church of St. Patrick and St. Anthony, Hartford, at 9:30. Burial will be in Mt. St. Benedict, Bloomfield.

lines. With the support of revolutionary college students, dockworkers and other groups, the union is pushing for a 5 percent increase in the wage scale. Rottner's remarks came during a discussion of school capital improvement needs, during which board members also charged General Manager Robert Weiss' office with maintaining "poor lines of communications" in failing to acknowledge their requests for action on capital improvements.

The dual charges were voted as the board preferred 1967 salary negotiations by consideration of that to do about a $765,000 capital improvement request that had been submitted before the vote. The $765,000 was as part of a $2.5 million town capital improvement package.

The question was withdrawn by the directors shortly after the school board members were because of indications it would be defeated at the polls.

Rottner, in his remarks, was disappointed that the Board of Directors instead of Mr. Walter Rottner, who was supported by the board, had taken the initiative in the program which he had previously rejected.

Curtis' defense, said he had been in touch with the board members by phone concerning the matter. "I am sure," he said, "that the board will not let the $765,000 go, and that he plans to submit it to the board."

It was noted he has invited the PTA council to submit recommendations for improvements. It feels are necessary in the various schools.

Meet Again Monday MEA, Board Apart On Key Wage Issues

A long salary negotiating session between the Board of Education and Manchester Education Association representatives last night ended in an apparent stalemate with both sides still at war on crucial issues.

The board called state-level talks because it claimed the MEA over a pay increase for the school year because of directors' cuts in the budget.

The MEA called state-level talks because it claimed the board had intended its agreement to be binding, the board countering that its offer had been dependent on the increase in the overall budget.

Before the negotiations for teachers last night, the board settled differences with the MEA over a pay increase for Assistant Superintendent Ronald Scott.

The board offered to raise his salary from $14,775 to $18,500, effective in March. If he raises it would be considered part of management and not under MEA representation.

The board also agreed to pay Scott a hike to $14,775 from his present salary of $13,100 through next month and retroactive to last September.

Scott was not present but MEA representatives said he had refused a pay raise granted by the board this year because it was too small.

"They said he had not been given the step of the superintendent's salary schedule, but that several principals who also had not been given the step were in line for it," MEA representatives said.

They said Scott's pay increase was to protect the inequity.

At the same time, the board pressed for agreement on a "binding" two-year schedule not to exceed $200,000 for the period, which members said they would let the Board of Directors to be committed to.

Several directors and school board members who were offered a number of schedules which would provide pay increases for the year to $298,000. During the current school year, the teachers received raises totaling $250,000.

Board to Subsidize MHS Activity Fund

Without committing itself to a specific dollar figure, the Board of Education last night voted unanimously to subsidize the student activities program at Manchester High School. The SAA fund shows another deficit at the end of the year.

The board's decision to wait until it learns the status of the largest factor in the fall-off of the fund followed a motion by Atty. Herbert Pheon, who suggested that the school should be asked to pay for the deficit. Spring Fashion Preview New Belts Unlike Granny's

On fitted collars. At work on this collection I found myself at several times start gazing up bodice above and skirt below. Women who want a fine figure and who want to know about the latest in fashion, here's what you need to know. I do not like a full dress, suddenly belted in, it has not been planned that way. The fullest property anchor and be a black chignon scarf.

ZBA Tables Town's Bid For Allied

The Manchester Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) last night tabled action on a Town of Manchester request for a temporary variance for a town-owned parcel on Tolland Tpk.

The 1 1/2-acre parcel, on the south side of Tolland Tpk., in Rural Residence Zone, was to be used for the storage of building materials.

The ZBA unanimously approved the only other item on its agenda—a variance to John W. Klein of 21 Frances Dr., to erect an attached garage. The garage will be in line with his home, which is 41 feet from the street line. Regulations require a 50-foot setback. The dwelling was constructed before the present zoning regulations were in effect.

Indians Need Stretch Drive To Qualify for Tournament

By PETE ZANARDI
Valley game in the Windy City. Play for upset.
An upset tonight could go a long way in beginning the stretch drive for Indian Coach Phil Hyde. Buckley has been hot and hot to qualify for tonight's game off a sound 60-38 defeat at the hands of the CIAC Class AA tournament winner Weaver Saturday night.
The Indians will have to come out with a strong performance to qualify for the tournament. Hyde says the team is in good shape and is looking forward to the challenge.

Lombardi Nearly Used Hornung to Give Squad Lift Status of Stars Unknown

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Coach Vince Lombardi, an acknowledged hunch player, almost played one during the Super Bowl game when he toyed with the idea of sending in overtime Golden Boy Paul Hornung to give the Green Bay Packers a psychological lift.
Lombardi made that revelation Monday when he made his final observations on the game, saying pointedly:
"In the first half, a couple of times, I seriously considered using him, though he might give us a lift. There's no question what he means to the Green Bay Packers. He's a great leader."
Lombardi also said that Hornung's status remains up to the doctors. The longtime star of the Packers has been having trouble since he suffered a pinched nerve during the 1966 season. Lombardi said, "If he is at League's 13th team, he gets left on the head the arm will go limp. When that happens, it's a trouble. But it's really really up to the doctors."
Hornung, meanwhile, was preparing to leave on a honeymoon after his marriage to a woman named Jerry Kramer. Lombardi also took another look at Sunday's game and the Packers' performance in the game. Lombardi was referring to Bart Starr's 64-yard touchdown pass to Jerry Kramer in the second quarter. Lombardi said that the Packers' offense was "not as good as it was last year."

Not the Biggest Game Ever
Glad it's over, that Super Sunday and Super Bowl day.
The Super Bowl wasn't the biggest sporting event of the 20th century. In fact, it came no way near in excitement and drama the never-to-be-forgotten overtime battle between Baltimore and the New York Giants for the National Football League title in 1958. Remember when the two clubs battled to a 17-17 tie in regulation time and eight minutes and 15 seconds of overtime decided the game?

Havlicek Appointed Celtic Hoop Leader

CHICAGO (AP)—The Boston Celtics' new captain will take his customary opening tap-off position on the bench—tonight when the defending National Basketball Association champions meet the Chicago Bulls.
John Havlicek, generally regarded as the best "sixth man" in basketball because of his ability to come off the bench and play up front or in the backcourt, was named captain Monday in a surprise move by Coach Bill Russell.
A five-year veteran from Ohio State, Havlicek was picked over such Boston stars as K.C. Jones, Sam Jones, Tom Sanders and Larry Bird. He is 3,000 enthusiastic fans in windy, snowing weather at Madison Square Garden.
"We will beat Philadelphia in the regular season," Russell said. "They are not too far ahead of us. We will go on from there to win another world championship."
The second half of the season is what tells the story and I'm confident we can do it.

Princeton Gains Support, UCLA Increases Poll Lead

NEW YORK (AP)—Undeclared UCLA increased its lead in the Associated Press' weekly major-college basketball poll today.
The Bruins were unanimous choices in the voting by a national panel of 50 sportswriters and broadcasters. A week ago, they had all except one vote for the Bruins.
Louisville was beaten by West Texas, held sixth place. Kansas beat Missouri 70-66 and climbed to eighth. Princeton was voted 10th. Princeton was voted 10th. Princeton was voted 10th.

3,000 Greet Kansas City Chief Squad

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The Kansas City Chiefs, Super Bowl champions, were greeted by 3,000 enthusiastic fans in windy, snowing weather at Madison Square Garden.

Fans Normally Object to Low-Scoring Games Sinking Kentucky Loses Again After Holding 8-6 Lead at Half

NEW YORK (AP)—Tennessee upset 10th ranked Kentucky and Georgia upset sinking Kentucky, but Kentucky held a 6-0 lead at the end of the first half. Kentucky's offense was stalling and fans were getting restless. The game was a low-scoring affair, with both teams struggling to score.

Baumman Earns All-Star Shot

MONTREAL (AP)—The Montreal Canadiens, who are looking to win the Stanley Cup, have named Baumman to the All-Star team. Baumman is a defenseman and has been performing well for the Canadiens.

Hawks 1-2-3 In Scoring Leadership

NEW YORK (AP)—Bobby Hull's recent goal scoring spree has put the Chicago Blackhawks in a scoring leadership position. Hull has scored several goals in recent games, putting the Hawks in a strong position.

Home Robbed Eagle Matmen Easy Winners

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Yankees, who were robbed of a win in a home game, were easy winners in another game. The Yankees' pitching was excellent and they dominated the game.

Rick Barry Hot, Ups Point Average

NEW YORK (AP)—While the Philadelphia 76ers continue their drive for an all-time record in the National Basketball Association, San Francisco's Rick Barry is keeping up points in the individual scoring derby. Barry has been scoring at a high rate and is a key player for the 76ers.

Only One American in NHL Expansion May Open Door But It Could Be 10 Years

BOSTON (AP)—John Joseph Kelly, the only American in the NHL, says that the league's expansion may open a door for more Americans, but it could take 10 years. Kelly is a defenseman and has been playing for the Boston Bruins.
