Gov. Wallace Opposes Order on Integration

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—Gov. Lurleen Wallace today threatened defiance of a new school integration order and the vote "whenever possible."

She urged a cheering Alabama Legislature to hand down a "cease and desist" ultimatum to a three-judge federal court which said nine days ago all public schools in the state, including their facilities, must be desegregated by next September.

And she asked the Legislature to take her with authority to vote over the schools now held by the state school superintendent so she can refuse to enter on the court order. The speech was broadcast statewide by radio and television.

MILFORD (AP)—Firemen rescued two young children from death today as they fled from a fire that broke out on the floor of a three-story bedroom in a blazing house.

Erratic Weather Ruins Most of State's Peaches

HARTFORD (AP)—The winter's erratic weather has virtually wiped out Connecticut's peach crop.

Growers, who are the marketing division of the State Agriculture Department, estimate 10 to 20 per cent of their peach buds were damaged.

For growers, this means a loss of about half a million dollars. For homebuyers, it will mean less bargain peaches at grocery stands and higher prices elsewhere.

Tariff Talks Vital, Veep Warns Italy

ROME (AP)—Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey today warned Italy that failure of the Kennedy round tariff talks could stir a wave of protectionism in the United States.

A reinforced police guard surrounded Humphrey's activities after youths protesting the Vietnam war hurled yellow paint at him Thursday night at the House Office.

Humphrey was said to have told the Italian leaders a aim is the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals here it could possibly assist one of the 29 plastic containers of paint.

North Viet Steel Plant Hit Again

SAIGON (AP)—U.S. troops battled four hours today against a hard-core Communist Regiment believed to be protecting a divisional headquarters, then pulled into defensive lines for the night under a rain of bullets, rockets and mortar shells.

Two battalions of the 1st Infantry Division, about 1,400 men—were involved in the battle, five miles from the Cambodian frontier, against an enemy force tentatively identified as the 7th Regiment, known as the police guard of the Viet Cong's 6th Division.

In the air war the U.S. Command announced that Air Force jets led by a 44-year-old World War II ace blew out the blast furnaces of North Vietnam's shipwreck that Nguyen Son plant 57 miles north of Hanoi Thursday.

In the savage ground action the enemy, at first believed to be the 2,000 North Viet Regiment, stopped the Americans cold.

The battle started shortly after noon when a 23-man reconnaissance platoon pushed into the night under a hail of helicopter landing guns.

"The platoon leader's voice disappeared within two minutes after the fighting started," Associated Press photographer Hans Jansen reported from the scene. "Either the man or his radio had been hit; in either case the vital communications link was broken."

A company of about 100 men went into the platoon, which was pinned down under rocket, mortar and machine-gun fire. That company was soon pinned down, as well. On the flank, enemy snipers kept two other U.S. companies pinned down, preventing them from moving to the rescue.

While the 1st Battalion was pinned down, the 2nd Battalion moved into the western portion of the area. The 2nd Battalion was pinned down after pushing only two days of meetings today after serving President Johnson two standing ovations for an hour.

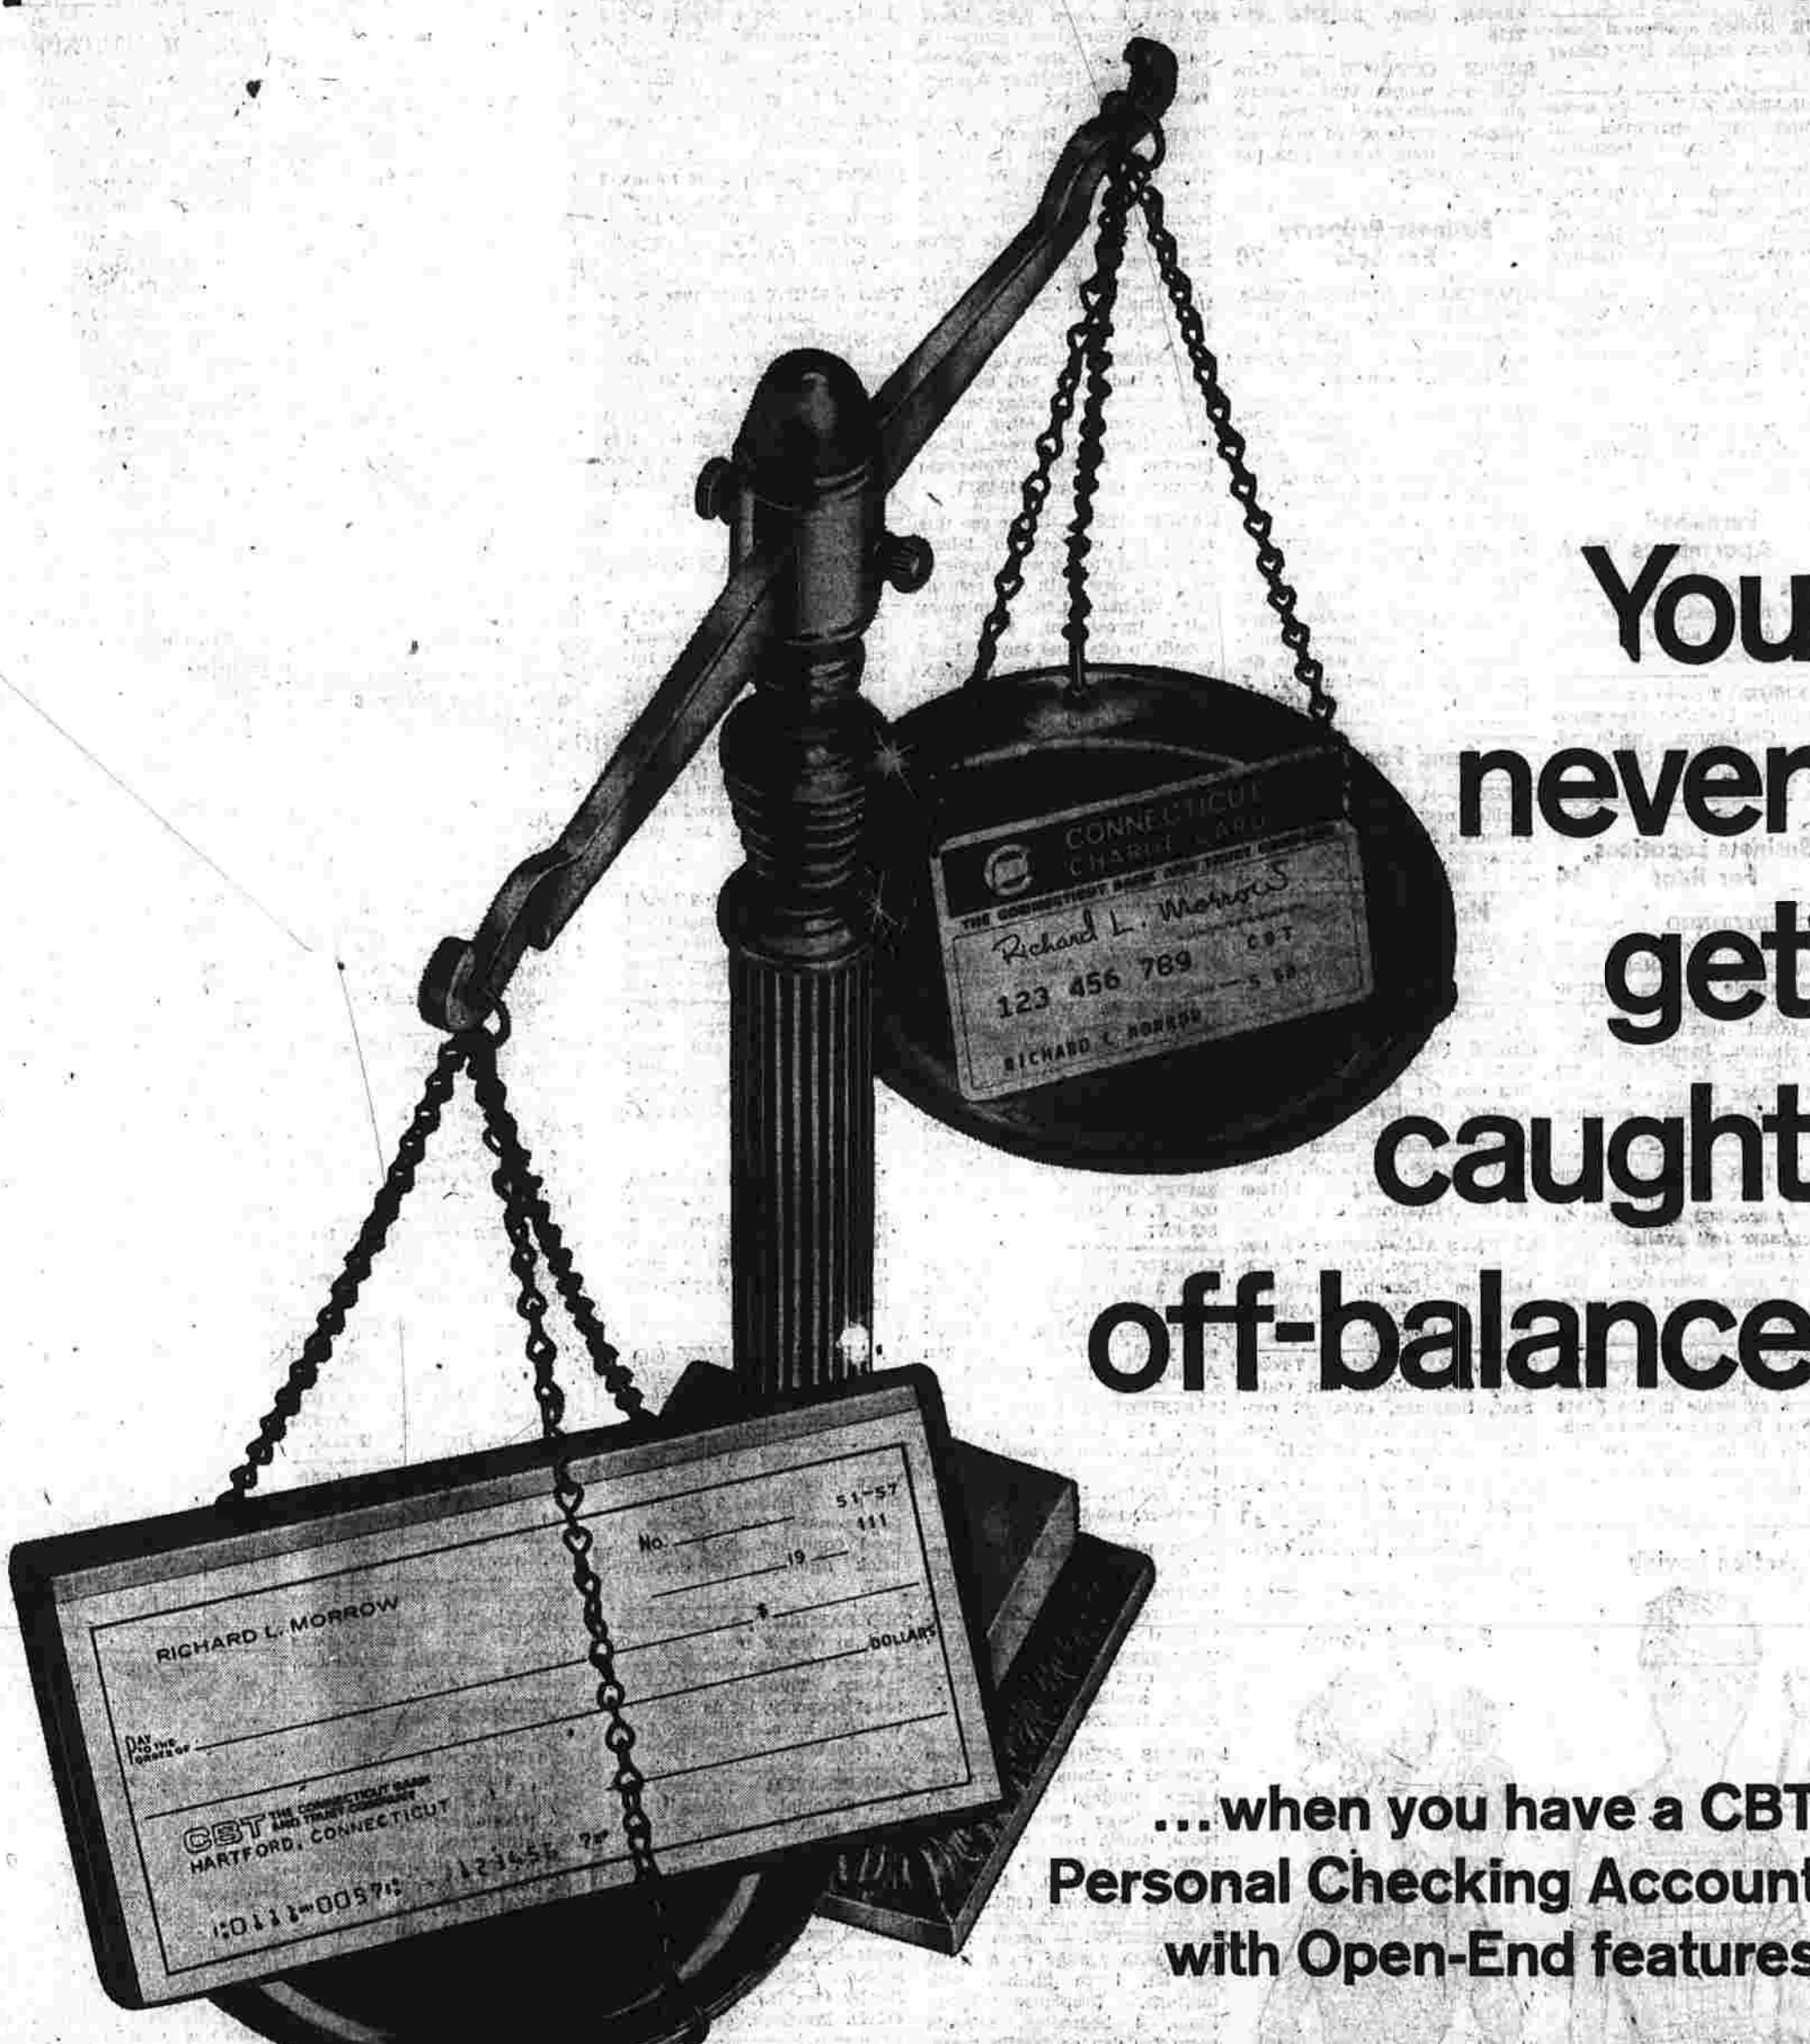

The firing was fierce. An unconfirmed death report of American casualties was seven dead and 38 wounded. Enemy losses were not known.

As Humphrey arrived for the opera, demonstrators also scattered tiny leaflets with the words, "Peace and liberty for Vietnam" in Italian on them.

While he was inside, an improvised smoke bomb was thrown from a passing car and a North Vietnamese flag was waved.

Humphrey said he would be in Rome for a performance of Verdi's "Ernani." Only a few drops stained the dark suit, but he was not bothered. He got a warm ovation when he entered his box and was in his usual jovial mood during the intermission buffet.

Cellist Gets Long Ovation
By JOHN GRUBER

Mstislav Rostropovich played to a very large and appreciative audience at UConn's Jorgensen Auditorium last evening and was accorded a standing ovation by his hearers at the concert's close. Rostropovich, who is virtually a household name, played with Alexander Deduhin, pianist, for two of the three offerings were sonatas for cello and piano.

The hall is extremely large for a solo recital and cello is an instrument which really demands more intimate surroundings, but Mr. Rostropovich's playing was most effective even so. Mr. Deduhin balanced his superbly, a feat most more difficult than it may seem, for cello is an instrument that is usually covered.

Stylistically, Mr. Rostropovich is a romanticist. It mattered not whether the music was Beethoven, Bach or Grieg, there was no trace of academicism, only warm and sympathetic interpretations. Some of the most beautiful of the least bit on the "show-off" side.

Since cello recitals are something of a rarity, one can hardly call his choice of numbers well known, yet they were works commonly found in the repertoire of all serious performers on the instrument. The program opens with Beethoven's A-major Sonata which was accorded a romantic interpretation as I have noted.

Inasmuch as this sonata was written after the "Pastorale" Symphony, the nature of presentation was well chosen, even though I have usually heard it in a more severely "classical" manner. There was a tendency to force the tone in spots, probably occasioned by the vastness of the hall, but on the whole the work was accorded a nearly exemplary performance.

Bach's unaccompanied Suite for Cello No. 3 came next, and again there was a romantic approach to the old baroque master. Mr. Rostropovich gave the impression of playing with a great deal of rubato, but upon careful examination I discovered that he played with great evenness so far as beats were concerned, the apparent freedom of it within the beat, in the manner so strenuously urged by Messiaen.

This sonata was one of the finest lessons he could have given to musicians who abound in the audience. There wasn't the slightest feeling of rigidity, yet there was absolute precision in the rhythm.

Finally, we heard Grieg's Sonata in A minor. I have never cared particularly for this work which strikes me as second rate so far as composition is concerned. The last movement, in particular, is prosaic and usually boring. This was not the case under the treatment of Rostropovich.

He brought a wealth of interpretative ideas to the composition so that the numerous repetitions of thematic material were constantly varied. At times there was a sort of slapdash attitude about the performance, and at least once he got in trouble but recovered so artfully that few in the audience could have noticed.

The audience, stunned by his technique and artistry, brought the artist back again and again at the close, demanding and receiving three additional to the printed program, according to a standing ovation as I have mentioned, complete with vociferous acclaim.

Vernon Humphry: A Tax Rise Need Not Be

By MALCOLM BARLOW

A realistic budget and the experience to manage it are two of the reasons Peter Humphry, Democratic candidate for mayor, said he and his party can reduce the tax rate.

Tax reduction is the biggest campaign issue and the first plank on the 12-point Democratic platform, Humphry said in an interview recently.

He pointed out the Democrats were the first to pledge a tax reduction weeks ago.

"We have the ability to protect future and know what they mean," he said.

The projected figures he talked over the chances for increased aid from the state for education, reducing the town's debt and items in this year's budget not recurring in next year's.

"Our opponents haven't done this," he said. Grant "didn't look he just assumed" there was no chance for tax reduction, the Democrat said.

"But lately, 'someone must have whispered in his ear' and the Republicans now talk of lowering taxes, he said.

Humphry claimed all the figures he used to determine the tax situation for next year were public information and he had no pipeline to "pry information."

A skyrocketing tax rate need not be so, he insisted.

Mayor Thomas McCusker, Democrat, said yesterday a tax rate of about two mills is very possible.

Humphry said "regardless of all contingencies" there will be a budget cut.

If the town's teachers got their salary demands of a starting pay of $4,800 on a 1.64 rate, the addition to the education budget would be about $120,000.

When asked about this, Humphry said he had figured on the possibility and it would not prevent a tax reduction.

But tax reduction is merely one of the tools for the business growth the town needs, Humphry said.

Other nearby towns have mill rates below 40 because of their large tax assessment bases including industry, he pointed out.

"Traffic monsters" force people to shop elsewhere, he said and helped create the Federated Road Industrial Park, Humphry said.

It is "mandatory" taxes be reduced to attract industry, he said.

But the town's services, he said, must also be kept high and approach to town taxes is the Economic Development Commission, Humphry said.

Further use of the active EDC in all phases of industry will be made while he is in office, he said.

He pointed out the EDC's varied activities by citing its feasibility study of a golf course for Vernon.

The EDC, chaired by Robert Houtley, is a many-appointed committee to aid present industry and foster further growth. It has introduced Vernon to industries, advised local firms in financial trouble and helped create the Federated Road Industrial Park, Humphry said.

The golf course study is only an example of its varied ac-

Stay Out of Powell Case, House Will Tell U.S. Court

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House today has no constitutional right to interfere with the March 1 action that excluded Judge Powell from the House seat.

Bruce Bromley, House counsel, said he is filing briefs answering charges filed by Powell on March 8 and also plans to move for dismissal of the suit on grounds the court has no jurisdiction over an action by a house of Congress.

The list entered what appeared to be the third round of the suit, with Powell's attorneys filing briefs but the popular averages were down.

Most changes were slight at the opening but as the session warmed up there was an increasing emphasis on selected issues, both in buying and selling.

The House's 10 years from now will still be a "bedroom" community, he said, but already it is being transformed by 1974, he estimated a town of about 30,000 at most.

The new industry here will be research and development types, he said. Planning work connected with the Capital Region Planning Agency will be constantly improving Vernon.

"The water may taste 'raw' by then, too, he said.

Vernon can be "the best community in the country," Humphry insisted.

"We have the brain power and the people capable of doing it," he said.

More people should be interested and active in the community and be promoted to give them room to go to work.

There was little or no feeling, however, that the relatively strong showing by the Republican represented any widespread voter endorsement of a new militant Vietnam policy than that of President Johnson's.

One question, of course, whether, if the election had resulted in a resounding, normal-sized Democratic victory for the Democrats, would observers would then have also denied that the Vietnam issue was involved? It almost seems as if somebody had set up the interpretive rules so that even if the Republican candidate had won, it could still be claimed that he would have won by a greater margin if he had backed the President on Vietnam.

But it can stand as rather obvious, we would say, that the Republican candidate's call for a halt of the bombing could not have hurt him very much, not if he came out with roughly half the votes in a strong Democratic district.

And there was another result in the Rhode Island vote. A third, independent, outright peace candidate, the Rev. Albert Q. Perry, got himself 3,004 votes on the ballot for coming America's withdrawal from the war. Had these votes gone to the Republican candidate the latter would have been elected. Or, to put it one other way: a majority of the voters in the district did not avail themselves of the opportunity to vote for the one candidate who backed President Johnson's Vietnam policy.

Had a majority in the district voted in a way that could be interpreted as support for the President, that would, one supposes, qualify as a clear, loud, and conclusive verdict.

That Banana Bunch

We of the elder generation can never be sure just when the bananas are serious and when they are just putting us on.

But in the business of bananas, we are almost willing to wager a whole bunch of bats that they are about to have so much fun with the world that their skinny young sides must be splitting.

The word they are spreading—with at least stimulated practice and demonstration to back it up—is that they have discovered delightfully dusty drug-free means for keeping the pulp off banana skins, bake-drying the remainder, and then smoking the result.

No one knows for sure whether this is a real sensation or a psychological result of the sheer fun of being engaged with so much solemnity in such obvious nonsense. But the best witness for the process makes it seem, at least, as if it were the heavenly position, at last.

One such witness says that he finds he got "just barely high enough to suspect I was high."

That sounds like the perfect addiction to address our addled world to.

But in any case, it also sounds like the banana illegal. They think that the international banana companies, who have had enough influence to deal with whole republics in Latin America, will have influence enough to protect their product in this country.

And, along with their judgment that nobody will dare attack the banana for real, they have good reason for judging that their own lavish public display of alleged addiction will stir up the moralists, the denouncers, the lecturers on righteous youth, and the expostulators of horrified indignation at new excesses of horridly righteous sin.

Community College

The Norwalk Community College budget for the next biennium, according to Governor Dempsey, should be $7.5 million. The Commission for Higher Education asked for $12.5 million. The students at the community college recognize the fact that the governor's allocation is larger than last biennium. They admit that the sum allocated will not cover the quantity of quality education they will receive. They are convinced, however, that unless the full $12.5 million is appropriated it will be impossible for Norwalk Community College to fill its obligations in the future.

The college might have to limit its enrollment. This would defeat the chief purposes of the college.

Having taken this position the students are trying to do something about it. Announcing that they "can't fight city hall," they are launching a campaign to reach the state representative Paul Fino of the Democratic Party who has introduced a bill to increase state funds, having them realize the need, and getting their request granted.

The student government is embarking on a five step program to these ends. It is circulating a petition among Connecticut residents among high school students and among professional educators. It is obtaining letters from their Democratic foes of last year.

In this study, Phillips suggests that Javits and other liberal Republicans in New York have been lucky in facing "uninspiring machine politicians" as their Democratic foe of last year.

Then he dissects Javits's one million vote win in 1962.

"Actually," Senator Javits does not have as broad a base of support as Governor Rockefeller. In 1962, Senator Javits largely behind the Governor Rockefeller, in heavily Catholic, Protestant, Negro or Puerto Rican precincts.

Inside Report

WASHINGTON — Even before Ambassador Arthur Goldberg popped up as a Democratic possibility for the Senate, conservative elements in this country...

One has to pay some attention to some of the delightful angles the banana boomers have been thinking up for themselves and their cult.

They have got it figured out that nobody will dare pass a law declaring the banana illegal. They think that the international banana companies, who have had enough influence to deal with whole republics in Latin America, will have influence enough to protect their product in this country.

And, along with their judgment that nobody will dare attack the banana for real, they have good reason for judging that their own lavish public display of alleged addiction will stir up the moralists, the denouncers, the lecturers on righteous youth, and the expostulators of horrified indignation at new excesses of horridly righteous sin.

To the Editor:

"Both Thrift Institutions" in its March 22nd issue... The Herald, Walter C. Ryan, life insurance agent, opposes large policies for savings bank life insurance business. He has banks in the banking business and insurance companies in the insurance business. He has overlooked two major points:

The first is the similarity in the function of savings banking and life insurance. Both are thrift institutions and take care of other people's money. Life insurance companies are in the savings business. For example, they hold savings at interest in the form of dividend accumulations, subject to withdrawal on demand, and hold large funds at interest under settlement options. Many companies accept advance premium deposits discounted at interest. They offer savings plans in retirement, income and endowment policies, and in pension plans and annuities. The variable annuity, a relatively new creation, almost links to the fluctuation of the stock market.

Savings banks do not question these diversifications within life insurance companies. The above points are made only to illustrate that the "stick to your knitting" argument is a very weak one.

It is referred to the legislature's General Law Committee, which has issued a favorable report on the bill to allow the insurance means of buying life insurance direct in an economical way. The public is benefited by being given alternative methods in the market place, and this principle of free enterprise applies to the purchase of life services. Apparently Mr. Ryan would deprive the public of the right to free choice in the purchase of life insurance.

Praise for Po

To the Editor,

I thought my car was stolen from the Manchester Parkade parking lot while I shopped at Sears & Roebuck. I notified the Manchester Police Department and received immediate assistance.

Thirty minutes after reporting the stolen car, officers Gaskell and Calve and located the car. Unfortunately the person or persons who stole the car were not near the department.

My hat's off to the Manchester Police Department and particularly Officers Gaskell and Calve. If your newspaper can spare some space, I think it would be appropriate to commend these gentlemen for their fine work.

Sincerely yours,

A Thought for Today

Sponsored by the Manchester Council of Churches

Strange People
People who talk about prayer, or never pray.
People who say titling is right, but never tithe.
People who wish to belong to the church, but never attend or support the church program.
People who say the Bible is God's Word to man, but never read it.
People who say eternity is more important than time, but who live for the present life.
People who criticize others for things they do themselves.
People who stay from church for trivial reasons, and then sing, "How I Love Jesus."
People who follow the devil all their lives, but expect to go to heaven.
All of which makes us think of what Solomon wrote: "The way of man is forward and strange" (Proverbs 21:8).

House Comes to Aid Of 'Marrying John'

HARTFORD (AP)—The Connecticut House of Representatives today voted 112-17 to approve a bill that would help "marrying John" pay off a loan.

The House acted under emergency rules Thursday to speed passage of the bill. The bill would allow a man to pay off a loan by making a lump-sum payment of interest on the loan — 4 per cent — to the lender.

Knox had been asked for some time when he learned that the 11 marriages he performed after he had performed these 11 marriages. That was the date he reached his 70th birthday — the age 4 justice of the peace is no longer eligible to be such knots.

But Knox was unaware of this when he performed these 11 marriages, and he went to the Connecticut legislature to have them validated.

House members made some objections — but all in good humor.

"Can we throw out a part of the constitution by legislative act?" asked Democratic Rep. Morris B. Hogan of Burlington, who noted that the constitution requires mandatory retirement for justices of the peace at age 70.

He referred to the legislature's General Law Committee, which had issued a favorable report on the bill to allow the insurance means of buying life insurance direct in an economical way.

"We're marrying these people who they're not even here any year or two," Hogan said.

House Speaker Robert J. Taylor, banged his gavel in mock sternness and told Hogan "keep it clean" when the Burlington representative made a reference to "all this free marital activity."

Democratic Rep. Anthony M. Carlson of New Haven urged speedy passage of the bill because "we don't want any illegitimate children running around."

He noted that the 11 marriages must have worked out all right because there was no opposition to the bill when it was heard before the General Law Committee.

The "aye's" had it in the House vote, and the bill was sent to Gov. John Doolittle for signature.

Knox has declined to make public the names of the persons involved in the 11 marriages.

College Loan Bonds

HARTFORD (AP)—The House has unanimously passed a bill authorizing bond issues totaling $5 million to back up loans to college students over the next 10 years.

Bonds will not have to be issued by the state unless there is a major recession or other disturbance which results in a high rate of default by students repaying their loans.

The program guaranteed $5 million in loans to students during the first two years.

The Connecticut Foundation for Education, which administers the program, used up all its money and obtained another $200,000 this year to see the program through.

Space Rocket Adds Color to East's Sunset

WASHINGTON (AP)—A space rocket helped add new colors to the setting sun's rays along much of the East Coast Thursday night, as a second sky-lighting rocket tested its mission.

Launched from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Wallops Island, Va., station Thursday night, the second rocket was launched at 7:01 p.m. and unloaded barium and strontium to create a multi-colored aurora — TEB — in bands of electrical fire, wind movements and atomic oxygen.

The first Nike-Tomahawk rocket was launched at 7:00 p.m. and unloaded barium at heights varying from 50 to 100 miles. The barium formed three circles of green light tinged with red that faded to pale blue as the setting sun's rays also lit up the clouds.

The second rocket was fired at 7:05 p.m. but the ground station's telemetry lost contact two minutes later and the TEB failed. The rocket fell into the ocean five days following the failure.

A second TEB test was scheduled for 8:35 p.m. today, but NASA says the rocket will be carried out of the launch.

The 60-pound TEB package was to have been released up 100 miles, then released on descent between 50 and 60 miles. TEB-lighted clouds were to have provided data on atomic oxygen and sent a special photo-metric camera to the rocket.

Reports to NASA indicated the skies were litigated as far north as Newark, N.J., 200 miles from Wallops Island, Ohio.

Bolton Two Residents Suggested For Conservation Posts

The conservation commission, at a meeting last night voted to suggest two names to fill a vacancy on the commission and one as an alternate.

James Wilson of Mount Sunapee will be suggested to fill the seat left by Nelson Quimby III, who moved from Bolton. Wilson is a meteorologist with Travel Research in Hartford.

Frederick Cook of Altona Crossing Rd. will be suggested as an alternate. He works for the alcohol tax division of the D.S. treasury.

The commission adopted a budget of $135 for the next fiscal year.

It was moved to commend the efforts of Bill Litter Day, which will take place May 20 under the sponsorship of the 4-H, aided by all town and church youth organizations. The commission secretary Stanley Bates will represent the commission at an organizational meeting Tuesday.

It was reported that the high school has been given information on an essay contest on "A Citizen's Duty to His Town's Beauty". The contest will be arranged further by the teachers. Students in Grades 8 through 12 will be eligible to try for the prizes.

It was reported that no progress has been made in Herk Memorial Park during the winter months.

The commission discussed some parcels of tax-delinquent land in the North area, and change between the town and the Region Planning Association.

Orientation Set Parkade Group Asks Action on Traffic Snarls

The Parkade Merchants Association has asked the town to take some action on the traffic problem in the Parkade area.

Harry Cohen, president of the association, asked in a letter to Mayor Nathan Agostinelli that something be done to alleviate the condition of "traffic jams and the traffic situation in the broad St. area."

"Last fall," Cohen said, "a traffic survey was completed at the cost of $7,500 regarding the Parkade area. The survey is the study done by Wilbur Smith and Associates, consulting engineers, last May. According to the study, Manchester's most pressing traffic problem is at Broad and Center streets, and town officials stated to the town Board of Directors that the town's major arteries carry as high volume of traffic as many cities.

Town Planner Joseph Tanasy and Police Chief James Reardon signed "essentially as a small town which is being forced to deal with a traffic situation that is not in its best interests."

He said the survey indicates that the town's major arteries carry as high volume of traffic as many cities.

Tanasy pointed out that daily traffic volumes along Center St. averaged from 15,000 to 25,000 vehicles, along the Turnpike 8,000-13,000 and along Main St. 6,000-14,000.

Chief Reardon also urged at the meeting that the Center and Broad Sts. situation be tackled first, though he indicated several other areas where heavy traffic caused hazards to safety.

Erratic Weather Ruins Most of State's Peaches

Robert Goldman, chief of the marketing division, said today the culprit was the weather in late January and early February, when a few days of 60 to 70 degrees were followed by a sub-zero freeze.

The thus awakened buds that were formed last fall and had lain dormant. The freeze killed them.

Connecticut has about 60,000 peach trees. They are scattered throughout the state, set on hillsides to escape valley frosts. Connecticut is one of the peach-growing centers.

During the past five years, according to Goldman, these trees have produced 120,000 to 170,000 bushels a year. Farmers received an average price of $5.00 to $10.00 bushel during that period. Last year, they received $685,000 total.

U.S. Imports Mica
DENVER—U. S. production and consumption of mica continued unchanged through 1966. Output of sheet mica was maintained at the 1965 level but met only a small fraction of domestic needs, and the United States continues to rely heavily on sheet mica imports from India, Brazil and the Malagasy Republic.

Guardsmen Leave Spring for Alaska

Spring may be starting here, but these National Guardsmen left from Rockville this morning for the first leg of a trip to Ft. Greely, Alaska. The 71 members of the 12th Military Police Co. will spend two weeks there learning about warfare and survival in winter weather. At left is the battalion commander, Lt. Col. Henry J. Donovan, and next to him, First Lt. Alan E. Bennett, company commander. Others, from left, are Staff Sgt. Daniel S. Shibe, Sp5c. A Paul Sawyer, Sp4c. 4 John F. McConville; Sgt. L.C. John J. Kelly, and 1st Sgt. Fred S. McDonald. (Herald photo by Pinto).

Eye Testing Success, To Repeat Next Year

Despite two days of snowy weather, a total of 595 children were tested during Manchester's recent preschool vision screening program, according to statistics compiled by local sponsoring groups.

Of the total, 39 children or about 6 1/2 per cent failed to termed the program results pass the eye tests and have "very good" . . . truly a commendable result for a community effort.

Retesting, said Mrs. Hillich, will be done for three to five who were slightly "at risk," chief of public school nurses and program coordinator.

"Statistically, about two of 100 children are called to have amblyopia, or 'lazy eye blindness,'" a condition which can be corrected if discovered early.

"The Connecticut Society for the Prevention of Blindness, also program sponsor at the site. At a follow-up meeting held Wednesday on the March 28-71, Mrs. Hillich said that the first ever held in Manchester. Mrs. Hillich said that the first ever held in Manchester.

Many Charter Proposals Repeats of Earlier Ones

Manchester's Charter Revision Commission (CRC), convened last night, recommended that the town's 1947 charter, got more than 20 proposals, although only seven town electors showed up.

In addition to listening to proposed charter changes, many of them repeats of earlier proposals, the CRC had to listen to a scorching of charges, complaints and criticisms.

Mrs. Ralph Lewis of 149 Adams St., Dr. Eric speaker, recommended that the appointments of department heads be made by the Board of Education, and placed in the hands of the nine-member Board of Directors.

She also suggested that the town designate an expert on board interpretations, other than the town council, to advise when questions arise. She said change to limit use of all town funds as a bonded building, to have more continuous days, to have the time to interpret the charter thoroughly, unless otherwise authorized by a majority vote of the Board of Directors.

She said after the meeting that it is her suggestion to move the need for permissive education legislation, to validate the use of elementary school by the children being based here from Hartford's North Board. Mrs. Sanzo recommended that the Board of Education be authorized to show separate funds for salaries and administration and for building and maintenance. She said that funds for maintenance would be used for maintenance of the General Fund.

Atty. Thomas Bailey, a CRC member and member of the Board of Education and of the municipal government, said that he said that state grants for education should go for education, not for off-year loan.

The proposal was contained in a letter to the CRC from Lillian Howay of 143 Adelaide Rd.

Mrs. Moran said for a charter change provision, "to tell the town's 20 years, has resigned from that post.

The resignation was accepted by the Board of Directors. Louis W. Schaefer, it was learned today.

The Chamber is more active in local government than the Board of Directors," he said. Dr. Moran then turned his attention to the Board of Directors, saying that he was concerned "over its composition, with men unfit to govern, and ignorant of town affairs."

He criticized both parties for accepting any candidate willing to run. He recommended that candidates should prove their qualifications before being placed on a ticket.

"An $11 million business requires men who can say they are qualified," he insisted.

He recommended a board of finance for Manchester, "to control the campaign promises of both parties — promises they had no intention to keep."

For Finance Chief Herman Schendel asked for a strengthening of the charter's referendum clause, to make clear cut and to make it mandatory.

He charged, "Any board or commission of a town doing anything it wants to, because it knows that the people will not vote, is a disgrace to take the action to court."

He questioned the legality of the referendum, but said that he had been overruled, "he would be overruled," he said.

He asked "Governments by the people for the people."

"people who prepare our budgets and don't live here."

He didn't mention Superintendent of Schools William Curtis by name, but did imply implication when he referred to the "department head who prepares our budgets."

He charged that the town manager "is still not a town resident, after 14 years in office, because of a deal or promise made when he was hired. (The manager has purchased property and intends to build a home)."

"Those in authority should live here and pay taxes here just like the rest of us," he insisted.

Warrant Kelly of 34 Adams St. recommended a charter change which would permit only the owners of real estate to vote on financial matters.

He also recommended that all town departments, such as the police, should be leased.

"The churches are now getting into politics, therefore, they should be taxpayers," he said. Kelly recommended a tax abatement for persons 65 and over, and money taken from all of these. The amount taken has not yet been determined.

Prignano Quits Examiner's Post

Dr. John W. Prignano of 67 Willys St., the town's assistant medical examiner for the last 20 years, has resigned from that post.

The resignation was accepted by the Board of Directors. Louis W. Schaefer, it was learned today.
