Friday, February 17

Safe From All Harms President Johnson, in Washington yesterday, took himself out the most gigantic political insurance policy ever onceived by mortal imagination. He did this by sending to the Congress a special message on the theme of nsumer Protection." It is going to be rather difficult for any crusading upstart, any Congressional committee, any magazine devoted to exposing abuses of the public to uncover any public wrong or peril which the President has not, in this message, himself declared war against.

In this message, the President declared his burning desire to protect us all from deception in the way the grories we buy are packaged and sold, to otect our children from hazardous oys, to guard consumers against ignorance of just how much interest they are paying when they buy on time, to see that people who buy land don't buy land that is under water, to see that all the at we eat is inspected and found holesome, to guard against mismatchblood transfusions, mis-analyzed or is-labeled drugs and medical supplies, insure there are no more mass akdowns in electric service, to make sure natural gas pipelines are made safe, to guarantee artificial eves n't cause infection, to make sure defective metal isn't used in bone repairs, to see that nobody abuses union welfare and pension funds, to stop fires, and to make power mowers safer.

Never before, has any one, in one fell swoop, cared so much about so many And it gives us all a very good feeling to know that, no matter what happens to any of us from now on, no matter what peril may be discovered in the future, our President is already on record against it. While he is President the As everybody knows, police practice consumer, obviously, is King. Strangely enough, however, we do not expect much legislation to speed its way through Congress as a result of this special message from the President. The one certain result is that, so far as we can survey the possible perils of American living, no crusading upstart, no investigating committee can ever again claim to have saved the American people while the Great White Father in the White House slept.

Never Quite The Right Image

That publicity spotlight which sometimes seems entrusted with the responsibility for trying to make the war in Vietnam palatable and popular with the American public has lately been swinging toward the presence in South Vietnam of South Korean fighting units. which are being described and pictured as unusually tough, courageous, competent, effective against the enemy, and efficient in pacifying territory in a manner which guarantees that it stays

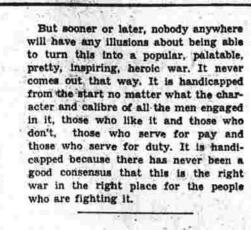

The Korean "tigers" do indeed, by all accounts, seem formidable fighting

And to concentrate on them, as "allies" who have come all the way down from Korea, out of gratitude for our historic act in saving them from the Communists, to help us fight Communism in Vietnam would seem, by all normal rules in all normal wars, a beneficial spotlight operation. But, as has happened so often in the particular case of Vietnam, the turning of the spotlight does not always arantee the production of the entirely pleasing and inspiring kind of picture. There is no doubt that these Korean soldiers are rough, tough, efficient fighters. But there is some suggestion that the reason they are where they are to because they get more pay from the United States, for serving in Vietnam, than they get from their own government at home.

And the television spotlight, the other night, showed these Koreans interrogating one Vietcong prisoner with a knife at his throat, and the body of another risoner who had just been executed lyig nearby. These were not American troops,

At best, it will lead toward peace, med in the act of violating the supsed conventions and rules of civilized We are not really responsible for hat these Koreans do, although we may pay them, but merely associated keeps on with the intention he declared in Circuit Court here the other daythat of carrying up to higher courts on appeal the question of determining the constitutionality of the spot check and search and seizure procedures of the police in Connecticut. The right of the police to stop a car, examine the license and registration, and perhaps search the vehicle for possible contents of one kind or another is clearest when it is known police are looking for some particular individual who has apparently broken some law. No member of the general public is ever unwilling to cooperate with the police at such a time, in such a matter. The right of the police to institute spot checks along the highways, or to make random demands for idenfication grows less clear in the lawand much more annoying to the public -when it amounts to a general fishing expedition rather than a search for

In the past year or two, the Connecticut State Police, with the blessing of Governor Dempsey, have been making a periodic process of holding up traffic coming in to Connecticut from New York State. This pullover kind of general check aims at a particular specific combination-that of the driver who is under 21 who has beer or liquor in his car. It was no crime for such a driver to buy beer or liquor in New York state, where sale to anybody above the age of 18 is legal, and it is to be doubttween the age of 18 and 21 to drive in Connecticut a car which happens to contain beer or liquor, although the last session of the Legislature did pass a bill which tried to set up the supposi-

The issue is not whether anybody believes in temperance for youth, and in keeping drinking youth away from the wheel. The issue is whether the basic laws of the land are written in Constiutions, or in the directives of administrative officials, whether there is any sector of privacy and sanctuary left for ordinary law-abiding citizens or whether all of us must spend the rest of our lives pulling over in momentary admission of possible guilt of we know

The ordinary supposition about a motorist on the road is that he ought to be free of halt and search unless there is some hot criminal chase on at the moment, or unless he is driving in apparent violation of some law, or with defective equipment, or in such a manner as to make his vehicle a dangerous presence on the highways.

extends beyond any such relatively narrow definition. No doubt much good comes of such practice; fishing expeditions sometimes lead to unexpected discoveries and apprehensions which are good news for the cause of law and order. There is still that nasty, pestilential, but sacred question of principle, and it is a good thing to have somebody trying to get some legal determination on just how much sanctity there is left in it in Connecticut.

The Key To Peace?

Moscow says it, Hanoi says it, Paris says it, virtually all the foreign and domestic critics of U.S. involvement in Viet Nam say it-as do many supporters of U.S. policy who simply want the killing to stop If the U.S. stops bombing North Viet Nam, they contend, this will set the stage for peace talks. Maybe, maybe not-but it's worth

It is, of course, a dismal matter of record that a 37-day suspension of bombing last year did no good whatever -except to Hanoi, which profitably ex tracted maximum military mileage from

But, as the stop-the-bombing advocates keep reminding us, conditions now are different: The U.S. military position has improved, Hanoi is hurting, the Vietcong are hurting, Chinese ntrusion is hampered by internal turmoil, and South Vietnam is manifesting government stability.

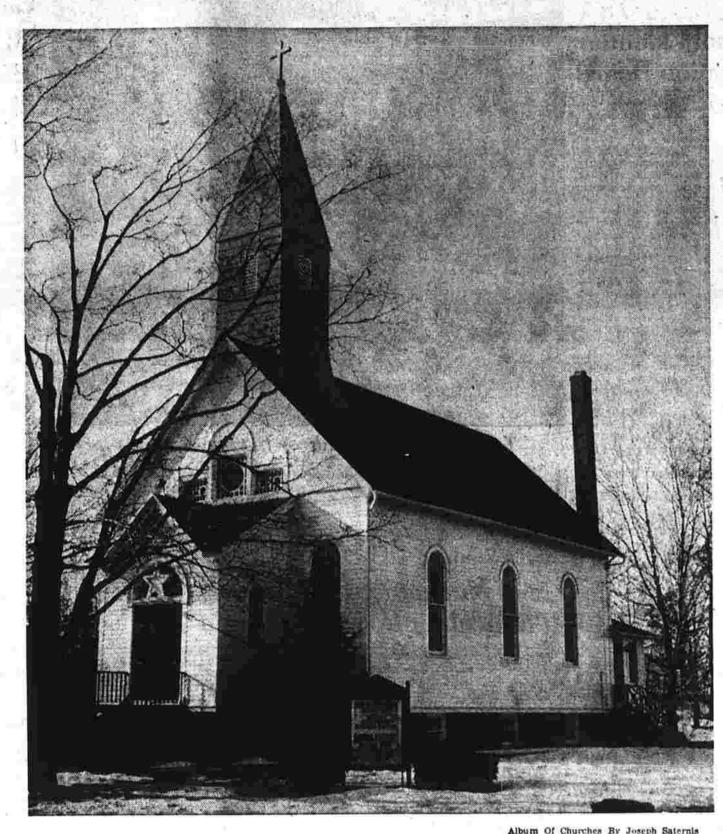

These changes provide no guarantee that a bombing suspension would be the key to peace. But the assertions that it would cannot be proved or disproved except by actual test. That is the basis on which we suggest an indefinite suspension of bomb ng North Vietnamese territory. We say "indefinite" for two reasons Setting a time limit could be construed propagandists as an ultimatum. More importantly, an indefinite suspension would leave the U.S. free to resume combing whenever military necessityor lack of diplomatic progress-might Suspending bombing entails a calculated risk, to be sure. We think our side can afford to take it militarilyand, in terms of psychology and diplomacy, cannot afford not to take it,

At worst, it will call the Communists bluff, if bluff it be, and will confound and subdue the sloganeering peaceniks.

If all else failed, even that would be worth something.-WORLD JOURNAL

We record the average temperature for each day; compute the number of degrees the average is below 65. Then we combine this temperature data with your known rate of fuel use to determine exactly how much fuel your burner uses each day to keep you as warm as you want to be. No matter what the weather, all you have to do is lean back and relax. You'll never have to rely on your memory or your tank gauge (which may be inaccurate) to tell you when it's time to fill the tank. We know when it starts getting low and we refill it without any bother to you. And we refill it with Mobilheat fuel oil, quality checked 21 times between the refinery and your furnace. Remember, there's a big difference in distributors. We'd like to show you just how big that difference can be.
