Residents of Djibouti, French Somaliland, cast stones after casting ballots in an election to decide on the country's independence. Somali Nationalists Erupt As Bid for Freedom Fails

DJIBOUTI, French Somaliland (AP)—French Gov. Louis Saget ordered a dusk to dawn curfew in the African sector of Djibouti today following a savage battle over Sunday's vote to keep this territory linked to France. Six Africans were killed and 30 wounded. In a broadcast, Saget said he had authorized security forces to shoot curfew breakers on sight.

The French police and army, reinforced by 300 French paratroopers flown in today, maintained an iron hold on Somali District 8, the teeming shanty town which was the center of the violence. The entire African quarter was sealed off and surrounded by barbed wire entanglements, machine guns, mortars, armored cars and hundreds of troops, guard mobile units and police.

A house-to-house search was carried out for arms. Scores of Somalis who lacked identity papers were rounded up and carried off in military trucks. Leaders of the Proindependence Popular Movement party, including its president, Moussa Idris, and political secretary-general, Hassan Gouled, were detained.

Fighting broke out within hours of the announcement that the referendum on the future of this last French colony in Africa had resulted in victory for voters opposing independence. A general strike called by the Proindependence Party Movement seemed largely effective. Many Africans who turned up for work were sent home for fear of reprisals. Most shops, offices and bars were closed. Queues formed outside one of the few bakeries to remain open.

The voting Sunday reflected tribal divisions in this arid, sunbaked territory at the mouth of the Red Sea. Members of the Somali tribe, concentrated in Djibouti, voted overwhelmingly for independence, while the more backward afar tribesmen in outlying areas chose to stay with France.

French officials said the vote in 83 of the 87 voting stations was 21,439 to stay with France and 14,717 for independence. Trucks bearing reports from the missing stations reportedly broke down, making final figures unavailable until later today. Leaders of the FMP charged the French with rigging the referendum. French Somaliland has a population of 125,000, of which 58% chose to stay with France. (See Page Eight)

Author Recalls Veto Of Warren Invitation

NEW YORK (AP)—Author William Manchester says he refused an invitation by Chief Justice Earl Warren to declare that the findings of the Warren Commission on the assassination of President John F. Kennedy were acceptable to the Kennedys because he felt "it would be improper."

Manchester, writing in the issue of Look magazine which goes on newstands Tuesday, gives his account of the story behind the controversy surrounding his book, "The Death of a President."

"Unknown to the press," Manchester writes, "the chief justice had given me security clearance and a desk in the commission's VFW building of offices. There, I had immediate access to all testimony, documents, exhibits and depositions."

"Rather cannily, I thought, the chief justice had also invited me to read a first draft of the report and declare, as a friend of the family, that its findings were acceptable to the Kennedys in every respect."

"Although I had cooperated with him in other ways, I demurred, explaining that I felt it would be improper. I was, after all, a private citizen, and my own inquiry had far to go. 'Unlike Mr. Mark Lane, I also declined an invitation to testify, giving the same reason. I refused to rush to judgment in 1964. More to the point, however, I was working a new and entirely different line.'"

Lane is the author of "Rush to Judgment," a book critical of the Warren Commission report. Manchester also writes of the Warren Commission: "As I then knew and as the nation has since discovered, the prestigious names on Earl Warren's panel did little except glitter; the long hours were put in by junior staff men. They were dedicated. They were also young; I believe I had more investigative experience than any of them."

Manchester has stated that he agrees with the main conclusion of the Warren Commission that Lee Harvey Oswald assassinated President Kennedy without accomplices. The author also writes that painstaking professional editing (See Page Four)

Swallows Back

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Calif. (AP)—The swallows are back at Mission San Juan Capistrano for their 178th summer.

The birds arrived yesterday from their winter quarters in Argentina on the traditional day, St. Joseph Day, a Roman Catholic religious holiday.

Only once in 177 years did the swallows not appear, mission fathers say. About 80 years ago, they were two days late because of bad weather over the West Coast.

The swallows usually begin their flight back to their nesting quarters on Oct. 23.

New Threats Heard After Milk Dump

CHICAGO (AP)—Barn-burning, dynamiting and another poisoning threat were reported today by law enforcement officials in some of the 25 states where the National Farmers Organization has ordered withholding of milk from the market in an effort to raise the price paid dairy farmers.

As the violence increased on the fifth day of the embargo, NFO spokesmen said either the campaign will succeed or many members will get out of the milk business. Milk processors began drawing together in self-defense, and there was little evidence that prices are rising. NFO President Oren Lee Staley, at his Corning, Iowa, headquarters, said NFO members have adopted the position, "no price, no production."

A Tennessee official of the group declared "We're going to hold until the breaks," and in Ohio an NFO spokesman said, "If this holding action fails, then we will sell our milk cows for butchering."

In St. Louis, the president of the Sanitary Milk Producers Association said producers should seek "cooperation, consolidation and outright merger" to meet the campaign to create a milk shortage.

Two simultaneous barn fires near Canton, N.Y., early today destroyed more than 50 milk cows and 8,000 bales of hay. Clarence La Pointe, one of the owners, told a reporter, "It looks like somebody set them. He said neither he nor his neighbor are NFO members and he knew of none in the area. Sheriff's officers were investigating the possibility of arson."

Explosions attributed to dynamite thrown from passing cars damaged two farms near Inlay City, Mich. No one was injured, but shattered window glass fell on the bed of a 3-year-old boy.

Dodge County, Wis., officers said dynamite apparently was used to destroy a building. Rabbi Perry E. Nussbaum, (See Page Eight)

Ky's Guam War Call Upsets Peace Agenda

Rusk Denies Any Talk of Escalation

GUAM (AP)—President Johnson's avowed intent to focus his Guam conference on the works of peace clashed today into a call by Premier Nguyen Cao Ky for a sharp escalation of the Vietnam war.

Johnson also got a report from his own close advisers that the Communists are doing some escalating of their own.

At the first formal conference session, atop the highest hill on this damp tropical island, Ky in his opening public statement questioned whether the time had come for the United States to bomb Hanoi, block the harbor at Haiphong and expand the war into Laos and Cambodia.

The public expressions of such questions made it apparent that Ky thinks the United States should do all those things. But both Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, meeting with newsmen after the session, emphasized repeatedly that there was no discussion of escalation. Rusk contended that Ky raised his questions only in the context that Hanoi is unwilling to seek peace.

However, both McNamara and Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the U.S. commander in Vietnam, said Johnson was told that the fighting in South Vietnam is becoming more intense and the Communists are stepping up the tempo of their offensive operations.

McNamara said the chief executive's military advisers reported: "The tempo of the war has increased significantly in recent weeks but, despite this fact, they believe the trend of the war is in our favor."

He said the Communists are using new weapons — rockets and bigger mortars — and are (See Page Eight)

Armor Decimates Crack Cong Units

BAU BANG, Vietnam (AP)—Two crack Viet Cong battalions hurled themselves at a smaller, untried American armored unit today but were smashed in a dazzling display of American firepower and maneuverability. Only three Americans were killed, but the enemy left 223 bodies on the battlefield.

One senior American commander said the Viet Cong may have had more than 800 dead and wounded. A Communist force estimated between 1,000 and 2,000 men apparently gambled on a lightning strike that would quickly overrun the 300 Americans and their armor and artillery positions 31 miles north of Saigon. But a mass grave dug by a bulldozer was the fate of scores who rushed the U.S. 9th Division positions movements after a mortar attack lifted.

The Communists screamed "Americans die" and Vietnamese battle cries as they streamed out of the nearby woods. American commanders shouted commands as their men fought like pioneers of a frontier wagon train under Indian attack. U.S. planes and ground reinforcements turned the tide.

The enemy drove to within 15 yards of the American firing line before bullets, bombs and artillery crushed the attack. They destroyed two armored personnel carriers, damaged six others, hit six tanks, none seriously, and shot down a U.S. jet bomber.

Thirty-one Americans were wounded, nine of them in the two personnel carriers gutted by fire. A 10th man died when he was unable to pull himself from his flaming vehicle before ammunition inside began exploding.

"He was screaming horribly," one tankier said. Others said the cries of other (See Page Eight)

Victim No. 42?

REVERE, Mass. (AP)—The body of a Boston man, a friend of two brothers killed in gangland slaying in the Boston metropolitan area last year, was found today in a parking lot.

The man was identified as John Locke, 29, of the Charlestown section of Boston. Police said Locke suffered "several puncture-type wounds." There was no immediate information on the weapon involved.

If Locke were another in the string of gangland victims, he would be No. 42 in a list stretching back to March 15, 1964.

LBj to Name Lodge At-Large Diplomat

GUAM (AP)—Henry Cabot Lodge is getting a new diplomatic post as ambassador at large.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk told newsmen today that President Johnson will nominate the outgoing ambassador to South Vietnam for what amounts to an assignment as a diplomatic troubleshooter. Lodge thus will change places with Ambassador At Large Ellsworth Bunker, Lodge's successor in Saigon.

Rusk said Lodge will work full-time and will be much involved with Vietnamese and Southeast Asian affairs but will be available for trouble shooting chores anywhere in the world.

Lodge, 64, has served two terms as ambassador to Saigon. He was first appointed by President John F. Kennedy in 1963 and stayed until June 1964, when he returned to the United States to join moderate Republican forces in an unsuccessful attempt to prevent Barry Goldwater from getting the party's presidential nomination.

President Johnson appointed him ambassador to South Vietnam again in 1965 and he returned to Saigon Aug. 19 of that year. Before he left Saigon for the Guam conference, newsmen asked him whether he planned to join in the 1968 presidential campaign, possibly as an adviser on Vietnam to Michigan's Gov. George Romney. Lodge said, "I do not intend to get involved." (See Page Eight)

Refused Induction

Court Bars Mitchell Review

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court refused today by an 8-1 vote to review the conviction of a Brooklyn, N.Y., man who refused to report for induction on the claim that the war in Vietnam violates various international treaties.

Dissenting, Justice William O. Douglas said David Henry Mitchell III was entitled to a hearing to determine whether the war is a "war of aggression" within the meaning of the 1945 Treaty of London.

"I intimate no opinion on the merits" of the claims made by Mitchell, Douglas said, but he contended the court should have heard his appeal because the questions he raised are recurring ones in present day Selective Service cases.

The majority made no comment in rejecting Mitchell's appeal. The 24-year-old bookstore clerk was convicted last year in U.S. District Court in Hartford, Conn., of "knowingly and willfully" failing to report for induction. He was sentenced to up to five years in federal prison. Mitchell, formerly of New Canaan, headed an anti-Vietnam war and anti-draft movement. Some 30 to 40 sympathizers showed up at the federal building in New Haven recently when Mitchell turned himself in at the U.S. Marshal's office to start his sentence.

Under the London treaty, signed by the United States, "waging of a war of aggression" is a "crime against peace" imposing "individual responsibility."

Mitchell, claiming the Vietnam war is a war of aggression within the meaning of the treaty, said he could be held responsible for participating in it even though he was ordered to report for induction.

"These are extremely sensitive and delicate questions," Douglas wrote. "But they should, I think, be answered."

They will not be answered at this juncture by the Supreme Court because Mitchell needed the vote of at least four justices to have his appeal heard. The slender, soft-spoken clerk claimed he had a moral and legal duty under the international charter which governed the post-World War II Nazi war crimes trial to refuse to cooperate with the draft.

The justice Department, in asking the court Feb. 20 not to hear Mitchell's appeal, said his claim that the United States is engaged in an illegal war in Vietnam "presents a political question which is inappropriate for resolution by the courts."

The department also said nothing in the Nuernberg charter or in international law "suggests that individual soldiers are entitled to refuse to serve in wars with which they disagree."

Interfaith Ceremony

Christian Bishops Present Mezuzahs

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Two bishops presented a Jewish congregation on Palm Sunday with the religious symbols that traditionally are fixed to the doorposts by Jewish families as a sign of their faith.

Bishops of the state's Catholics and Episcopalians, clad in brilliant, identically colored purple robes, fastened sterling silver mezuzahs to the pillars of the modern new synagogue built by Beth Israel congregation, Jackson's only Jewish assembly.

A mezuzah is a container holding parchment inscribed with lines of verses from Deuteronomy.

Catholic Bishop Joseph B. Brunini said he gave his mezuzah "in a spirit of stonement for any injuries Christian people may have inflicted."

Bishop Brunini and Episcopal Bishop John M. Allin, with retired Catholic Bishop Richard O. Gerow, led an ecumenical and interracial procession of ministers, representing nearly all of Mississippi's major denominations, to the doors of the new building. Rabbi Perry E. Nussbaum, (See Page Eight)

Vernon McCusker Assails Grant For Charging Town Split

Thomas McCusker, Democratic town mayor, said today he "must answer" the charge of Jack Grant, Republican candidate for mayor at the April 4 elections, that McCusker has "driven a wedge between the former city and Fire District."

McCusker said Grant "is attacking directly every office holder and employee of the town, and all members of Boards and Commissions."

He called on Grant to detail the wedge charge or withdraw it "at once."

The different sections of the town have been unified during the past two years under consolidation, according to the mayor. "The most optimistic proponents of consolidation did not believe that we could so completely unify our town in such a short time," he said.

"I know that Mr. Grant cannot support this charge with facts," McCusker said, "but does have the courage to write me with his error and apologize to the people in our government."

of the book in April, May and June of 1966 was ignored later that year and waves of changes were being urged upon him.

Manchester says another former White House assistant, Arthur Schlesinger Jr., was given a cool reception by Mrs. Kennedy after he resisted efforts to change a book he wrote about the president.

The two years following the assassination, Manchester says, were the loneliest in his life. The reason, he says, was that he had become a reservoir of intimate confidences so delicate and sensitive that he couldn't tell his own wife about them.

Manchester says he had been on a first-name basis with Mrs. Kennedy, calling her Jackie, but after strained relationships began developing, her letters to him would end, "Sincerely, Jacqueline Kennedy."

"Like Pam's, they were stapled to the gallery, but while hers had been largely trivial, mine would have required a rewriting of history. Among other things, he wanted a new version of President Johnson's first Cabinet meeting, eliminating the friction between Johnson and Bob Kennedy. It would, in brief, have constituted history and was written to reject it."

Manchester indicates he believes that most of his troubles over the proposed changes in his manuscript stemmed from Jacqueline Kennedy. He says she had come to think of him as a member of her court.

Mrs. Kennedy filed a lawsuit against Manchester, Look magazine and publisher Harper & Row last Dec. 13 to block publication of his book, which she called "lascivious and defamatory."

The suit was settled out of court and Look subsequently published a four-part serialization. Harper & Row plans to publish a complete edition of his book in the current issue. Manchester also criticizes the blabbing of Symphonic and Salinger, White House aides to President Kennedy. He says the two gave in to demands by the Kennedys for changes in the

The Governors Turn Reticent

The kind of easy, automatic "consensus" which the Johnson administration repeatedly obtained for its earliest steps into the Vietnam escalation has, ironically, ceased to be easily and readily available now that the full involvement of escalation has been physically established.

Now we are pinioned there, and can't possibly seem to get out, people are beginning to develop the reservations and questions which might conceivably have been of some value and influence if they had been present at an earlier stage of the issue.

Thus the famous Gulf of Tonkin Resolution, which walked through Congress in the summer of 1964 has since been vetoed by a number of those who voted for it and even shopped it toward its passage.

At the time, they had been somewhat more willing to investigate the nature and reality of the incident to which the Resolution was supposedly responding, and had, instead of writing casual kind foreign policy blank checks, made some attempt to speak with the President about what he and his advisers might have in mind in Southeast Asia.

Saturday night, in Washington, President Johnson entertained the nation's governors. A year ago, when he had the governors with him, the adoption of a blanket endorsement of his policies in Vietnam, this Saturday night, the administration forwarded such resolution to the governors.

It is difficult to say that this new reticence of the Republican governors is particularly commendable. Their increased wariness of being trapped into another Johnson consensus can perhaps be credited to their realization that there is going to be a presidential election in this country next year, and that their candidate and their platform may find it strategically advantageous to be able, then, to indulge in some full and open criticism of President Johnson's conduct of the war.

The possibility that does invite some serious thought is the possibility that if the governors had, on previous occasions, devoted honest discussion and analysis to the policies and actions they were endorsing, the nation might have had more of a meaningful debate on Vietnam at a time when the nation still had some options of choice of policy left. It might have been a healthier nation, sounder in its politics, if not only Republican governors, but Democratic governors as well, had at least pretended to have minds of their own when they were being asked to lend their prestige to what has since proved to be an open-minded commitment being made by the executive branch.

Now, after we are in so deep we can't get out—and perhaps that deep because the White House was easily able to maneuver one consensus endorsement of its policies after another—the governors suddenly began reading the same kind of consensus. That's par for the course on the Vietnam issue. The debate, and independence of view that might once have been significant and valuable keep arriving late.

More Spent Than Brutal?

Not too many months ago, this country was reported to be buying old bombs abroad in order to keep up its supply for the war in Vietnam.

Now we have a surplus of bombs, and we are about to cut our production of bombs down from about 98,000 tons a month to only 20,000.

We now have more than 200,000 tons stored in warehouses and on ships in the war area.

To the pacifist, to the instinctive dove, to the automatic hater of all war, such statistics probably seem an indication and proof of American brutality in Vietnam. The statistics make it sound as if we were delivering, to a very small Asian country, more violence from the air than we showed upon all of German-held Europe at the height of our air power in World War II.

It would probably be a more accurate appraisal of the American bombing in Vietnam to call it more unproductive than it is.

We have been bombing in Vietnam on the theory that dollars and bombs are the same thing to American lives. If we see an opportunity to spend a few hundred thousand dollars to make it possible for American troops to enter some small sector of jungle without encountering enemy fire, we spend it. If we are in doubt about the situation, we do not hesitate to bomb again.

Thus, the scientific production of use of bombs actually has an implication of relative humanity toward the enemy, too. Not particularly for reasons of humanity, but for policy reasons, we have been operating on the theory that we would rather knock a stretch of road out of use 100 times a year than massacre the manpower which keeps putting roads back in commission between bombings.

Only a nation as production rich as we are could, to look at the bombing statistics in one way, afford to wage such a limited war and drop so many bombs to accomplish relatively so little.

In any case, the lammage dropped is, after one looks at it, no automatic proof that we are waging this war with unparalleled brutality. Actually, we are using our wealth of bombs to wage a kind of war which would rather spend dollars than lives, and which, so far, even manages some degree of dividend from such a policy for the enemy.

Probably the record stands this way: never in history have so many tons of bombs been dropped with such minimum human casualties.

We might be able to claim firmer satisfaction from this if we could be sure that it is going to continue to be that kind of war which would rather spend dollars than lives, and which, so far, even manages some degree of dividend from such a policy for the enemy.

Amamus Carolam

We editorialize as long for years, trying to rationalize our own actions, or disaffection toward a given individual in history or on the contemporary scene, and then, sometimes, one day, traitor sought and got from them the adoption of a blanket endorsement of his policies in Vietnam, this Saturday night, the administration forwarded such resolution to the governors.

It is difficult to say that this new reticence of the Republican governors is particularly commendable. Their increased wariness of being trapped into another Johnson consensus can perhaps be credited to their realization that there is going to be a presidential election in this country next year, and that their candidate and their platform may find it strategically advantageous to be able, then, to indulge in some full and open criticism of President Johnson's conduct of the war.

Of Weeds And Flies

A Providence clergyman said from his pulpit Sunday that U.S. war strategists in Vietnam "like trying to weed a garden with a bulldozer." Another analogy we hear now and then is "trying to kill a fly with a sledgehammer."

These comparisons are well taken, especially when giant B52 bombers are dispatched to Vietnam in a last-ditch effort to force of Viet Cong in the jungle. But in the absence of more effective tactics under conditions that exist in Vietnam it is better to let the weeds and the flies take over. It sounds like a job for a spraying squadron, and let's not get into that. We don't have enough space left, anyway.—SPRINGFIELD, UNION

Inside Report

Rowland Evans Jr. and Robert D. Novak

WASHINGTON — In the late 1950's, the then CIA Director, Allen W. Dulles, journeyed to Capitol Hill to try and persuade CIA's clandestine investigators four Congressmen that certain Central Intelligence Agency funds should be lifted out of the State Department's regular budget.

Dulles ran into a stone wall in the form of Rep. John Rooney, the tight-fisted Brooklyn Democrat and powerful chairman of the State Department Appropriations Subcommittee.

Several days before Kennedy made his speech calling for an end to the bombing pause, the President turned to this side and asked in an exasperated manner what it was that Kennedy was really up to.

The reply of the aide, which he intended the President to take as a joke, was that obviously Kennedy wanted to run for President in 1968.

Instead of taking the remark as a joke, however, Mr. Johnson took it in deadly seriousness. Within three days, he solemnly informed other White House aides, and intimates outside the White House, of five separate occasions that he knew Kennedy was in the last stages of making up his mind to run for President next year.

Dulles returned to his desk at the CIA empty-handed.

There was, moreover, another obstacle blocking Dulles' path. The Appropriation subcommittee that handled the top-secret, multi-billion-dollar CIA account was also made to make the transfer. The subcommittee wanted all CIA money kept in one account, not scattered throughout several sub-accounts.

In this particular case, the matter at issue was not clandestine funding of such organizations as the National Student Association. It was the financing of what was then known as the national intelligence surveys, a fairly routine operation costing several millions of dollars a year.

These surveys were up-to-date reports on every country in the world, kept current for quick inspection in the event of a sudden, unexpected political crisis.

This, at least in that one case, Congress has itself to blame for continuing the top-secret handling of foreign expenditures that the Agency wanted to bring into the open.

Even if the government had tried to switch the financing of the student association from dummy foundations and CIA fronts into public appropriations, such as the State Department budget, the result on Capitol Hill could have been chaotic.

Footnote: The investigation ordered by President Johnson into the extent of CIA's subrosa financial support for allegedly private organizations is going much slower than planned.

Headed by the industrial Under Secretary, Nicholas Katzenbach, the probe was originally due to the President's

Thought for Today

An unspeakable pain, O Queen, you command me to renew.

When the world is full of would-be Caesars who don't even bother to learn their own language, let alone the Latin, is it any wonder that there is a certain compulsive charm about an imperial magnificence who can make his by-play remarks in a language fit for emperors?

It is difficult to say that this new reticence of the Republican governors is particularly commendable. Their increased wariness of being trapped into another Johnson consensus can perhaps be credited to their realization that there is going to be a presidential election in this country next year, and that their candidate and their platform may find it strategically advantageous to be able, then, to indulge in some full and open criticism of President Johnson's conduct of the war.

The possibility that does invite some serious thought is the possibility that if the governors had, on previous occasions, devoted honest discussion and analysis to the policies and actions they were endorsing, the nation might have had more of a meaningful debate on Vietnam at a time when the nation still had some options of choice of policy left. It might have been a healthier nation, sounder in its politics, if not only Republican governors, but Democratic governors as well, had at least pretended to have minds of their own when they were being asked to lend their prestige to what has since proved to be an open-minded commitment being made by the executive branch.

Now, after we are in so deep we can't get out—and perhaps that deep because the White House was easily able to maneuver one consensus endorsement of its policies after another—the governors suddenly began reading the same kind of consensus. That's par for the course on the Vietnam issue. The debate, and independence of view that might once have been significant and valuable keep arriving late.

More Spent Than Brutal?

Not too many months ago, this country was reported to be buying old bombs abroad in order to keep up its supply for the war in Vietnam.

Now we have a surplus of bombs, and we are about to cut our production of bombs down from about 98,000 tons a month to only 20,000.

We now have more than 200,000 tons stored in warehouses and on ships in the war area.

To the pacifist, to the instinctive dove, to the automatic hater of all war, such statistics probably seem an indication and proof of American brutality in Vietnam. The statistics make it sound as if we were delivering, to a very small Asian country, more violence from the air than we showed upon all of German-held Europe at the height of our air power in World War II.

It would probably be a more accurate appraisal of the American bombing in Vietnam to call it more unproductive than it is.

We have been bombing in Vietnam on the theory that dollars and bombs are the same thing to American lives. If we see an opportunity to spend a few hundred thousand dollars to make it possible for American troops to enter some small sector of jungle without encountering enemy fire, we spend it. If we are in doubt about the situation, we do not hesitate to bomb again.

Thus, the scientific production of use of bombs actually has an implication of relative humanity toward the enemy, too. Not particularly for reasons of humanity, but for policy reasons, we have been operating on the theory that we would rather knock a stretch of road out of use 100 times a year than massacre the manpower which keeps putting roads back in commission between bombings.

Only a nation as production rich as we are could, to look at the bombing statistics in one way, afford to wage such a limited war and drop so many bombs to accomplish relatively so little.

In any case, the lammage dropped is, after one looks at it, no automatic proof that we are waging this war with unparalleled brutality. Actually, we are using our wealth of bombs to wage a kind of war which would rather spend dollars than lives, and which, so far, even manages some degree of dividend from such a policy for the enemy.

Probably the record stands this way: never in history have so many tons of bombs been dropped with such minimum human casualties.

We might be able to claim firmer satisfaction from this if we could be sure that it is going to continue to be that kind of war which would rather spend dollars than lives, and which, so far, even manages some degree of dividend from such a policy for the enemy.

Columbia Birds Taking To Majestic Bird Feeder

By VIRGINIA CARLSON
"Well," intoned the head of the household, emerging from the depths and the clutter of the basement carrying a large object, "is this a bird feeder or isn't it?"
"Well, you could fool someone," "Wow," he allowed, "when the birds see this they'll come from miles around."
"From miles around?"
"Well, people too, seeing as it looks like a replica of the Taj Mahal without the minaret."
"You see this little trench on the sides?" That will keep the birds from pushing the seeds on the ground the way they did last year."
"Tell that to the birds."
"Well, up went the bird feeder on top of a pole and they did come from miles around. Even the birds."
"What you do is, you stand on a chair, lift up the roof and pour in the seed. What doesn't go on you, goes in the bird feeder."
The first day of operation the husband came home at noon to see how his bird seed was going. It was going like a mad. He watched a while and became resigned.

Morehead Optioned to Toronto, Conigliaro on Way Back Coming and Going in Bosox Camp

NEW YORK (AP) — The pitchers are going further in the spring training exhibitions now, but few of them are going as far as Dave Morehead.

Morehead, a Boston right-hander who has won only one game since he threw a no-hitter against the Cleveland Indians Sept. 16, 1965, has been optioned to Toronto of the International League.

He was bothered with arm trouble most of last season and had a 1-2 record. He was bonked for 10 runs in 12 1/2 innings by the New York Mets last Thursday in his only exhibition appearance this season.

"I had to send him where he can get a chance to pitch," Boston Manager Dick Williams said Sunday in Winter Haven, Fla. "When he shows us that he's okay, we'll call him back." But while Williams was disappointed with Morehead's performance, he got some good news from another quarter — slugger Tony Conigliaro is on his way back.

"Tony should be swinging a bat in a week and playing in two weeks," Red Sox physician Dr. Thomas Tierney said after examining Conigliaro in Boston.

Conigliaro suffered a hairline fracture of the shoulder when hit by a pitch in batting practice Saturday. He was flown to Boston for an examination, and returned to the team Sunday.

He didn't make it back in time for the game, but the Red Sox still pulled out a 7-4 decision over Detroit.

In the other Florida exhibition, the New York Yankees beat the Mets 1-0 in Fort Lauderdale, St. Louis took the Chicago White Sox 7-4 at St. Petersburg, Fla., and the Philadelphia Phillies 4-0 at Clearwater.

Cleveland blasted California 8-2 at Tucson, Ariz., and San Francisco topped the Chicago Cubs 8-5 at Phoenix, Ariz. Kansas City edged Minnesota 5-4 in St. Louis.

Conigliaro's replacement, George Thomas, had three of the Red Sox' 18 hits and drove in three runs. Boston rallied for two runs in the bottom of the ninth to win it, with Bob Tillyman's bases-loaded squeeze bunt capping it.

Fritz Peterson and Thad Tilton combined to throw a complete game for the Yankees. Peterson allowed only a single in six innings. A walk, Mike Johnson had a three-run homer providing the only run.

A three-run barn in the sixth staked the Cardinals to a victory over the White Sox, St. Louis' third straight triumph.

Sonny Jackson's 10th-inning single drove in Ron Brand for the winning run in Houston's decision over the Pirates.

Sammy Ellis of the Reds held the Braves to one hit in their first inning, getting four hits in all of his first four innings.

A walk, a balk and Dick Green's run scoring single in the 10th won it for the 4-2 in Venezuela. Kansas City was won by three of four from the Twins in their South American trip.

Middle man on the doubleplay, Woodie Woodward at second, was also picked up defensively this spring, which caused the manager to be optimistic. "He throws funny, like a guy with a stiff arm, but he gets the ball out," said the manager.
