What Pace in Such Turbulence?

These are times so turbulent, so loaded with potential and swings and exuberance, that we all ought to take it for granted that all expectations of any kind are less firm today than they have been in any phase of human history.

That uncertainty extends, of course, to survival itself. It extends to the most insignificant individual's expectation of how he may spend his next Saturday afternoon.

And it applies particularly, and awesomely, we should say, to all questions of political ambition, availability, candidacy.

We forgive all our politicians, in advance, for not keeping what they may have said in their words about their future conduct.

And we forgive them for making pledges they themselves may sense they may never keep.

They are all doing the best they know for their own careers, in an uncertain world.

Robert Kennedy, let it be known that he has no idea of letting himself be thrown into even a remote primary contest with Lyndon Johnson for the presidential nomination of 1968.

But we are constrained to point out that the ambition in which this makes sense for him may have turned itself into a political ambition.

Connecticut Yankee

By A.B.O.

Around the Legislature, one business from one special interest to another, the other morning, we were at the hearing before the Public Health and Safety Committee while it penetrated the mystery of a lovely little bill which merely added to the list of forbidden practices in the code of ethics for the state's pharmacists.

It turned out that the interest of the group of patients who had written the bill was to prevent pharmacies from offering any special discounts to the "senior citizens" of the state.

That same afternoon, it was the Judiciary Committee which was presiding over what one of its members labeled the eternal economic warfare which keeps bringing the state's professions, its commerce, its industry, its labor to the State Capitol.

One of the professions appearing that afternoon was fighting its way forward to get itself established as worth of the dignity and business of a state license.

But we are constrained to point out that the ambition in which this makes sense for him may have turned itself into a political ambition.

Wonders of the Universe

Mirror in Space

It is hard to find a longer period of time than that of a low-altitude orbit, which would have little value.

The reason behind the instability of the mirror satellite is that it is in a circular orbit around the earth in a synchronous orbit at an altitude of 22,300 miles.

What if there were a valid objection to the military use of a space mirror, there is considerable merit in its use for other purposes.

There are several that have been suggested. Dr. Theodore Sacher, who is administrator of NASA, said that the mirror could illuminate the earth's surface.

The laws of physics apply, which govern the size of the mirror and the diameter of the area illuminated by the mirror.

Auto Makers

Pin Hope on Buying Surge

DETROIT (AP)—The nation's auto industry, beginning a spring buying surge high enough to offset months of sluggish sales, promised a mixed economic picture.

But American Motors Corp., smallest major firm said it plans to reach 600 workers to increase production of its Ramer American series by 40 per cent.

And a General Motors official cited what he said was an increasing "temp of buyer enthusiasm."

Ford Motor Co. spokesman said the company had reduced its work force by 5,000 since the first of the year, but he was unable to speculate on any additional layoffs. A GM spokesman declined to comment on possible layoffs.

Other plants scheduled by the Chrysler Motor Corp. for layoffs, 5,000 workers at St. Louis, Mo., April 17; Newark, Del., 3,800 and Baltimore, Md., 3,500, both by April 17.

The latest industry report showed sales from Jan. 1 through March 31 were 26.5 per cent above the same period of 1966.

Production of cars in the first quarter this year was the lowest since the first quarter of 1965.

Johnson's Real Peace Timetable

Johnson's latest peace effort has been called "the way we Washington" by the Vietnam commentators who are the President's critics.

And this is a recurrent theme in all kinds of Washington comment and interpretation: the theme that President Johnson has tried to make peace in the name of the American people.

With all due credit to the real policy of the President is probably trying to pursue that of holding off real peace negotiations until we have proved our military might in Vietnam.

The only kind of peace offer to North Vietnam President Johnson has yet made is that he would not take.

His efforts toward peace in Vietnam have been similar to the offers someone might make to a man who is buying a new dollar building, to buy it for ten thousand dollars.

And to say that President Johnson has been persistent and patient in offering peace to North Vietnam in the saying has been to say the least.

It is possible to understand, even, from many points of view, to approve, the game the President seems to have decided to play.

Tales of Connecticut

Time Troubles

By Wesley Gryk Jr.

Punctual people, traveling across Connecticut before 1880, had a good deal of trouble being on time. Each town had its own time standard, based on the sun.

Magazines are always digging up statistics about their readers to use in full-page advertisements in New York City.

Although the timingkeeping was quite accurate from a natural standpoint, it led to much confusion. On Connecticut's longest road, the distance of the globe, a distance of thirteen miles equals a one minute difference in time.

It is possible to understand, even, from many points of view, to approve, the game the President seems to have decided to play.

TOWN OF MANCHESTER, CONNECTICUT

TO: Board of Directors
FROM: R. B. Weiss, General Manager
SUBJECT: Tentative Budget and Budget Message Fiscal Year Beginning July 1, 1967.
DATE: March 23, 1967.

PERSONNEL
The general inflationary pressures that are so evident in our individual household budgets are apparent also in the Town budget. In budget preparation every effort has been made to balance requests for additional services with the Town's ability to pay.

REORGANIZATION
The recent announcement by Mr. Horace Murphy, Superintendent of Parks and Recreation of his intention to retire at the end of the present fiscal year has led to a review of the Park and Recreation operation.

DATA PROCESSING
It has become evident in recent years that the Town would be well advised to utilize electronic data processing procedures to improve information handling whenever feasible.

CAPITAL IMPROVEMENT
Anyone who has become familiar with the problems facing Manchester is aware of the need for a Comprehensive Capital Improvement Program.

REVENUES AND INCOME
Due to a very lightly drawn budget for the present fiscal year, we do not expect to end the year with any surplus funds to be carried over to next year.

Major elements of the total increase of $894,148 are:
Education $477,899
Police Department $230,292
Sanitary Fill Operation $61,443

2 Hearings Set Monday About Town Star Headed By Planners

A public hearing on two subdivisions will be held on Monday by the Town Planning Commission on applications by Town Manager Robert Weiss to subdivide property off N. Lakewood Circle, and an application for a 20-unit subdivision off Bush Hill Rd.

The TPC will also decide the matter of the Guitipero application for building additional apartments off Charter Oak St.

After the public hearing on the Bush Hill Rd. subdivision requested by John Barnini, and the Village St. subdivision, property owned by the town manager, a motion will be made for preliminary approval on these, according to the agenda.

The Barnini application for the 20 lots is at Bush Hill Rd. and Bell St.

Town Manager Robert Weiss has asked permission to subdivide a parcel of land he recently purchased into four possible parcels.

The Guitipero application has been tabled several times and the TPC recently received an opinion from Atty. W. David Keith, assistant town counsel, on the matter. In essence, Keith said that, according to zoning regulations, Guitipero's application was valid, but if it were judged on the basis of the town Master Plan of Development the issue may be overruled in an appeal.

To be discussed at the TPC meeting following the public hearing will be another three-lot subdivision off Bush Hill Rd.

Action is expected to be taken on the question of the sale of land at Love Lane and Olcott St., town owned property. A request has been before the TPC to change the 3-acre parcel now zoned Rural Residence to Industrial Zone.

Some objection to this change was expressed by the Board of Education because the industrial property is close to Vernons School.

A decision is expected on a request for the change of another town-owned parcel of land from Rural Residence to Industrial Zone. This is an inside parcel off Spencer St. Anthony Botticello had shown interest in the possible purchase of this property from the town to use it as a storage place for his dump trucks.

At the meeting, a linen map and a print of the "Fountain Village" apartments will be signed by members.

To be discussed also at the executive board meeting will be the budget.

Business Bodies

What is credit? Sometimes it is defined as simply another form of money, while a famous slogan adopted by the mysterious, multi million dollar company Dun and Bradstreet, defines credit as "man's confidence in man."

A meeting of business writers for the communications media was held in Hartford this week. Here Dun and Bradstreet officials spoke about credit and about economic research dealing with the success and failure of businesses.

Why do businesses fail? The D & B officials trace it back to the human factor. Business failures fall due to lack of experience in the line of management, they said, unbalanced experience which is not well rounded in sales, finance, purchasing and production on the part of the individual and plain incompetence, among other reasons.

Business failures is one of the many topics of research done by the D & B staff, which numbers about 50 investigators, recorders and analysts in the Hartford area and about 12,000 in the nation.

The purpose of the Hartford meeting was to let the communications media know of the company and that the services of the company were available to them. The other purpose, according to Frank Metzger, district manager of the Hartford office, was to "take the mystery away from the organization known as Dun and Bradstreet, Inc."

D & B is celebrating its 125th anniversary this year. The company is concerned with economic research, the financial picture of individual companies and providing information to businessmen on market surveys and marketing.

The company was established basically to give "credit judgment" to businessmen, and has lately been adding computers to its staff for the quick-gathering and compilation of facts and market analysis.

Several years before D & B was founded, in 1842, a famous orator, Daniel Webster, said this about credit. It "is the vital star of the system of modern commerce. It has done more, a thousand times more, to enrich nations, than all the mines of the world. It has excited labor, stimulated manufacturers, pushed commerce over every sea... established national superiority on the foundation of intelligence, wealth, and well-directed industry."

At the meeting, a D & B official told the story of a company which placed an unrealistic, unresearched trust on someone else's business ability.

Four businessmen went bankrupt, according to the official. A poorly managed business which had been extended credit by the others went bankrupt. The reverberations of this bankruptcy traveled along a line and the businesses dependent on it also bankrupted.

According to the annual report of the company, its 1966 gross income was over $200 million dollars, and it had a net income of over $17 million.

The yellow and black directories found in many business offices are publications of facts compiled by the company, as are the yellow pages of a telephone directory. The company puts out many other business publications.

Poet's Corner

A City
They tell us of a city where the streets are paved with gold, they tell us the inhabitants do never grow old, they tell us of the angels that are clothed in pure white, they tell us of a city where there is never any night.

They tell us of a city Jesus has gone to prepare, they tell us that a loving Father is waiting for us there, they tell us that no sin can ever enter there, they tell us all is love and joy and peace which we cannot compare.

They tell us of a city where there is never any pain, they tell us of a city where saints immortal reign, they tell us that Jesus for us has paid the price; they tell us that for us He gave himself a sacrifice; they tell us we can all go there if our sins are forgiven, for it is only those who can ever enter heaven.

Why TV Stars Do Movies

By BOB THOMAS HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What do television stars do with their free time? If they have the energy — and maybe five vice agents — they make movies.

Every television star must face that time when the ratings inevitably will nose-dive and he will have to seek other employment. The hope of most of them is to become attractions in feature films, as a handful of TV veterans have done — Steve McQueen, James Garner, Dick Van Dyke, etc.

And so television people are trying their hands at big screen movies. Barbara Parkins, member of the "Peyton Place" cast, is having a fling at her first starring movie, "Valley of the Dolls." The film also features Patty Duke in her first venture away from her series.

Raymond Burr, late of Perry Mason and soon to star in a new series "Ironside," is co-starring with George Peppard in "Crisis Cross." The "Hogan's Heroes" crew—Bob Crane, Warner Klemperer and John Banner—have joined sex images Elke Sommer and Maureen Arthur in "The Wicked Dreams of Paula Schultz."

Lucille Ball is hoping to activate her project on the Beardsley family of 19 children, with Henry Fonda as co-star. Buddy Ebsen of "Beverly Hillsbillies" is ambling through "The One and Only Genuine Family Band." The Disney film also stars Walter Brennan, who is coming back to TV with his third series, "The Guns of Will Sonnet." David McCallum is using his vacation from "The Man from Uncle" to make another feature, "Sol Madrid." The "Virginian" lads will be busy, James Drury in "Red Is the Color of Snow" and Doug McClure in "The Little Bustedard"—watch that spelling!—

"The Road West" came to a deadend at the close of this season, and its performers are scattering to movies: Barry Sullivan to "Twist of the Knife," Brenda Scott to "Journey to Shiloh" and Andrew Prine to "The Devil's Brigade." Brian Keith took time out from "Family Affair" to appear in "Reflections in a Golden Eye" with Elizabeth Taylor and Marlon Brando. Dean Martin continues to work in films between his television shows, or is it vice versa? His next is an-

A Time for Humor. Above, Harry Belafonte with Dick Gregory in "A Time for Laughter: A Look at Negro Humor in America" Thursday at 10 p.m. on ABC, and Sid Caesar in an opera spoof on "The Sid Caesar, Imogene Coca, Carl Reiner and Howard Morris Special" Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. on CBS.

other Matt Helm, "The Ambassador." Efrem Zimbalist Jr. jumped from "The FBI" to play Audrey Hepburn's husband in "Wait Until Dark." Lee Majors left "The Long Valley" to head west with Charlton Heston in "Will Penny." Will Hutchins, late of "Hey Landlord" is now appearing with Elvis Presley in "Clambake."

Sid Caesar Looks Different

NEW YORK (AP) — Almost all television viewers are weight-watchers. Not their own, but performers' weights.

The camera is a cruel eye that not only picks up wrinkles and sagging necklines on aging woman performers, but somehow adds about 25 pounds on the worst spots of every performer. With few exceptions, everybody in television is either on a diet or going on one the next day.

The fans notice. They eagerly tune in the first Jackie Gleason show of the season to find if Gleason lost any pounds over the summer. They learned to tell the age of a "Ferry Boat" episode by the steadily expanding girth of the star, Raymond Burr, over the seasons.

Bob Hope has had his slimy seasons and his plumper ones.

The ups and downs of Jack H. Leonard are easily noted on the assorted variety shows on which he appears.

But of all the stars, the one who had made the most dramatic reduction of all is Sid Caesar. In a recent appearance on the Dean Martin Show, his slim boyish build combined with a new hair-style actually made him hard to recognize.

Caesar has, in fact, lost 30 pounds over the past few months. He will be in CBS' "The Sid Caesar-Imogene Coca-Carl Reiner-Howard Morris" special next Wednesday night, a reunion of the team that made "Your Show of Shows" an early TV delight. They wanted to use the old title, but could not get permission from Max Liebman, producer of the old show, who owns it.

"I just decided one day that I had too much weight," said Caesar, "and I said that's it—I'll lose it. So I did."

"I just went on a high protein diet and I do a lot of exercises, like push-ups," he continued. "That's all there is to it. The exercises are just as important as the diet."

Caesar, whose career has been concentrated recently more on night club appearances and film roles than on television, does not harbor particularly for a return to weekly television unless it could be a free-wheeling variety hour.

Steve Allen Gets Show

NEW YORK (AP) — Steve Allen will return to his specialty—variety—in a summer season show carrying the spot now filled by CBS' Danny Kaye Show. It is one of four hot weather variety shows planned by the network.

"The Smithers Brothers Comedy Hour" will have a hostler while the comedy team of Jack Burns and Awmy Stinson and the Doodletown Fingers fill in. Red Skelton's temporary replacement will be a British-made hour called "Spotlight." Jackie Gleason's will be "Away We Go," with comedian George Coe in, singer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — When the history of the 1966-67 television season is written, it may well be called the year of the feature movie.

No new series came along to electrify audiences, as did "I Love Lucy" and "Gunsmoke" in years past. No important trend in programs was detectable, as in the seasons when Westerns or family comedies took over.

The big news of the season came last fall with "The Bridge on the River Kwai." The immense rating for the three-hour showing on ABC started a gold rush for Hollywood feature movies, old and new.

One of the men responsible for funneling feature movies to television audiences is Herbert S. Schlosser, West Coast programs vice president for NBC. He is firmly of the belief that all feature movies will eventually be seen on the home screen. Even MGM's perennial gold mine, "Gone With the Wind"?

"I think so," he said. "Even though MGM can still make millions with every reissue, they might want to put 'Gone With the Wind' on TV for one running and see what happens to its reissue value five years afterward." Note: MGM recently declined a $10-million offer for one showing of the Civil War epic on television.

That is one of the imponderables that film bigwigs enjoy pondering these days. Film stocks zoomed upward after the "Kwai" smash, the movie backlogs suddenly becoming immensely valuable.

Schlosser reported that feature films cost $200,000 for showings when NBC began its programming of movies on the network. The current average: $800,000.

NBC recently made deals for a reported $200 million to acquire features from the Hollywood studios. Industry estimates figure that in three years all of Hollywood's past product will have been shown on television. So far NBC has been the leader in replenishing that supply, with its "World Premiere" features made expressly for television by Universal.

"We are greatly pleased with what we have gotten," said Schlosser. "The ratings on the 'World Premiere' films have been as good or better than many of the top movies. None has done badly."

NBC's summer replacements consist only of Vic Damone's stint for Dean Martin and "The Saint," an adventure series, replacing Andy Williams. On ABC, only "Peyton Place" will not consist of reruns.
